The resolution was accompanied by the following communication:

To the members of the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Washington:

Having noted the unsatisfactory service rendered in the last three sessions of the legislature of this state by inefficient postmasters of the Senate and House, appointed more as a reward for party service than for efficiency, and believing that an improvement in this service would be desirable, I take the liberty of making the following statement:

There is at this office a substitute carrier not at present on duty who is thoroughly competent to serve both Senate and House in this capacity with satisfaction. His services can be secured for the regular carrier's salary, viz.: $2.50 per day, and if appointed he will have free access to the mailing room of this office at all times of the day or night, including Sundays, and I will provide him with a working case in the office, thereby enabling him to get his mail from 30 to 45 minutes sooner than any one not in the government service. I will also place in the capitol building a street letter box and a package box, to which he will be allowed a key, thus placing all mail immediately under lock and government charge. I have endeavored to secure an appropriation for this, but the department refused to grant the request.

My sole object in making this proposition is to promote the efficiency of the service, realizing that poor service on the part of Senate and House postmasters, even though not in government employ, will reflect more or less discredit upon this office.

This carrier's name is Morris C. Crandall. He will wear the regulation carrier's uniform, enabling him to be easily distinguished. I know him to be thoroughly reliable, courteous and competent. Respectfully,

A. W. WISNER, Postmaster.

On the invitation of President Luce, the governor advanced to the speaker's chair.

He was then introduced to the senators and representatives in joint session and delivered the following message:

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
OLYMPIA, January 13, 1897.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

You are assembled to exercise the highest privilege known to man in a free state, that of making laws to govern your fellow men. Upon your action may depend the lives and welfare of your friends and neighbors; the prosperity and advancement of our cherished commonwealth, and the worth of your future. Remembering the maxim whose truth has been approved by the experience of ages, "That people is best governed which is least governed," you will, I am assured, approach the execution of your delicate duties with caution and prudence, to the end that all good citizens may approve your course.

"In a free country," said that noble spirit, George William Curtis, who devoted a long and lovely life to one of the best of popular reforms, that of civil service, "an election is intended to be, and of right should be, the choice of differing policies of administration by the people at the polls." But government by party does not imply that partisan feelings, party spirit, should enter into government, least of all in our federal republic where its perniciousness has been most felt, for even at the outset of our nation that wise man whose name our state commemorates, said of party spirit, "It exists under different shapes in all government, more or less stifled, controlled or repressed; but in those of popular form it is seen in its greatest rankness, and is truly their worst enemy."

Fortunately for our national welfare the political forces at work have, as a rule, been so evenly balanced that the resultant, especially in legislation, has been to urge us upward and onward in material and social progress between closely converging lines, no matter what party has been in power. The evils of party spirit have been most viciously exercised in states where the balance of power between parties has been least evenly divided. Indeed, it may be said that it is an axiom of practical politics that large legislative majorities are most difficult to harmonize for a wise common purpose.

You, gentlemen, more truly than has been wonted in our legislative assemblies, represent all the people of the state in their political convictions. Every shade of opinion known to our politics is, I believe, represented among you. This, in my judgment, is as it should be; for, to be frank with you, I for one do not believe that political representation should be all one sided, though, as a good republican, I should be pleased to see a few more of my party here, and I must take comfort in the belief that a good sound whipping is sometimes as salutary for a party as for a strong and headstrong boy.

I believe in the sane judgment of the American people. I do not believe that any triumph of principles with which I do not agree will work any lasting injury; for if right they should triumph, and if wrong the people have a speedy remedy and will not fail to apply it.

Gentlemen of the legislature, I will not dwell at length upon the general policy which I think should be pursued in your legislation. To do so at this time is the special prerogative of the governor-elect, whose success as an administrator so largely depends upon your coöperation in his recommendations; but I would be recreant to my constitutional duty and to my own convictions did I not ask your attention to some of the needs of the state as I have seen them in the past four years, and as I feel them now.

TENDENCY TOWARD EXCESSIVE APPROPRIATIONS.

The impulses of a legislature influenced as it always is by a combination of local interests and confidence in state credit are nearly always lavish, so much so that I have vetoed over a quarter of a million dollars appropriated. This lavishness of appropriations had as its excuse the over confidence of the legislators in the resources of our state, perhaps excusable in men so enthusiastic over its future, as nearly all were by reason of "boom times." I venture to repeat my former suggestion that "the present legislature should closely scrutinize all appropriation acts and defend the taxpayers from a repetition of such folly." Under existing laws it is impossible for the government to veto many items of appropriation which in his judgment might be reduced because of the custom of making appropriations in a lump sum. For instance, there was appropriated by the last legislature—

For maintenance Western Washington hospital for the insane.....	$160,000
For maintenance Eastern Washington hospital for the insane.....	100,000
For maintenance state penitentiary.....	135,000
For maintenance state university.....	90,000
	$485,000

Here are four items of appropriation aggregating nearly half a million dollars without a detail. If such items were detailed, doubtless the governor could find several items which might be omitted without seriously crippling the objects of maintenance. At present he cannot do this. Early in the session a law should be passed requiring each appropriation item to be detailed. The legislation I have recommended has been adopted in many states. You should see to it, also, that the state's money is not allowed to remain idle. Under the present system this is unavoidable. A simple remedy, as I have before advised, is to pass an act turning the idle money from all save the bond and interest fund into the general fund for the redemption of warrants in rotation.

STATE DEBT.

From a careful examination of the state auditor's records you will see that the increase of the state debt, if taxes had been paid, under the present administration from January 11, 1893, to November 1, 1896, has been $174,748.37. The debt of the state when this administration began was $1,204,092.58. On November 1, 1896, it was $2,185,038.72. On November 1, 1892, the taxes delinquent and unpaid amounted to $150,000; and on November 1, 1896, the unpaid taxes due the state amounted to $955,905.50.

Under this administration $251,000 deficiencies left over by the last administration have been paid, and nearly $150,000 in interest on obligations then incurred, a total of $400,000. Under this administration there are no deficiencies, the last legislature, on my recommendation, having passed a law rendering them impossible. You will see that it is absolutely imperative that the laws for the collection of taxes should be rigidly enforced no matter upon what basis of expense you may put the state government. It is my opinion that a large amount in interest might be saved to the state by pursuing the policy adopted by several of our counties, irrespective of their politics, in funding the debt by issuing long term, low interest bonds. At present our annual interest account on our outstanding warrants, at 8 per cent. per annum, is approximately $150,000. Fund this debt, which will require a constitutional amendment, and then insist upon keeping the state upon a cash basis, and you will have easy burdens for the taxpayers, and the assurance of a prosperous and well regulated state.

FOREST PRESERVATION.

A measure which seems to me imperatively needed is the creation by law of an adequate forest preservation patrol, for the prevention of forest fires, the preservation of our forests, and the punishment of trespassers on public lands of the state. Now that the federal land grant is practically completed, its preservation is the next need in legislation. The destruction of valuable property annually by fire runs up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars; to say nothing of the destruction by floods, so largely caused by denudation of forests. With the abolition of the state land commission, as at present constituted, recommended both by the board of state land commissioners and the commissioner of public lands, in which recommendation I concur, it might be well to create a new land and forest commission, to serve without pay, except per diem and expenses for stated meetings, who shall coöperate with the commissioner of public lands in formulating regulations for forest preservation.

Some such action as this has been recommended in nearly every western state, and the federal congress has created a forest commission of scientific experts, whose recommendations the state land and forest commission should be authorized to carry into effect. Such a commission as I suggest should have as members scientists and experts, chosen irrespective of politics.

INVESTMENT OF PERMANENT SCHOOL FUND.

On my recommendation, the last legislature authorized the investment of the permanent school fund in state warrants. The result has been gratifying. Under the former system, profitable security was almost impossible to obtain, and the uninvested fund gradually crept up to \$147,347.78 on November 1, 1894. On October 31, 1896, there had been invested in state warrants \$212,803.46, bearing eight per cent. interest per annum. No better security can be had by the state than the state's own paper. The system practically amounts to taking money out of one pocket, putting it into another, and paying the current school fund a high rate of interest for the privilege of doing so. Prior to the adoption of this system practically the best rate of interest on securities obtainable averaged five and one-half per cent. On the transactions of the past two years the current school fund has, therefore, profited, and will continue to profit until the warrants are redeemed, at the rate of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on \$212,803.46, or \$5,320 per annum; a showing which should be gratifying to every taxpayer and parent of a school child.

STATE INSTITUTIONS.

At the last session of the legislature I recommended a sweeping reform in the government of state institutions. I asked that "management of state institutions should be provided for in one general act, all commissions, directors, boards and administrative officers to be placed under the supervision of an examiner, who shall act under the instructions of the governor in scrutinizing contracts, investigating methods and discipline, and in checking up disbursements." This I considered then and consider now the most needed reform in actual state government. I hope that you can see your way to effect it.

The state institutions, I believe, will be found to have been as well and safely managed as any in the United States, and exceptionally well in most instances. For details I refer you to the reports. It is proper here to say that a judgment has been recovered against the bondsmen of the late warden of the penitentiary, J. H. Coblentz, for the full penal sum of his bond, $10,000.

Without intending any invidious comparisons, but with a desire to call your attention to their changed status, I wish to say that under their present management the state university at Seattle and the agricultural college and school of science at Pullman, the culmination of our system of intellectual and industrial education, have taken giant strides forward and merit your special consideration.

REVENUE LAW REVISION.

Our revenue laws were modified in the direction of reform by the last legislature. Much remains to be done. Assessments should be based on actual worth in money, not on speculative or imaginary values. The cost of assessment, over one hundred thousand dollars, is altogether too high. A collateral inheritance tax should be adopted. The reduction of delinquency penalties has been a mistake. Where penalties are too low taxes will surely become delinquent and revenues will fail to meet estimated and necessary income.

RAILROAD LEGISLATION.

I have nothing to add to my former recommendation that minimum charges for transportation should be secured to shippers in a spirit of exact justice to railroads and their patrons. My views, which were set forth with urgency, did not meet with approval and the legislature failed to grant the relief so long desired in this state. I have only to say that a fair and honest regulation of railroad rates can work no real hardship to corporation interests. What the government at Washington has done, the government in Washington should do. The same principles of law and justice which apply to and govern the Interstate Commerce Commission should apply to and govern in this state.

STATE LANDS.

For a detailed statement of the condition of the state lands I refer you to the report of the commissioner of public lands and the board of state land commissioners, whose statements and suggestions I concur with and endorse. You will see from those reports that the important task of selection of granted lands is completed so far as the board is concerned, and will be complete when the reservations of unsurveyed townships already made by me in accordance with law are surveyed, and the reserved areas selected. The laying of the harbor lines, the platting and survey of the tide lands of the first class in front of cities have been completed, and the hearings of contests over preference rights to purchase have been disposed of so far as the state is concerned. This important and delicate work has been completed without legal objection by any parties. The facts that the commissioner of public lands was so largely occupied by the necessary duties of his office, and the careful exercise of executive and judicial discretion in the selection of lands and the hearing of tide land contests, formed the principal reason for the continuance of the board of state land commissioners. Their special work is now practically complete, therefore I concur in their, and the commissioner's suggestion, that there no longer remains any need for the board's continuance in its present form.

HARBOR AREA LEASES.

An uncertainty in the law, and a praiseworthy desire to obtain the most thorough knowledge of the practice of seaport cities throughout the world, has led the board of state land commissioners to defer the preparation of lease regulations until the legislature should meet. The policy of the constitution-makers in creating harbor line areas was that by the state's aid excessive tolls on commerce should be avoided. You should provide a nominal rate for leases, and at the same time restrict lessees' charges to an equally low rate.

STATE CAPITOL.

For a full account of the transactions of the state capitol commission, I refer you to the detailed report of that body, which will be laid before you. The substance of that report, and the facts are, that the state has the very best possible foundation for the capitol building, constructed under the most rigid and conscientious supervision, as you can all readily see, and at a large cash loss to the contractors, which is unusual in such cases. Further than this, it will be seen: That the work of the commission has been economical; that every effort has been bent toward securing complete construction; and that the effort was unsuccessful owing to the fact that it was found impossible to sell the capitol fund warrants by reason of the unsatisfactory condition of the law and that of the money market. The security itself—the capitol land grant—was and is considered adequate, and the lands already selected are ample in value in a normal market to cover the cost of construction. The capitol should be built. Under the decision of our supreme court, the liability for construction can not fall upon the state itself. The obligations incurred can only be a lien against the land grant. The grant was made by the federal government for the erection of a state capitol, and for no other purpose. It can not be alienated. Those persons who have thought that the capitol was to be built, or could be built, at the state's expense, have been mistaken in their views. The state is virtually a trustee for the federal government in the building of the capitol, and the state should act as soon as conditions will permit. If the federal government had granted money for the building of the capitol, there could have been no possible question as to the liability of the state. Because the federal government granted lands for this purpose instead of money there is not created thereby any state liability.

RELIEF FOR DEBTORS.

The tendency of state legislation in this country has been for the relief of debtors, the principal seeming to be that a conservation of existing forces is of sounder wisdom and greater benefit to the social organization than disintegration and reorganization. But the courts have invariably held to the inviolability of free contract and have tolerated no interference with its operation. As a measure of conservation, I have heretofore recommended that when property is sold under foreclosure or execution proceedings and is redeemed by the debtor or his agent he be allowed to recover the net income or profits of the property during the redemption period from the purchaser or creditor. Such a measure I think is naked justice. A measure of this class of legislation was passed by the last legislature known as the "Deficiency Judgment Bill." I was obliged to veto it because it was clearly intended to be retroactive, and was therefore unconstitutional. Since my veto, the position I took has been sustained by the supreme court of the United States in the case of Barnitz v. Beverly (16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1043), which went up from Kansas. I am of the opinion that the least harmful measure of the kind that can be enacted is one that shall clearly exclude existing contracts, and which shall allow the mortgagor to renew his present mortgage on its former conditions if he chooses. Otherwise such legislation would be destructive and not conservative. Legislation which will provide for future action in such cases may be wise or unwise, but it can work no prejudice in law to either creditor or debtor. Intended remedial legislation should be the work of the good physician, not of the surgeon. It will not cure a temporary paralysis of a man's right arm to cut off the arm.

NATIONAL GUARD.

An act of the last legislature has worked needed reform in our national guard. Under its operation we have had great reduction of and economy in expense. Seven companies of infantry and two troops of cavalry were disbanded, the remainder of the force has been put on a strictly military basis, the play soldier being eliminated. As it now stands the guard is highly creditable to the state in its soldierly character. For a detailed statement you are referred to the admirable report of the efficient adjutant general.

REDUCTION OF STATE EXPENSES.

An act compelling citizens to act as election officers without pay should be passed. This would save the taxpayers nearly $40,000 on a single state election. No good citizen should expect pay for such services. The last legislature made a partial reclassification of superior court districts in accordance with my recommendation. The result has been satisfactory, but a further reduction would do no harm, provided that court commissioners for probate cases be appointed. Municipal courts can also be abolished with advantage. In criminal cases fees and mileage should be abolished and only actual expenses be allowed witnesses and jurors. The professional juror would soon disappear if this were done. In our civilized society men should act out their part of the social compact in good faith and without expectation of reward for duty done.

CONCLUSION.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives, you will understand that I can have no personal motive when I express the hope that here you may lay aside faction and partisanship. You receive a party nomination, and it is right that you should apply your party principles to government; always remembering that the people, not your party, elect you, and that you represent not a party but all the people. In your deliberations no sectional or class interests should be allowed to mar your devotion to the welfare of the whole public, yet these interests you will find it hardest to resist. I have been a resident among you for over twenty years. I hope to end my days here. I am proud of the people, proud of the state. I shall take as much pride as any among you if when you have concluded your labors the public verdict shall be "well done!" and you shall have strengthened our common aspiration, the welfare of the people of Washington.

Judge Scott, of the supreme court of Washington, administered the oath of office to Governor-elect John R. Rogers.

Governor Rogers delivered the following inaugural address:

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
OLYMPIA, JANUARY 13, 1897.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Washington:

An eminent doctor of the law has told us with great force and clearness that all valid law is based on that instinctive apprehension of justice which finds universal lodgment in the heart of man. On this true foundation are based all right rules of human conduct. Relying upon this and upon my own clearly felt consciousness of right intent, I assume the weighty and most responsible duties imposed as the result of the recent election. I pledge you only this: A strict adherence to law and a firm determination to execute it without fear or favor.

THE STATE OF WASHINGTON.

We live in a favored region. Here stretch out before our eyes, in elsewhere unequalled profusion, the bounties of nature. Nowhere among the sisterhood of states comprising the American Union are the natural resources and opportunities here afforded excelled or scarcely equaled. With an area largely in excess of that occupied by the six New England states, the State of Washington presents a wide diversity of opportunity unrivaled in the splendid character of the invitation offered to both capital and labor. It has the best and most productive grain fields in the world, and the largest body of valuable timber yet remaining in the limits of the United States. Its mountains of coal and iron are in close proximity to the deep waters of Puget Sound—the grandest harbor of the Union, with a shore line of 1,800 miles in extent, the future seat of empire on the Pacific coast, through whose ports have already come during the year just passed goods second in value only to those imported by the imperial city of New York. Add to all this a mild climate, where rivers are never frozen and ports never blockaded, a brave and self-reliant people, industrious and energetic, and it would appear that everything necessary to man's prosperity has been provided with a generous hand. And this is indeed the truth. Nature has here lavished her bounties, and nothing is lacking to complete a perfect picture of God's favor to man.

PRESENT DIFFICULTIES.

And yet, that all is not well with us we are agreed. No honest man can say that labor receives the full measure of just return for its performance. Times are hard, we say, and property has depreciated below the value it should justly hold. Men vainly seek employment, which, if found, is not adequately remunerative. Anxious wives and mothers look with fear to the daily diminishing family stores. Mortgages cover much of the real estate, and the hearts of strong, brave men sink within them as they view with moistened eyes the needs of helpless children for whom they are called to provide. No one doubts, no one denies, the existence of want and involuntary poverty among us, poverty, too, not the result of wastefulness or lack of industry, but forced by the constantly appreciating value of money consequent upon the demonetization of silver and the establishment of the gold standard. Nevertheless we are told that money thus cunningly enhanced and enlarged in purchasing power by legislative act is the only honest money! Having by law thus, to all intents and purposes, increased the size of the dollar, our monetary masters demand from the people the number of dollars denominated in the bond. Having in like manner doubled the ounces in the pound with which all the products of human exertion are measured, they call him dishonest who speaks of a return to ounces and pounds having a relation of sixteen to one. Like the drunken fish wife who reviled the eel that would not lie still while she skinned it, these hypocritical purveyors of so-called honest money cover with billingsgate those who point out the transparent trickery of their proceedings. But, blinded by personal and pecuniary interests, men who think themselves honest and who mean to be honest do not see the enormous injustice of the demand thus made upon industry for a steadily increasing share of the products of toil. These are the conditions we are required to face. Because of them debts are increasing, interest is accumulating, taxes are unpaid, our homes are taken from us, our business is destroyed, and labor is deprived of its just remuneration.

APPEAL TO PATRIOTISM.

You are here to make and mend the laws. The people look to you for relief. They have elected you with the hope and the belief that you will be able to remove some of the difficulties under which they are laboring. This is well understood by all, and your presence here is an implied acceptance of a most important trust thus committed to your charge.

Section 6 of article 3 of our state constitution provides that the governor "shall communicate at every session by message to the legislature the condition of the affairs of the state and recommend such measures as he shall deem expedient for their action."

In pursuance of the duty thus imposed, I am led, first, earnestly to warn you against the dangers of factional controversy, for when once this has been aroused earnest endeavor and high patriotic resolve perish in the fierce heat engendered by the struggle for place. That you are thus to be tested is plain to all. In addition to the patent fact that differences of opinion exist among you is the further and, at this critical juncture, deplorable fact that an election is shortly to be held here which shall place in the Senate of the United States a citizen of this state for the ensuing six years. For this coveted position each faction has its candidate or candidates, for whose success some of the factionists may be ready to imperil the future existence of the political compact by means of which their election was secured, and which, if rightly guided and honestly managed, will finally and securely lodge in the hands of the great plain people of this state those rights, powers and privileges with which as American citizens they are inalienably endowed. If, by mischance, disruption and disintegration of hitherto allied forces shall at this time ensue and the ardent hope which has arisen in the hearts of earnest men that there had been formed an organization devoted solely to the advancement of pure politics and just rules of political action, only to be destroyed by the strife of politicians eager for preferment — if this shall be the result, I do not hesitate here and now to place the blame for the vile surrender of a great trust upon the heads of office seekers and their friends. If the hope of the people is thus to perish, greed for office will end it and the quarrels of factionists, each more eager for spoil than for the success of a great cause, will prove the men before me unfit for the grave and weighty responsibilities of free government. Men of Washington, I adjure you by the love you bear the sacred cause of human liberty let not these dismal forebodings become the true history of a wretched past. Repel them; repel any insinuation upon your honor as men and your fidelity to the cause of humanity. That temptation will arise, must indeed come, from the rivalries of candidates, is clear to all. We are here not as the agents of this or that man or this or that political faction, but rather as the representatives of a people united in their demand for relief and earnestly desirous of obtaining it in the only way it can be obtained—by consistent, unselfish and harmonious political action. He who prevents this is a stumbling block in the pathway of reform.

At the battle of the pyramids in Egypt, Nepoleon inspired his soldiers to deeds of heroic valor by shouting to them: "Soldiers! from yonder pyramids forty centuries look down upon you." So, to-day, seventy millions of people are looking anxiously to Washington with hope and fear,—with hope that we may prove equal to the emergency, and that, inspired by the high resolve which ever attends the patriot, we may spurn the promptings of faction and prove to the world that the men of our day are capable of as full and free consecration to a great cause as ever were men in any age of the world.

These are the conditions: The great plain people, the average business man, the farmer, the mechanic and the professional man, are to unite against the organized aggressions of the privileged few, or they are to become the helpless servants of a poorly concealed plutocracy. Men of varied interests and of no interest are to stand together, or, divided, they are to fall a prey to the oncoming forces of despotism. If they are to stand together they must agree, and they can only agree by means of mutual concessions and conciliation. The future is in your hands; you can make it what you will. But if you fail to agree, if by lack of agreement you render the success of the people's cause impossible. Do not forget that the men of this state will call you to account as unworthy and incapable servants and deprive you of future stewardship.

A vast opportunity is before us. We are to prove ourselves worthy the trust imposed upon us; we are to show our ability to construct new policies as well as destroy the old.

THE RULING POWER.

It should, and must be, remembered that law, to be respected and obeyed, must follow and not precede public opinion, in fact, just law is first the product of that instinctive apprehension of justice which finds universal lodgment in the heart of man. It must primarily exist in the heart; afterward, its being placed upon the statute is the mere formal ratification of what had previously existed. Lacking this essential requisite, enactments of the legislative authority will prove but temporary expedients. Public opinion in all civilized countries is the power behind the throne, greater than the throne itself. And public opinion is the product of that general consensus of prevailing thought which must come, and does come, not from the minds even of the educated and the well informed, but rather from the general average judgment of society embracing all classes and conditions of men; because of the fact that in this general average judgment all grades of intelligence and all kinds of people are included, the resulting product is a truer statement of matters affecting all the people than could be the case where only a few or a certain class of minds consulted. This is the true foundation of democratic government among men, and with this understanding, "The voice of the people is the voice of God." But no class, no part of society however intelligent or influential, is qualified or able to speak with this authority. It must needs be a declaration of substantial unanimity coming from that very large majority which includes, practically, all the people. This is public opinion, the ruling power in modern life, against which nothing can continue long to stand. Supported by this, reform can go on. Deserted by this, it will wither and die. Whatever is by you proposed and here enacted, that is supported by this general average judgment of society, is called for and will endure. Whatever is not thus supported is uncalled for and will not be endured. Let us not deceive ourselves, the limit is set beyond which we cannot with safety go. If a reform or a measure is not thus supported by a nearly unanimous opinion, or at least by a very large majority, its time has not come and must be deferred until by agitation and education that unanimity of thought is produced which will then be able to carry it successfully forward. Revolutions have always had more to fear from reaction than from any and all things else. And this comes from the fact that adventurous spirits have in their zeal outstripped public opinion, going beyond the ground considered safe by the general average judgment of the society specially concerned. Advancing but a step beyond this, confidence is lost, fear is engendered, and retreat in ruinous disorder is the inevitable result.

In this state a most successful political revolution has just been effected. Let not the zealot vainly imagine that because of this revolution authority has been given for the enactment into law of all approved by him. This is only the thought of the enthusiast and the dreamer. It is true that the trumpet has sounded an advance, but that advance must be one which all are able to make, for all are concerned in the movement. The advance must not be greater than that approved by that public opinion which comes from the general average judgment of all the people of Washington. We go beyond this at the risk of losing all the advantages gained; of losing the confidence of those who, while with us in this fight, only half endorsed the plans of those among us most advanced, and the moral certainty of arousing fear in the minds of the timid and faint-hearted in our own ranks. Better a thousand times to stop short of an exercise of our whole power than to exceed it by so much as the fractional part of a grain.

THE REVENUE LAWS.

Taxation has ever been an essential, yet annoying, feature of government. In a measure, the collection of revenue involves an exercise of force repugnant to the independent spirit of American character. But the people quickly recognize and appreciate the benefits accruing from a cautious and just expenditure of these revenues—an expenditure for the education of our youth, for the care of the orphan and the infirm, for the improvement of the public highways, for the protection of health and the preservation of social order, and for the proper regulation and control of corporate bodies whose avarice leads them to disregard the interests of the individual and the state. Unequal taxation, however, is a source of constant turmoil, no matter how wisely or fairly such taxes may be expended. The revenue laws now in the statutes are grossly unequal in their operation. They throw the burden of government almost entirely upon property holders of small means, while wealthy corporations escape with nominal contributions to the public treasury. The laxity of the revenue laws in other respects offers a premium for the non-payment of taxes by persons and institutions who profit more largely by speculating on the misfortunes of others, in these times of depression, than they would gain by prompt settlement. The treasurers' books in the larger counties show that as a rule the taxes which remain unpaid are due from corporations and men of wealth who are able to pay. Many of these delinquents are fighting the law in the courts, and others seek to evade penalty and interest through a special law remitting them.

How to prevent these abuses is a question of serious concern to all, and should receive your most thoughtful attention. Some of the older states in the Union have perceived the inequalities of the revenue system here employed. In the effort to devise a method more equitable to all alike, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York have recognized the principle that corporations enjoy particular advantages granted by the state, and in justice should make suitable return. Pennsylvania has advanced so far in this line that about two-thirds of its annual revenue is raised by taxing corporation stock, limited partnerships, foreign insurance companies, incomes, collateral inheritances and liquor licenses. In his report for the fiscal year ending November 30, 1894, the auditor of Pennsylvania gives this summary of the state's receipts:

1. State lands sold.....	$2,105 96
2. Tax on corporation stock and partnerships.....	3,633,623 30
3. Tax on gross receipts of corporations and notaries public.....	780,308 61
4. Tax on bank stock and examination of banks.....	535,142 23
5. Tax on net earnings and income of banks.....	78,086 43
6. Foreign insurance companies.....	495,758 50
7. Tax on gross premiums.....	55,515 86
8. Tax on municipal and corporation loans.....	1,381,551 66
9. Tax on personal property.....	2,386,750 99
10. Tax on wills.....	162,518 52
11. Tax on collateral inheritances.....	869,178 91
12. Tax on licenses such as mercantile, liquor, etc.....	1,366,137 26
13. Other incomes, variously distributed, all aggregating.....	12,873,736 82

New York, by recent enactment, has made it possible to defray its enormous expenses without resorting to direct taxation, except for a small portion of its revenues. As a first step, New York enacted a revenue law modeled after that of Pennsylvania. The two differ in detail, but are alike in principle. New Jersey has a modified form of the same system. Illinois and Ohio are fast approaching it.

In view of the examples set by these older and more experienced states, the commonwealth of Washington could not be accused of rash or prejudicial action by setting out to abandon the pernicious scheme of taxation that casts the heaviest burden upon those least able to bear it. It is not class legislation to require remuneration for special privilege. The people of Washington are progressive and liberal. They realize that capital and labor must cooperate in the development of our latent resources. But they object, as true Americans ought, to any system, whether of money or taxation, which gives all the fruit to capital and leaves labor empty handed. Fair and just laws never repelled honest investment, but if they did, it were better, infinitely better, that the population of this state remain a half million free, self-governing, self-respecting Americans forever, than to bring five million immigrants among us only to place them under perpetual bondage to foreign money loaners by yielding concessions which would drain the state of its natural wealth to swell the coffers of the excessively rich, and condemn the wealth producers to a life of penury and want.

I earnestly recommend that the policy of our revenue laws be changed to correspond to the lines laid down by those old and most successfully managed states — Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey. It is possible that the immediate enactment of laws necessary to carry this policy into effect may be barred by article VII of the state constitution. If so, an amendment would remove the obstacle. Such a reform need not be delayed longer than two years, if an amendment is submitted by the present legislature.

To a large extent the great properties of the state escape taxation, while the poor home owner is taxed to the limit of endurance. This should cease. Every family should be able to live in a free home, exempt from taxation to a stipulated extent and made free from fear of foreclosure and sale for debt. When once this has been arrived at, the cause of human liberty will have taken a distinct and positive forward step. Whenever our people have been sufficiently educated by hardship and privation to be ready for a really radical measure of reform, they will by constitutional amendment take that first and most indispensable step which shall finally secure to all man's natural and God-given right to a sufficient portion of the earth's surface for self support. When this first and fundamental right of man has been secured, he will be free, and never will be free until this has been gained. Whether men are yet ready for freedom, I do not know.

PUBLIC EDUCATION.

Our state constitution provides: "It is the paramount duty of the state to make ample provision for the education of all children residing within its borders, without distinction or preference on account of race, color, caste or sex. The legislature shall provide for a general and uniform system of public schools." From this it is evident that a state tax for the support of schools for the benefit of all children in the state alike becomes a necessity. The provision is mandatory upon the legislature. Unless a state tax is levied how can there be a general and uniform system of public schools for the equal benefit of all? Two years ago the legislature, by an amendment to the laws, known at the time as "the bare-foot school boy law," established a system of state taxation for the equal benefit of all her children. By means of this, taxes not to exceed four mills on the dollar are levied and collected as other state taxes are collected, sufficient to produce a sum equal to $6 annually for each child of school age. This is simply a state tax for the support of schools. The larger cities and wealthier communities have opposed the law and it is said will make efforts to repeal it. It is claimed that not enough is raised by the law to support the schools, and, doubtless, this is true. But the law does not prevent counties or school districts from raising more. As at first introduced, the bill provided for the raising by taxation of a sum equal to ten dollars for each child of school age, and if taxes were all collected this would afford a sum sufficient for the support of common schools. If, in addition to this, state taxes were levied as in Pennsylvania, our schools might be entirely supported by taxation of property which now largely escapes. Complaint has been made that in some of the counties certain small districts are unfairly treated. An amendment to the law providing for a special apportionment by the county superintendent of each county would very likely remedy this defect.

STATE BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION.

In pursuance of an intention to abolish certain boards of control and in this way to unify and systematize the work of our higher institutions of learning, it has been proposed that the state university, the agricultural college and the three normal schools be placed under the control of one central board instead of a separate board for each institution. The secretary of the state board of education might serve as a member of this board and perform the duties of traveling auditor, keeping the central board fully informed regarding the condition and standing of each institution. It is believed that an arrangement of this kind might be made which would save money to the state and secure greater efficiency. The incoming state superintendent of instruction has taken some steps toward formulating a plan of action in this line, to whom further inquiry may be directed.

FREE TEXT BOOKS.

As a matter of principle the state should supply to each scholar in the common schools text books as freely as it now provides school houses and school furniture. At present the state has a contract with a private corporation, which has secured the privilege of furnishing school books at a high cost to the people of the state. By a clause in the contract it is provided that whenever the state shall engage in the manufacture of books the contract is to become inoperative. I am of the opinion that the state can, at comparatively small outlay, establish an experimental plant and manufacture for her citizens good school books at from 25 to 33½ per cent. of the present cost. A first-class printing press and bindery can be bought and set up for about $5,000. Electrotype plates of a standard series of school books, with privilege to print from them, can, it is thought, be obtained for a reasonable sum. This plant might be established at the Walla Walla penitentiary. Only two expert workmen need be employed—a pressman and a bookbinder—and even their services might soon be dispensed with. Under instruction from these experts, the inmates of the prison, who, I am told, spend much idle time, will soon be able to make all the books needed for all the children of the state. The books thus manufactured might be sold at cost to the different counties or school districts, or supplied free, as may be provided by statute. In a very short time, in this way, under the supervision of one man as superintendent, the state might be released from an arbitrary tax, amounting in the aggregate to a very large sum, and also make criminals instrumental in elevating and educating the youth of the state. Thus light might be brought out of darkness and good out of evil.

COERCION OF THE VOTER.

It need not be said that the purity of the ballot box is one of the essential requisites in any scheme of free government. Free men must have free votes, and if votes are not beyond the control of selfish outside influences, the voter becomes in time only a machine for recording the edicts of a power greater than that of his own will. Under these circumstances freedom is a sham and self-government an idle word. It is earnestly recommended that a statute be prepared and passed which will prevent the growing evil of coercion and intimidation of the voter.

FREE PASSES.

Section 39 of article 2 of the state constitution stipulates that: "It shall not be lawful for any person holding public office in this state to accept or use a pass, or to purchase transportation from any railroad or other corporation other than as the same may be purchased by the general public, and the legislature shall pass laws to enforce this provision."

Section 20 of article 12 of the constitution provides as follows: "No railroad or other transportation company shall grant free passes or sell tickets or passes at a discount, other than as sold to the public generally, to any member of the legislature, or to any person holding any public office in this state. The legislature shall pass laws to carry this provision into effect."

The legislature has never passed the necessary laws to enforce the provisions of the constitution, and hence they have been practically inoperative. No time should be lost in providing by law that corporations issuing free passes and officials accepting them shall be properly punished.

RAILWAY RATES AND FARES.

The proper regulation and control of common carriers, including railroad and steamship lines, telegraph and telephone companies, is a problem difficult of solution. Government ownership is the only final remedy; but that is yet in the future. Freight rates and passenger fares in this state are exorbitant. They should be reduced. But whether public interest would best be subserved by placing the matter altogether in charge of a commission, or attending to it by direct legislative enactment, those most to be benefited by a reduction are not agreed. It seems to me that the best results could be obtained from a law establishing a maximum scale of rates and fares, and providing for the enforcement of the law through the agency of a commission, giving the commission power further to lower the scale, as time and circumstances may justify. Inasmuch as the governor of the state is responsible for the execution of the laws, I believe that such commission should be appointed by him, any member of it to be removable at the will of the governor. Thus faithfulness to the people would be insured, or the governor justly held to account. The expenses of a transportation commission ought not to be burdensome, and would amount to an infinitesimal part of the direct benefit accruing to the patrons of common carriers within this state as a result of reduced rates and a better regulated service.

ABOLITION OF COMMISSIONS.

The office of arid land commissioner, I am inclined to think, should be abolished, and the duties devolving upon this official be performed by the elected land commissioner. It seems probable that the bill now before congress ceding to the several states outright and without qualification all arid lands within their borders will pass. This will remove any necessity of selecting such lands by the state.

It is the opinion of those best able to judge of these matters that the land commission provided for by a recent statute should likewise be abolished.

I am unable to discover that the dairy commissioner has been able to produce a pound of butter more than would have been the case if his office had not been created. Nor do I believe that he has increased the price or quality of the butter offered in our markets. The sale of oleo as butter is prohibited by penalty, and half the fine is by statute given to the informer. It is probable that this is sufficient to protect our producers, but if the continuation of the office is demanded, might it not be well also to provide for a hen commissioner who shall see that our grocers properly count the eggs as brought in for sale? Said hen commissioner might also, by way of diversion, undertake, at least occasionally, the instruction of our farmers in the highly important art of scientifically setting a hen. Seriously, it seems to me that the regulation of the sale of milk, butter and eggs is a matter entirely for municipal control.

Other and minor commissions might with propriety be abolished or consolidated.

BOARD OF PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

I am of opinion that the boards now controlling the penal, reformatory and eleemosynary institutions of the state, consisting of the state penitentiary, the reform school, the soldiers' home, the two insane asylums and the school for defective youth, might with propriety be abolished, and control of these institutions be vested in one board, to consist of the governor, the lieutenant governor, the secretary of state, the state auditor, and an official whose office is to be created, to be called the commissioner of public institutions, who shall do the work and perform the services usually devolving upon a traveling auditor. The saving in salaries per diem now paid six boards would be large. Goods could be bought at wholesale, and local and retail prices be escaped. More responsibility and greater system could be secured, and in the aggregate, a larger saving effected.

AFFAIRS OF THE PENITENTIARY.

Rumors of an exceedingly bad condition of affairs at the state penitentiary having been afloat for some time, a watch has been kept and some amateur detective work done by citizens of Walla Walla, aided by suggestions received from discharged convicts. Without disclosing the serious and even alarming nature of the revelations made, I request that at the earliest opportunity a legislative committee with full power to act be sent to Walla Walla; that an investigation be had before changes are made in the present management. If statements made by reliable persons are true, all the criminals are not on the inside.

MINE INSPECTION.

The great loss of life by coal mine explosions in this state within the last few years shows clearly the lack of proper mine inspection and ventilation. In the three mine explosions at Roslyn, Franklin and Blue Canyon, more than a hundred men lost their lives, many widows and some two hundred orphans were made. The mining law should be changed. It is grossly untrue to the interests of the miners. It should not be the policy of the state to hamper or impose onerous conditions upon the coal mining companies, but with the hope of being able by proper regulation to protect the lives of our hardy miners, something ought to be done. The legislature has appropriated at each session $7,000 for coal mine inspection. I believe this sum to be practically wasted as the law now stands.

EXAMINATION OF STATE BANKS AND BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Frequent and most greivous losses have fallen upon the people of this state by reason of the failure of institutions in which deposits of money have been made. For the future this may, to a great extent, be prevented by the appointment of a state bank examiner. In other states, notably in Kansas, this plan has proved most effective, and losses from this source have been reduced to a minimum. Such an official might be paid by a fee charged for each examination, or each institution might be required to pay a certain sum per annum. No expense to the people at large would be involved, and much good done.

THE FISHING INDUSTRY.

From the best sources of information at my command I am clearly of opinion that the law should, within a reasonable limit of time, prohibit utterly all fish traps, wheels and other stationery gear as a means of catching fish in the waters under the control of the State of Washington. As a means of revenue to the state, it is probable that an annual tax imposed upon each boat engaged in fishing should be collected. This would more than offset the amount now collected from traps.

The following extract from the message of Governor Sylvester Pennoyer to the legislature of Oregon, for the year 1893, is here included and endorsed:

"Salmon fishing has for years been one of the most prominent industries of Oregon, and the legislature should provide by law against its complete destruction by the greed of those at present engaged in it. When the industry was first established, gill nets were alone employed, with meshes sufficiently large so that the smaller salmon were allowed to pass undisturbed. Within the last few years, however, traps and fish wheels have been brought into quite general use, and salmon of all sizes, and by the ton, have been caught by them. This has seriously interfered with gill-net fishing, which formerly gave employment to a large number of brave men, who plied this calling with their gill nets, manned at the peril of their lives, only to find themselves competing in market with the owners of fish traps and wheels, who in a favored locality, and without danger, caught hundreds of fish to the poor fisherman's one. Against the monopoly of fish traps and fish wheels, and the wholesale destruction of fish, and, as a consequence, the ultimate extinction of this great industry, the attention of the last three legislatures has been directed in vain.

"The protest is again most urgently renewed. To allow any owner of a favored locality the privilege that cannot be exercised by other citizens, of erecting fish traps or fish wheels, thereby securing salmon by the ton, while other citizens cannot, is a monopoly that should no longer be tolerated. We boast of our free government and of our equal laws, and yet we are permitting a monopoly that no monarchical government on the face of the earth allows. In the Magna Charta granted by King John, A. D. 1215, it is stipulated that 'all kydells (weirs) for the future shall be quite removed out of the Thames and the Medway, and throughout England.' This guarantee was renewed in the first, second and third charters of King Henry the Third and in that of King Edward the First, and was really a fragment of the old common law which prevented any person from appropriating to themselves a fishway on the rivers, which were deemed common property. Every public river Lord Coke declared to be the king's highway, which could not be privately occupied. Kydells were dams having a narrow cut in them and furnished with wheels or traps for catching fish. It will thus be seen that this monopoly, which in England was destroyed nearly seven hundred years ago, is flourishing defiantly in the latter part of the nineteenth century in this country, which boasts of its equal laws. Let all fish traps, fish wheels and seines be abolished, confine the fishing to gill nets alone, and then all citizens have an equal chance, and the wholesale destruction of fish and the speedy extinction of one of our chiefest industries can be avoided."

MISCELLANEOUS RECOMMENDATIONS.

It is hoped that any member becoming possessed of information which would implicate any person in the offense of corrupt solicitation of officials will immediately cause prosecution to be brought against such persons, to the end that bribery may become a thing unknown in Washington. It will afford me pleasure to aid, so far as I may be able, in placing behind prison bars any person within the limits of the state who shall be convicted of this crime. It is probable that if some person highly connected, and of considerable previous social standing, could be thus treated as an example, much good would thereby result.

The statute passed at the last session of the legislature, providing for and allowing actions to be brought against the state in the superior court of Thurston county, should at once be repealed. By means of this law, it will be possible for designing men to loot the state treasury or cumber the records with judgments against the state. The legislature may be relied on to prevent injustice to individuals as the result of peculiar or particular circumstances or conditions.

It is universally recognized as true that whenever large and great accumulations of property are harassed and rendered unproductive and unprofitable by the combined action of men of small means and of no social standing, so called, a state of anarchy and misrule obtains, against which all the powers of the state should be exerted for instant and expeditious repression. Against this view no good citizen will raise his voice. Order is not only the first law of Heaven, but it should be, it must be, and it will be, the first law of the state. But there is another view of this matter, which, while equally true, is not equally obvious to the mass of society as now constituted. We become accustomed to injustice by daily association, and what at first would arouse the deepest indignation becomes in time an apparent necessity and finally seems to the average citizen a natural and unchangeable condition. It should be apparent, however, to the thoughtful and considerate man, that the converse of the proposition stated must also be true. If the property, the business and the occupations of the great mass of common and ordinary citizens of this country, possessed of little or no wealth and social standing, are not only rendered unprofitable and unremunerative, but are actually taken from them by the operation of causes set in motion by the few members of society possessed of wealth and high social position, who appear to be intent only upon pecuniary profit, regardless of loss and suffering imposed upon the many; then, in this event, it ought to be seen that anarchy is as truly fostered and produced as in the first and most obvious instance.

Although it is clearly evident to all thinking men that the people of this country are within the next few years to pass through a most critical period of national existence, I have a firm and abiding confidence in the wisdom, the justice and the ability of the great American people. They will safely surmount all opposition, for against the threatening difficulties which may seem to the timid to bar their advance, they will oppose the steady purpose of an honest intention and an earnest aspiration. The spirit of the fathers animates them; for them there is no such word as fail; they have hitched their wagon to a star, the star of hope; and the hope of humanity in them shall never perish.

The joint session was then dissolved.

Immediately following the dissolution of the joint session, President Luce called the Senate to order.

The secretary called the roll. All members being present.

President Luce made a brief address, thanking the senators for the courtesy shown him during his term as presiding officer of the Senate, and turned over the gavel to Thurston Daniels, the newly elected lieutenant governor, and ex officio president of the Senate.

Senator Easterday offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Hon. F. H. Luce, whose term of office as lieutenant governor, and ex officio president of this body, this day expired, is entitled to and has the thanks of this Senate for the uniformly fair and courteous manner in which he has discharged the duties of his office during the opening days of this session.

The resolution was unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

President Daniels addressed the Senate.

Senator Plummer again placed Charles S. Ryan in nomination for doorkeeper.

COMMITTEE ON SALARIES OF EMPLOYES.

MINORITY REPORT.

MR. PRESIDENT:

As a member of the committee appointed to examine into and report as to the salaries of Senate employes, and being unable to obtain the concurrence of the other members of the committee in my conclusions, I have now the honor to present a minority report as follows:

Having given the subject matter due attention and consideration, I find as follows:

1. The salaries heretofore paid were generally too high, and this is either conceded or urged by a large majority of this body.

2. The fusion party in the recent campaign submitted to the people of the state that this party, if placed in power, would make a substantial reduction in these salaries. The vote at the recent election indicated an acceptance of this proposition, and the majority of this Senate is now called upon to make good the pledges mentioned.

3. It is generally conceded that the salaries heretofore recommended by the majority of this Senate, and now concurred in by a majority of this committee, are higher than the persons holding the respective positions could earn or obtain for the same services when rendered for private persons.

The justification offered for this is not always the same, but is generally about as follows:

In political campaigns, many of the legislative candidates feel called upon in the interests of party success to promise assistance to various individuals to secure high salaried clerkships in the legislature. This has resulted in a custom, which is now well established, of a gathering at the capital from every section of the state at the opening of the session of persons who have been led to think they may obtain positions as clerks or assistants in the legislature. This involves in many cases the incurring of large and unusual expense by way of preparation, and for traveling expenses. And it is said that at this time there are a large number of persons with us in just this situation, and that to give the few whom we employ a fair compensation, exclusive of the expenses incurred by them, it is necessary that we pay them considerably more than the real value of their services.

It is generally conceded that the present system is wrong, and should be corrected.

I now submit that this is the time of all times when the needed reform should be instituted. The political party just come into power is emphatically pledged to correct the evil complained of. The way to reform is to reform.

To carry out the conclusions I have above set forth, I now submit the following schedule of salaries:

Secretary.....	$5 00
Sergeant-at-arms.....	4 00
Assistant secretary, minute clerk, docket clerk, journal clerk, enrolling clerk, bill clerk, and all committee clerks.....	3 00
Assistant enrolling clerk, assistant engrossing clerk, assistant journal clerk, and all other clerks, assistant sergeant-at-arms, postmaster, janitor, and watchman.....	2 50

Respectfully submitted.

R. C. WILSON.

Senator Keith moved to adopt the majority report.

Senator Lewis moved to amend the report by fixing the salary of the bill clerk at $4 per day and that of the minute clerk at $3.50 per day.

Senator Houghton moved to amend the amendment by fixing the salaries of both bill clerk and minute clerk at $4 per day.

The amendment to the amendment was lost.

The amendment was lost.

The motion to adopt the majority report was carried by the following vote:

Those voting in the affirmative were: Senators Baum, Cole, Crow, Davis, Dorr, Easterday, Field, Frink, Harper, High, Hill, Houghton, Keith, McReavy, Megler, Miller David, Miller T. J., Paul, Plummer, Range, Reinhart, Runner, Van Patten, and Yeend—24.

The bill was considered in the committee, Senator Plummer in the chair, and reported back to the Senate without amendment.

The bill was read the third time by sections, and, on motion of Senator Megler, the rules were suspended, the bill was considered engrossed and placed on its final passage.

It was then passed by the following vote:

Those voting in the affirmative were: Senators Baum, Crow, Davis, Deckebach, Dorr, Easterday, Field, Hall, Harper, High, Hill, Houghton, Keith, Lesh, Lewis, McReavy, Megler, Miller David, Miller T. The following resolution was received from the board of trade of Dallas, Texas, which, on motion of Senator Easterday, was referred to the Committee on Memorials.

To the President of the Senate, Olympia, Oregon [Washington]:

DALLAS, TEXAS, January 7, 1897.

DEAR SIR—This board of trade has been impressed with the vital importance of the passage of a bankrupt bill and has been in actual communication with the like commercial bodies over the country with the view of speeding the passage of some just and equitable bill. We find a general consensus of opinion that such an act is a necessity, and many commercial bodies have memorialized congress praying its passage, forwarding petitions similar substantially to the one enclosed from the Milwaukee chamber of commerce.

The deplorable condition of financial slavery resting upon thousands of our fellow men, the loss to the state from a paralysis of their energies, the cruelty of forever keeping such men in bondage forcibly suggests to all men having in their hearts, charity and kindness for these long suffering men and their families, and that relief should be granted.

In view of this condition of affairs and of the incomparable beneficence of a bankrupt bill we venture to invoke your aid, and that the body over which you preside, in speeding the passage of such a bill through the Senate of the United States. The bill, as you know, has passed the House and is now on the Senate's calendar awaiting its action, as there remains only some forty days of the present session we beg to suggest that the passage by your body of a joint resolution invoking immediate action on the part of the United States Senate would be most desirable. Such a resolution will be promptly introduced and passed by our legislature which convenes next Tuesday.

Very respectfully,

LEO WOLFSON, Secretary.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, MILWAUKEE, December 28, 1896.

To the Honorable the Senate of the United States:

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted at a meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce of the city of Milwaukee held on this date:

Resolved, That the chamber of commerce of the city of Milwaukee, through its board of directors, earnestly appeals to the Senate of the United States to promptly pass the Torry bankruptcy bill which has already passed the House of Representatives, and only awaits the favorable action of the Senate to become a law; thus at once affording a measure of relief and protection of which the nation at the present time stands greatly in need—relief in “releasing from financial servitude thousands of able, energetic and experienced men, whose restored energies could again be devoted to the upbuilding of the state,” and protection in removing one of the most fruitful causes of financial distrust and panics in the temptation which the absence of an equitable bankrupt law affords to any creditor, in case of financial embarrassment of his debtor to seek his own advantage to the detriment of other creditors and the ruin of the debtor. “Neither common sense or justice demands the continued and helpless servitude of such a great number of our fellow men” nor the continuance of this needless hindrance to the returning prosperity of our country. Failure to pass the bill by the Senate at this session will probably involve indefinitely delay in the passage of another bill, and such delay “simply means denial of relief for men now past the prime of life, who have but few years remaining to recuperate their fortunes.

Resolved, That a copy of this action be transmitted to the President of the United States Senate and that the senators from Wisconsin be respectfully requested to use their best efforts to secure the passage of that beneficent measure, the Torry bankruptcy bill, at the present session.

Respectfully presented in behalf of the board of the chamber of commerce of the city of Milwaukee.

(Signed) CASSIUS N. PAINE, President.
W. J. LANGSON, Secretary.

On motion of Senator Range, the communication was laid on the table, subject to the call of the Senate.

The following communication from the governor was received, and on motion of Senator Easterday, the secretary read only the names of the persons who received pardons, commutations and remission of fines:

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
OLYMPIA, January, 1897.

The Honorable the Senate of the State of Washington:

GENTLEMEN—In accordance with section 11, article 3, of the constitution, I hereby transmit a list of pardons, commutations and remissions of fines granted by me, and not heretofore reported.

Very respectfully, J. H. MCGRAW,
Governor of Washington.

PARDONS GRANTED.

A. E. DUNCAN, sentenced from Spokane county, March 19, 1893, to three years for stealing one head of neat cattle; Pardon granted February 13, 1895, upon the recommendation of the prosecuting witness, the board of county commissioners, several jurors, prosecuting attorney and several hundred citizens of Spokane. This was Duncan's first offense; his aged mother needed his help. Duncan was a youth only nineteen years of age.

FRED MATHIES, sentenced March 7, 1895, to one year imprisonment from King county, for assault with intent to commit robbery. Pardon granted March 8, 1895, upon recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, twelve jurors in case, several county and city officials and a large number of citizens. Mathies was a very young man, and main support of his family. He came to Seattle without money in search of employment; failing in this he became reduced to utter destitution and while in this condition committed the crime for which he was convicted.

W. H. H. GRANT, sentenced December 12, 1894, by a justice of the peace from Clallam county to pay a fine of $50 and costs taxed at $86 for illegal voting. Remission of unsatisfied portion of fine and costs granted March 19, 1895, upon recommendation of prosecuting attorney, prosecuting witness, six jurors, and several officials and citizens of said county. It appears that Grant, through ignorance of legal requirements, voted at a road election, for which he was in all respects qualified save that he had not resided in the particular road district the required number of days. He was in an impoverished condition, with dependent family who would become county charges. Previously had borne excellent reputation and was an ex-Union soldier.

JOSEPH DOYLE, of Mason county, made application for remission portion of judgment rendered in superior court of Mason county upon appearance bond of one Richard Walsh in which Joe Caldwell and said Doyle were sureties. Said bond was forfeited by non-appearance of defendant Walsh, who escaped through no connivance, knowledge or consent of his bondsmen. Doyle, a man of limited means, spent time and money in an effort to bring Walsh to justice but without success, and thereafter paid $150 to the county, being one-half of said bond. His co-surety is believed to be dead, and no property or funds are available to pay his portion of the bond. Remission granted April 29, 1895, on recommendation of the trial judge, and board of county commissioners.

MEE CHIN, a Chinaman, was on February 12, 1895, fined $100 and sentenced to thirty days in jail for keeping opium joint in Spokane county. Trial judge, prosecuting attorney and special agent of the treasury department recommended pardon and remission of unsatisfied portion of fine upon payment of costs of $45. Granted May 4, 1895.

LOUIS SCHIMINISKI, having been found guilty of the crime of assault, was sentenced January 24, 1895, by the judge of the superior court of Lewis county, to imprisonment in the county jail for the term of six months and fined in the sum of three hundred dollars. Pardon granted March 19, 1895. The judge who sentenced Schiminiski, upon the petition of a very large number of citizens, on the 19th day of March, 1895, remitted the fine imposed by him. The sheriff and other county officers and citizens urged that Schiminiski be pardoned, upon the ground that his further incarceration would result in his family becoming dependent upon charity for sustenance. The crime consisted of a simple assault, committed under the influence of intoxicants.

RICHARD WESLEY was on July 24, 1889, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Pierce county, to eleven years in the state penitentiary for the crime of robbery. Pardon granted on April 16, 1895. During his imprisonment he was an exemplary prisoner, and his name never appeared on the punishment record. The warden certifies that he has been employed in positions of trust and has faithfully and conscientiously carried out the duties assigned to him, and observed the rules of the prison in every respect. His crime consisted in obtaining sixty dollars by means of a card trick. Several reputable citizens and officials recommended pardon, believing that the sentence imposed was excessive; and that by reason of his youth, and previous good character further imprisonment would not subserve the ends of justice.

M. GOODFRIEND was on the 23d day of June, 1894, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of King county for the term of seven years, for the crime of grand larceny. Pardon granted April 19, 1895, upon the recommendation of several hundred reputable citizens of Seattle, and other cities, including the trial prosecuting attorney, sheriff and other officials of King county, who allege in their petition that they believe the conviction of Goodfriend was not warranted by the evidence; that Goodfriend was not a party to the stealing for which he was convicted; that Goodfriend had hitherto borne a good reputation; that he has a poverty-stricken wife and four children dependent upon him for support.

M. GOLDEN was convicted and sentenced at the same time and place for the same crime as M. Goodfriend, supra. Pardon granted May 8, 1895. The petition for pardon is signed by the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, sheriff, chairman of board of county commissioners and other officials of King county, and reputable citizens of that county; and states that Golden had at all times previous to his conviction borne a good reputation, and that he had never previously been charged with crime; that he was but twenty-two years of age, and since the age of thirteen had been the sole support of an aged mother; that by reason of his incarceration his mother has been deprived of her sole means of support, and became a pauper upon the charge of King county. The prosecuting attorney in recommending pardon stated that "the evidence tending to convict Golden with the commission of the alleged crime is exceedingly meager as is apparent from an examination of the record." At a time when a number of prisoners broke out of the King county jail, Golden refused to escape; and gave to the sheriff information which was valuable in capturing the fugitives. The chief of police in Seattle, who had personal knowledge of the facts, also recommends pardon.

MRS. TAY YUEN, a Chinawoman, who was received at the penitentiary on the 16th day of November, 1894, under sentence of one year for the crime of grand larceny, committed in Clarke county, was pardoned on the 8th day of May, 1895. The physician to the penitentiary made a statement, in part as follows: "This woman is pregnant, and has reached about the eighth month. She has but a short time to serve, and if she could be discharged or pardoned, I believe it would be the proper thing to do. We are poorly situated to care for a lying-in woman."

GEORGE SUFFERIN, having been found guilty of the crime of burglary, was on the 18th day of May, 1891, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Jefferson county, to imprisonment for the term of ten years. Pardon granted May 14, 1895, upon the recommendation of the physician and other officials of the penitentiary. Sufferin had chronic multiple sarcoma and passing of blood, and had been confined to the prison hospital for many months. In the opinion of the penitentiary physician Sufferin could live but a few months. He died within six months after he was pardoned.

U. A. GILE, was on March 2, 1893, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Lewis county, to imprisonment in the penitentiary for the term of four years, having been found guilty of the crime of manslaughter. Pardon granted May 17, 1895, upon the recommendation of the prosecuting attorney and his assistants at the trial, the county officers and several hundred citizens of Lewis county. Gile was informed against jointly with James D. Minkler and Catherine McCormick, charged with the crime of manslaughter in having caused the death of one Alfred Wright, by means of an operation. Gile was tried first and separately. The prosecuting attorney in recommending a pardon made the following written statement: "At the time of the prosecution, I was convinced that the other two parties, Dr. James D. Minkler and Catherine McCormick, had entered into a conspiracy to obtain through any means, fair or foul, the property of one Alfred Wright, and that the acts for which Dr. Gile was convicted and the other parties tried were the result of the conspiracy. I never did believe and do not now that Dr. Gile was concerned in any such conspiracy; but he was a young surgeon and was called in by other parties. The parties demanded separate trials. Dr. Gile was convicted; Dr. Minkler was acquitted by the jury and Mrs. McCormick was discharged on the recommendation of the prosecuting attorney. I think the opinion that I entertain as above stated is concurred in by the people of the entire community almost unanimously."

One of the associate counsel for the prosecution, in his communication recommending a pardon, said in part: "This case is a peculiar one, unlike any that has ever fallen under my observation, and dissimilar to any case reported within the scope of our text books or decisions. Three persons, to wit: J. D. Minkler, Dr. U. A. Gile and Mrs. McCormick, were charged jointly with the murder of Alfred Wright, of Centralia. The state in the three trials that were had in the superior court, in which I was interested, based its prosecution upon criminal malpractice of the physicians, J. D. Minkler and U. A. Gile, and assisted by Mrs. McCormick. After the operation had been performed and after the death of Mr. Wright, it appeared that a will had been made by Mr. Wright, in which Mrs. McCormick was the sole beneficiary, and Dr. Minkler was to be the executor. When this fact became known, the citizens of Centralia grew suspicious that foul play had been used, and instituted proceedings looking to a thorough investigation. The public mind was greatly inflamed, and the witnesses produced and who were examined on behalf of the state, on the trial in which Dr. Gile was convicted, were evidently deeply impressed with the wild and exaggerated rumors that had been put in circulation and were affecting the community at and just prior to the trial and that were unfavorable to the defendants. It was while this excitement was at its highest that Dr. Gile was tried and convicted. After cooling time and after the community had so changed that it could look impartially at the transaction, grave doubts arose as to the criminal intent of the parties, and as to whether or not they should be convicted, and the result is that Mrs. McCormick was discharged without trial; Dr. Minkler, who sought and obtained a continuance, was tried by a jury of the county, the same witnesses produced as in the case of Dr. Gile, yet Dr. Minkler was acquitted. Nowhere in the whole case was there a line or syllable of evidence showing Dr. Gile to have been in any wise interested from any pecuniary motive in the operation, or in the death of Mr. Wright. Dr. Gile evinced a phenomenal accuracy in the knowledge of surgery, and whether his operation was correct or incorrect the best medical evidence that we could obtain upon the trial was at a great variance, while it appeared to me that those who were not affected by local prejudice almost without exception approved and justified the operation."

Eight jurors recommend pardon. Others were inaccessible.

JOHN BRYAN, having been found guilty of the crime of robbery, was on the 7th day of February, 1890, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of King county to imprisonment for ten years. Pardon granted May 17, 1895, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney and several of the jurors. Bryan was convicted of having robbed a man named Cotton of some $40.00. The prosecuting attorney in recommending pardon said in part:

"Bryan and a man named Miller were indicted for the crime of robbery alleged to have been committed October 23, 1889, in Seattle. I prosecuted the men and secured a conviction. Judge Lichtenberg was presiding judge, and appointed some man, whose name I do not now remember, to defend. The defense was very lamely conducted. The testimony of the state consisted mainly of the prosecuting witness Cotton, an old farmer who had come in from Slaughter, a stranger in town, and who had 'fallen among thieves' and the vicious characters in Whitechapel, and had been drinking for two or three hours. Somewhere in Whitechapel, during the course of the evening he lost or was robbed of $40.00, and identified Miller and Bryan as the parties. I remember that the testimony of Cotton was unsupported by any other witness. The defendants both testified in their own behalf, and both denied the robbery, but admitted seeing Cotton in Whitechapel, and admitted having a speaking acquaintance that evening with him, and also drinking with him."

Two convicts, Thomas Walker and John Kelly, have filed an affidavit in which they state that they committed the robbery for which Bryan and Miller were convicted. Conduct of Bryan during imprisonment was good.

JOHN MILLER, co-defendant with John Bryan, and who was sentenced at the same time for the same term, was pardoned on the 12th day of October, 1895, for the foregoing reasons.

HARRY IRWIN, was tried in the superior court of Pierce county and convicted of the crime of robbery and sentenced to a term of imprisonment of eleven years on March 23, 1891. Pardon granted May 17, 1895, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, and a large number of reputable citizens of Pierce county. The crime for which Irwin was convicted was the robbery of one Bailey. The testimony in the case consisted only of Bailey and a man who had previously been convicted of committing the robbery. The prosecuting witness, upon the stand, could not positively identify Irwin as the person who assisted in robbing him. Irwin had been in Tacoma but a few days prior to the robbery; had always borne a good reputation prior thereto; was of a good family and well connected in Portland, Oregon, as is shown by letters from leading citizens and officials of that state. The judge in recommending pardon urged that one year's imprisonment would be sufficient; but he was not pardoned until he had served more than four years. Conduct during imprisonment was uniformly good, as appears by the warden's certificate. Upon his release Irwin returned to his home in Oregon.

ELMER HASTINGS and JAMES L. BERRIDGE, having pled guilty of the crime of stealing cattle, were on the 29th day of December, 1892, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Spokane county, to imprisonment in the penitentiary for the term of four years. Pardon was granted May 17, 1895, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, prosecuting witness and several officials and many citizens of Spokane county. The prosecuting witness, county commissioner and deputy sheriff of Spokane county, in a communication recommending executive clemency, among other things say: "During the month of August, 1892, said James Berridge and Elmer Hastings, who then were boys under the age of twenty-one, living at the town of Mead in Spokane county, were induced to go to the pastures of F. E. Fender and W. Ziegler in said Spokane county, and drive to the slaughter house of one John Mairhoffer, a butcher, fourteen head of cattle. This was done in the day time without any apparent attempt at concealment, and the cattle delivered to said Mairhoffer at his slaughter house; it is believed that the cattle were butchered at once, as the sheriff and his deputies could find no further trace of them. Said Mairhoffer, who has left for parts unknown, was a man of mature years, and was under the surveillance of the sheriff for some time under suspicion of buying stolen cattle. The said boys were arrested shortly after the commission of the act, and confessed the facts substantially as related above; upon arraignment they both entered the plea of guilty. Both boys were raised at or near Mead, and formerly bore good reputations and this is believed to be their first offense. We believe the boys by reason of their youth and inexperience, were made the tools and dupes of other persons, whose mature minds and experience enabled them to escape the punishment imposed upon these boys."

GEORGE E. BAILEY, was on the 29th day of January, 1895, sentenced by the judge of the municipal court of the city of Seattle, to imprisonment in the King county jail for the term of six months for the crime of open lewdness. Pardon granted on the 21st day of May, 1895, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, the board of county commissioners of King county and a large number of respectable citizens. Bailey had a family, consisting of a wife and four small children, dependent solely upon him for support, and who during his confinement were county charges. He had previously borne a good reputation and his conduct during incarceration was good.

FANNIE WILLIAMS was convicted of the crime of petit larceny in the municipal court of the city of Seattle, and sentenced on April 22, 1895, to imprisonment in the King county jail for the term of ninety days. The value of the goods stolen, a lady's cape, was proven to be fifteen dollars. Pardon granted May 26, 1895, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and the certificate of two reputable physicians of Seattle that this woman was pregnant and that longer incarceration would jeopardize her health.

SAMUEL B. DUSINBERRE, having pled guilty of embezzlement, was on the 23d day of September, 1893, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Pierce county to imprisonment in the state penitentiary for the term of three years. Pardon granted June 13, 1895, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney and a large number of prominent citizens of Pierce county. The attorney for the receiver of the bank from which Dusinberre embezzled funds wrote as follows, in part: "From the time of the closing of the Bank of Puyallup, May 26, 1893, down to the middle of July, 1893, when Mr. Dusinberre was arrested, and after his arrest down to the time he was sent to the penitentiary, he did everything in his power, willingly and without promises of reward or favor, to assist the receiver of the bank and myself in straightening out the affairs of the bank and in producing the best result possible from its assets. Since he has been in the penitentiary he has displayed the same spirit and disposition, and has been of great assistance to me by the information which he has frequently given me, and which many times was an absolute confession of wrong which he himself had done in managing the affairs of the bank. He put the state to no expense or trouble whatever for his trial, but pleaded guilty and took his sentence in all humility, and has been, to the best of my information from the officials of the penitentiary, a model prisoner during his incarceration."

Letters of file in the executive office from the governor of New York, a state senator from that state, a member of congress, a county judge and surrogate, and other officials and prominent citizens of that state attest Dusinberre's previous good character and recommend his pardon.

Dusinberre turned over to the stockholders of the bank all his property, and since his imprisonment his family have been dependent upon others for support. His conduct during imprisonment has been excellent, and he performed valuable services. At the time of his pardon he had but seven months to serve.

W. F. FENIMORE was found guilty of embezzlement, and on the 12th day of June, 1894, was sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Jefferson county to imprisonment for the term of one year, which term was fully served. Upon the expiration of his term of sentence his rights of citizenship were restored, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, ten of the trial jurors, and the officials and a large number of citizens of Jefferson county.

ALEXANDER SMITH, having pled guilty to the crime of burglary, was sentenced April 22, 1895, by the superior court of Walla Walla, to four months imprisonment. Smith was a young fellow of about 18 years of age, of a most estimable family, and of previous good character. His crime consisted of entering a house, it not being shown that he had any felonious intent. Nothing of value was abstracted and no injury committed. It was a boyish freak more than anything else. He had but a short time to serve when pardoned.

WILLIAM HOLMES was found guilty of the crime of murder in the first degree, and was on the 25th day of July, A. D. 1894, sentenced to be hanged. Sentence commuted to life imprisonment at hard labor on August 24, 1895, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, several of the jurors, many officials and several hundred citizens of King county.

The case was appealed to the supreme court, and from the opinion found, at page 184, volume 12 Washington, I quote the following: "It is earnestly contended by the appellant that the testimony in this case conclusively shows that the defendant should not have been convicted of murder in the first degree, and this is a question which has given the court more trouble than all the technical questions which have been raised in the case. The facts conclusively proven are that the defendant was a colored boy of weak physical structure and possibly of no very great strength of mind, who was engaged as a miner in the coal mines of the Oregon Improvement Company at Franklin, King county, Washington; and William Russell, a large powerful man, of some two hundred pounds weight, roomed with this boy; that the day upon which the killing occurred was pay day in the mines; that these two men in company of most of the miners had congregated at the company's saloon, as was the custom of the miners, to spend their wages and de-throne their reason by drinking whiskey. Russell, as is shown by the testimony, was, in common parlance, a bully, and an overbearing brutal man. On that day he had left his pistol on the table in their room and Holmes had taken it with him to the saloon, and had given it to another boy named Evan John, and told him to take it home. Russell accused the defendant of stealing his pistol, which the defendant denied, telling him that he could search him. Search was made and the pistol was not discovered on the person of defendant. Russell then, in a most brutal and cowardly manner, assaulted the boy, slapping him with his heavy hands, first on one side of the face and then on the other. The testimony shows that he rather gloried in being a ruffian; said that he did not care for death, and that he calculated to have a nigger before the day was over. As soon as he was released from the hands of Russell the defendant immediately started to overtake the boy who had the pistol, then returned to the saloon, and without any warning, deliberately fired at Russell, who evidently did not see him as he approached. The first shot failed to take effect; whereupon Russell turning jumped toward the defendant, who fired again, striking him in the forehead. Russell then fell and immediately expired. This is a hard case and the condition of the defendant is touching; and whether or not if this court had sat as jurors in the case, under the testimony they would have felt justified in returning a verdict of murder in the first degree, is questionable. But that matter having been submitted to the jury upon what we deem proper instructions, and it being a close question, under the facts as shown by the record, we do not feel justified in disturbing the verdict rendered."

In the opinion on petition for rehearing our supreme court said: "As we view the testimony, the circumstances tending to prove and disprove premeditation are conflicting, and notwithstanding the fact that the conclusion reached by the jury might not coincide with our judgment, under the law announced by this court, and by all courts in cases of trial by jury, we are compelled to accept the decision of the jury as conclusive." Another reason alleged for commutation was that Holmes was a consumptive. This proved true as he died five days after commutation was granted.

THOMAS CURTIS, having been found guilty of the crime of burglary, was on the 23d day of March, 1891, sentenced by the superior court of Pierce county to imprisonment for the term of eight years. Pardon granted September 27, 1895, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and prosecuting attorney. The prosecuting attorney in recommending pardon states that at the time of the conviction of Curtis his county was overrun with criminals, and that the judge was very severe in his sentences; that frequently convictions were secured upon slight evidence. He further states that he doubts the guilt of Curtis, and that even if guilty he has suffered enough. The judge concurs in these statements. The penitentiary physician certifies that Curtis was in very bad health and that confinement aggravates his case.

FRED N. CHANDLER was sentenced by the superior court of Pierce county on December 14, 1891, to imprisonment in the penitentiary for the term of five years, for the crime of grand larceny. Pardon granted September 27, 1895, upon the recommendation of the board of directors of the penitentiary and a large number of citizens. The board of directors passed and transmitted to the governor, a resolution, of which the following is a copy: "Resolved that after careful consideration and thorough investigation into the matter which led to the conviction and incarceration of Fred N. Chandler in the state penitentiary; in view of the exemplary conduct of said Chandler, he being placed in a position of trust, the duties of which take him several times daily into the city of Walla Walla, and he has faithfully, honestly and conscientiously carried out said duties, it is the opinion of the board that the law has been fully vindicated, and the board respectfully recommends that the extension of executive clemency to said prisoner would not defeat the ends of justice."

FRED J. SMITH, having been found guilty of the crime of horse stealing, was on the 7th day of March, 1893, sentenced by the superior court of Spokane county to imprisonment for the term of five years. Pardon granted October 12, 1895, upon the recommendation of the prosecuting attorney in the case, several of the jury, and a large number of responsible citizens of Spokane county. The prosecuting attorney in recommending pardon, among other things, said: "The defendant's motive in committing the crime was at the time and has always been a complete mystery to me, and the only motive that could be attributed to him was possibly to enable him to get means to support his family, as they were in destitute circumstances at the time, and I think that Smith afterwards admitted that he was driven to commit this offense on account of his poverty and the desire to obtain something for his family to subsist upon. Smith has a wife and several children who have been charges upon the county for a part of the time since his conviction. He bore the reputation of being an honest and industrious man, prior to this offense; was kind to his family, and seems to have committed this offense in sheer desperation. His wife has been endeavoring to earn her support and that of her children by doing washing and other work. I am of the opinion that there was no excuse for the defendant in committing this offense but, considering the fact that he has already served more than two years in the penitentiary, I think that the ends of justice have been satisfied, and the defendant sufficiently punished, and for the sake of his family a pardon ought to be granted. The petition for his pardon is signed by the most respectable business men of the city, and several of the jurors who tried him, and the universal opinion seems to be that Smith ought to be pardoned."

After his release Smith immediately secured work, and on December 31, 1895, a prominent citizen of Spokane wrote as follows in part: "Before the liberation of Mr. Smith, his family, consisting of a noble wife and five little children, lived in a shanty affording but a poor protection against the rain and cold, and with very scanty clothing and furniture and insufficient food; while now a happy reunited family live in a good comfortable home surrounded by as great comforts as they were ever accustomed to, far above the average comforts of our working classes, and what completes all a spirit of happiness, peace and contentment in the family."

MAX TRAUTWEIN pled guilty in the superior court of Spokane county to burglary and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary, on the 9th day of July, 1892. Pardon granted October 22, 1895, at which time he had but eight months to serve. The crime for which Trautwein was sentenced was the entering of a physician's office. Trautwein was addicted to the use of morphine and cocaine to a very excessive degree, and it appears that he entered this office when suffering from the want of such drugs. The petition for pardon was signed by the prosecuting witness, and a very large number of citizens of Spokane county, including some thirty physicians, and many attorneys, clergymen and other professional men.

During his incarceration Trautwein's conduct was exemplary, a large portion of the time he being engaged in the performance of clerical work in the warden's office. Immediately upon his release he secured remunerative employment.

PETER G. BERGAMAN, having been found guilty of an attempt to commit rape, was on the 3d day of March, 1894, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of King county to imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term of ten years. Pardon granted November 8, 1895, upon recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, prosecuting witness, several of the jury, and a large number of reputable citizens of Seattle. The trial judge, in recommending pardon, said in part: "That if as judge who tried the cause I had been in possession of information I am now possessed of, I should certainly have granted a new trial."

The prosecuting attorney in recommending pardon stated that were the facts and circumstances as developed since the trial presented to him as a basis of a criminal prosecution they would be considered insufficient.

ERMINIO GIONINI, having been found guilty of murder, was, on the day of April, 1883, sentenced by the judge of the district court of the Territory of Washington, holding terms at Vancouver, to be hanged on the 29th day of June, 1883.

Governor William A. Newell granted this man several reprieves, and finally upon the 5th day of April, 1884, commuted the death sentence to life imprisonment. Governor Newell in the document commuting the sentence, said, in part, as reasons for his action —

"I have well founded doubts as to his entire sanity for reasons assigned in papers in my possession; and whereas many respectable citizens of the Territory in the locality where he has been imprisoned for nearly one year believe that he did not commit the crime as charged against him, and so represent to me in a petition for commutation of sentence of death to imprisonment for life; and whereas he had no means to secure the services of legal counsel at his trial and the counsel assigned by the court was provided on the same day of the beginning of his trial, which counsel assures me that he had no suitable time to prepare the case and defense at all commensurate with its gravity and consequences to his client, and the prisoner had no means to secure the attendance of his witnesses."

Gionini, at the time of the murder for which he was convicted, had been in America but a short time, and was unable to speak the English language intelligently. He was without friends or means and unable to secure counsel. Upon the day of the trial counsel was assigned by the court; but there was not sufficient time for proper preparation and investigation by such counsel.

The testimony in the case was wholly circumstantial. No motive for the crime was traced to the accused; on the contrary the deceased and he were warm friends. No robbery could have been committed by the defendant, for thereafter he was penniless and unable to raise any money to defend himself, although well aware of the urgent necessity.

The principal witness in the case, in addition to being an unusually ready and willing witness, displayed a vindictive eagerness to secure a conviction, even going to the extent of securing counsel to aid the prosecution, and paying for such services himself. The trial judge in recommending pardon said in part: "But I am led to believe that the bad impression which I had at the trial as to the principal witness against him (Gionini) was probably well founded, and as the testimony of that witness formed an important link in the testimony upon which he was convicted, I have been led to think that it was at least possible that injustice had been done; and this fact, together with those which I have learned as to the exemplary conduct of Gionini during the entire time he has been imprisoned, and his state of health taken in connection with the fact that he has already been in prison about fifteen years, causes me to come to the conclusion that the ends of justice will probably be best subserved if he be relieved from further punishment; and I therefore respectfully join in the application for his pardon."

The prosecuting attorney and several hundred citizens also joined in petition for pardon. After a very exhaustive examination into this case, I have reached the conclusion that Gionini was an innocent man, and therefore pardon him. During all his long imprisonment he was a model prisoner; and for many years as a trusty he performed valuable and faithful service to the state.

W. T. PECK, having been found guilty of the crime of petit larceny, was on the 25th day of October, 1895, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Whitman county to fourteen days imprisonment and costs. Pardon granted and balance of costs remitted, November 13, 1895, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, board of county commissioners, and officers of Whitman county, upon the grounds that Peck had been in jail 112 days prior to his trial; that he had been sufficiently punished, and that further imprisonment was an expense to the county, and would serve no good end.

FRANK BROWN was on the 15th day of June, 1894, sentenced by the superior court of Pierce county to imprisonment for two years for the crime of burglary. Pardon granted December 6, 1895, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and prosecuting attorney.

Brown resided on a small farm in Pierce county, and having met with reverses was not able to earn sufficient money with which to buy bread to support his family. He asked for credit at a store, was refused, and as his wife and children were actually crying for bread he drove to a store, broke into the same and took therefrom a barrel of flour and a sack of wheat. Brown had a family of a wife and five small children. It was represented at the time petition for pardon was filed, that if pardoned, he could secure remunerative employment.

A. C. MILLER was sentenced on April 18, 1892, by the superior court of Whitman county to five years imprisonment for the crime of stealing cattle, to which charge he pled guilty. Pardon granted December 19, 1895, to be effective January 1, 1896. The board of directors of the penitentiary, for the following reasons, among others, as set forth in a communication on file in the executive office earnestly recommended pardon:

"He has been a 'trusty' for the past two years; during fifteen months of this time having charge of the horses and stables at this institution, which employment necessitated him sleeping in the barn, to be ready for any emergency. During the summer it is necessary for some trustworthy convict to deliver sacks to the depot and other errands around town, with our team, and to him was assigned this work and no trust imposed in him has ever been betrayed. * * * We understand he pled guilty at his trial, and has made no effort to secure a pardon or commutation of sentence. We know he has three children dependent upon him for support, and taking into consideration his age, fifty years, his previous good character and his most exemplary conduct during his incarceration, we feel justified in presenting these facts for your consideration, and believe him to be a proper subject for executive clemency, even if such clemency is exercised in shortening his term of imprisonment only in a slight degree. * * * We are of the unanimous opinion that some acknowledgment of Miller's faithful services during his incarceration would be justified by the circumstances as laid before you."

When pardoned Miller had but six weeks to serve.

TOM WATSON and JAMES AUSTIN, having been found guilty of the crime of larceny, were sentenced by the superior court on March 23, 1891, to eight years imprisonment. Pardon granted February 6, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and prosecuting attorney, for the same reasons as given in the case of Thos. Curtis, hereinbefore set forth, and Harry Irwin, all four of whom were tried for the same offense.

OLIVER COURTEMARSH was on the 24th day of October, 1894, sentenced by the superior court of Clarke county for three years imprisonment for the crime of assault with intent to commit rape. Pardon granted February 24, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, sheriff, and more than four hundred citizens and residents of the city of Vancouver, where the offense was committed and tried, comprising federal and county officials, attorneys, merchants, editors, ministers and wives of leading citizens, and seven of the jurors in the case.

Nearly a year before the pardon was granted the trial judge wrote as follows: "While I cannot recommend an immediate pardon, I do think that a much shorter sentence than the one imposed would be ample punishment in view of the facts and circumstances arising since the trial and judgment. Since his incarceration in the county jail some eight months ago his demeanor has been first class. * * *"

During a jail break Courtemarsh left the jail and immediately ran to the jailor's house to inform him of the occurrence; but finding no one there but the jailor's wife, to whom he communicated the fact, he then ran to the judge's house, notified him, and then returned to his cell in jail.

W. G. V. RENWICK, having pled guilty to the crime of embezzlement, was on the 4th day of March, 1895, sentenced by the superior court of Spokane county to imprisonment for the term of two years. Pardon granted March 16, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, attorney general of the state, the prosecuting attorney in the case, the board of county commissioners, and many officials and citizens of Spokane city and county.

Renwick has a wife in delicate health and dependent upon him for support. At the time pardon was granted it was represented that he could secure remunerative employment. When pardoned he had served three-fourths of his term, allowing good conduct credits.

O. H. HARRINGTON was sentenced September 23, 1895, by the judge of the superior court of Walla Walla county to imprisonment in the penitentiary for the term of two years for the crime of grand larceny. Pardon granted March 26, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and prosecuting attorney who stated that at the time of his arrest, arraignment, plea and sentence that he was laboring under the effects of a protracted spree, and did not realize the commission of the crime or its consequences. Many leading citizens of Walla Walla join in petition for pardon.

JOHN KANE was sentenced January 4, 1892, by the judge of the superior court of Thurston county to ten years imprisonment for the crime of burglary. Pardon granted April 1, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial prosecuting attorney, prosecuting witness and a large number of leading and reputable citizens of Olympia.

The prosecuting attorney who conducted the case, in recommending pardon, says in part: "The offense for which he was convicted was committed early in the evening on January 3, 1892, and the arrest was made a few minutes afterwards. The next day the undersigned filed an information against said Kane charging him with burglary and he was brought before the court where he pleaded guilty and was immediately sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. That the undersigned believed at that time and still believes that said Kane was not a hardened criminal, but was a simple ignorant man without means, and that he committed the offense for which he was charged solely for the purpose of being arrested and committed to jail for a few months, or until the weather got warm."

Conviction was had without the expense of a dollar to the state.

Kane's conduct during imprisonment was good.

THOMAS C. POWELL was tried in the superior court of Cowlitz county on June 8, 1895, found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to imprisonment for one year, which term he served in full. Upon the expiration of his term his civil rights were restored upon the recommendation of the trial judge and prosecuting attorney.

VICTOR E. SQUIRES was on the 16th day of January, 1896, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Skagit county to one year's imprisonment in the county jail for the crime of obtaining money by false pretenses. Pardon granted May 5, 1896, upon the recommendation of the board of county commissioners, prosecuting witness and a large number of merchants and business men of Mount Vernon.

It appears that two forged bills of lading were sent to a business man in Portland who advanced money thereon by checks sent to one Harris. The bills of lading were not in the handwriting of Squires, but the drafts or checks received were presented at the bank by him, and he received the money. Squires pled guilty.

The petition for pardon and the trial judge and prosecuting attorney state that in their opinion Squires was simply a tool for the hands of others.

The money fraudulently procured was all returned to the person entitled thereto.

A. L. FULLER was on the day of January, 1896, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Snohomish county to two years imprisonment for the crime of burglary. Pardon granted May 28, 1896, upon the recommendation of some seventy-five reputable officials and citizens of Everett, who allege that "Fuller was convicted on the testimony of two witnesses who were particeps criminis and who escaped prosecution by turning states evidence; one of whom testified that Fuller told him to take the goods and in whose house the goods were found. There was no evidence that Fuller was to get any portion of the goods, or the proceeds therefrom. Fuller has resided here since 1891 and is regarded by our best citizens as being an honorable upright man. He leaves an estimable wife and two small children in destitute circumstances, who must depend upon the charity of the public for support."

FRANK HASSELTINE, was on April 25, 1895, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Walla Walla county to imprisonment for two years upon plea of guilty of stealing neat cattle. Pardon granted June 5, 1895, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and a large number of officials and citizens of Walla Walla county. Hasseltine was a young man of twenty-two years of age; his parents to whose support he contributed much are both over sixty-three years of age. Disaster has dissipated their fortune and broken their health, the father being feeble and the mother totally blind. Hasseltine also has a young wife and an infant child born since his incarceration who are in need of his support. The warden certifies to his "most exemplary conduct" during imprisonment.

CHARLES A. VORHEES was sentenced on February 15, 1895, by the superior court of Whitman county to two years imprisonment for cattle stealing. Pardon granted June 8, 1896, at which time he had but four and one-half months to serve, allowing the legal deduction for good behavior. It appears that the crime for which he was convicted was the stealing of one cow valued at $14, and that the jury recommended him to the mercy of the court. Vorhees had a family of a wife and five small children dependent upon him for support. It was represented that if Vorhees was released he would be able to secure employment in the harvest fields; and that if he served the remaining four months harvest time would be past.

JACKSON MORGAN was sentenced by the superior court of King county to imprisonment for five years upon plea of guilty of burglary entered June 17, 1893. Pardon granted June 30, 1896. From papers on file it appears that Morgan, along with two men, was arrested on a charge of breaking into a dwelling house in the day time with intent to commit a misdemeanor. Entrance to the house was effected through a window covered only by a piece of mosquito netting, which was torn aside. It appears by the affidavit of the prosecuting witness "that the property taken from the house consisted of a clock and other small articles, the whole not exceeding $20.00 in value. There was no eye witness to the breaking into the house, but the goods were afterwards found in the possession of the defendants above named." Frank Snow, one of the men indicted with Morgan, makes affidavit that Morgan did not assist in the actual breaking and entering into the house and did not take any part in said breaking and entering. The prosecuting witness and the prosecuting attorney at the trial recommended pardon. Morgan's family is a respectable one living in Washington city, and they sent him money to return home, which he did immediately upon his release.

THOMAS E. SHOEMAKER, having pled guilty to the crime of arson, was on the 11th day of May, 1895, sentenced by the superior court of King county to imprisonment in the county jail for five months and fined $1,000. He served his term of five months and on July 20, 1896, the balance of the fine remaining unserved was remitted upon the recommendation of the board of county commissioners of King county, and several citizens and officials of said county. It appears that Shoemaker had a wife and child in Los Angeles, California. Immediately prior to his release he was offered a position in California, and upon his release I believe he left for California.

DOUGLAS McCOMBIE was sentenced September 7, 1895, by the judge of the superior court of King county to one year's imprisonment for larceny, which sentence he fully served, and was released July 28, 1896, receiving the legal deduction of two months for good behavior. His civil rights were restored August 1, 1896, upon recommendation of the prosecuting witness and several citizens of King county. McCombie was a young man of less than twenty-one years.

WILLIAM VAN WATERS was sentenced on the 4th day of October, 1895, to pay a fine of $100 for the crime of larceny. Affidavits and representations made by reputable citizens of facts arising subsequent to the trial and after motion for new trial had been denied, induce a grave doubt of the guilt of Van Waters. His wife, as appears by the certificates of physicians was in a very dangerous condition, and being without means to secure attendants the presence of Van Waters was not only desirable but necessary to save the woman's life. Upon the recommendation of a very large number of citizens including some of the jurymen, a pardon was granted August 12, 1896, at which time he had but one day more to serve.

N. S. BARR, having been found guilty of the crime of murder in the second degree, was on the 28th day of March, 1894, sentenced by the superior court of Whatcom county to ten years imprisonment. Pardon granted August 21, 1896, upon the recommendation of several hundred citizens of Whatcom, including the prosecuting attorney and other county officials and nine jurors.

Barr's crime consisted in setting a trap gun in a cabin which he had occupied, just previous to his going into the mountains on a protracted hunting trip. During his absence four persons effecting an entrance to the house discharged the gun, killing one of them. The prosecuting attorney in recommending pardon said, in part: "While the conviction in the trial court and its affirmance in the supreme court in this case is in our opinion fully sustained and warranted by the law and the evidence, however we are free to say that this case for the first time to our knowledge presented for adjudication to an American court of last resort in a criminal case, the question of responsibility for taking human life by setting spring guns in the habitation. Wide spread erroneous impression undoubtedly existed among the people and no little misconception on the part of some courts of last resort, as to the right to defend one's property and therefore one's habitation considered as property by deadly means."

EDMUND GRASSET was sentenced in December, 1893, by the superior court of Whatcom county to one year's imprisonment for the crime of forgery, which term he fully served. His civil rights were restored August 31, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney and several hundred citizens of Whatcom county.

H. M. COSS was sentenced December 5, 1894, by the superior court of Lincoln county to two years' imprisonment for grand larceny, which consisted in the taking of some four thousand feet of lumber. Pardon granted September 3, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, prosecuting witness, nine jurors, and several citizens. Coss was a young man with a wife and children dependent upon him for support.

MARTIN MURPHY was sentenced from King county March 30, 1894, to ten years' imprisonment for robbery. Pardon granted September 4, 1896, upon recommendation of the warden and physician of the penitentiary for the reason that Murphy was dying of consumption, and that his death was not far off. It was represented that arrangements were effected for his care by friends, if released, better than could be afforded at the penitentiary. Murphy died in a San Francisco hospital during the early part of November, 1896.

WILLIAM A. NOLEN was sentenced January 15, 1893, by the superior court of King county to three years' imprisonment for larceny, which sentence he fully served. Civil rights were restored September 28, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and prosecuting attorney.

JOHN E. SPAYFORD was sentenced March 23, 1895, to ten years' imprisonment by the superior court of Snohomish county for the crime of assault with attempt to commit rape. Pardon granted November 6, 1896, upon recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, seven jurors. It appears by the certificate of the penitentiary physician that Spayford was infested with consumption and was not likely to live but a few weeks. The trial judge recommended pardon by reason of his dying condition and also because of his belief from facts arising after conviction that Spayford's sentence was too severe. Spayford died about a month after he was pardoned.

THOMAS HINCHEY was sentenced December 14, 1891, to twenty years' imprisonment by the superior court of Pierce county for the crime of murder. Pardon granted November 7, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, the prosecuting attorney, seven jurors and a large number of citizens. It appears from papers on file that Hinchey was a bricklayer working at his trade in Tacoma and Seattle and on July 14, 1891, came to Tacoma from Seattle and went to a saloon and began drinking. Thereafter he purchased a revolver, wrote a couple of letters, one to his mother telling her he was about to commit suicide, and another to a friend as to the disposition of a watch, and telling him he was going to kill himself, and gave them to a person to mail. He then returned to the saloon, and as soon as he entered, without any provocation or previous talk he started shooting and wounded the proprietor, and shot one George Martin who was a total stranger and unknown to the defendant, from the effects of which Martin died a few hours later. The testimony on the trial showed that Hinchey was laboring under a delusion that every one was conspiring against him, and calling him foul names, and believing Martin called him these names and was one of the men he thought were pursuing him, he shot and killed him. The jury recommended the mercy of the court to the defendant. The board of penitentiary directors in a communication said as follows, in part: "When improvements were commenced some time since, he was placed in charge of a gang of men engaged in bricklaying, he being in fact the competent man here in that line of work. He was thus engaged during all the time the improvements were being made, was painstaking in his work, and evinced as much interest throughout as though he were receiving wages. During the present summer he rendered valuable services of great value to the state. While not presuming to indicate your action, we feel that his conduct and valuable service entitles his case to great consideration at your hands."

Hinchey's case was appealed to the supreme court, but the appeal was dismissed, because the statement of facts was not filed according to law. A second appeal was attempted, under the act of 1893, but the superior judge, before whom the case was tried, and whose term had expired, declined to settle and certify statement of facts. An application was made to the supreme court for a writ of mandate compelling the trial judge to settle and certify the statement, which was denied. In neither could the supreme court consider the case on its merits, nor pass upon alleged errors.

JOHN W. GIDDINGS was sentenced on the 29th day of September, 1894, to serve a term of one year in the state penitentiary for the crime of assault with a deadly weapon, committed in Snohomish county, which term he fully served, save the deduction allowed by law for good behavior. It appearing that Giddings had conducted himself as a good citizen since his release his civil rights were restored November 18, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and prosecuting attorney.

GEORGE F. SMITH was sentenced in the superior court of Okanogan county on May 16, 1896, to imprisonment in the penitentiary for the term of one and one-half years for the crime of stealing cattle. Pardon granted November 18, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, two jurors and several citizens. The trial judge in recommending pardon under date of May 27, 1896, said in part: "He insisted upon the trial and still insists that he thought the animal was his own, and some evidence was given upon this point, and further insisted that he did not intend to steal an animal which he claimed as his own. However, although he has been declared guilty of the crime, I think that a pardon in this particular case would do him more good and be of more benefit to him and society than his having to serve a term in the penitentiary. In passing sentence upon Mr. Smith I had in mind your rule not to consider an application for a pardon where the sentence is for one year or less, and in order that the matter might be called to your attention, so that you might investigate the case, I made the sentence eighteen months. I regard this a case for executive clemency rather than for the harsh rules of law, and would therefore recommend a pardon."

A member of the Everett Cattle and Dressed Meat Company in recommending pardon said, in part: "Amongst the band of cattle purchased from the receiver of the Okanogan Live Stock Company by the Everett Company, was a "three bars" brand. These cattle formerly belonged to Mr. George Smith and his brother. * * * I am satisfied that the "three bars" brand of cattle always belonged to the Everett Cattle Company by its purchase from the receiver of the Okanogan Cattle Company, and in the change of management from Everett Cattle Company this Mr. Smith was interested with a Mrs., and I am satisfied that in the particular instance whereby Mr. Smith was convicted the "three bar" brand cattle belonged to the Everett Cattle Company, and took them supposing he had a perfect right to do so; he was simply careless and his own worst enemy in not being sure."

A. J. KROENERT, having been found guilty of the crime of permitting and allowing sawdust to be thrown into the Chehalis river, was on May 28, 1896, sentenced by the superior court of Chehalis county to pay a fine of $100 and costs amounting to about $75. Fine, but not costs, remitted November 23, 1896, upon recommendation of trial judge and prosecuting attorney. From the statement of these officials it appears that the shingle mill from whence the dust came into the river was in litigation and was owned by a brother of the defendant and that the defendant was running the mill for his brother, who was a non-resident; it appears that defendant paid but little attention to the mill, and was not aware of the violation of the law by his employes. The trial judge is of the opinion that the foreman might have been more properly indicted.

FRED LA POINT was on June 8, 1889, sentenced by the United States district judge to imprisonment for fourteen years for robbery committed in King county. Pardon granted November 23, 1896, upon recommendation of trial judge, who in a communication to the governor wrote as follows:

"About one year ago I forwarded to you the application of Fred La Point, for a pardon, and in that connection I wrote as follows: 'As I remember this man's case it was proven that a robbery had been committed and La Point was identified by the victim and the police officer as the robber. The witnesses did not impress me as being first class. Were I a witness without a better opportunity for observing the robber than they had, I would not have given positive testimony as they did, identifying La Point as the man. I considered, however, that he failed to give a proper account of himself, and therefore deferred to the verdict of the jury and gave him a heavy sentence. His letter indicates that he has a manly spirit, and that his future conduct will probably justify you in the exercise of executive clemency in his case.'

"I now add that at the time of passing sentence upon Mr. La Point I felt obliged to deal severely with all cases of personal violence for the reason that at that particular time this community seemed to be infested with footpads, burglars and robbers, and it seemed necessary to enforce the law with a strong hand in order to suppress their operations, and accordingly Mr. La Point being convicted by the verdict of a jury, and there appearing to be no sufficient ground upon which I could set aside the verdict, I sentenced him to the penitentiary for fourteen years. Since writing the letter above quoted, it has been represented to me by the officers of the penitentiary that Mr. La Point has, during the time of his incarceration, behaved in an exemplary manner and that he does not appear to be a professional criminal. In the light of his subsequent conduct, I believe that even if guilty of the crime for which he was convicted, he has been sufficiently punished, having been in the penitentiary now more than seven years. I have no hesitation therefore in saying that I consider this a proper case in which to exercise your power to pardon."

OSCAR H. SPRINGER was sentenced on the 20th day of June, 1896, by a judge of the superior court of King county to imprisonment in the penitentiary for the term of one year for the crime of assault with intent to commit murder. The prosecuting witness in this case, one Watson, had had trouble with his wife and they had separated. On returning one day from a shooting park, Springer was asked by a child of the prosecuting witness to come immediately to her home as her father had returned home and there was likely to be trouble between him and his wife. Aware of the previous trouble, Springer went, and then ensued words, leading to Watson striking Springer and endeavoring to eject him from the house. It is claimed that in being pushed through the door Springer's foot caught, and in swinging around to prevent falling his pistol was accidentally discharged, the bullet going through the door and striking Watson, without doing any harm however. Watson testified at the preliminary examination, but left the county before the trial in superior court. In a communication to his wife some time after the conviction, which letter is in the files of the case, Watson said: "I left Everett because I did not want to go to court and give evidence against him, for I do not believe he expected to hurt me at the time and I am still of the same opinion. I think the whole thing was accidental."

Upon the recommendation of eleven of the jurors and several citizens the sentence was commuted to imprisonment in the county jail for King county, ending April 20, 1897, which is equivalent to the sentence to the penitentiary allowing the usual deductions for good behavior.

WILLIAM VON GOBLENTZ was on July 20, 1893, sentenced to five years imprisonment in the penitentiary for the crime of embezzlement, committed in Spokane county. The crime consisted of embezzling some $80 entrusted to him for the purpose of purchasing a railway ticket but which while in an intoxicated condition he spent. Pardon granted November 27, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, prosecuting witness and many citizens of Spokane.

WILLIAM LLOYD was sentenced on the ... day of October, 1894, to imprisonment in the penitentiary for three years for the crime of stealing cattle, committed in Columbia county. Pardon granted November 27, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge.

the prosecuting attorney and several citizens of Columbia county. From the statements of the judge and prosecuting attorney, Lloyd, who was a very young man, fell in with a gang of cattle thieves. Lloyd gave testimony resulting in the breaking up and conviction of this gang, which convictions could not have been had without his testimony. The warden certifies to Lloyd's good conduct during incarceration, and that for the last year he has been a trusty, having had charge of the stables and carrying mail between the postoffice and penitentiary. Allowing usual deductions given by law for good behavior. Lloyd had but four months to serve when pardoned.

ED. OWENS was, on April 23, 1896, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Yakima county to two years' imprisonment for the crime of assault with intent to commit murder. Pardon granted November 27, 1896, upon recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, seven jurors, the county commissioners and other officials and many citizens of Yakima county. It appears that the prosecuting witness and his wife were seeking to withhold from the defendant certain warrants to the amount of several hundred dollars, which he had deposited with them, and it was in an endeavor to secure these that the offense was committed. The warrants were secured by replevin after this occurrence. The prosecuting attorney, in recommending pardon, says in part: "I have no hesitation in saying that, while Owens was technically guilty of the crime with which he was charged, he has been punished sufficiently, and the ends of justice would be best subserved if he were pardoned. The man whom Owens assaulted is notorious as a man who takes advantage of every one he has dealings with. Owens has always been a hard working man, and the people in the community in which he lived speak in the highest terms of him. It seems that while frenzied at the prospect of having his last dollar wrongfully taken from him, he forgot himself and committed the crime."

BUFORD C. JOHNSON pled guilty August 5, 1895, to the crime of cattle stealing, and was sentenced by the superior court of Spokane on August 5, 1895, to six years' imprisonment. Pardon granted February 11, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney and many officials and citizens of Spokane city and county. Johnson gave valuable information to the prosecuting attorney whereby several gangs of cattle thieves were broken up, either by prosecution or flight to avoid prosecution, without which information the prosecuting attorney states these gangs could not have been broken up. Johnson was a young man, and had previously borne a most excellent reputation. He fell in with these cattle thieves, who obtained such control over him that in order to get out of their clutches he was compelled to assist them.

JOHN SLAVIN was sentenced May 13, 1892, by the judge of the superior court in and for the county of Jefferson to ten years' imprisonment for the crime of robbery. Pardon granted December 23, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and prosecuting attorney. The trial judge in recommending pardon said, in part, as follows: "The sentence imposed by me of ten years is seemingly a long one, and a few words in explanation thereof from me would not be out of place. At the time of the commission of this crime, and for some time prior thereto, this city was infested with a number of criminals of all kinds and the sentence was imposed upon Slavin as a punishment for his crime, as well as a warning to others. The effect of the sentence was felt here and we were soon rid of a dangerous lot of criminals. If Slavin frankly admits the enormity of his crime and justice of penalty, and his expressions of regret are manly and sincere, and is penitent, and has resolved to try to lead an honorable life in the future, I am satisfied that he has been punished enough. To my mind then the objects of such a severe sentence has been fully accomplished and I feel no hesitancy in joining in asking a pardon for him."

Salvin's crime was robbery and the amount involved was $65. During his incarceration in the penitentiary he has been an exemplary prisoner and a trusty a large portion of the time.

BENTON WILSON, having been found guilty of the crime of murder, was on the 5th day of March, 1895, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Spokane county to imprisonment in the state penitentiary for a term of ten years. Pardon granted December 23, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, the prosecuting attorney, many of the county officials of Spokane county, several of the jury, and more than one hundred citizens of Spokane county.

The letter of the trial judge dated November 17, 1895, recommending pardon, is as follows: "Benton Wilson is now confined in the state prison at Walla Walla having been convicted of murder in the second degree for killing J. W. Johnson in this county.

"I presided at a trial of Benton Wilson, Charles Wilson, his father, and Mrs. Johnson, wife of J. W. Johnson and sister to Benton Wilson, who were tried together on the charge of murder in the first degree. The trial was sensational and in important particulars very unusual. When there was very slight evidence connecting Benton Wilson with it, but evidence pointing to his father, Benton acknowledged that he had committed the deed, and sought to justify it as the only means of protecting his sister from the insane rage of J. W. Johnson, her husband.

"To my mind, it was only a question whether the jury would believe the testimony of Benton Wilson as to the circumstances leading to and when immediately the fatal blow was struck; death following instantly a crushing blow delivered on the back of the head. The jury should have acquitted if it believed Benton Wilson's story of the killing, for although Johnson and Benton Wilson were then about a mile from the Wilson country home house, where Mrs. Johnson was, if the deceased was raging like a wild beast, armed with a loaded revolver and threatening to return and kill his wife, who had just told Johnson that she would never again live with him, and was in the act of returning to execute his threat, Benton Wilson was justified in striking to prevent this result, notwithstanding death instead of disability followed the blow.

"The evidence showed that the Wilson home was six miles from the village of Chattaroy, in a thinly settled region and no near neighbors, and that the father, Charles Wilson, was away at Chattaroy, and Mrs. Johnson, her mother, Mrs. Wilson, her eighteen year-old sister and a five or six-year old brother only, were at the house.

"Benton Wilson was without weapons, and if Johnson got out of reach of his arm, not only the defenseless women and children, but Benton Wilson himself would have been at the mercy of Johnson's revolver.

"The very best that Benton Wilson then could have done would have been to have entered a race with the enraged man for the house, to have barricaded it against him, with the chances that if he outran Johnson, he could not outrun the bullets from Johnson's revolver.

"It is the law that under such circumstances, the son and brother might defend, and to my mind it was his duty not to wait till the murder of those he should protect was imminent, but to let his acts respond to the energy infused into him by his desperate surroundings.

"My view of this subject at the trial will better appear to you by the instructions I gave the jury, which I enclose as a part hereof.

"A cloud of doubt and suspicion hung over the trial and especially affected the weight of Benton Wilson's testimony with the jury. That was, the calamitous circumstance, that immediately on delivering the fatal blow, Benton Wilson took the body in his arms, carried it to a secluded spot near the public road, where the killing occurred, left it there till night and then buried it there, where it remained for about one year, when it was accidentally discovered.

"Had Benton Wilson gone to his nearest neighbor, or to Chattaroy, and published the killing immediately, I do not doubt his acquittal, but this unfortunate mistake and his subsequent efforts to conceal the identity of the remains, must have caused the jury to disbelieve that part of his testimony which tended to justify himself.

"What has been said is upon the assumption that Benton Wilson's testimony was true. Now, was it true? I can say that it was natural, logical and harmonious with all the other evidence.

"The separation of Johnson and wife, and her refusal longer to live with him, was to be expected from the breeding and raising of the two. Johnson's frenzy at being deprived of Mrs. Johnson was the natural outcome of the mad passion which had made him a slave before marrying, and when his suit did not progress favorably had made him threaten his own life and seriously contemplate self destruction.

"His mad attempts to get possession of his wife in Helena, at one time chasing her with a loaded revolver through the house and into the kitchen where she resided, because she would not submit to him, all prepare one for the desperate madness which Benton Wilson says seized him when, as must have appeared to Johnson, he had parted with his wife for the last time, with foaming mouth and frenzied eye he broke from him, swearing he would return and kill his wife, and that she should never live with any other man.

"Benton Wilson and all of the family knew of Johnson's frantic conduct during his courtship, and of his treatment of Mrs. Johnson after marriage. Benton Wilson and they knew of Mrs. Johnson's dread of Johnson's presence, and after the interview between Mr. and Mrs. Johnson at the yard gate, Mrs. Johnson told Benton of Johnson's being armed with a pistol and warned him of the danger.

"Under the circumstances the story told by Benton Wilson of the killing is natural.

"If Benton Wilson has not told the truth, then J. W. Johnson was brutally assassinated, and somebody ought to have been hung. But this theory of the killing is unnatural, improbable and motiveless. Benton Wilson's parents are native Americans, have borne a good reputation in all places where they have lived and at all times. His father was a Union soldier in 1861, and the family is intelligent, law-abiding and obedient to all duties which society has placed upon them; while they are not rich, it has not transpired that they are not and were not well to do and independent. Johnson had nothing and they knew it. There was positively no money in it, and it is inconceivable that this old soldier with an honorable record behind him, and the dutiful and affectionate and wholesome mother of a family and Mrs. Johnson and this boy, Benton Wilson, without years or experience could have entered into a conspiracy that must lead to murder and then execute it, when it must have been known to a school girl and a child of five or six.

"Benton Wilson is not a born criminal, nor is there anything that does not contradict the suggestion that there is any criminal blood or tendency or record in the family, but the reverse. It is a good, honest, wholesome American family, where the members love each other, and abnormal criminals do not often come out of such families.

"Benton Wilson is a farmer's son, about twenty-six or twenty-eight years of age, intelligent and courageous, and who, up to the time of this killing had worn "the white rose of a blameless life."

"You may wonder why I did not give him a new trial. There was nothing the matter with the trial from a professional standpoint—the trial was fair and flawless.

"The court could have lifted the court out of their trouble had it not been forbidden by the constitution, and when the jury found the facts the court could only pronounce the penalty.

"Besides, since the trial much has been produced which supports Benton Wilson as to character, which could not have been admitted under rules of evidence, if offered, much as to his truthfulness, and much as to the probabilities and of a corroborative nature.

"I have assumed that you are familiar with the testimony and the whole record.

"For the foregoing reasons, I am of the opinion Benton Wilson is a proper subject for executive clemency, and if now extended I believe Benton Wilson's will be a useful and honorable life."

This case was before the supreme court and was affirmed by a bare majority. An able dissenting opinion was written by Chief Justice Dunbar and concurred in by Judge Stiles, found in the 10th Washington on page 410, to which your attention is respectfully invited.

WILLIAM ROBERTSON on the 30th day of January, 1895, entered a plea of guilty to the information charging him with the crime of burglary, committed on the 21st day of January, 1895, and was thereupon sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Whatcom county to imprisonment in the state penitentiary for the term of five years. Pardon granted December 28, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and prosecuting attorney, the prosecuting witness and a large number of reputable citizens of Whatcom county, including several county officials. The trial judge and prosecuting attorney in a joint communication recommending pardon stated in part as follows:

"A number of burglaries had been committed in said city during the two weeks preceding said 21st day of January, 1895, and various articles stolen from the buildings broken into. The defendant, Robinson, was arrested by the police officers when about to enter a shack on the outskirts of the town, at about the hour of midnight, in which he and another man had been staying for a short time. At the time of his arrest Robinson had in his possession certain stolen property, to wit, a goose. In the shack were found the articles which had been stolen from the outhouse of the said Latta, consisting for the most part of canned goods, wines, meats, etc. In the possession of the said Robinson and his comrade in crime was also found a quantity of meat which had been stolen from a smoke house which had been burglarized a few nights previous to the burglary with which Robinson was charged. Robinson was advised of the nature of the crime with which he was charged and also of the penalty, and was informed that the state could not consistently charge him with the trivial offense of petit larceny. Robinson was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. He refused to divulge to the court any of his antecedents when called upon to do so before sentence. The person who was in the company of Robinson when the latter was arrested escaped the police. From the description of the police officers given of such person, the inference is warranted that he was a thorough crook. It has subsequently appeared that said Robinson has for a number of years been a resident of Mt. Vernon, Skagit county, in this state, and that his mother resides there at the present time. It further appears from the written statements of many reputable citizens of the town of Mt. Vernon, that said Robinson, during all the years he has resided there, has borne a good character; that he was never before accused of crime; that he had theretofore been an industrious man. Inasmuch as an application is about to be made to your excellency for the pardon of said Robinson at the expiration of one year from the date of his incarceration in the penitentiary, in view of the circumstances herein detailed concerning the former history of said Robinson, and which were unknown at the time of his plea and sentence, and in view of the further fact that the property stolen from said smoke house and out house consisted in the main of articles of food, we desire to concur and do hereby concur in recommending that the said Robinson be pardoned at the expiration of one year from the date of his incarceration in the penitentiary. We believe that justice will be satisfied and the law vindicated by such a course upon your part in the exercise of executive clemency."

In accordance with this recommendation, pardon was granted December 28, 1896, at which time, allowing legal credits for good behavior, Robinson had served more than one year. His conduct during incarceration has been good, as appears by the certificate of the warden on file.

EDWARD RYAN, having been found guilty of the crime of robbery, was on the 5th day of March, 1891, sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Pierce county, to imprisonment in the state penitentiary for the term of eight years. Pardon granted December 28, 1896, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and prosecuting attorney under date of February 11, 1896. In the petition filed for pardon among other things it is stated that "The sentence imposed upon the said Edward Ryan was severe for the reason that he is not an habitual criminal, never before having been charged with any crime, but was led into this trouble by associates with whom he had formed a chance acquaintance while working in a railroad camp. The entire party were under the influence of liquor when the asserted robbery was committed. The amount involved was less than $6. At the time of his pardon Ryan had but eight days to serve. His conduct during incarceration was good, as appears by the certificate of the warden.

EUGENE HELM was sentenced on the 5th day of May, 1896, by the judge of the superior court of Douglas county for a term of one year in the county jail for the crime of horse stealing. Pardon granted December 28, 1896, upon the recommendation of the sheriff, prosecuting attorney and several other officials of Douglas county. One of the county officials in recommending pardon stated, in part:

"Helm was sentenced, as the petition states, last April to one year's imprisonment in the county jail. He has conducted himself in such a manner as to entitle him to a rebate upon his term. But there are other and more potent reasons why the hand of mercy should be extended to him at this time. He is in very poor health, and what is far more deplorable has a wife living at Ellensburg, recently confined, who is in abject want. We all believe that his recent experience has been a salutary lesson, and that upon his return to liberty he will be careful to keep to the straight and narrow path."

W. A. HALL was sentenced on February 13, 1894, to one year's imprisonment in the state penitentiary for the crime of assault, which term he served in full. On February 15, 1895, his civil rights were restored upon the recommendation of the prosecuting attorney, it appearing that Hall since his release has conducted himself in a proper manner.

JOHN MCCRELLIS was sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Spokane county, on the day of September, 1892, to imprisonment in the penitentiary for the term of ten years for the crime of burglary. Pardon granted January 6, 1897, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and prosecuting witness. The following is an excerpt from the statement made by the prosecuting witness and concurred in by the trial judge:

"McCrellis is a tinner and occupied a frame shop just west and adjoining the large mercantile establishment of W. J. Dunstan, in this city. He cut through the division wall and thus entered Dunstan's wareroom and from time to time took out articles of small value which he sold for sums sufficient to supply his daily wants. He was unmarried and alone, and had fallen into habits of excessive drink, and this was the cause of his offense.

"At the time of the trial McCrellis was believed to be one of a gang of burglars and that he was a confirmed criminal. It has since been learned that this was his first offense, and that he was a well raised man of previous good habits and good character and that no one was with him in the breaking into the wareroom in question."

GEORGE WILLIAMS, an Indian, was sentenced by the judge of the superior court of Thurston county on the 5th day of June, 1893, to imprisonment in the state penitentiary for a term of ten years for the crime of manslaughter. Pardon granted January 6, 1897, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney and citizens. The trial judge, in recommending pardon, stated as follows:

"While I have never doubted that the evidence was legally sufficient to sustain the verdict and the judgment entered thereon, it is nevertheless true that the defendant, by reason of his inability to speak or understand the English language, was greatly handicapped and his counsel correspondingly embarrassed upon the trial. The defendant was without means to employ counsel, and counsel was appointed to defend him, who ably performed that service without compensation. The quarrelsome disposition of the deceased was not shown upon the trial. This is not surprising when we consider that the defendant was without means and also unable to speak or understand our language. It now appears that the deceased was of a very violent and quarrelsome disposition and had himself been guilty of numerous assaults and also of felonious homicide. Had this been shown upon the trial it might have resulted in a different verdict, inasmuch as there was evidence tending to show that the deceased was himself the aggressor in the fatal encounter, and the jury, aided by the knowledge of deceased's quarrelsome disposition, might have reached a different conclusion.

"In view of these circumstances and considering further that the defendant is an untutored Indian, hereditarily inclined to revenge his own wrongs, it seems to me that executive clemency might properly be extended in his behalf."

GEORGE R. A. FARRIS was sentenced September 21, 1892, by the judge of the superior court of Klickitat county to imprisonment for ten years for the crime of horse stealing. Pardon granted January 6, 1897, upon the recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney and a large number of citizens. The crime for which Farris was sentenced was the stealing of eight horses, the value of which is alleged in the information to be $400. The prosecuting attorney strenuously insists that the sentence of ten years was very excessive. Farris had previously borne a good reputation, and has a large family dependent upon him for support. Allowing the legal deductions for good behavior, which he has earned, he has served the equivalent of a six years' sentence.

WILLIAM STEVENS was on the 5th day of September, 1894, sentenced by the superior judge of Jefferson county to three years' imprisonment in the penitentiary for the crime of burglary. Pardon granted January 9, 1897, upon the recommendation of the trial judge and prosecuting attorney. Stevens is a young man just twenty-one. This was his first offense; his conduct during incarceration was good; and it is represented to me that if pardoned he can at once secure remunerative employment. At the time pardon was granted he had only about one month to serve, having earned legal deductions for good behavior.

FRANK O'BRIEN was sentenced on the 18th day of October, 1889, by the judge of the district court of King county to imprisonment in the state penitentiary for the term of fourteen years for the crime of robbery. His crime consisted in taking from the person of another man the sum of forty dollars; both persons were drinking, and the evidence against O'Brien was purely circumstantial. His pardon was recommended by a large number of citizens, including the prosecuting attorney, upon the grounds of the excessiveness of the sentence. The time served was the equivalent of a ten-year sentence.

The civil rights of the following named persons were restored in the orders of discharge releasing them from the penitentiary after having fully served their respective terms of imprisonment, upon the recommendation of the prison officials, it being certified that during imprisonment their conduct had been especially good:

Name.	Date of discharge.

EDWARD ALBERTSON was sentenced December 14, 1891, by the superior judge of Pierce county to imprisonment in the state penitentiary for the term of ten years for the crime of grand larceny. Commutation of sentence for the term ending February 14, 1897, on recommendation of the trial judge, prosecuting attorney and a number of prominent citizens.

The reason for granting this commutation is the exceedingly valuable services rendered by Albertson in connection with the ascertainment of the defalcation of the late warden of the penitentiary, and the assistance rendered upon the trial of the case, which resulted in obtaining a judgment of $10,000 on the warden's bond. The prosecuting attorney of Walla Walla county in recommending pardon gave it as his opinion that without Albertson's assistance no judgment could have been obtained, and the assistant attorney general, who also recommended pardon, stated in part as follows:

"In the course of that trial I had occasion to note the service of Albertson to the state in the preparation and trial of its case, and I am of the opinion that Albertson's expert services to the state in disentangling the threads of that exceedingly difficult case amounted to what would have cost the state several hundred dollars if it had been obliged to pay for similar expert services. I might add that but for Albertson's fidelity and zeal, the case of the state would, in my opinion, have been seriously crippled and I doubt whether other expert evidence in lieu of his would have been of any value."

Taking into consideration the regular deductions for good behavior earned by Albertson the term was shortened exactly one year.

The secretary read the following communication from the governor:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON RULES.

MR. PRESIDENT:

We, your Committee on Rules of the Senate, respectfully report and recommend as follows:

The rules of the Senate adopted in the session of 1895 be adopted as the permanent rules of this Senate, with the following amendments:

To rule six—Increase the Committee on Agriculture from three to five; the Committee on Constitution and Constitutional Revision, from three to seven; County and County Boundaries, three to five; Election and Privileges, from three to five; Fisheries, from three to seven; Irrigation and Arid Lands, three to five; Mines and Mining, three to seven; Municipal Corporations, five to seven; and as thus amended, rule six be adopted.

That rule twenty-six be amended in line two thereof by striking out "fifteen" after the word "least" and inserting "twenty," so that no bill shall be considered unless the time of its introduction shall have been at least twenty days before the final adjournment of the Senate, unless the Senate shall otherwise direct by a two-thirds vote.

That rule twenty-eight be amended by inserting after the word "day," in the fourth line, "or on the next succeeding day," so that the rule as amended will provide that a motion to reconsider may be given on the same day or the next succeeding day after the final vote has been taken on the proposition.

That rule sixty-one be amended by striking out in the first line "within the Senate chamber" and inserting in lieu thereof, after the word "allowed," "on the upper floor of the capitol building, except in room six." The purpose of this change is to prevent smoking, which is offensive to so many members, in and about the Senate, and confining the smoking to the room adjoining the room of the sergeant-at-arms.

As thus amended, we, your committee, recommend the adoption of the rules of the session of the Senate of 1895.

L. C. CROW, Chairman.

STATE PENITENTIARY, BOARD OF DIRECTORS,
WALLA WALLA, WASH., January 21, 1897.

We court an investigation, and trust that a committee will be appointed at the earliest opportunity.

On motion of Senator Crow, the communications were placed on file.

The president announced that the time had arrived for special order of consideration of vetoed Senate bill No. 196, An act for the relief of John Dorsey, and making an appropriation therefor.

The bill and veto message were read in full by the secretary; and, on motion of Senator Baum, the bill was made a special order for Friday, January 29, 1897, at 10 o'clock A. M.

The following is the veto message:

VETO MESSAGE ON SENATE BILL No. 196.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
OLYMPIA, March 22, 1895.

Honorable J. H. Price, Secretary of State:

SIR—Without approval, I herewith transmit Senate bill No. 196, entitled "An act for the relief of John Dorsey, and making an appropriation therefor," with objections subjoined. The relief in question is a prescribed payment out of the state treasury of $168, with added interest at 8 per cent. to date, from April 2, 1891, and of the sum of $90.75 with added interest at the same rate from March 14, 1892, to date. The two amounts specified were paid by John Dorsey as installments of principal on state school land contract No. 401, covering the southwest quarter of section 16, township 21 north, of range 37 east, and subsequent to appraisalment, and the sale regular in all particulars. Relief was sought through legislative enactment ostensibly on the ground that the Lincoln county court declared the sale invalid, because of alleged non-appraisalment of the land. The record of the state land department discloses the fact that the appraisalment was made in accordance with law, and is so filed. Two sound reasons support the disapproval of this bill. In the first place, not a single fact in connection with this transaction justifies the claim of the purchaser for indemnity or reimbursement, and, secondly, the precedent sought to be established is vicious.

Dorsey bid for and bought the tract of school land described in a regular manner; the state issued in good faith a contract for a deed, premised on ultimate payment of principal, together with accrued interest, in installments, as provided for by law. Having paid two installments, Dorsey appealed to the state land department for a return of the money on the pretext that he was dispossessed of the property by one J. Revenaugh. Under opinion of the attorney general, he was advised that Revenaugh was a "trespasser against whom the purchaser had the same remedy under the law that any other person is entitled to whose premises are unlawfully detained by another."

According to the abstract furnished by the United States land office, Revenaugh, under homestead entry No. 3718, applied for the east half of the southwest quarter of section 16, township 21 north, of range 37 east, December 1, 1883, alleging settlement October 1, 1871. Final proof was offered March 6, 1889. It was rejected by the land office. This decision was affirmed by the general land office May 28, 1889, and the applicant was so notified under date of June 15, 1889. Without further appeal homestead entry No. 3718 was canceled November 2, 1891.

Under the act of the legislature approved March 26, 1890, the commissioners of Lincoln county filed in the office of the commissioner of public lands on August 18, 1890, a report of appraisement of school lands, including the southwest quarter of section 16, township 21 north, of range 37 east, and the appraisement was approved by the state land commission on October 21, 1890. This quarter section was appraised at $10.50 per acre, with the further notation by the county commissioners that the east half thereof was claimed by one J. Revenaugh, but found through the land office at Spokane Falls that his application for final proof was rejected December 27, 1890. John Dorsey bid in the quarter section described at the appraised value, the sale was approved by the state land commission February 26, 1891, and thereupon contract was issued to Dorsey. At the date of sale Dorsey paid $168 as first installment of principal, and March 14, 1892, after Revenaugh's homestead application had been canceled several months, he paid his second installment, $90.75. Prior to paying the second installment of principal, and pending the final cancellation of the homestead entry, Dorsey had commenced against Revenaugh an action for ejection, so that when he paid this second installment in pursuit of his purpose to complete the purchase he must have been fully apprised of the fact that title to the land was in the state. Plainly in this matter the state has been at no fault; and no grievance, loss or injury has been inflicted by the state or its agents.

Very respectfully yours, J. H. MCGRAW, Governor.

On motion of Senator McReavy, vetoed Senate bill No. 153, "An act to provide for the establishment of a state road through the Cascade mountains via Natchez Pass, to connect Eastern and Western Washington; for the appointment of a board of commissioners to superintend the construction and maintenance of the same, and making an appropriation therefor," was taken up for consideration.

The bill and veto message were read in full by the secretary, and, on motion of Senator Keith, the bill was made a special order for Friday, January 29, 1897, at 10:30 o'clock A. M.

The following is the veto message:

VETO MESSAGE ON SENATE BILL No. 153.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
OLYMPIA, March 23, 1895.

Honorable J. H. Price, Secretary of State:

SIR—Herewith I transmit Senate bill No. 153, entitled "An act to provide for the establishment of a state road through the Cascade mountains in Natchez Pass to connect Eastern and Western Washington; for the appointment of a board of commissioners to superintend the construction and maintenance of the same, and making appropriation therefor," without my approval.

The first and most serious consideration prompting objection to this bill is the fact that it opens wide another avenue to an indefinite outlay of public moneys to be derived from direct taxation, at a crisis when it is obviously in the public interest not to undertake any new state enterprise involving present and future expenditures, in excess of the public revenue.

Another objection is that the appropriation provision of the bill marks a radical departure from the policy emphasized in the first legislative enactment on the subject of state roads. This very justly required the counties primarily concerned in the commercial benefits to result from the completion of the road to contribute funds toward defraying the costs of location. Inception of the work was conditioned on the prepayment to the state treasury of certain sums of money from the counties to be traversed. Senate bill No. 153 imposes no conditions of co-operation or financial aid on King, Pierce and Yakima, the counties whose domestic economy is especially to be promoted.

The experience of the state in going into the business of constructing and maintaining public highways is in the experimental stage. In Washington we have problems of construction and maintenance unknown to the road builders of other sections of the Union. The extravagance and ill management caused by haste in carrying out projects of internal improvement soon produces a reaction of public opinion fatal to the progress sure to be attained through thrifty and cautious methods. If we are to have several state roads provided for by laws which discriminate as between the obligations of the counties, and managed by separate commissioners, none of which has mastered the difficulties in the paths of all, we shall lose sight of the greater possibilities of wise and systematic development in the lesser contentions and strife of localities struggling for public appropriations.

The state road progressing out of the legislation of 1893 will open to the commerce of Puget Sound and the upper Columbia river, large mining, farming, grazing and lumber regions, now isolated from the public markets and impoverished in products for want of access to the channels of trade. It bisects a wilderness of the state and crosses an Indian reservation rich in minerals and arable lands, which is to be open for settlement at an early day. It follows no beaten paths, parallels no railroad. Almost its entire course lies through virgin country. Its character is pioneer. Until the success or failure of the state in executing this work is finally determined, prudence should dictate the inexpediency, and particularly should this be true at a time when tax burdens are becoming unbearable, of the further use of public funds in the construction of state roads. Very respectfully yours,
J. H. MCGRAW, Governor.

Senator Miller, of Thurston, moved that the rules be suspended, and all of the vetoed Senate bills, which were made a special order for today, be taken up immediately in their order, and considered.

The motion was carried.

Vetoed Senate bill No. 290: An act to provide for compiling, illustrating, electrotyping, printing, binding, copyrighting and distributing a state series of school text books, and appropriating money to pay the expenses thereof.

The bill and veto message were read in full by the secretary.

The following is the veto message:

VETO MESSAGE ON SENATE BILL No. 290.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

OLYMPIA, March 23, 1895.

Hon. J. H. Price, Secretary of State:

SIR—Herewith I transmit Senate bill No. 290, "An act to provide for compiling, illustrating, electrotyping, printing, binding, copyrighting and distributing a state series of school text books, and appropriating money to pay the expenses thereof," without my approval, for the following reasons:

The act provides that the state board of education shall compile or cause to be compiled at least sixteen separate school text books, and such others as the board, by a two-thirds vote, may deem necessary; that the board may either do the work of compilation itself or employ any well qualified person at a rate of compensation to be fixed by the board; that the printing, binding and all mechanical work must be done in the state, and that the paper, the cloth and other materials for binding can be bought only from residents of the state. It is made the duty of the board to copyright all the works, and the attorney general must bring actions to protect copyrights. When any of the books have been completed the contractor shall deliver them to the superintendent of public instruction, who shall distribute to county superintendents, who shall deliver them to scholars at the cost of printing, publishing and distribution, which latter is the cost of expressage. To do this work, an appropriation of $50,000 is made, and the term of contract for the production of the books is made five years.

The prime objection to the approval of this act is that the appropriation is so inadequate that its expenditure would inevitably prove an extravagant waste. The amount, $50,000, is intended to produce at least sixteen text-books in quantities sufficient to supply the school children of the State of Washington.

A careful, approximate, comparative estimate of the production of books sufficient to supply the enrolled scholars of this state, based on a similar exact estimate made for a sister state where the cost of production is very much less than here, as that state produces every article entering into the manufacture of a book, and this state does not, show that the cost of production, exclusive of the cost of authorship, compilation and illustrations, would be $112,000; so that if the present act were allowed to become a law, and if nothing were allowed for compilation, authorship and illustration, less than one-half of the school children of the state could be supplied with school books. To take one example in one grade—the fifth in one county—Lincoln alone, it would cost on the estimate referred to above $684.80 to supply the books of one grade, and that without the costs of authorship and other costs referred to above.

As it would be a penal misdemeanor, under an act passed and approved at the present session of the legislature, to create a deficiency in producing the books, it will be seen that it would be impossible, under the act before me, to supply more than one-half of the scholars with books.

Another objection to approval of the act on the financial side is that it would cause a loss of the cost of the books now in use. Under the present contract, or a similar one, all books in use can be sold at a fair price, or "traded even," in case of a change of text-books. Again, the approval of this act would create a form of double taxation; the people of the state would have to pay the present appropriation of $50,000, and then would have to pay for the books at the cost of production and the distribution.

Returning to the matter of authorship, compilation and illustration, which have been wholly excluded in the consideration of expense, an equally serious objection to the approval of the act arises. Children of the state should have the best books, not the cheapest. The preparation of text-books requires years of experience and thought. The present act perforce demands haste, and consequent carelessness. Furthermore, authors of good books could not afford to sell to this state alone, when they can get the whole country as a market. California, when she adopted a state series of school books, paid the highest salaries to her teachers and had some of the best in the country, yet her text-books are admittedly inferior. Consequently, it is a moral certainty that our text-books would not be the best in quality. I may state here that it is a known fact that out of some five hundred English grammars now in print, only five or six are successful enough to warrant a fair profit to their authors. The present act provides for the preparation of two grammars. It is not likely that we would get a successful one prepared, as it must be in haste, and for what must be a small fee. The authors of the best text-books receive large sums for their work. It is not unusual for $5,000 or upwards to be paid an author for a single book. It is evident the best authors could not be procured to write our proposed series. The act provides that the board of education may prepare the series; in other words, the makers of the books have the authority to order the adoption of their own work, which is manifestly wrong. It is clear, therefore, to my mind that under the conditions I have recited, our children will not have the best books.

The contract books being limited in sales to buyers in this state, the cost per book, as compared with other books of only equal merit, will as surely be increased as a decreased divisor gives an increased quotient. It is clear that our children under the present act will not have the cheapest books.

A further objection is that there is no adequate and specific provision for the inspection of the finished books, and that the state board of education and the superintendent of public instruction are charged with the disbursement of so large a sum as $50,000 almost without restriction and wholly without bonds.

In other states laws similar to the present act have been failures and have resulted in fraud. The presumption is that a similar result might follow here.

Under the act the children of the state would have neither the best nor the cheapest books, nor could they be fully supplied at all. The interests of the state are not properly safeguarded, and the taxation for school purposes will be materially increased. The act really defeats the purpose of its promoters.

Under an act which I have already approved, provision is made for a reletting of a contract for a uniform series of text books for the schools of the state for the next five years, at a rate which must be at least one-third less than the present rate. The act to which I refer will enable the people to profit by the present depressions of prices, and with the sharp competition which exists, will undoubtedly give the children of the state the very best books at the lowest possible cost; with the further advantage that their present books can be exchanged for four-fifths of the cost of the new books. For these reasons I withhold my approval.

Very respectfully yours, J. H. MCGRAW, Governor.

VETO MESSAGE ON SENATE BILL No. 8.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
OLYMPIA, March 22, 1895.

Hon. J. H. Price, Secretary of State:

SIR—I transmit herewith Senate bill No. 8, entitled "An act to regulate the sale of property under execution and decrees," together with my objections thereto.

I have carefully considered the provisions of this bill and am irresistibly led to the conclusion that so far as the same is intended to operate upon existing judgments, or upon existing contracts, express or implied, which have not merged into judgments, it is unconstitutional and void, because it contravenes section 10, article 1, constitution of the United States, which provides that "no state shall pass any law impairing the obligation of contracts," and also section 23, article 1 of our state constitution, which declares that "no law impairing the obligation of contracts shall ever be passed."

If there were anything on its face to indicate that the bill was intended to operate only upon contracts which should be entered into subsequent to its approval, or to judgments arising in actions ex delicto, no question could possibly arise as to its constitutionality, whatever might be said of the wisdom of the policy involved with its enforcement. That the legislature intended to give this measure a retroactive operation and had its provisions apply to existing judgments and upon pre-existing contracts which might hereafter be converted into judgments is evident, for the reasons that it is generally made applicable to all judgments, and contains no saving clause in favor of judgments or contracts heretofore rendered or made, and, also, because the bill unconditionally repeals all acts and parts of acts in conflict with its provisions, and declares an emergency for the reason that "the present law relating to the sales of property under execution is oppressive and unjust."

It is undoubtedly true that in modes of proceedings and forms to enforce contracts, and judgments rendered upon contracts, and prescribing the remedy generally, the legislature has control and may enlarge, limit or alter them, provided it does not deny a remedy, or so embarrass it with restrictions and conditions as to seriously impair the value of the "right."

The highest courts of last resort also generally hold that the laws in force when a contract is made, affording the creditor party a means of enforcing it, or providing a remedy for a breach thereof, are a part of the contract in such sense, and they further hold that a law passed after the contract was made, which annuls such laws or enfeebles them to such an extent that the creditor is deprived of his remedy, or clogs a remedy with conditions or restrictions so as to weaken its efficacy, is invalid.

The supreme court of the United States, in the case of McCracken v. Hayward, 2 How. 608, held that a statute of Illinois which prohibited property from being sold on execution for less than two-thirds the valuation made by appraisers, pursuant to the directions contained in the statute, impaired the obligation of contracts, and was inoperative upon executions issuing on judgments founded on contracts. The statute provided in substance that where any execution duly issued and levied on any property, the officer levying such execution should summon three householders, to be selected as therein provided, which householders, after being sworn, should fairly and impartially value the property levied upon, having reference to its cash value, and endorse the valuation upon the execution, or a separate paper attached thereto, signed by them; and that upon offering such property for sale, it should not be struck off unless two-thirds of such valuation should be bid therefor. Other parts of the statute are not necessary to be stated.

After the rendition of the judgment and in the United States circuit court of Illinois in which the action was pending, the constitutionality of the statute was raised, and the court were divided in opinion as to whether the Illinois statute, which had been adopted by the court as one of its rules, regulating the sale of real property under execution, was invalid as impairing the obligation of a contract, and the case was certified to the supreme court of the United States for its decision. The latter court, in disposing of the constitutional question, announced the legal principle involved in that case as follows: "In placing the obligation of contracts under the protection of the constitution, its framers look to the essentials of the contract more than to the forms and modes of proceeding by which it was to be carried into execution; annulling all state legislation which impaired the obligation, it was left to the states to prescribe and shape the remedy to enforce it. The obligation of a contract consists in its binding force on the party who makes it. This depends on the laws in existence when it is made; these are necessarily referred to in all contracts and forming a part of them as a measure of the obligation to perform them by the one party, and the right acquired by the other. There can be no other standard by which to ascertain the extent of either, than that which the terms of the contract indicate, according to their settled legal meaning. When it becomes consummated, the law defines the duty and the right, compels one party to perform the thing contracted for, and gives the other the right to enforce the performance by the remedies then in force. If any subsequent law affect to diminish the duty or impair the right, it necessarily bears upon the obligation of the contract, in favor of one party, to the injury of the other; hence, any law which in its operation amounts to a denial or obstruction of the rights accruing by a contract, though professing to act only on the remedy, is directly obnoxious to the prohibition of the constitution."

This principle is so clearly stated and fully settled in the case of Bronson vs. Kinzie, decided at the last term, 1 How. 311, that nothing remains to be added to the reasoning of the court, or requires a reference to any other authority than what is therein referred to; it is, however, not to be understood by that, or any former decision of this court, all state legislation on existing contracts is repugnant to the constitution. It is within the undoubted power of state legislatures to pass recording acts, by which the elder grantee shall be postponed to a younger, if the prior deed is not recorded within the limited time, and the power is the same, whether the deed is dated before or after the passage of the recording act. Though the effect of such a law is to render the prior deed fraudulent and void as against a subsequent purchaser, it is not a law impairing the obligation of contracts; such, too, is the power to pass acts of limitation and their effect. Reasons of sound policy have led to the general adoption of laws of both descriptions and their validity cannot be questioned. The time and manner of their operation, the exceptions to them and the acts from which the time limited shall begin to run, will generally depend on the sound discretion of the legislature, according to the nature of the titles, the situation of the country, and the emergency which leads to their enactment. Cases may occur where the provisions of a law may be so unreasonable as to amount to the denial of a right and call for the interposition of the court. 3 Pet. 290.

The obligation of the contract between the parties in this case was to perform the premises and undertakings contained therein, the right of the plaintiff was to damages for the breach thereof, to bring suit and obtain a judgment, to take out and prosecute an execution against the defendant till the judgment was satisfied, pursuant to the existing laws of Illinois. These laws giving these rights were as perfectly binding upon the defendant, and as much a part of the contract, as if they had been set forth in its stipulations in the very words of the law relating to judgments and executions.

If the defendant had made such an agreement as to authorize a sale of his property, which should be levied on by the sheriff, for such price as should be bid for it, at a fair public sale on reasonable notice, it would have conferred a right on the plaintiff which the constitution made inviolable; and it can make no difference whether such right is conferred by the terms or law of the contract. Any subsequent law which denies, obstructs or impairs this right, by superadding a condition that there shall be no sale for a sum less than the value of the property levied on, to be ascertained by appraisement, or any other mode of valuation than a public sale, affects the obligation of the contract as much in the one case as the other, for it can be enforced only by a sale of the defendant's property, and the prevention of such sale is a denial of the right. The same power in a state legislature may be carried to any extent, if it exists at all; it may prohibit a sale for less than the whole appraised value or for three-fourths or nine-tenths, as well as for two-thirds, for if the power can be exercised to any extent its exercise must be a matter of uncontrollable discretion in passing laws relating to the remedy, which are regardless of the effect on the right of the plaintiff. This was the ruling principle of the case of Bronson vs. Kinzie, 1 How. 311, which arose on a mortgage containing a covenant that, in default of payment, the mortgagee might enter upon, sell and convey the mortgaged premises as the attorney of the mortgagor; yet the case was not decided on the effect and obligation of that covenant, but on the broad and general principle that a state law, which professedly provided a remedy for enforcing the contract of mortgage effectually impaired the rights incident to and attached to it by the laws in force at its date, was void. No agreement or contract can create more binding obligations than those fastened by the law, which the law creates and attaches to contracts; the express power which the mortgagor confers on the mortgagee to sell as his agent is not more potent than that which the law delegates to the marshal to sell and convey the property levied on under an execution.

He is the constituted agent of the defendant, invested with all his powers for these purposes. The marshal can do under the authority of the law whatever he could do under the fullest power of attorney from the execution debtor, and no state law can prohibit it. It follows that the law of Illinois now under consideration so far as it prohibits a sale of less than two-thirds of the appraised value of the property levied on, is unconstitutional and void.

No reason obtains why the law in the above case is not equally applicable to the cases contemplated by Senate bill No. 8. The latter is even much more favorable to the judgment debtor than the statute of Illinois above referred to, and invades to a greater extent the rights of existing contract creditors under the laws of this state now in force. The following cases recited in the supreme court of the United States show the uniformity with which that tribunal has adhered to the general principle of law as laid down in the case above cited: Fletcher vs. Peck, 6 Cranch, Rep. 37; Green vs. Biddle, 8 Wheaton, Rep. p. 1; Sturges vs. Crownshield, 4 Wheaton, Rep. 122; Brownson vs. Kinzie, 1 How. 311; Curran vs. Arkansas, 13 How. 311; Freeman vs. Howe, 24 How. 451; Hawthorne vs. Calef, 2 Wallace, 10; White vs. Hart, 13 Wallace, 646; Walker vs. Whitehead, 16 Wallace, 315; Gunn vs. Barry, 15 Wallace, 610; Edwards vs. Kearsney, 96 U. S. Rep. 595; Penniman's Case, 103 U. S. 714; Louisiana vs. New Orleans, 102 U. S. Rep. 205; Anthony vs. Greenhom, 107 U. S. Rep. 769.

While I am convinced that Senate bill No. 8 is unconstitutional for the reasons above stated so far as it relates to existing contracts and judgments, it might be valid as to all contracts, express and implied, made after it became a law by executive approval. It is also probably true that it might be valid as to all judgments hereafter rendered in actions ex delicto, although the tort was committed prior to the passage of this bill.

Mr. Cooley, in his Treatise on Constitutional Limitations, gives his general views on this subject as follows: "A legislative act may be entirely valid as to some classes of cases and clearly void as to others. A law might be void as violating the obligation of existing contracts, but valid as to all contracts which should be entered into subsequent to its passage, and which, therefore, would have no legal force except such as the law itself would allow. In any such case, the unconstitutional law must operate as far as it can, and it will not be held invalid on the objection of a party whose interests are not affected by it in any manner which the constitution forbids. If there are any exceptions to this rule, they must be of cases only where it is evident, from a contemplation of the statute and of the purpose to be accomplished by it, that it would not have been passed at all except as an entirety, and that the general purpose of the legislature will be defeated if it shall be held valid as to some cases and void as to others." Cooley on Constitutional Limitations, 5th edition, p. 215.

The learned author states the exceptions to the rule above set forth as they must be ascertained by the judicial department of the government, whose inquiry is limited by what is indicated on the face of the act as to the intention of the legislature, and by such facts as are within the realm of judicial notice and knowledge.

It would be conceded generally that the executive, as an integral part of the law making power, has a wider range of inquiry before him. What was the general purpose to be accomplished by the legislature in the passage of this bill? Would the legislature have passed the bill, if its operation, in their judgment, was only confined to such contracts as were made after it received the approval of the governor, and upon which hereafter judgments might be rendered? Was it not the controlling motive uppermost in the minds of the legislators in their regard for the distressed condition of many of our citizens who were laboring under financial burdens and unable to meet their obligations, to afford a present measure of relief to existing debtors, and to prevent a ruinous sacrifice of their property, which already had suffered a great shrinking in value, in addition to imposing a deficiency judgment, remaining over to further embarrass the unfortunate debtor? Viewing the situation in the light of surrounding circumstances, it would seem that the legislature, by the passage of Senate bill No. 8, intended to provide a remedy which would apply retrospectively and prospectively to all judgments, and that it is extremely doubtful whether or not this bill would have passed if the constitutional prohibition as to the invalidity of the laws impairing the obligation of contracts had been fully discussed and considered. If the executive should approve this bill, it seems to be settled under the law, as expounded by the supreme court of the United States, that it cannot apply to any contracts made at the time of its approval, or to any judgment rendered on them. Thus it would fail to accomplish the beneficent purpose of the legislature, which was to provide immediate relief for existing debtors. The practical question then arises, What will be the effect upon the financial situation, in case of executive approval of this bill? There has matured, or will shortly mature, a large indebtedness, reaching into millions of dollars, arising out of loans made in nearly all the large cities, and secured by mortgages on the most valuable property therein, held by parties non-resident, who have regarded this state as an attractive field for investment. In many instances, these creditors have considerably forborne the right to press the mortgage debtors, and have allowed the interest, taxes and insurance to remain unpaid, in the hope that the cloud of adversity would lift, and that a new era of prosperity would enable the borrowers to pay their indebtedness, or make some arrangement that would prevent the sacrifice of the security. Many of these creditors have consented to extend their loans for a long time, after making a contract for the renewal of these obligations.

In all probability, the approval of this bill would precipitate proceedings for the foreclosure of mortgages in all parts of the state, and contrary to the very intention of the measure inflict hardship and misery upon the unfortunate debtors. It would prevent the renewal of mortgage loans because that requires a new contract, upon which Senate bill No. 8, if it became a law, would operate, if carried into judgment. It would tend to prevent the investment in this state of capital from abroad, and to drive away the enterprising investor, whose money is needed to develop our resources.

It would hamper, restrict and restrain commercial dealings and intercourse among our own citizens. It would make an era of cut-throat, iron-clad contracts, which would enable the unscrupulous and greedy money lenders to prey upon the unfortunate victims, who under stress of necessitous circumstances would be driven to them for temporary relief. It would tend to prostrate our industrial interests, and retard our growth.

In view of the foregoing, I am constrained to withhold my approval of said bill. Very respectfully yours, J. H. MCGRAW, Governor.

VETO MESSAGE ON SENATE BILL No. 320.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
OLYMPIA, March 23, 1895.

Honorable J. H. Price, Secretary of State:

SIR—Herewith I transmit Senate bill No. 320, "An act in relation to the Legislative Manual," without my approval, for the following reasons:

The act, although having no specific appropriation on its face, in fact creates an appropriation of probably not less than $2,000, which, by the terms of the act would necessarily be expended from the public printing appropriation. The estimates for public printing on which the appropriation was based were so low that any additional expense would most seriously cripple other and more pressing work. Therefore, I am constrained to withhold my approval.

Very respectfully, J. H. MCGRAW, Governor.

The vote on the question, Shall the bill pass notwithstanding the veto of the governor? resulted as follows: Yeas 1, nays 24, absent or not voting 9.

The secretary read the following communication from the governor:

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
OLYMPIA, January 27, 1897.

President of the Senate, Senate Chamber, Olympia, Wash:

SIR—An act of the legislature of 1891 constituted a commission, consisting of governor, state auditor and state treasurer, to lease accommodations for state offices. Pursuant to this act, the quarters now occupied by the state officers were leased from T. I. McKenny for a period of six years from August 1, 1891, with the privilege of two years additional at the same rate, payable quarterly. The rental is $6,600 per annum. The lease expires July 1, 1897.

The commission is not authorized to enter into a new contract for other accommodations. As all rentals have decreased very materially since the signing of the contract with Mr. McKenny, better terms for the state should be secured under a new contract with Mr. McKenny, or other suitable accommodations obtained more advantageous to the state. After consideration of the subject, the commission in charge of the state offices has decided to recommend that a maximum offer might be made by your honorable body for the accommodations now in use.

Should the legislature fail to act in this matter, the state will be compelled to continue payment of $6,600 per annum for office rent, which, under existing circumstances, is too high.

Very respectfully, J. R. ROGERS, Governor.

On motion of Senator T. J. Miller, the communication was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the Legislature of the State of Washington:

The session laws of the state from 1854 to 1888 are out of print. Occasionally sets can be obtained at a price ranging from $100 to $150. The state officers and state library are without them. We have published them from the original rolls in five volumes of 1,000 pages each, and are selling them at $30 per set, bound in full law sheep. If you will purchase one hundred copies and distribute them, as per schedule attached, we will take in exchange to the extent of one-half of the price supreme court reports, late session laws and journals at the regular selling price. The state, we are informed, has several thousand copies of volumes 1, 2, 3 and 4, supreme court reports, that it will never sell and are deteriorating. If your honorable body will appoint a special committee, or refer the matter to one of your regular standing committees, it can be shown that some arrangement can be made that will be of great advantage to the state and to ourselves.

We have fifty copies of volume 4, containing the laws of the years 1877 to 1877-8, bound in manilla, which could be used temporarily by your committees and returned for permanent binding in law sheep.

Respectfully submitted.

TWENTIETH DAY.

MORNING SESSION.

SENATE CHAMBER,

SENATE CHAMBER,
OLYMPIA, WASH., January 30, 1897.

To the President and Members of the Senate:

We, your committee appointed under resolution to investigate certain charges appearing in the Seattle Post Intelligencer of the 28th instant, reflecting discredit on Senator Plummer by intimating that he had offered to sell his vote for $500, respectfully submit the following report:

That your committee met at the Hotel Olympia at 5 o'clock P. M. on January 29, 1897, and organized; that we employed A. C. Bowman, a stenographer, to report the testimony and the proceedings.

That we summoned and examined the following named witnesses, to wit: Dr. G. V. Calhoun, George Turner, E. J. Short, Mr. Paul F. Mohr, and Senator Plummer.

That after due consideration of the testimony given by the above named witnesses we find: That the statements purporting to be the words of Dr. Calhoun, reflecting discredit on Senator Plummer, were very much modified and explained by the evidence given before your committee; that no money was offered to bribe or to be used to bribe any member of this legislature; that the evidence submitted does show that Senator Plummer was given to understand that if he would assist and work for the re-election of Senator Squire all legitimate expenses would be paid by the friends of Senator Squire, but that under no circumstances would funds be advanced or paid for the purpose of corrupting any member of this legislature; that the evidence further shows that Senator Plummer refused to accept any advances or to vote or work for the re-election of Senator Squire; that it is the opinion of your committee that the charges before referred to are not substantiated by the evidence submitted, and in view of all the facts we find that no wrong was intended by any one, and that Senator Plummer should be and is hereby fully exonerated from said rumors and charges.

Respectfully submitted.

The committee appointed to investigate the charges against Senator Taylor and other senators submitted the following report:

REPORT OF SPECIAL INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

SENATE CHAMBER,

OLYMPIA, WASH., February 11, 1897.

To the Honorable President and Members of the Senate of the State of Washington:

Your special committee, appointed to investigate grave charges of corruption made against certain members of this honorable body, growing out of the late election of United States senator, beg leave to present this, its first partial report, in response to the order of the Senate, made on the ninth day of February, 1897.

This committee was appointed by and has acted under the following resolution:

"The following resolution was introduced by Senator E. W. Taylor:

"WHEREAS, There are grave charges of corruption against Senator E. W. Taylor, in the matter of the election of United States senator: therefore, be it

"Resolved, That a committee of three, consisting of Senators Dorr, Wilson and Washburn, be appointed a committee to examine into the said charges, and report thereon.

"Amended by Senator High: That the committee investigate the charges of all the other names mentioned in connection with Senator Taylor.

"Amendment carried, and motion prevailed.

"The following resolution was introduced by Senator Wilson:

"Resolved, That the committee appointed this day to examine into charges against Senator Taylor and other members of this body, is hereby authorized to send for persons and papers.

"The resolution was adopted."

Immediately after the appointment of the committee, we organized; and, upon the request of certain of the senators involved, we subpoenaed the witnesses named, to wit: Hon. Watson C. Squire and Hon. A. D. Warner.

The committee examined Mr. Warner upon the matters involved; said examination being held in public session, in the Senate chamber, and the parties all being present. The testimony was taken in shorthand, which has since been transcribed, and the same is herewith submitted. At such examination the accused senators were given an opportunity to appear in person, and to be represented by counsel, but severally declined the offer of counsel, and assured your committee of their entire confidence in the ability of the committee to impartially conduct the investigation, which they insisted should be full, complete and thorough, and embrace any and all charges brought against them or other members of this honorable body.

Subsequent to the service of the subpoena upon him in Seattle, the following telegrams passed between Senator Squire and your committee:

Hon. C. W. Dorr, Chairman:

SEATTLE, WASH., February 5, 1897.

I beg to be excused from attending meeting of the committee to-morrow on account of very important legal business here. I will endeavor to appear later. Answer.

W. C. SQUIRE.

Hon. W. C. Squire, Seattle, Wash.:

OLYMPIA, WASH., February 5, 1897.

Your presence required to-morrow. You can probably return to-morrow evening.

C. W. DORR, Chairman.

Hon. C. W. Dorr, Chairman, Olympia, Wash.:

SEATTLE, WASH., February 6, 1897.

Your dispatch received. I have come down here en route returning to United States Senate, but am delayed here to consult with government officers regarding bills pending in congress. If I can, consistently, I will return to Olympia Monday, but feel I ought not to be longer delayed. I have been very much delayed by going to Olympia twice this week, each time at request of House committee. I know of nothing that I can add to my sworn statements already made. In nothing that I have said relative to the Warner list have I implicated or intended to implicate any of the senators or representatives named on the list. I simply wrote the names at the dictation of Warner upon his suggestion that these men would probably unite to prevent a deadlock, and I produced the list only on the demand of the House committee. So far as charges may be concerned growing out of this list, I do not see that any man can be affected by it, excepting Warner, as he, alone, is responsible for it. I desire to treat every legislative committee with courtesy, and will, if I can, be on hand Monday. WATSON C. SQUIRE, United States Senator.

SEATTLE, WASH., February 8, 1897.

Hon. C. W. Dorr:

Business with government officers here prevents my going to-day. Will try to go to-morrow, if desired. WATSON C. SQUIRE.

OLYMPIA, WASH., February 8, 1897.

Hon. Watson C. Squire, Seattle:

Can you come to-morrow? If not, answer when it will be convenient.

C. W. DORR.

While your committee fully appreciate the importance of the testimony of Senator Squire, especially as his presence has been imperatively demanded and insisted upon by some of the Senators charged, yet we have not, up to this time, been able to secure his presence, except by compulsory process, which we have not felt justified in enforcing, in view of the importance of his position and the official work in which he is now engaged as United States senator from the State of Washington; and in view of the further fact that we have official knowledge that the senator has already visited Olympia on two occasions for the purpose of submitting himself to examination by a special investigating committee appointed by the House of Representatives. Your committee, however, believes that the testimony of this witness will be secured in the near future.

It has not been deemed best by your committee to pursue the proposed and necessary investigation along other lines, which your committee have in view, until the testimony of Senator Squire has been taken. Your committee have felt impelled under the authority by which it was appointed, and the earnest solicitation of the persons charged, to make an investigation both thorough and searching, not only in justice to those charged, but in vindication of the good name of this honorable body, of which they are members.

It has become very evident to the committee that the Senate is in duty bound to purge itself of the numerous scandals, rumors and charges of corruption which have been made during the present session; and while the duty is one from which we would gladly be relieved, we feel that there are good and sufficient reasons for continuing the investigation until such time as we can fully exonerate every member of this honorable Senate, or show good and substantial grounds for severely dealing with those who have been recreant to their official and moral duties, if any such there may be.

A vast amount of testimony has been taken by a committee from another branch of this legislature, which, while perhaps we have no official notice of, we are at least bound to take into consideration. The attention of your committee has been directed to this testimony by the report spread upon the records of the House of Representatives; and we would suggest that if your committee is to be continued, that a concurrent resolution be passed which would permit this committee to have access to the evidence taken by the House committee. We are further advised that said House committee has been discharged by the House, before the completion of its contemplated labors, with many witnesses uncalled, much testimony untaken, and numerous charges uninvestigated. While these charges have, perhaps, not directly affected the honorable senators coming within the purview of the resolution under which your committee is acting, we think it is not inadvisable to probe these scandalous matters to the core, in order that the reputation of the fifth legislature of the State of Washington, as a whole, and every member thereof, may be justly estimated and judged by the people.

Many matters have been laid before your committee, to which we have been unable to give our attention, because of the absence of important witnesses, and delay in mail correspondence; but which are of vital importance, and should not be allowed to remain unconsidered.

While it is gratifying to report that so far as this investigation has proceeded no charge of corruption, or other action involving moral turpitude, has been sustained against any member of this honorable Senate, and while the duties imposed upon this committee are extremely disagreeable, and are of such a character as every member would gladly be relieved from, yet, in view of the importance of the matter involved, the gravity of the charges made, and the necessity of sustaining the dignity and integrity of this honorable body, we feel that we cannot conscientiously ask to be relieved from this duty.

We believe that this or some other committee should be allowed more time to pursue this investigation to a satisfactory end, and so recommend.

Respectfully submitted.

C. W. DORR, Chairman.

R. C. WILSON.

R. C. WASHBURN.

SENATE CHAMBER,

OLYMPIA, WASH., February 6, 1897.

Senators Dorr, Wilson and Washburn, acting as a committee on investigation, under the Senate resolution, a copy of which is hereinafter set forth, met at the Senate chamber for the purpose of entering upon the discharge of such duties, at the hour of 2:40 P. M., February 6, 1897, and the following proceedings were had:

The committee had previously selected Ernest C. MacDonald to act as their stenographer, to report the proceedings.

At the request of the chairman, Senator Dorr, the resolution appointing the committee was read by Senator Wilson, as follows:

"The following resolution was introduced by Senator E. W. Taylor:

"WHEREAS, There are grave charges of corruption against Senator E. W. Taylor in the matter of election of United States senator: therefore, be it

"Resolved, That a committee of three, consisting of Senators Dorr, Wilson and Washburn, be appointed a committee to examine into the said charges, and report thereon.

"Amended by Senator High: That the committee investigate the charges of all other names mentioned in connection with Senator Taylor.

"Amendment carried, and motion prevailed.

"The following resolution was introduced by Senator Wilson:

"Resolved, That the committee appointed this day to examine into charges against Senator Taylor and other members of this body is hereby authorized to send for persons and papers.

"The resolution was adopted."

By SENATOR DORR: We desire Senator Taylor to state what charges you desire investigated.

By SENATOR TAYLOR: I havn't a copy of the Post-Intelligencer, and didn't have one. What I want investigated is the entire subject matter of the election of United States senator since I have been a member of this legislature, up to the present time; and especially this session; if I had anything to do with this matter wrong or corrupt I want to know it. The field is open, and I am ready for everything.

By SENATOR DORR: The committee would also like to inquire of Senators High, Miller and Yeend as to the charges they desire investigated.

By SENATOR COLE: I will say that so far as I am concerned, I am perfectly willing to have everything so far as this senatorial contest is concerned, where I am accused of wrongdoing, investigated to the fullest extent.

By SENATOR HIGH: I hand you herewith a paper which will cover everything.

By SENATOR DORR: Senator Wilson, as you are acting as secretary of the committee, will you kindly read this paper?

The paper was read, and is as follows:

"I never spoke a word to Senator Squire about the senatorial question; never spoke one word to Representative Warner on the subject before Senator Turner's election; never heard of there being a number of members clubbed together for any purpose, until the investigation began; was never offered either money, position or anything else, to vote for any candidate, by either man or woman; was pledged to no candidate; voted twenty-four times for a populist; went into the populist caucus at temperance hall, as per call as follows: 'There will be a caucus of all those who did not vote for Judge Turner at 4:30 this afternoon, at Good Templars' hall, Fourth street. Please attend. Signed: Day, Pierson, Witt, and thirty others.' There was in said caucus Judge Winsor, Senator Squire and Vice President Daniels. Speaker Cline was elected chairman. After about one hour's discussion I made a motion, which prevailed, that we place in nomination all the candidates and take a ballot; that we should drop all candidates, except the three highest, and drop the lowest candidate each ballot, and stay by the last one to the end. The ballot was taken, but owing to the confusion occasioned by numbers suggesting another method, they never succeeded in counting the ballot already taken. Judge Winsor stated he did not wish his name mentioned in the fusion caucus.

"I was from the beginning to the end against a deadlock. When I became convinced it was impossible to elect a populist, I voted in caucus the first time for Governor Rogers, but as that was the only vote he received, I voted on the next ballot for Judge Turner, and stood by the decision of the caucus."

By SENATOR DORR: The statement just read appears to be a statement of your case, rather than an answer to the question. The committee understand that you desire the same scope in the investigation as indicated by Senator Taylor?

By SENATOR HIGH: Yes, sir.

By SENATOR DORR: And, Senator Miller, how is it with you? A. I noticed a statement in the Post-Intelligencer purporting to be a statement made by Senator Squire, saying that a statement had been made to him and a list of names given to him, and that statement in the Post-Intelligencer stated it was a list of the corruptibles. I want to know by what authority he included by name in that list. That is all I care to have investigated.

By SENATOR HIGH: It is not my desire or wish to go into everything that has been reshaped on the streets. All that I care is that Mr. Warner or Senator Squire state publicly what there was that they should place my name on that list, if there was a list.

By SENATOR TAYLOR: I want full scope as to me. I do not care what the House of Representatives is doing. What I am interested in is as to me.

By SENATOR DORR: I will state, gentlemen, that in view of the call, of the resolution, which states that "Whereas, there are grave charges of corruption against Senator Taylor," which was amended to include others, the committee were not informed as to the nature of the charges that they might be called on to investigate, and for that reason deemed it best to ask you these questions. We are asking so as to conform to your wishes, this being your resolution.

By SENATOR HIGH: I thought the resolution referred to an article in the Post-Intelligencer.

By SENATOR YEEND: I wish to ask for an investigation of any responsibility, or anything which reflects on my honor as a man and a member of this Senate, in regard to the senatorial election.

By SENATOR DORR: Are there any other Senators involved in this matter who desire an investigation?

The committee desire to state that on yesterday we were requested to issue subpoenas for Representative Warner and United States Senator Squire. A subpoena was sent to Seattle and served upon the Senator and I will ask Senator Wilson, who is acting as secretary of the committee, to read the telegrams that have passed between this committee and Senator Squire on that subject.

By SENATOR WILSON: Telegram dated yesterday and received last night:

Hon. C. W. Dorr, Chairman:

I beg to be excused from attending meeting of the committee to-morrow on account of very important legal business here. I will endeavor to appear later. Answer.

W. C. SQUIRE.

Senator Dorr's answer was as follows:

OLYMPIA, February 5, 1897.

Hon. W. C. Squire, Seattle, Wash.:

Your presence required tomorrow. You can probably return to-morrow evening.

C. W. DORR, Chairman.

To which Senator Squire replied as follows:

SEATTLE, WASH., February 6, 1897.

Hon. C. W. Dorr, Chairman, Olympia, Wash.:

Your dispatch received. I have come down here en route returning to U. S. senate, but am delayed here to consult with government officers regarding bills pending in congress. If I can consistently I will return to Olympia Monday, but feel I ought not to be longer delayed. I have been very much delayed by going to Olympia twice this week, each time at the request of the House committee. I know of nothing that I can add to my sworn statements already made. In nothing that I have said relative to the Warner list have I implicated or intended to implicate any of the senators or representatives named on the list. I simply wrote the names at the dictation of Warner, upon his suggestion that those men would probably unite to prevent a deadlock, and I produced the list only on the demand of the House committee. So far as charges may be concerned growing out of this list, I do not see that any man can be affected by it, excepting Warner, as he alone is responsible for it. I desire to treat every legislative committee with courtesy, and will, if I can, be on hand Monday.

WATSON C. SQUIRE, United States Senator.

By SENATOR TAYLOR: So far as the statement is concerned about the deadlock, I plead guilty. I would not go into any combination that would lead to a deadlock. If that is the crime I am charged with, I am guilty.

By SENATOR DORR: I will ask Senator Taylor if he has, or will procure for the committee, a copy of the article in the Post-Intelligencer, referred to, that may be made part of this record. The article referred to is, I suppose, that contained in the Post-Intelligencer of February 5, 1897, entitled "A Big 'Jack Pot.'"

A BIG "JACK POT."

LE ROI SYNDICATE FIGURES IN ELECTION—COL. RIDPATH FINANCIER—TOBIASSEN DECLARES HE WAS TWICE APPROACHED—FRITZ ACTED AS THE CAPPER—SENATOR SQUIRE FURNISHES WARNER'S LIST OF CORRUPTIBLES.

INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE AT OLYMPIA SLOWLY UNEARTHING THE STORY—TOBIASSEN FACES UNFLINCHINGLY THE MEN WHOM HE ACCUSES, AND DOES NOT WAVER ON CROSS-EXAMINATION—FRITZ AND RIDPATH BOTH DENY THE STORY—WARNER SAID TO HAVE THREATENED, IN CASE HE HIMSELF WERE ACCUSED, TO DRAG DR. CALHOUN IN THE MIRE.

OLYMPIA, Feb. 4.—(Special).—The hearing before the senatorial boodle investigating committee to-night was full of sensations. Representative Tobiassen swore that Col. Ridpath, Turner's financial manager, offered first to pay his campaign expenses if he would vote for Turner. On his refusal, a second offer, this time of $200, was made. It was refused. Tobiassen, who was a middle-of-the-roader from start to finish, swore that Ridpath and Fritz, Turner's friends in the Le Roi mine, formed a "jack pot," to which Ridpath had contributed $3,000 to aid in Turner's election. The whole transaction is alleged to have occurred in Turner's headquarters in the Olympia hotel.

Although both Fritz and Ridpath sat face to face with Tobiassen when he told his story, he was not the least bit phased, and a severe cross-examination by Frank Graves, Turner's counsel, did not break the force of his testimony.

The fact that Fritz and Ridpath both swore he perjured himself did not disturb Tobiassen, who stuck to his story, and swore it was true in every particular.

Representative Fritz added another sensation when he swore that W. E. Hagan had offered him $3,000 to vote and work for Squire.

Senator Squire appeared for re-direct examination, denying in every important particular Warner's evidence in which the Senator was charged as the guilty party.

TOBIASSEN AND THE "JACK POT."

Direct and specific charges of corrupt solicitation were made to-night by Representative Tobiassen against Col. Ridpath, one of the managers of the campaign of George Turner, senator-elect. Ridpath occupied a confidential position in the Turner camp during the campaign, and was generally credited with being the man who had charge of the financial end of the concern. Representative Tobiassen told his story in a straightforward way that entitled him to consideration and belief. His story was as follows:

"Wednesday night, January 27, Representative Fritz, a Turner man, asked me to come into the Turner headquarters and meet some of his friends. After Fritz had bought a drink and set up the cigars we went in.

"There he introduced me to Col. Ridpath. We talked awhile, and then Col. Ridpath asked me to vote for George Turner. I said that I was in favor of the election of a straight-out populist. After more talk Ridpath said that some friends of Judge Turner, among them himself, has made up a 'jack pot,' as he called it, to use in Turner's interest. He said that if I would vote for Turner he would pay my campaign expenses and also my expenses at the capital. I said that I could not accept such a proposition.

"After more talk along this line, in which Ridpath urged me to vote for Turner, I left to attend a committee meeting. Ridpath asked me to return, but I said I guessed I would not come back, and that if I did not he should conclude that I did not want to deal with him. The next night I met Fritz, and he took me by the arm and led me into the Turner private rooms. Here the offer of the previous night was made again.

"I don't know any of you men, I said. Col. Ridpath said he was financially responsible, and Fritz said that Ridpath's word was good for $10,000, and that he had signed the state treasurer's bond for $25,000. They wanted me to vote for Turner the next night in the caucus, and stay by him on the following day. I said that there was nothing in it for me, meaning politically. Ridpath said that there was $200 in it for me, and offered to show me the money. I refused to accept, and then Ridpath said, you go ahead, and if you vote for Turner to-morrow, I will take care of you."

Cross examination by Frank Graves did not shake Tobiassen's story in any particular. Graves tried to get him to admit that he was playing detective. Tobiassen said he would have entrapped Ridpath and Fritz if he could have done so. He wanted to find out what they were doing, but had no thought of accepting their proposition.

FRITZ VISITED BY WINSTON.

The testimony of Representative Fritz was of a most sensational character. He directly contradicted the story told by Representative Tobiassen. He said that he had known Tobiassen for two or three weeks, since the opening of the legislature. At Tobiassen's request he took him into Turner's headquarters for the purpose of introducing him to Col. Ridpath. They discussed the senatorial situation, and it was suggested to Tobiassen that he had better drop Winsor, Cline and the other populists, and vote for Turner; that on the following evening the witness and Tobiassen again visited the Turner rooms and again talked to Col. Ridpath. People were passing in and out of the room on both these occasions, but he avowed that not a word was uttered about paying Tobiassen $200, or any other sum, to induce him to vote for Turner.

On cross-examination startling testimony was developed. Judge Winsor began to question the witness as to a visit made by Patrick Henry Winston to him at Everett. Mr. Fritz acknowledged that Winston had been to see him, and said that Squire's manager, C. H. Hagan, had visited him several times at Everett just before election. During these visits Hagan importuned witness to support Squire for senator.

"On one occasion," he said, "Hagan made me an offer of $3,000 to vote for and support Squire. The offer was a contingent one. One thousand dollars was to be paid down, and the other $2,000 to be deposited in a bank and paid to me as soon as Squire was elected. I refused the offer and told him I was for Turner."

"In what bank was this money to be deposited?" witness was asked.

"I do not know, but he said that it would be placed where I would be sure to get it," replied the witness. "I was for Turner from the first, and $10,000 would not have induced me to vote for Squire."

"Afterwards I visited Seattle and remained for a few days at the Hotel Northern," continued the witness. "I had some talk with Hagan there. Again he importuned me to support Squire. He wished to appear to be a good fellow, and he offered to pay my expenses and to give me some spending money. I told him that I did not need his money; that I had enough, and that if I got broke before I left town I might borrow $5 from him."

"This was not the first time that I was approached by Squire's workers," said the witness. "Before the election a man named Bunce, who is one of Squire's workers, came to Everett, and said to me that he was working in the interests of Squire, and that he would pay my election expenses, provided I would support Squire for senator. I was for Turner then, and I did not wish to show my hand, as I feared that the A. P. A. lodge in Everett might fight me, and so I dissembled a little. I told him to give my compliments to Senator Squire, and to thank him for his offer, and at the same time to assure him that I was fully able to pay my own election expenses; that otherwise I would have accepted the offer."

Witness most emphatically denied that he had ever received, or expected to receive, any compensation, directly or indirectly, for supporting Judge Turner for senator.

Col. Ridpath was the next witness. He corroborated Representative Fritz' testimony as to the interviews with Representative Tobiassen, and most emphatically denied that there was any proposition made to pay Tobiassen $200 for his vote. Witness emphatically denied that the owners of the Le Roi mine had made up a "jack pot" with which to elect Turner senator.

SQUIRE ANSWERS WARNER.

Senator Squire went carefully over a transcript of the evidence given by Representative Warner, in which the senator is charged with having attempted to bribe Warner. He said that he had met Warner many times in the lobby of the hotel, but socially, only. He never asked Warner to come to his room for a conference. The senator swore that Warner never told him that he was not in the race, and could not be elected; he never said the populists should have the senatorship. The senator denied that he ever importuned Warner to come to his room. Squire denied that Warner refused an invitation to go to Doane's with him, saying that he would not be seen there with the senator for $20,000. The senator swore that Warner made a proposition to meet him. Squire then divulged the conversation had with Warner in his room, in which Warner said that the only way that Squire could be elected was through the plan which he (Warner) suggested, which concerned twenty members who were not committed to any candidate. Warner's testimony regarding the organization of the club, the senator declared was a malicious invention, and false in every particular. The senator denied explicitly that he had said that Cline and Baker would "come to him." Warner's testimony that he (Squire) had said he had to make one last desperate effort, was false. Also, that portion regarding the $13,000, which Warner swore Squire had said he could raise. The senator denied that he had said anything reflecting on Way's integrity. He denied that Calhoun had said that it would be necessary to buy any one.

"THE LITTLE LIST OF CORRUPTIBLES."

At this stage, after denying all of Warner's charges as false and malicious, Senator Squire produced the now famous list of names of members which he swore he put down as Warner called them off. The list is as follows: Likins, Williams, Merrifield, Kincaid, Koehler, Richmond, Forbes, Hargrave, Bush, Cole, de Mattos, Freeman, High, Mathiot, Dr. Mitchell, David Miller, Pierson, Plummer, Ed. Taylor, Way, Winsor, Warner, Yeend, Conine, Wilkeson.

Opposite the names of Taylor, Way, Winsor, Warner and Plummer, there was a long black mark, which Senator Squire said he had put there at Warner's dictation.

"For what reason?" was asked.

"I could only infer," said the senator, with much meaning in his voice.

The name of Hicks appears on the list, but it is marked out.

Senator Squire said: "Warner called Hicks' name off, but told me afterwards to scratch it off, that 'he had been fixed.'"

W. E. Hagan testified that Warner sought the interview with Senator Squire. He also testified that Warner had threatened that if Dr. Calhoun besmirched his character that he would go clear down the line fighting, and testify that witness had given him $70, and also he would get Wilkeson and others to testify.

Hagan said he gave Warner $70 in order to use for expenses in securing the support of Representative Wilkeson for Squire. The money was used in paying fares on a trip to Whatcom, and between Seattle and Everett.

C. H. Hagan corroborated the testimony of Dr. Calhoun as to the alleged offer of Warner to deliver twenty votes for Squire for $6,000, $1,000 down, and the other $5,000 when Squire was elected. Witness said that Pierson had been offered and refused a position worth $3,000 a year, if he would vote for Turner. In fact it was so common an occurrence to hear of some legislator being offered money, that he did not make a mental note of such offers. It was an every day occurrence.

By SENATOR DORR: Representative Warner was also subpœnaed at the request of Senator Taylor, and he is present. If there is no objection he can be examined now.

By MR. WARNER: I will state that I am here in response to the subpœna, and I am ready to give the committee any information I am possessed of on this subject.

A. D. WARNER was thereupon sworn, in due form, by the chairman, Senator C. W. Dorr, and testified as follows:

By SENATOR DORR: The committee desire to know whether you gentlemen have counsel or desire counsel to represent you?

SENATOR TAYLOR: Does not the statute give me authority to act as my own counsel?

SENATOR DORR: The committee desire some system of decorum in this examination, and for that reason we have determined to conduct the examination ourselves, subject to correction or aid from the senators, unless the gentlemen have some special counsel.

SENATOR TAYLOR: No, sir; we have not.

SENATOR DORR to MR. WARNER: You may state, Mr. Warner, whether you have any knowledge of any matters involving moral turpitude or corruption which affects or relates to either or any of the senators now before this committee in the matter of the election of United States senator? A. I have no knowledge of any, and never have had any relating to any one of those senators.

Q. Have you read the article in the Post-Intelligencer of the fifth instant, which has been referred to? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What do you know concerning the statements in that paper purporting to come from you regarding a list which is headed "The little list of corruptibles," including the names of these senators? A. I know that Senator Squire furnished that list to the House committee night before last at the examination, and testified that he wrote that list from my dictation, which I charge as absolutely false in every particular, that I ever dictated a name on the list.

Q. Have you any knowledge of the list at all save that which you gained from Senator Squire's testimony? A. I have knowledge of the list gained otherwise than through his list; but that knowledge was obtained from Senator Squire himself prior to the giving of the testimony.

Q. State the facts concerning that list? A. It was on the Sunday night it is charged that I went to his room, that Senator Squire asked me to come to his room, and I went with him to his room. After being there some few minutes sitting at the table he pulled a slip of paper out of his pocket, which was the letterhead of the Olympia Hotel, and on the face of it was written a number of names; part of them that I learned upon investigation of the list itself the other night were written in lead pencil, but some were in ink; they were written in his handwriting; there were some twenty or twenty-five names; I forget the exact number; I think he said at that time twenty-four; and he stated at that time that they were men whom he regarded as men who were not going to allow a deadlock in that house.

Q. Was anything said to you by Senator Squire, or by you to him, in that or any other conversation relative to these men in the way or line of corruption? A. Do you mean these Senators, or all of the names on the list?

Q. The names on the list? A. Senator Squire, prior to taking the list out of his pocket when he went into the room, said, "Warner, what is this twenty men club you have got?" I said "I haven't got any twenty men club;" he said "you have got twenty or twenty-five of you populists meeting in Wilkeson's and your rooms;" I said "there is no club about that; there is a number of us meeting there, and have been meeting two or three times, talking over the senatorial situation; there is no club or anything of the kind;" and he stated to me that he wanted to get control of the organization; that there was six or seven of the men, I think he said six or seven, who were voting for him and his friends, and he pulled the list out of his pocket which had these names, except the one that he afterwards wrote.

Q. Whose name was that? A. I think it was Williams'; I am satisfied it was Williams' name; there was some talk about Williams, and as I remember it he didn't have his name on the list at first; he wrote one name on it, and I am satisfied it was Williams' name. He said if he had five more in that list with myself he could control that organization, and that would make twenty-four votes; and the thirty-nine populists votes would come to him, and that would be sufficient to elect him. I then stated to him that he could not get control of that organization; that the other five men would not vote for him; and if they did they could not control the others; they were men who could not be controlled or influenced; they were the best of men—the best men in this House. He said he had spent a great deal of money, and he had to make a desperate effort to win this fight; the campaign had cost him a lot of money since the Ellensburg convention—something like fifteen thousand dollars, and he had to win this fight; we had some little talk, and I said it was impossible to get those men; there were not men there that could be bought or anything of that kind; he stated to me that he wanted that organization, and that he would give me one thousand dollars to use for expense money, for oysters at Doane's, for wine and to jolly the boys up with; and if he won he would give me five thousand dollars after he was elected; he could get thirteen thousand dollars contingent that he was elected; he had but three thousand dollars then. I told him it was impossible to get any of those men, and he didn't say he could buy any of those men. Against some of the names was a check mark, and I asked him what it meant; he said those were the men whom he needed to control the organization—we could use the money with. I examined the list and my own name was check-marked as one of the men; he took the list out of his pocket. I think I had in my pocket the twelfth or thirteenth senatorial ballot, and on it I had the names of a number of men—ten of us—who had met that night or the night before in Wilkeson's room. I had the names of ten gentlemen who were there; Senator Cole's and Senator Yeend's name was on that list, and as I read them off the Senator had them on his list, and a whole lot more; the name of these gentlemen here—Senator Miller, Senator High and Senator Taylor—whom I had not on the list, however. I never talked with them in my life about the senatorial situation, and never spoke to the senators in my life before the election; never was introduced to them.

Q. Were either of these senators in that meeting? A. Senator Yeend and Senator Cole were up there once at a meeting; ten of us met one night for the purpose of talking over the senatorial situation; it looked very much like a deadlock, and the gentlemen didn't want a deadlock in the House.

Q. Was anything said by you to Senator Squire at that or any other conversation tending to indicate to him that either of these men could be controlled for money? A. Do you limit this enquiry to the senators?

Q. Yes, sir. A. Never in the world; never such talk. What I inferred from the senator was that he thought seven—six men and I—made the seventh—and five men more would control, the number we had meeting together up stairs, we could control and prevent a deadlock, and that we could get twenty-four votes, and thirty-nine would elect him.

Q. In order to get those five men he offered to give one thousand dollars down, and five thousand dollars after he was elected? A. He did; he said, "I will give you one thousand dollars in cash, and five thousand dollars if I was elected;" he made me no tender.

Q. Did he give you any money? A. No, sir, not a dollar; I said it was impossible; there was no use talking about it; there was no men over there that could be bought. I said, and I think I used the language, that if any one offered those men money he would be thrown out of the window.

Q. Did you refer him to the ten men meeting in Wilkeson's room? A. I was referring to the men on his list.

Q. Including these senators? A. To be fair with the senator he intended in no way to allow me to infer that any of the senators could be bought. He had checkmarks against several individuals; there was five I think; I didn't pay any particular attention to it at the time but simply to know that I was one man against whom there was a mark; I saw I was one of the men he had sized up for a thousand. I will add about this list: I think it was either Senator Squire or Calhoun testified in their examination before the House committee that there were several lists; different lists.

Q. Did he state to you or indicate to you why he had got this list, or how he had made it up, or why they were so grouped together? A. Yes; as I have stated they were men who were voting for himself and other different candidates, who were not tied to Turner or to populist candidates; they were the floating vote, and if aggregated together could control the election.

Q. You say men not voting for Judge Turner? A. No, nor for any populist candidate; they were regarded as being perfectly free. I was voting with the populists right along, and part of the time for Turner; I was not committed to any man; there was no man had strings on me, and I didn't propose they should have. There were six or seven votes voting back and forth for Senator Squire, one day for him and the next day for somebody else; and sometimes one vote for him and the next for some other person.

Q. Did you say to Senator Squire that any man could be influenced? A. No, sir; I said that there was no man on the list that I thought it possible for a man to say money to, and I say that he never said any particular man could be bought for money, except that he would give me $5,000 contingent that he was elected; he had those five check marks, which, added to the six or seven he already had, would control the organization.

Q. Do you wish the committee to understand that he was offering you $5,000 for those five votes? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What five were they? A. I don't remember; I could not state; did not remember at the time, because I simply didn't pay any attention to it; it was a proposition impossible to accomplish, even had I so desired.

Q. Were they checked off? A. There was a mark in front of the name; at one side of the name.

Q. At the bottom of the list or top, or where? A. I don't remember; but now I know; seeing the list last night, I know where they were.

Q. Where were they? A. One on the bottom of the list; that is, the list was written on a sheet—letterhead—down this one side, and on this side, say half a dozen names, making a double column on the letter paper, and one check on the bottom.

Q. Whose name was that? A. I don't remember; there were four check marks here (indicating).

Q. In the second column? A. Yes, sir. That list is on file with the House committee now, and is in his handwriting.

Q. Do you remember any of the names? A. Yes, sir; my own.

Q. Who were the others? A. Senator Plummer, Way and myself, and the other two I would not attempt to state.

Q. What he really did was to offer you five thousand dollars for those five votes? A. He offered—the proposition was, that he had thirteen thousand dollars to get elected United States senator; that he would give me one thousand dollars for expense money, to use at Doane's for oysters and to jolly the boys up, and five thousand dollars if I got control of the organization and threw him that vote.

Q. Was there one of these senator's names on that list of five that was checked? A. I think not; I think not; I don't remember; I would not say; I would not say who the other two names were.

Q. Can you ascertain that matter? A. You can ascertain it from the chairman of the House committee, by an examination of the list. I probably could ascertain it.

Q. You stated that this conversation occurred at a certain meeting that you had testified about before the other committee; when was that meeting? A. I am not absolutely certain; Sunday night, as I so testified; I don't remember the date, but it is generally conceded that it was two weeks from to-morrow; it was the Sunday night before the election of the United States senator.

Q. Was anyone present, when this conversation was carried on, other than yourself and Senator Squire? A. There was nobody present at first; then he got up and went out, and said he would be back in a moment, and instead of coming back, in came Dr. Calhoun. Dr. Calhoun started the same subject, and came and sat down in the rocking chair, and stated that—his words were “Warner, I want you to get into this proposition for the senator; we have got to make a desperate attempt, or desperate plan, to win this election; if we don't win it the senator is ruined politically; we have got to win it." I said "Doctor, there is no use talking about the senator winning this election; it is not in the books; it is not possible." I said either Turner or Winsor, in my judgment, would be elected senator; and he then began talking about damn traitors, and men who didn't stick by him, and didn't do as they agreed; then he started on another subject; he was rubbing his hands through his hair; said he had a letter from his wife saying she was sick; that it was the first time in thirty years she had taken medicine; drifted on to another subject, and after some little time Mr. Squire came in again; and Senator Squire and he were not long in the room together, if my memory serves me right, and I think it does; there was not ten words said on this subject when we were all there together; but that Dr. Calhoun knew about what Senator Squire's proposition was, there was no doubt.

Q. Mr. Warner, whom did you talk with about this proposition; what one of these members, or any of them? A. About Senator Squire's proposition?

Q. Whom did you consult about it? A. Never talked to a man in my life about it; never did; not until after the expose of Calhoun's article in the paper, when I made a statement; I never spoke to a man about it; I regarded it as a last desperate attempt of a man.

Q. You never consulted with either of these five men? A. Never in my life.

Q. That is, about the proposition of Senator Squire? A. No, sir; I am here to state that I never spoke to any member of the legislature, either any senator or House member, who would ballot for or who would vote for a particular candidate; except I tried to get the democrats together in a caucus to see what they would do on the first vote; I was doing as I pleased, and I let everybody else alone; I never went to anybody's headquarters, and never talked to Dr. Calhoun except this one time when Squire took me there.

Q. How did these ten men want to get together in that organization; what was their object? A. Their object was to meet. I was informed of it I think by, I don't know whether by Likins, Koehler, Richmond or Merrifield; that they had gotten together, some six or eight, I believe, and intended to organize or confer together to prevent a deadlock, and asked me if I was willing to go into such a plan; and I said that was the line I was working on. I wanted to elect a senator, and I said yes. The next night we had a conference in my room; there was eight or ten men there together.

Q. Any statement made by you or either of these men as to how they would prevent a deadlock? A. Never a word, except that if there was a strong man that was satisfactory, and there was a probability of electing him, we would elect him.

Q. Did you agree on that scheme? A. I don't think there was any actual agreement to that at all; that was my understanding, and my view of the matter.

Q. Can you give the committee the names of those ten men? A. I have testified to that; yes sir I think I can; myself, Mr. Richmoud, Mr. Merrifield, Mr. Likins, Mr. Koehler, Mr. Wilkeson, Mr. Gerry, Senator Yeend, Senator Cole and Senator Plummer; there was one or two others.

Q. Was that all of the names? A. That was all, the most we ever had together at once; there was a number of other gentlemen who had been there at different times; I think there was about fifteen who had been at the meetings at different times.

Q. Give the names of the other five. A. This is to the best of my memory, Senator Cole, Mr. Forbes, Mr. Gerry, Mr. Kincaid, Mr. Koehler, Mr. Likins, Mr. Merrifield, Mr. Pierson I think, Mr. Plummer, Mr. Richmond, myself, Mr. Way, Mr. Wilkeson and Senator Yeend.

Q. Do you remember any others? A. That is all I remember.

Q. How many times did you meet on the senatorial matter? A. I think I met with them three times, once in my room, and once at least in Wilkeson's room; I am not sure but twice in Wilkeson's room; once in my room, and perhaps twice in Wilkeson's.

Q. Did this caucus or association ever agree on any candidate? A. No, sir.

Q. Ever try to? A. No, sir; it was simply for conferring about what the situation had been that day and would be the next.

Q. Never tried to get together on any one man? A. No, sir; I think no one particular candidate was ever suggested.

Q. By any one? A. I don't ever remember.

Q. What was your real object then in being banded together in this way? A. Just as I said; we were endeavoring to understand the situation, and to confer as to who would be the best man to go to at the time when we realized there was a deadlock.

Q. But after three meetings, and the votes being taken every day, you never got far enough to go to any particular man—the votes in the joint session? A. No, sir; in fact, it never was talked about; it was not suggested to go to any particular candidate; no particular candidate was mentioned in the room.

Q. Will you explain to the committee just how you expected to break the deadlock without agreeing on any man? A. I cannot explain anything we had not arrived at.

Q. What did you talk about at these meetings? A. Talked about the vote; the probabilities of men staying with candidates; how long they would vote for him; what their strength would be, and who in the end would be senator; the general situation, as men would talk about a political situation; there was no concerted action to work for any man.

Q. Did you talk about Senator Squire? A. I suppose that Senator Squire's name was mentioned.

Q. Did you discuss this proposition of five thousand dollars made to you? A. Never in the world; no proposition had been made at that time.

Q. The meetings were held before that? A. Yes, sir; the meetings had been held before this.

Q. Did you not hold a meeting there the night you had the interview with Senator Squire? A. I don't think they did; I was not present.

Q. The same evening? A. I don't know; I would not be certain about that.

Q. Was there not a meeting of these men, or a large portion of them, in session at the same time you were having your interview with Senator Squire? A. Not that I know of, no, sir; I am satisfied there was not, unless it was a meeting I knew nothing about.

Q. You say you had three meetings of this committee? A. I will not be certain; that is my judgment.

Q. Three or four? A. There may have been three meetings; but I will not undertake to testify that I was certainly in attendance at more than two.

Q. When was the last meeting held with respect to the election of the senator? The day Mr. Turner was actually elected? A. I will not say whether it was Saturday night or the same night; I paid no attention to it for the next four or five days; I was busy with the business of the House and senatorial contest, and didn't keep any tab when we held our meetings, or when that incident was.

Q. Do you remember the day he was elected—Senator Turner? A. Yes.

Q. How long before that time had you held a meeting? A. I think, I am satisfied that there was no meeting held after this Squire incident.

Q. How long before Turner's election was that? A. That was on the Sunday preceding the election.

Q. Did you hold a meeting that Sunday night? A. I can't remember; I don't know; I will not say we did or did not.

Q. Where was that meeting held, if there was one held that night? A. I cannot tell.

Q. Where was the meeting held? A. I cannot tell about the meeting.

Q. Where were those meetings held? A. The first meeting I attended was in my room.

Q. When was that? A. I cannot tell; some one, two or three days after the balloting.

Q. How many meetings were held in your room? A. Only one; I had the democrats one night before; in this matter there was only one as I remember; I have two rooms, one a parlor or sitting room; I got some extra chairs from the dining room; at the time of the next meeting, my wife was sick, and I took the chairs to Wilkeson's room.

Q. How many meetings were held in Wilkeson's room? A. I know I attended one.

Q. In any other rooms? A. No, sir; except the time Senator Squire took me to his room; with the exception of the day of the vote, Mr. Alexander sent for me to come to his room, and asked me to work for Squire. I stated Squire had no chance on earth, and I was going to vote for a pop. I wanted a man on this side of the mountains; and did not think Squire was in it.

Q. Mr. Warner, did you hear any statement being made by Senator Cole or Senator Yeend at any of these meetings? A. I don't know; I don't remember of the gentlemen being there.

Q. Don't remember anything they said? A. I could not undertake to say anything.

Q. Do you remember their expressing their opinion on the subject at all? A. I could not undertake to testify to general talk.

Q. It was just a general conversation? A. Yes, sir; there never was any talk in that room by anybody of any money, any consideration or any attempt of anything of the kind whatever.

Q. Do you remember whether either of these men expressed any decided preference for any senatorial candidate? A. I do not.

Q. Did you yourself have any preference? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you express your preference? A. At this meeting?

Q. Yes. A. I don't know whether I did or not; I was trying to vote for the high man, and wanted to settle it.

Q. Trying to get in with the high man? A. Yes, sir; I regarded — I wanted a man on this side of the mountains, and there was a lot of gentlemen who were voting for an eastside man, and I thought it was dangerous to the obtaining of a westside man; if I could have got a populist from the westside I would have voted for him.

Q. Do you remember of these gentlemen expressing any decided preference for any candidate? A. I do not, except one night Senator Plummer intimated as a last resort that if the Pops didn't get together he would go to Turner; I just remember that incident.

Q. When was that? A. I cannot say.

Q. Do you remember when Plummer voted for Turner? A. If my memory serves me correct not until the caucus; yes, he did; he made a speech in the joint convention.

Q. Associating that fact with your meeting, can you fix the time that you held this meeting at which Senator Plummer made that statement? A. I could not; it may have been the night he did that, and was talking that evening about voting for Turner; there was some talk that if the pops couldn't get together very soon he would vote for Turner.

Q. This was not a populist organization? A. No, sir; I was a pretty good pop.; I attended their caucus.

Q. There were some democrats on this list? A. I am a pretty good democrat yet.

Q. This was not intended as a middle-of-the-road caucus? A. No, sir; we were trying to get together as many gentlemen as we could get who were not tied up, to settle the matter as soon as possible.

Q. Did you ever mention Senator Squire's name in this meeting, or either of these meetings, or advocate his election? A. Yes, sir; one night I said to the crowd that Senator Squire was United States senator; he had done a lot of good for the state; he was chairman of the committee on coast defenses; he had second place on the committee on commerce; and that I believed he could do more for the interests of this side of the state than any other man; and if there was a chance to elect Senator Squire I should vote for him; but that he was out of it, and I never considered him in the race at all.

Q. All of the men who had been voting for Senator Squire were in this caucus, were they not? A. If I remember correct, they were, at different times; I know Williams was there, and Mr. Likins was there, and Mr. Merrifield; they were there at different times; all of the men who had been voting steadily for Squire, at different times had attended.

Q. Do you mean to have the committee understand that none of these six men who had been voting for Senator Squire, ever advocated his election? A. It never was of such strength; and the character of the men there was such that every man who was there regarded every other man as being of such a character that he knew what he was going to do, and that his vote could not have been changed.

Q. I want to ask you this: You have already stated repeatedly that no man who was a member of the caucus ever expressed a decided preference for any man; do you mean to say that is so as to these six men who had voted steadily for Squire? A. Yes, sir; I mean to say that there was no man who attended that meeting who ever advocated any one man's election for the purpose of securing individuals to work for him.

Q. What on earth, then, was the object of this caucus? A. In my judgment my object was that we all regarded that Senator Squire was practically out of the race, and it was to consider then what we were going to do with that fact established; after that was established what we were going to do.

Q. As a matter of fact, was this not intended to be a Squire caucus? A. No, sir; I do not say anything. I don't know what the others intended; all my object was, was to get the very best man attainable for the west side of the mountains to represent us in the Senate.

Q. Williams was at all the meetings? A. I don't remember whether he was or not; I remember that Williams stated to me after one meeting was over that he was glad to have me make the talk I had that night for Squire.

Q. When you mentioned Senator Squire's name, and stated you would like to vote for him; that he was entitled to the election, how was that received by the other members of the meeting? A. You misquote me; I never said I thought I would like to vote for him; I regarded his acquaintance and his positions on the committees as important, and if there was a possibility to elect him I would vote for him.

Q. And how was that received by the committee? A. I do not know; there was no expressions, adversely or favorably, about it; it was simply the expression of an opinion.

Q. Didn't pay any particular attention to it? A. No, sir. I don't think there was a member that seriously regarded Senator Squire as being in the race; I didn't after I came here the first day.

Q. Was that matter discussed in the meeting? A. I think it was.

Q. How do you know that they did not regard him as being in the race? A. From the number of votes he was getting; the man had been lauded all over the state as a candidate, and was only getting three votes one day, two another, and finally ran up to six; he was not a formidable candidate.

Q. Mr. Warner, are you able to state now who organized this caucus?
A. I have no idea.

Q. Do you know how it got started. A. No, sir.

Q. Or how it obtained its impetus? A. I don't know; I can't state.

Q. Or how it happened to meet in your room? A. One night they were going to meet, and I said come up to my room; I had two rooms, and one is a parlor — sitting room, with plenty of chairs.

Q. Had the caucus met at any time previous to that? A. Coming down in the elevator one day some gentleman told me they had met, and asked me to come in with them.

Q. Before that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that Williams who asked you? A. I could not pretend to state.

Q. Don't know? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know where they met prior to that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Or how many meetings they had? A. No, sir; not many, except here was only four or five of them.

Q. Did you have any organization of these fifteen men that acted in harmony or unison at any time on any subject? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have a chairman? A. I think we did.

Q. Who was the chairman? A. I won't be certain.

Q. Did you have a secretary or clerk? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have a steering committee? A. No, sir.

Q. Or an executive committee? A. No, sir.

Q. Or a regular organization, with a chairman? A. I don't remember whether we had a chairman? I don't think so.

Q. Or a presiding officer? A. I don't think there was anybody presided.

Q. How long would you be in session? A. Half or three-quarters of an hour, or perhaps an hour; when they met in my room I had a box of cigars, and if they smoked they could smoke a cigar; Mr. Wilkeson, I think, at the meeting there one night in his room treated to cigars; I am satisfied they were there not over half an hour. I think Senator Cole was at that meeting, and Senator Yeend. I want to say this, that so far as that organization was concerned I want to exculpate every man in this legislature who attended it, or whose name was considered, in every particular. The gentlemen who were there were regarded as honorable gentlemen, and that our motives were of the highest and purest order, and nothing otherwise than that. I want to say in reference to anything in the paper, or at the interview between Senator Squire and myself, that it is simply a question between Senator Squire and myself; it is simply a question between Senator Squire and me; there is no man in this legislature whom I ever submitted his name to, or used his name in any way, shape or form, except as I have stated; that I had a list of ten names, and I compared it with a list of some twenty he had; he had the names on the list.

Q. You don't mean to tell this committee and wish them to understand it in that way that these fifteen men, intelligent men — members of this legislature — met night after night without any object? A. I mean to say that I don't know of any agreed action, or concerted action for any man, or any set of men, or any particular one or any two. I am satisfied there was none; I had no agreement with anybody to work in unison, or for any particular one; I voted individually each day, and I think every other member did the same.

Q. When you were first invited in there, and this organization was perfected, what did you understand to be the object of the meeting? A. Simply to come together; the populists were caucusing, the republicans were caucusing—the gold bug republicans as we call them—the Turner men were caucusing; there was a whole lot ready to vote for a good man for senator; they were kind of drifting about; out of the confidences of the different factions, or different parties; and I understood the gentlemen were acting together for the purpose of facilitating the election of a senator, and seeing to it that we had some good man elected senator.

Q. Can you remember now, Mr. Warner, who first invited you in to that meeting? A. I cannot; I would not use the name of any gentleman, for I don't know; some gentlemen were coming down out of the elevator, about five or six, said they had a little meeting, and wanted me to come to the next; I don't remember who they were; there was a number of them; I couldn't name them because I might do some man an injustice.

Q. Do you remember of Senator Squire's name being mentioned by any one except yourself? A. I don't know; I expect his name was mentioned as every other candidate's was probably mentioned.

Q. You knew that Representative Williams was Senator Squire's manager? A. I didn't; I never recognized it until the night of the caucus, when he tried to bust the caucus.

Q. Didn't you know he was working for Squire, even before the legislature convened? A. I knew you were working for Denny; but you were not Denny's manager. I never thought anything about it; it never occurred to me in any shape or form.

Q. And the longer you met in these meetings, the further you got apart, and the less likelihood of your ever getting together? A. It had never got where we had considered the advisability of getting together for anybody; informal meetings.

Q. Why not? A. I don't know; I don't remember.

Q. Why was it you could not? A. There was no definite purpose to get together on any particular person.

By SENATOR HIGH: Was I ever in your room? A. Never in your life that I remember of; and I want to further add that I never talked over this senatorial situation with Senator High prior to the election; in fact, never knew him, never had authority to use his name, and never used his name in any way, shape or form.

By SENATOR TAYLOR: I desire to ask you if I, E. W. Taylor, was at any time ever in your room, or in any caucus that was ever held at which you were present. A. Never.

Q. Except, however, the open caucus? A. Never.

Q. Had I any conversation prior to the time of the expose in the Post-

Intelligencer between you and Calhoun? A. I don't think I ever spoke to you in my life.

Q. Had we ever met? A. No, sir; I know not.

Q. Did any body at any time ever mention my name to you in connection with the senatorial contest? A. I never remember to have heard your name mentioned in my life in regard to the senatorial contest.

Q. On the night you were up in Senator Squire's room, was my name mentioned? A. I think your name was on the list; I don't know; I will not be positive.

Q. In the Post-Intelligencer, which is the only authority I have, appears a statement as follows: "Opposite the names of Taylor, Way, Winsor, Warner and Plummer there was a long, black mark, which Senator Squire said he had put there at Warner's dictation." Why was a black mark put after my name? A. I cannot understand it; that is one of the absurdities of the thing—that I should have a black mark put opposite the name of a man I never talked with.

Q. At the time the black marks were put there, was it to indicate that they were high priced men? A. There never was any black marks put there while I was there; in my presence.

Q. Mr. Warner, did you ever know of my attending any meeting or caucus held during this session of the legislature, other than the open caucus held the last night? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of any body saying that I attended or would attend a caucus? A. Never in my life.

By SENATOR DORR: Q. You say that Senator Taylor's name was on the list; how did it get on that list? A. I don't know; I saw those names were on the list.

Q. Don't know how they got there? A. No, sir; he pulled the list out of his pocket.

By SENATOR COLE: Q. Had I ever attended any of these meetings, excepting the one held at three o'clock on the Sunday afternoon—the senator being elected on the next Friday? A. I could not say whether it was in the afternoon or evening; I remember of your being at one meeting; I don't remember whether it was Sunday or Saturday, or afternoon or evening.

Q. Was there the name of any man mentioned for United States senator at the meeting which I attended? A. I don't remember that there was. I want simply to add in justice to Senator Taylor that at none of these meetings did I ever hear his name mentioned in any way, shape or form; or that I ever used it in any way, shape or form.

[End of Mr. Warner's testimony.]

By SENATOR DORR: The committee will state that we subpoenaed all witnesses requested, and if there are any others whom it is desired to subpoena we will send for them.

By SENATOR TAYLOR: I desire to state that I never had any conferences with any persons concerning the senatorial question nor attended any caucus or meetings whatever, save the caucus, the open caucus, on the night preceding the election of United States senator; and no person at any time had any authority whatsoever to use my name in any connection in this matter.

By SENATOR COLE: I never attended any of the caucusses excepting the caucus we held down street. I went at three o'clock in the afternoon of Sunday, with the understanding that the people who were voting everywhere were getting together, some twenty odd of them, for the purpose of having an understanding; and when we left the room, the only remark I remember was made, I think by Mr. Wilkeson made it, "And may the best man win." That was the only reference to a senatorial candidate; that one. Had it been in the interest of any candidate, I should not have gone in there. The statement in the telegram from Senator Squire is so at variance with the report in the Post-Intelligencer, that there is really nothing to it. It is totally at variance with the report in the P.-I.

By SENATOR DORR: Under the authority of that telegram, the committee assumes that Senator Squire will be here on Monday; and we think it best not to go into the matter until he comes, on Monday. The committee understands he was subpoenaed yesterday.

By MR. WARNER: May I ask if the telegram will be placed in the record?

By SENATOR DORR: Yes, sir; it has been read, and will be incorporated in the record.

Motion made and carried that the committee now rest, subject to call of chairman.

The report was read in part by the secretary.

On motion of Senator Taylor, that portion of the findings of the House investigation committee relative to the "list of corruptibles," which appeared in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer of February 5, 1897, was ordered spread upon the journal.

The following is the finding of the committee:

First: Your committee finds that at some time prior to the interview between Senator Squire and Mr. Warner, as hereinafter stated, several members of the legislature had attempted to agree to act in concert to prevent a deadlock in the senatorial contest and to secure the election of a suitable man for that position; that this attempt upon the part of these members was honorable and legitimate; that the mere fact that any member of this House or of the Senate may have been connected with that attempt, imputes to him no wrong-doing, nor of any attempt at wrong-doing; that it is entirely unwarranted to stigmatize the list of names of these gentlemen as "the list of corruptibles," as appeared in the Post-Intelligencer of date of February 5, 1897.

(Signed.) JOHN H. POWELL, Chairman.
 J. P. DE MATOS.
 ROBERT GERRY.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
OLYMPIA, February 16, 1897.

The Honorable, the Senate of the State of Washington, Senate Chamber, Olympia, Washington:

GENTLEMEN—In my message to the legislature, January 13, 1897, I called the attention of your honorable body to the urgent importance to a thorough investigation into the condition of affairs at the state penitentiary. Since that time additional facts have come into my possession which convince me more strongly than ever that this investigation should be prosecuted in a manner that will reveal the full truth as to the methods that have prevailed there.

The volume of evidence which I have collected convinces me that such investigation cannot be completed within a few days.

Therefore, considering the brief time yet remaining for the legislative session, and the great amount of important legislation yet to be enacted and demanding the presence of every member, I am of the opinion that an investigation of the penitentiary should not now interfere with legislative duties, but should be postponed until after the close of the session. The investigation should be by a legislative committee, or in such manner as the legislature may direct, such committee to be clothed with full power to summon witnesses, and have ample time to do its work thoroughly. Very respectfully, J. R. ROGERS, Governor.

On motion of Senator Wilson, the message was placed on file.

The president announced the following visiting committees:

To visit the state university and the New Whatcom normal school — Senators Davis, Harper and McReavy; and Senator Pusey to visit the Chehalis reform school instead of Senator Harper, who was excused at his own request.

Senator McReavy, by his own request, was excused from serving on the foregoing committee.

1. The plaintiff or purchaser, at any time after thirty days from the filing of such return, shall be entitled, on motion therefor, to have an order confirming the sale, unless the judgment debtor, or in case of his death, his representatives, shall file with the clerk, three days before the time of hearing, his objection thereto.

2. If such objection be filed the court shall, notwithstanding, allow the order confirming the sale, unless on the hearing of the motion it shall satisfactorily appear that there were substantial irregularities in the proceedings concerning the sale, to the probable loss or injury of the party objecting. In the latter case, the court shall disallow the motion, and direct that the property be resold, in whole or in part, as the case may be, as upon an execution received of that date.

3. Upon the return of the execution, the sheriff shall pay the proceeds of the sale to the clerk, who shall retain the same until the confirmation of the sale, and he shall then apply the same, or so much thereof as may be necessary, in satisfaction of the judgment.

4. If the sale be not confirmed and a resale be made, the bid of the purchaser at the former sale shall be deemed to be renewed and continue in force, and no bid shall be taken except for a greater amount than the bid at the former sale. If the motion to confirm be not heard and decided at the time set for hearing, it may be continued and heard and determined before the judge thereafter. An order confirming a sale shall be a conclusive determination of the regularity of the proceedings concerning such sale as to all persons in any other action, suit or proceeding whatever.

5. If after the satisfaction of a judgment there be any proceeds of the sale remaining, the clerk shall pay such proceeds to the judgment debtor or his representatives, as the case may be, at any time before the order is made upon the motion to confirm the sale, provided such party file with the clerk a waiver of all objections made or to be made to the proceedings concerning the sale; but if the sale be confirmed, such proceeds shall be paid to such party of course, otherwise they shall remain in the custody of the clerk until the sale of the property has been disposed of.

SEC. 15. The judgment debtor, his successors or assigns, or any redemptioner, may redeem any real estate sold by virtue of law at any time before the execution of the deed, at the valuation or price for which the same was sold, by paying to the clerk of the court issuing the execution the amount for which the same was sold, with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum from the time of sale to the time of redemption. And when property is so redeemed, it shall not again be subject to execution or sale for the same claim, judgment or demand, or for any deficiency thereof.

SEC. 16. In all cases where an appraisement is had of real estate the sheriff shall, upon confirmation of the sale, execute to the purchaser a deed to the property sold, and in all other cases the deed shall not be executed till the expiration of one year from the confirmation of sale. And such deed, when executed and delivered, shall convey to the purchaser all right, title, claim and interest of the judgment debtor in and to the premises had at the time of the taking effect of the lien, or subsequent thereto.

SEC. 18. This act shall not apply to judgments entered prior to the taking effect thereof, nor to executions which shall issue thereupon, but proceedings thereunder shall be had, in all respects, in the manner now provided by law, and redemptioners shall have the same right to redeem property sold upon judgments or decrees rendered prior to the taking effect of this act as if this act had not been passed.

SEC. 19. Sections 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520 and 521 of volume 2 of Hill's Annotated Statutes and Codes of the State of Washington, relating to the redemption of real estate sold on decree of foreclosure and on execution, are hereby repealed.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
OLYMPIA, February 27, 1897.

The Honorable, the Senate of the State of Washington:

GENTLEMEN—I beg leave to call the attention of your honorable body to a matter of great interest to the people of the State of Washington. This matter is doubtless as well known to your honorable body as to myself, and yet the near approach of the end of the session without action upon it causes me to remind you of the assurances given to the people during the late campaign that relief should be afforded them from unjust railroad charges. In this matter promises most specific were made. These promises must be fulfilled, or this legislature will go down in future records as having failed to carry out most solemn ante-election asseverations. In view of these facts I desire that responsibility be placed where it unquestionably rests, to wit: on the members of this legislature.

It is true that any one can criticise existing conditions, but it is also true that wise and constructive statesmanship is required to propose practical measures which will bring about desired improvements. In the matter of railroad legislation this is most eminently true. Realizing that those who never have given especial attention to railroad matters are unfitted to grapple offhand with problems which have for years staggered the minds of able men, I am led to quote from the work of ex-Governor Larrabee, of Iowa, which he has just sent me. Governor Larrabee was no small part of the movement in his state which led to the repression of previous railroad abuses. I believe we shall do well to listen to his wise and sagacious counsel.

In his chapter on railroads and railroad legislation in Iowa, after tracing the efforts of the legislature of that state to correct long standing abuses through the enactment of maximum rate laws, he tells us that the general assembly, or the greater number of the members, finally realized that the failure of the law to bring the expected relief was not due so much to the imperfections of the law as to the absence of a power to enforce it. He says:

"The writer, with others, was convinced that a strong and conscientious commission would be a much more potent agency to secure reasonable rates for the shipper than a maximum tariff law without proper provisions for its efficient enforcement; they, in short, preferred a commission without a tariff law to a tariff law without a commission. The question became the subject of many animated debates in both houses of the general assembly, but the commissioner system at last prevailed. The act establishing a board of railroad commissioners and defining their duties was approved on the 23d of March, 1878, and went into force a few days later. The act empowered the commission to exercise a general supervision over all railroads operated in the state, to inquire into any neglect or violation of the laws of the state by any railroad corporation or its officers or employes, to examine the books and documents of any corporation, to investigate complaints of shippers that unreasonable charges had been made by railroad companies, and to modify any charge which they might deem unreasonable. It was also made the commissioners' duty to make an annual report to the governor disclosing the working of the railroad system in the state, the officers of each company being required to make annual returns to the board for this purpose.

"Though the enactment of this law was a surprise to the people, they accepted it in good cheer, and determined to give it an honest trial. The law was extensive in its scope and stringent for that time, and, if strictly enforced in letter and in spirit, promised to be, and would have been, entirely sufficient for the thorough control of railroad corporations.

"Nevertheless, in the course of time it became apparent that either the law had not lodged sufficient authority in the commission or the commission did not make use of the authority which the law had given them. In spite of the commission, the railroad companies maintained pools and charged extortionate and discriminating rates, in direct violation of the law. It is true, the commissioners righted many a wrong. In investigating the complaints of shippers against railroad companies they often rendered valuable services to those who had neither the means nor the inclination to prosecute their rights in the courts of law; but as they held that they could only pass upon individual charges, and did not have the power to revise the companies' tariffs, the companies were virtually in a position to become guilty of more extortions in one day than the commission could investigate in a year."

Governor Larrabee then traces the steps taken by the people of Iowa in remedying the defects of the law then in force, and further says:

"The demand of the people for more equitable rates and a more thorough control of the railroad business increased from year to year. Repeated attempts were made in the general assembly to secure the passage of an act looking to that end, but, owing to shrewd manipulations on the part of the railroad lobby, every attempt was defeated. There always was, of course, a large number of members who represented districts not well supplied with railroad facilities. These, as a rule, honestly opposed restrictive legislation, believing that such legislation would check building, and that, on the other hand competition could be relied upon to correct abuses. Of those members who had less positive convictions many were retained as railroad attorneys, and were thus made serviceable to the companies. Other members with political ambition were flattered or intimidated into subjection, and bribes in disguise, such as passes and special rates, were not infrequently resorted to to strengthen the railroad following in both houses of the general assembly.

"Railroad corruption did not pause here. It is a notorious fact that large sums of money were paid to venal papers of both parties in consideration of an agreement on their part to defend transportation abuses and exert their influence against progressive railroad legislation. The vilest means were often resorted to by these sheets to obtain their end. Public men who had the courage to avow their opposition to existing railroad abuses or to favor a more perfect system of state control of railways were misrepresented, ridiculed, traduced and denounced as demagogues and socialists by hypocritical editors, who prostituted their political influence as long as they enjoyed railroad stipends, and who at intervals became converts to the cause of the people for the purpose of extorting from the railroad companies a new and increased subsidy. But truth cannot long be suppressed. The masses of the people may be imposed upon for a time, but even the shrewdest rogue will eventually be compelled to surrender. In time even rather unsophisticated voters learned to place a true estimate upon the motives of the editors, whose policy, as one of them expressed it in the author's presence, was 'controlled by the counting room.'

"Railroad politicians gradually lost their influence, and the symptoms of public discontent greatly increased. In the political campaign of 1887 state control of railroads became one of the main issues. Both of the great political parties in their platforms had declared themselves very emphatically in favor of such legislation as would bring railroad corporations under complete state control, and with very few exceptions the various legislative districts had nominated only such men as candidates for legislative offices as were known to be in thorough accord with the masses of the people upon the railroad question.

"The election resulted in an even more complete defeat of the railroad forces than had been generally anticipated. Yet no hasty step was taken when the general assembly convened. A large number of bills contemplating railroad reforms in various ways were introduced, but the material presented was carefully sifted by the railroad committees and a committee bill was framed which incorporated the best features of them all. The committees listened patiently for weeks to the arguments of the representatives of both the railroads and the shippers.

"Never before had so formidable a railroad lobby assembled at the state capitol. The danger signal had been raised, and not only were the great political manipulators of the state called into requisition, but experts from adjoining states joined them in besieging the legislature. The dogs of war were let loose from all quarters. A legion of hirelings were zealous to show their servility and loyalty to their lords. The daily and weekly papers of the state, in the service of the railroad companies, teemed with arguments from the pens of railroad attorneys, and their columns were profusely supplemented with editorials copied from prominent corporation papers like the New York Tribune, New York Times, New York World, Albany Evening Argus, Boston Advertiser, and others from various parts of the country.

"These papers, attempting to disguise the motives that prompted them to come to the defense of the Wall Street interests, affected the position of disinterested and impartial observers. They condemned the proposed measures as wild and socialistic, and they painted in dark colors the disasters to railroad property, the injustice to its owners, and misfortunes to the people of Iowa, that would follow their adoption. Especially did they bewail the losses that would fall upon the widows and orphans who had confidently invested all of their hard earnings in this property.

"They never uttered a word of condemnation, but entirely ignored or defended the abuses by which the stockholders were robbed at one end of the line and the patrons were imposed on at the other.

"Many of these papers were notified that their statements were altogether erroneous, but they would not admit a line to their columns in relation to the matter that indicated any other disposition than complete subserviency to the interests of Wall Street.

"There were, however, an unusual number of strong men in this general assembly, and this extraordinary display of railroad forces only tended to impress more strongly upon them the necessity of curbing the railroad power, and their best energies were concentrated upon the subject, with a firm determination to deal with it in a manner dictated by reason and experience.

"So well did the bill which was finally adopted by the committee reflect the general sentiment of the members of the general assembly that not a single vote was cast against it in either house upon its final passage. Since the adjustment of business under this law, there has been less friction between the people and the railroads than before for thirty years, and so satisfactory has it proved to all, that no one, not even a railroad man, has to this day asked the legislature to repeal the law or any part of it. The act contains no new principle of railroad control. By far the greater part of its provisions were taken from the old law. Nearly every one of its features may be found either in the interstate commerce act or upon the statute books of other states. It provides that charges must be reasonable and just, that no undue preference or advantage shall be given to any railroad patron, and that equal facilities for interchange of traffic shall be given to all roads; it prohibits pooling, a greater charge for a shorter than longer haul, the shorter or any portion of it being included in the longer, and discrimination against any shipping point. It requires that schedules of rates and fares shall be printed and kept for public inspection, and that no advance shall be made in rates or fares once established except after ten days' public notice; and it empowers the board of railroad commissioners to make and revise schedules for railroads, the rates contained in such schedules to be received and held in all suits as prima facie reasonable maximum rates. The act further provides penalties and means of enforcement.

"It must not be supposed that by the passage of this act the legislature disclaimed the right to fix absolute rates; it simply chose this expedient because in the present tentative stage of rate regulations it seemed most efficient.

"There has been much misunderstanding concerning the Iowa law. Many suppose that the Iowa commissioners have power to make confiscatory rates for the railroads, while, in fact, they can only name maximum rates which shall be deemed and taken in all courts of the state as prima facie evidence that they are reasonable and just maximum rates until the railroads show that they are not. They are at liberty to go into court any day and show this, if they are able. They are, however, careful not to undertake it, for no one knows better than they do that the rates fixed by the commissioners are liberal for the railroads.

"There are nine states, besides Iowa, in which the power to fix rates has been conferred upon railroad commissioners. This feature of the law was therefore far from being a novel one, yet no provision of the act was, previous to its passage, so furiously opposed, or subsequent to it so stubbornly resisted as this. Railroad managers realized that a surrender of the right to make their own rates was virtually a surrender of the power to practice abuses."

Governor Larrabee continues:

"It is seen that the fears, or rather the pretended fears, of the railroad managers, that the legislature of Iowa would bankrupt her railroads, were entirely groundless. As a result of the law railroads have been able to increase their gross earnings as well as their profits. They have been enabled to give employment to a larger number of men, and there has been no occasion for them to carry out the dishonest threat to decrease the wages of their employes. Had it not been for their increased earnings in Iowa, the losses recently sustained in other states by several of the through lines would have made it impossible for them to declare the dividends which they did.

"Under her beneficial railroad policy Iowa has prospered wonderfully, and her railroads have been more prosperous than when they were allowed to have their own way. The commissioners' tariff has made jobbing and manufacturing profitable where it was unprofitable before. It has added to our industries and our commerce, and has made new business for the people as well as the railroads. It has contributed to the increase in the value of our farms and factories and their products, and the time will come when wise railroad managers, like the majority of former slaveholders of the south, would not resurrect the past if they could."

These extracts from the work of Governor Larrabee are given as having peculiar value at this time. We, of Washington, cannot do better than to follow the wise, conservative and cautious policy here outlined. A railroad commission holding office during the pleasure of the governor and removable at his will, having power to regulate railroad charges, is in line with the best thought upon this most important matter, and I am fully convinced will gradually and wisely remove the difficulties under which our shippers now labor. In this way responsibility is fixed and immediately brought home to the governor, who in this event would be held responsible for failure. In this connection I desire to say that if given the power to appoint, I shall exercise it with the sole purpose of doing justice to all parties. If the commission appointed by me does not do its duty a new one will at once be named, and this policy will be maintained to the end. In this connection I desire also to say that I cannot be coerced into the appointment of unfit and irresponsible men to the office of railroad commissioner, even though members should thereby refuse to vote for the enactment of a wise, just and conservative measure of relief urgently demanded by their constituents. The State of Washington has able, conscientious and honest men who can be induced to serve. It is entitled to the services of her best men at this critical juncture. Anything less than this is folly which I do not wish to commit. I will add that these men have as yet not been named, nor has there been made any promise to appoint any man to the position here mentioned. Whoever says that these men are named utters a falsehood and renders himself liable to be charged with the crime of conspiring against the true interests of the people of this state.

I have spoken thus strongly because the situation has seemed to demand it, for I believe that honest men in your body are being betrayed to their hurt and to the defeat of the people's cause. I most earnestly hope that it will not be necessary for me to call an extra session of the legislature because of failure upon your part to do your duty.

Very respectfully, JOHN R. ROGERS, Governor.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO VISIT NEW WHATCOM NORMAL SCHOOL.

OLYMPIA, WASH., February 24, 1897.

MR. PRESIDENT:

We, your committee appointed on behalf of the Senate to visit and inspect the state normal school at New Whatcom, beg leave to report as follows:

Leaving Olympia on Wednesday, February 17th, we arrived at New Whatcom on the following day, and immediately began a thorough inspection of the state normal school and the grounds surrounding the same. We found the site to be most admirably chosen on top of an elevation back of the city, affording a beautiful view of Bellingham Bay and the surrounding scenery, as well as providing the students abundant supply of fresh air and sunshine. The grounds were a gift to the state from the citizens of New Whatcom, and they comprise ten acres of good soil, susceptible of being greatly beautified as the institution grows. The building was found to be a modern structure in every respect, reflecting great credit upon the designers, Skillings & Corner, of Seattle. The building covers a space of one hundred and fifty by eighty-six feet eight inches. The foundation is constructed of sandstone, approved by the state inspector to be equal to Tenino stone in the capitol building. The footings of the foundation are five feet thick, and the walls of the foundation three feet six inches. The superstructure is of brick. The walls of the basement are two and one-half feet thick, and the walls of the first story two feet thick. The second story walls are twenty-one inches thick, constructed of pressed brick. The center of the building is four stories high, and the structure itself three stories. The interior is finished with Acme cement plaster, and steel laths in the basement and first story, and the auditorium in the second story. The balance of the building is not finished. The floor of the basement is made of concrete, the other floors being double and deafened. The wood finish of the interior is all of steamed and dried fir, finely finished and varnished. Besides room for the heating apparatus, there are several class rooms arranged in the basement.

Your committee desires to especially commend the faithful and industrious work done by Major Eli Wilkins, R. C. Higginson and John J. Edens, members of the local board of trustees, who cheerfully gave their time and energy to the erection of this building without compensation, and we also desire to commend the services of O. H. Culver, clerk of the board, for the intelligent and economic manner in which the duties of his office were discharged.

We understood that the building was only provisionally accepted by the local board of trustees, so we asked for a statement of account and received the following, which explains itself, from the clerk of the local board of trustees:

NEW WHATCOM NORMAL SCHOOL.

Under the terms of the contract providing for the retention of twenty per cent. of each and every estimate until the final completion of the building, so far as contemplated by the contract, and its acceptance by the trustees, there is yet to be paid to the contractor, Wm. B. Davey, approximately $6,500, making allowance for certain credits due the state as agreed by the contractor, and for certain other deductions recommended by the architects in their final report, for work omitted or imperfectly done. The contractor has given orders upon the board, which have been filed with the clerk, amounting to $13,028.16. Other claims, not covered by orders, but represented to be for material furnished, have been filed with the clerk to the amount of $608.90, making the total of all claims to date $13,637.06.

Respectfully submitted.

O. H. CULVER, Clerk.

After the inspection of the building and grounds, your committee attended a meeting of the local board of trustees, and for three hours discussed the condition and needs of the institution. As a result of this inspection and consultation with the board, we respectfully recommend that this legislature provide as generously as the finances of the state will permit, for the equipment and maintenance of the state normal school at New Whatcom.

On Friday afternoon your committee proceeded to Seattle to fulfill your instructions to visit and inspect the state university at Seattle, the results of which visit and inspection we will submit in a separate report.

Respectfully submitted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO VISIT STATE UNIVERSITY.

OLYMPIA, WASH., February 23, 1897.

MR. PRESIDENT:

We, your committee appointed on behalf of the Senate to visit and inspect the university of Washington, beg leave to report as follows:

We arrived in Seattle Friday evening, February 19, 1897, and early the next morning proceeded to the new grounds of the university, which comprise fractional section 16, township 25 north, range 4 east. Here we thoroughly inspected the buildings of the university as follows: The gymnasium and drill hall building we found a very commodious structure, the main portion of which covers a space 165 by 80 feet. In addition to this, there are dressing rooms, company rooms, and offices, making it a most useful and convenient structure. It cost the state, including all equipments, a little less than $7,000. The next building inspected was the solid stone observatory, in which the instruments used at the old university were replaced. A visit was then paid to the power house on the shore of Lake Washington, which we found in such perfect surroundings that little could be added by way of improvements. The Seattle and International Railroad passes along the shore of the lake at this point, from which a spur has been constructed over the coal bunkers which lead directly into the power house by a system of chutes. In this way the fuel is placed at the door of the furnace with the least possible trouble and expense for handling. Lake Washington furnishes an inexhaustible supply of good water. The power house is a plain brick structure, and the equipment consists of two 100-horse-power boilers, one large Buffalo pump and two small auxiliary pumps, a 45-horse-power Ball automatic engine, one Westinghouse dynamo with capacity of 500 volts direct current. Steam is led to the buildings for heating purposes, and the dynamo furnishes electricity for power and for charging storage batteries in the main building.

We next inspected the main university building. This we found to be a large and beautiful structure, made almost entirely of native materials, comprising pressed brick from Spokane county, sandstone from Pierce county, granite from Snohomish county, terra cotta and lumber from King county. We found the laboratories in the basement of the building equipped with the most substantial and latest improved apparatus, care having evidently been taken to secure only the highest grade of instruments, even at the expense of a more complete equipment. There are three chemical laboratories giving evidence of daily use. The mineralogical laboratory is equipped with tile-topped tables furnished with gas for each worker. Numerous cabinets and other conveniences, such as scales, furnaces, crucibles, ore crushers, rock lathes, etc., show that this department is being kept in active operation by the recent impetus to mining development in the state. In the physical laboratory were found many of the most recently invented instruments for precise physical and electrical experiments. In the laboratories devoted to physiology, zoology and botany, we found a thorough equipment for class work, but there is sad need of cases and receptacles for the rapidly increasing collections of plants, insects, and other objects of natural history. We then inspected the museum, the heating and ventilating apparatus, the various lecture rooms, the assembly hall, and finally the library. The last we found to contain about six thousand volumes, of which fully two-thirds are United States government reports; excellent works in their line, but failing to fulfill the requirements of a university library. This library certainly needs a generous equipment of works of reference in the several departments of instruction.

The records and accounts of the institution we found carefully preserved in the secretary's vault, a duplicate voucher being preserved for every expenditure, the originals being filed in the office of the state auditor.

We then examined the old grounds and buildings of the university in the city of Seattle. The buildings are old and of little value; but the grounds comprise ten acres in the center of the city, which may be sold upon the revival of business for a sum sufficient to reimburse the state for the outlay on new buildings and equipments.

Your committee then attended a meeting of the board of regents of the university, at which were discussed the condition and needs of the institution.

As a result of this meeting and inspection, we beg leave to make recommendations as follows:

First: That in providing for the maintenance for the institution for the next two years, an allowance be made just as liberal as the finances of the state will permit.

Second: That House bill No. 334, providing for the proper investment of fees, bequests, and gratuities, as amended by the House committee, be enacted.

Third: That House bill No. 321, providing for the proper preservation of the public documents of the state in certain libraries, be enacted.

Fourth: That House bill No. 323, providing for the location of the state museum in the museum of the university of Washington, as amended by the House committee, be enacted.

Respectfully submitted.

The committee appointed to visit the agricultural college and school of science, and the Ellensburg normal school, submitted the following report:

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE AND ELLENSBURG NORMAL SCHOOL.

SENATE CHAMBER,

OLYMPIA, WASH., February 26, 1897.

MR. PRESIDENT:

We, your committee appointed under Senate resolution passed Tuesday, February 11, 1897, to visit the agricultural college and school of science, and the normal school at Ellensburg, have performed the duties assigned to us and we respectfully report as follows:

FIRST.—AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE AND SCHOOL OF SCIENCE.

1. Your committee spent Monday and Tuesday, February 15 and 16, in the examination of buildings, campus and farm of the agricultural college and school of science at Pullman, and attended the class recitations of the different departments.

Happily for your committee the regents of the institution were holding a regular session of the board in their rooms in the administration building, which meeting, by invitation, your committee attended.

The board of regents, with Major E. S. Ingraham as president, and the faculty of the college with E. A. Bryan as president, courteously assisted your committee in this examination of their records and accounts, and the inspection of the property under their charge.

2. The expenditure by the regents of the sums appropriated by the last, the fourth, legislature brought full returns to the state.

The girls' dormitory is a commodious and well-finished structure, and is partly furnished. The regents secured a bargain in the purchase of the opera chairs for the assembly hall and the other furniture for the administration building. The relocation and enlargement of the heat and light plant has materially reduced the expenses of its maintenance and greatly increased its efficiency.

The dairy and piggery were a necessity, and are models as to arrangement and convenience.

3. The present condition and urgent needs of the institution are: An elevator in the girls' dormitory; walks and drives on and a general improvement of the campus; finishing attic of the administration building for class or recitation rooms; a foundry or forge room; addition to the museum; extension of sewerage system; additional farm machines and some new breeds of livestock; and lastly, a water supply and system of its own.

4. Your committee desires to call attention to the fact that in the near future the capacity of the girls' dormitory can and should be increased by furnishing rooms in the attic.

A horticultural barn and a biological laboratory should be erected.

5. Your committee visited the state farm or experimental sub-station of the college at Puyallup, on Friday, February 19, and were met by Mr. Fred. A. Huntly, the genial superintendent, and with him walked over the farm and noted the improvements and work accomplished.

Your committee are of the opinion that the law providing for the establishment and erection of a sub-station west of the Cascade mountains was passed under the impression that the national government would provide for its maintenance. And now, in view of the change of policy, or an unexpected ruling of the present secretary of the department of agriculture, that "the expenditure of funds provided in accordance with the provisions of an act of congress of March 2, 1887, for the maintenance of permanent sub-stations, is contrary to the spirit and intent of said act," the regents desire an appropriation of six thousand dollars ($6,000).

The new secretary of agriculture may modify the former adverse ruling, and owing to the depressed financial condition of the people of this state, your committee deem it inexpedient at this time to advise any appropriation for said sub-station.

In conclusion, your committee expresses entire satisfaction with the wise and economical management of the institution and expenditure of appropriations made by the last legislature, and respectfully recommends a generous compliance with the requirements of the regents, and as liberal appropriations for the ensuing two years as the state of the treasury will justify.

Your committee commends the harmonious and enthusiastic spirit prevailing between the members of the board of regents, the faculty and students.

SECOND.—STATE NORMAL SCHOOL AT ELLENSBURG.

Your committee spent Thursday, February 18, at the normal school at Ellensburg, and report:

1. The trustees, with Mr. Ralph Kaufman as president, and the faculty, with President P. A. Getz as principal, and the students, impressed your committee that perfect concord, harmony and sympathy exist among them, and that every one is controlled by the spirit of generous rivalry or rather emulation of who best can work and best agree.

2. Your committee carefully examined the record or minute book of meetings of the board and accounts and vouchers of disbursement, and found the same complete, explicit and correct, and that the affairs and business of the school have been economically and honestly administered. The trustees are entitled to a special and honorable mention for their strict attention to and prompt discharge of the duties devolving upon them, including frequent visits to the school, and for having served without claiming or receiving the compensation provided by law, or any compensation.

3. The primary or fundamental idea of a normal school is to train educated people how, as teachers, to impart their knowledge to others—how to teach. While this school, in common with normal schools in every state, necessitates considerable academic work, the normal work and idea is kept at the front. And your committee, after a careful investigation, and after personal attendance on class recitations, conclude that this institution is essentially a normal school—normal in fact, as it is in name. Since January 1, 1895, the number of separate new students entering this school was 302. These come from 29 counties; their average age is over twenty-one years, and about forty per cent. have been engaged in teaching prior to such entrance. Out of 128 students who have received certificates from this school, over 100 are now engaged in teaching.

4. Your committee desire to emphasize the necessity of a normal school training as a prerequisite for the would-be teacher. Teaching is, in fact, and should rightfully be considered, an honorable profession. All who desire to become members of this profession should thoroughly prepare themselves for scientific teaching. Holding these convictions, your committee suggests that a law should be passed, providing that on and after January 1, 1900, no teacher shall be employed who either shall not have had at least three years' experience in teaching, or be a graduate of a normal school. If the state is to have and maintain good schools, it must command the services of good teachers. Good teachers are made better by scientific teaching, and such training can be had at the normal school. The scientific teacher is better able to render the maximum services for the money expended.

5. The conditions and needs of this school are:

The usual appropriation for maintenance; appropriations to complete the normal building so as to improve and provide additional rooms; and additions to the library.

6. This school will need in the near future two dormitories, one for girls and the other for boys.

In concluding this part of our report, your committee recommend this school to the most favorable consideration of the legislature, and that at least the usual appropriation for its improvement and maintenance will be made.

FINAL RECOMMENDATIONS.

In concluding and submitting this report, your committee is constrained to recommend the passage of laws providing for the distribution to the libraries of the state normal schools and colleges of copies of:

1. All bills introduced in both houses at each session of the legislature.
2. The journals of both houses.
3. Session Laws.
4. Reports of the several state departments and state institutions.
5. Reports of the state supreme court.
6. Abolishing the per diem and mileage of regents, trustees and directors of all state educational institutions, and providing for the payment of actual expenses which have been necessarily incurred in attending meetings.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

DAVID MILLER, Chairman.

L. C. CROW.

FRANK P. LEWIS.

On motion of Senator David Miller, the report was adopted, and ordered printed.

The committee appointed to visit the soldiers' home, at Orting, submitted the following report:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO VISIT SOLDIERS' HOME.

OLYMPIA, WASH., March 1, 1897.

MR. PRESIDENT:

We, your committee appointed to visit the soldiers' home at Orting, respectfully report as follows:

We visited the home on the 19th and spent the succeeding day there, examining the grounds, buildings and management. We found the institution well managed, and the buildings are kept in a neat manner.

The hospital is nearly full, and the number of inmates is constantly increasing, so much so that it will soon be necessary to engage nurses on salaries. At present a few of the able bodied inmates are paid a small sum to act as nurses.

Under the present law any discharged soldier or sailor who is a resident of this state is admitted to the home. Quite a number of them receive pensions from the government. From the report of the officers of the institution, we find that a large amount of the money thus received is used in dissipation. We attach hereto a letter from one of the managers.

We recommend the passage of Senate bill No. 172, to compel pensioners not having wives or minor children dependent upon them for support, to pay seventy-five per cent. of their pensions to the state for their support. By so doing the number of inmates of the home will be decreased, and those who do avail themselves of its hospitality will contribute in part to their support. We found the water supply inadequate for fire purposes, and as some insurance policies have expired, and others will soon lapse, we recommend that the expired policies be renewed, and that the policies about to expire be renewed upon their expiration.

Respectfully submitted.

E. C. KEITH, Chairman.
J. G. MEGLER.
C. M. EASTERDAY.

WASHINGTON SOLDIERS' HOME,
ORTING, WASH., February 20, 1897.

Senator Keith, Chairman:

In response to your request for a statement as to use of pensions received at the home, will say: The pensions now paid to inmates per quarter, as per vouchers, $1,662; of this amount, $366 goes to dependents; $468 is paid to men who put a large part of same to bad uses; $828 of the amount is a great detriment to the men and home, and costly to the state. In addition to above quarterly pensions, large amounts are sometimes paid on account of back payments. I will site a few instances: One man, in less than seven months, squandered $1,700; one in ten days over $600; one $150 in two days, and we got them back to build up again. I can name many, many, many other cases the same as above. Ses U. S. Laws, 1894.

Yours respectfully, GEO. H. BOARDMAN.

On motion of Senator Megler, the report was adopted, and ordered printed.

The committee appointed to visit the Cheney normal school and Eastern Washington hospital for the insane, submitted the following reports:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO VISIT THE CHENEY NORMAL SCHOOL.

MR. PRESIDENT:

We, your committee who visited the state normal school at Cheney, Washington, beg to present the following report:

Your committee arrived at Cheney on Thursday noon, February 18, and spent Thursday afternoon and Friday making as thorough examination of the condition of the school and other affairs appertaining thereto as the limited time at our disposal enabled us to do.

We found the school at present occupying the new building erected by the trustees during the past two years. It is our opinion that the same is exceedingly well adapted for the purpose intended, and that the state has acquired a model building for the money which was appropriated for that purpose. We feel that the trustees, during the time of the construction, have earnestly devoted much time to this work, and have at all times shown a devotion to the state's interests that reflects not only credit on them, as trustees, but which is also evident in every transaction requiring the proper spirit of economy in public affairs.

In protecting the interests of the state, the trustees may have inadvertently and unintentionally caused hardships to claimants for material and labor furnished to the contractor of the building during its erection; but we deem their conduct proper and their actions in the matter unavoidable at the time.

The trustees built the normal school building so far as completed within the appropriation, and should be commended for their earnest work.

In reference to the present and past management of the school proper, your committee feels hardly able to offer an opinion, but is of the belief that the changes made by the trustees in the faculty were, in their opinion, for the betterment of the institution. The present faculty are held in the highest respect by both students and the board, and matters are now in such a favorable condition that the school will surely prove to be a valuable acquisition to our educational institutions of the state. We believe and would recommend, that in order to keep up the present high standard of the institution, no reduction of salaries would be advisable. The trustees, during the past year, have already greatly reduced many, if not all, salaries.

Your committee would recommend that a stricter and more rigid qualification be adopted for the admission of students to the school, and also, that a proper fee for each and every term be charged to students.

Respectfully submitted.

J. C. VAN PATTEN.
F. G. DECKEBACH.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO VISIT EASTERN WASHINGTON INSANE HOSPITAL.

MR. PRESIDENT:

We, your committee, sent to investigate and report to the Senate the condition of the Eastern Washington hospital for insane, beg leave to make the following report:

Your committee arrived at the hospital for insane at Medical Lake Tuesday, February 16, passing the afternoon of the 16th, all of the following day and part of the morning of the 18th, at the institution, and feel, therefore, that they are in a position to make a full and impartial report as to the management and condition of same. We feel it incumbent upon us to justly praise the efficiency, honesty and economy with which this institution has been directed, and desire here to state that the people of Washington, and especially the inmates of the asylum, are extremely fortunate in possessing such a well qualified, humane and gentlemanly servant as Dr. Semple, the superintending physician.

The health of all inmates appeared excellent, and a happy and contented disposition seemed to be evident. The discipline of patients and officers and employes was model, and neatness and cleanliness seemed to be a maxim at all times practiced in every detail. After fully considering all matters appertaining to the welfare of the hospital and its conditions, your committee would recommend the following:

Some provisions should be made in providing for the safe keeping of insane patients sent there from the state penitentiary. They should either be provided for at the penitentiary, or safer provisions made here at the asylum. They are a serious menace to the safety of all others at the hospital, and life and limb is at all times in jeopardy, as some of them had been sentenced for murder and are of an ugly disposition. Dr. Semple kindly placed before us some needed legislation which we herewith attach and make a part of our report. We deem his recommendations of great value, and feel they should be adopted. We also recommend the following amounts for appropriations for maintenance and other expenses, and attach the same herewith. The same we consider necessary for the successful and economic management of the hospital.

In justice to ourselves as a committee, we deem it necessary to apprise the legislature of the following facts concerning the present capacity of the institution, and the future requirements should the present annual increase continue.

"In 1891 this institution was opened with 122 patients, and the present year closes with 252. This is an average gain of 26 per annum, and this average is likely to be raised, as our increase last year was 34. Our capacity is 300, which will probably afford accommodations for all we are likely to receive until 1898. But if the matter of providing additional room be deferred until the legislature of 1899 takes action, we shall have fifty patients more than we can accommodate by the time the building is ready for occupation. It takes at least a year to complete a wing of the size needed after the appropriation is available."

Your committee would therefore recommend that an appropriation should be made at the present session, for an additional wing. We make this recommendation with great reluctance and only an imperative duty forces us to do so.

We earnestly recommend that the boiler house be removed to a safe distance away from the main building. In its present condition it is a continual menace to life and property. For this purpose we recommend an appropriation of $4,000, and we further recommend that the following sums be appropriated for the purposes set forth, for the improvement of the institution, viz.:

Library.....	$100 00
Dynamo and fixtures.....	1,000 00
Windmill and cistern.....	300 00
Telephone system.....	500 00
Repairs and improvements.....	1,000 00

Respectfully submitted.

On motion of Senator Lesh, the report was adopted.

The committee appointed to visit the school for defective youth submitted the following report:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO VISIT SCHOOL FOR DEFECTIVE YOUTH.

To the President and Members of the Senate of the State of Washington:

We, the members of the special committee appointed to examine into the affairs of the state school for defective youth, beg leave to submit the following report:

The committee passed two days at Vancouver, February 18th and 19th, making as complete an examination of the school and its operations as time and circumstances would permit. The buildings and school property were carefully inspected, and the routine of school work followed for one day in the different departments, for the deaf and dumb, blind and feeble minded. The committee was deeply impressed with the noble efforts being made by the state to assist those unfortunate members of society, who, but for the instruction offered in an institution of this sort, would inevitably lead useless, hopeless lives, if they do not become helpless charges upon the community. The committee does not hesitate to say that the state is doing no better, more benevolent or grandly humane work than that now being accomplished at the Vancouver school, where a new world is being opened to the afflicted, and an opportunity offered to them to become good citizens, able to support themselves, and lead happy, useful lives. This committee can only repeat the high commendations which have hitherto been passed upon the efficient supervision exercised by Director James Watson. With a lifetime given to this work, he has shown himself to be careful and conscientious in the discharge of the responsible and often trying duties devolving upon him as the head of an institution of this character, and equal praise is perhaps due to Mrs. Watson, the matron, to whose able co-operation is due in no small degree the good work accomplished by the girls in the institution. In fact, the committee was impressed with the idea that there has been a happy choice in the matter of director and assistants, especially when the peculiar nature of the duties performed is concerned, and account is taken of the growing demand for such services in the larger and more populous states of the union. Kindness seems to be the rule of government in all departments of the school, and the exercise of patience and gentleness in the work of instruction results in most affecting evidence of regard and devotion from pupils of both sexes. The instructors are generally those who have devoted their lives to labor in this special field, a profession in itself, and the most modern and universally approved methods and systems have been adopted for class rooms and dormitory.

The committee found the school property generally in good condition. There is an air of order and neatness throughout the building, and abundant evidence that diligence is constantly exercised with a view of promoting cleanliness and preventing waste or decay through negligence in the proper care of the state property. It should be remarked, however, that the roof of the main building, tenanted by the deaf and blind, is in need of repairs in order that injuries to the interior through rains may be prevented. The building is in need of painting on the exterior, and if this were done there is no doubt the unusual absorption of moisture through the brick walls would be prevented in a large measure.

The committee calls attention to the published reports of the director and board of trustees, together with the estimates made for the maintenance of the schools for the next two years. While some of the requests of the trustees are reasonable, and their granting would result to the benefit of the institution, yet, in view of present financial conditions, we are constrained to advise that the appropriations for hospital building, steam laundry, new sewer, and electric light for school for feeble-minded be not allowed. The committee has carefully gone over the tabulated estimates of running expenses and reduced them to what it believes to be the lowest figures consistent with an efficient management of the school. Increases in salaries have invariably been disallowed, and suggested additions to the corps of instructors have been recommended for postponement until more favorable conditions prevail. There has been a gradual increase in the attendance in both schools, which is likely to continue in the future, and the committee is of the opinion that no sweeping and wholesale reductions in the cost of maintenance can be affected without seriously interfering with the great and humane work now being done for a class of persons who, because of their affliction, are entitled to help, instruction and encouragement from those who are more fortunate and less sorely tried.

The committee attaches a schedule of expenses as approved by it, and suggests that the same be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Respectfully submitted.

J. A. COLE, Chairman.

The committee appointed to visit the fishing waters of the Columbia river submitted the following report:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO VISIT COLUMBIA RIVER.

To the President and Members of the Senate of the State of Washington:

We, your special committee appointed to visit the Columbia river and examine into the fishing industry of the same, with special reference to the use of fish wheels, beg leave to report as follows:

The committee ascended the Columbia river from Vancouver to the Cascade Locks, made an investigation into the operation of fish wheels, so far as was possible at the present season of the year, and gathered all available information that might be useful in arriving at a conclusion as to the general results following this method of taking salmon in the stream above mentioned. The fish wheels in use at the present time are either built as permanent structures or are attached to scows anchored to leads or lines of piles driven out a short distance from the shore. These wheels vary in diameter from fifteen to forty feet and have an average width of eight feet. Each wheel is provided with three dips or buckets constructed with a four-inch wire mesh. During a high stage of water the force of the current causes the wheels to revolve slowly, and salmon moving up stream and striking a fish wheel are caught up, and, as the wheel revolves, are thrown into a sluice at the axle, whence they slip into a receptacle at the side. From the outer edge of the wheel and extending down stream is what is known as a "lead"—a line of piles covered with slats, by which the fish ascending the river are forced in the direction of the wheel. These leads are of all lengths, the longest noticed by the committee being one on the Oregon side of about one hundred and seventy feet. It is impracticable, if not impossible, because of currents and the course of the fish to construct these leads at right angles to the shore line, and, whatever might have been the length, it was observed that they never extend toward the center of the river more than twenty or thirty feet beyond the outer edge of the wheel. In spite of the fact, however, that they are erected in a down-stream direction, the current during the high water works great damage, either wholly carrying away or almost totally wrecking a large percentage of those that have been put in at great expense during the low water period. For the greater part of the year the wheels and leads are entirely out of water, the taking of salmon by this method beginning only when the river is swollen by the waters flowing from the upper country.

The committee noticed the location and construction of nearly all the fish wheels operated on both sides of the river between Vancouver and the Cascade Locks. At this season of the year all were high and dry above the river, with the outer end of nearly all the leads above present high water.

The wheels are located at different points on both sides of the river, the committee learning that there are about twenty-two on the Washington side, and double that number in Oregon. Out of those built in this state, however, many have been abandoned because unfortunately located and others have been carried away by summer freshets. In fact, if the committee is correctly informed, eleven wheels have either been abandoned or rendered useless by floods within the last three years. While some of the wheels have proved to be profitable, others have shown only a loss. The catch is irregular and very uncertain, that of one day showing an abundance, and that of two or three following days showing but comparatively few fish. This can be understood when it is considered that the river at some points is over one thousand feet wide, and even if the fish are ascending in plentiful numbers, it is by mere chance that they take the shore so closely as to be caught by a wheel built on the bank and having a lead that extends out some twenty-five feet toward the center of the stream.

So far as the committee was able to observe, the wheels and appurtenances are not temporary structures, cheaply built, but rather contrivances made costly by the character of the stream which at high stages sweeps many of them away. One new wheel inspected by the committee represented an outlay of nearly $8,000, and in many other places the force of the current and the character of the annual floods have necessitated the outlay of large sums to insure anything like permanance to the wheels, leads, and their supporting structures.

The committee was careful to make observations with a view of ascertaining as to how seriously these fish wheels may obstruct or act as a menace to river navigation, and is unanimously of the opinion that those who have regarded the wheels as such a menace have been grossly misinformed. As has been stated above, the wheels and leads are at the present time almost wholly out of water, while the Columbia river is now some eight or ten feet above low water level. In no instance was a wheel or lead observed which could in any way be regarded as an obstruction to navigation, the fish appliances at nearly all points occupying but an insignificant portion of the stream, and being almost entirely out of water during the greater part of the year.

In keeping with these observations and in accordance with the best information that could be gathered from interested and disinterested parties, the committee feels warranted in saying:

1. That the fish wheels on the Columbia river, between Vancouver and the Cascade Locks, in no sense are and as at present constructed and operated never can be regarded as in any way interfering with navigation on that stream.

2. That they are owned by citizens and taxpayers of the state; that their construction represents the outlay of much capital in the aggregate, and that as legitimate industries, giving employment to many laborers at good wages, they should receive all due encouragement.

3. That the salmon taken by wheel contrivances is now but five per cent. of the entire catch on the Columbia river, and that this slight percentage is but a small apportionment considering the capital invested, annual outlay and great risk of loss and destruction growing out of annual floods.

4. That inasmuch as it is regarded as a fact and not a theory that the great bulk of ascending salmon never return to the sea, the taking of a portion of the same by wheels is so much gain.

5. That the commercial value of the salmon now caught by wheels amounts to thousands of dollars, all of which, by an abolition of fish wheels, would be thrown away to no advantage instead of allowing it to accrue to the benefit of citizens of this state, who are permanent residents and identified with the upbuilding of the commonwealth.

6. That while thousands of salmon are caught by wheels, yet this catch seems in no sensible degree to interfere with thousands ascending the streams upon which hatcheries are located, and that, viewed from a commercial standpoint, it is much better to take them at points where they are valuable rather than permit them to ascend to higher waters where they become comparatively valueless.

7. That, so far as your committee could learn, the owners of wheels are citizens of good standing, operating them according to law, with due regard to the rights of others, and, above all, solicitous as to a proper regulation of salmon fishing, and anxious to contribute in all reasonable ways to make it a prosperous and enduring industry in this state.

8. That, in view of the foregoing, the operation of fish wheels is a legitimate, well regulated and honorably conducted business, and that an abolition of wheels or unreasonable interference with the same as at present operated, would be unjust, unnecessary and not warranted either by the demands of public policy or by any fair, economical considerations.

Respectfully submitted.

J. A. COLE, Chairman.

The committee appointed to visit the state reform school submitted the following report:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO VISIT THE STATE REFORM SCHOOL.

OLYMPIA, WASHINGTON, March 3, 1897.

To the Senate of the State of Washington:

Your committee appointed to visit and examine the state reform school, located near Chehalis, Lewis county, beg leave to submit the following report:

The committee arrived at the school on the evening of February 27th, and remained until the afternoon of the 28th. The short stay did not give an opportunity to examine into all the details of the work, but enough was seen to satisfy your committee that the institution was in excellent hands and accomplishing the humane object for which it was founded. At this time there are one hundred and ten boys and thirty-two girls in the school. The excellent training which these children are receiving, their cleanliness and good health, speaks well for the management. In the opinion of your committee, the superintendent, Mr. Thomas P. Westendorf, deserves unqualified praise for his tact and good judgment, which is placing this institution in the front rank of successful reformatories. To the casual visitor there is very little to indicate that the boys and girls are more than ordinary pupils in an ordinary academy. Discipline is there, but it is enforced so carefully that the children are unconsciously influenced for their good; they are not led to believe that it is creditable for them to be inmates, but their spirit is not crushed by constant reminders of former mistakes. Laudable ambitions are stimulated, industry is compulsory, self-reliance, politeness and truthfulness are taught by precept and example. The superintendent and his estimable wife, the matron, have long experience in this peculiar work. Their teachers and assistants have been selected because of their special fitness for the various departments. Good management is apparent on all sides. The well-directed labor of the boys has made a fine farm out of a tangled wilderness. We are convinced that the last appropriation was handled wisely and economically; the large surplus (some twenty thousand dollars) which will revert to the treasury is proof of this.

The good work done by an institution of this character cannot be measured by dollars and cents. Children whose environments are such that only the baser passions are encouraged cannot be expected to make good citizens. Society protects itself by gathering such unfortunates into institutions where the better side of their nature is encouraged. It is a paying investment for society to do this, either from a financial or a moral standpoint. We therefore unhesitatingly say that the money appropriated for this purpose will greatly benefit the state. No important changes, other than those that can be made by utilizing the labor of the boys and girls, should be undertaken at this time. Nothing in the line of betterments is needed now. The appropriation asked for in the report of the board of trustees is, we believe, ample if the institution will be conducted on the lines laid down by the present management. In this connection we respectfully suggest that, as far as the state reform school is concerned, there can be nothing gained by a change in the personnel of the officials. We believe that political beliefs should not be considered in a matter of this kind, and we hope that his excellency, the governor of this state, will consider the facts set forth in this report when the matter of changing the present government is suggested.

For details concerning the institution, we refer the members of your honorable body to the report issued by the trustees and superintendent, which we find to be correct in all the particulars which could be ascertained by the brief personal inspection which the limited time at the disposal of your committee permitted.

Respectfully submitted.

JOSEPH HILL, Chairman.

SECTION 1. In all municipal corporations, having less than twenty thousand inhabitants, there shall be maintained a fund, to be designated as "current expense fund," and, after the first day of February, 1898, a fund to be designated as "indebtedness fund."

SEC. 2. All moneys collected by such corporations from licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors, and from all other licenses, shall be credited and applied by the treasurer to said "current expense fund." Provided, That this act shall not exempt such corporations from paying ten per cent. of all money collected for liquor licenses to the state.

SEC. 3. Such municipal corporations shall levy and collect annually a property tax for the payment of current expenses, not exceeding ten mills on the dollar; a tax for the payment of indebtedness (if any indebtedness exists) not exceeding six mills on the dollar, and all moneys collected from the taxes levied for payment of current expenses shall be credited and applied by the treasurer to "current expense fund;" and all moneys collected from the taxes levied for payment of indebtedness shall be credited and applied to a fund to be designated as "indebtedness fund."

SEC. 4. The levy of tax for current expenses shall be based upon an estimate of the expenses for the ensuing year, which estimate shall be adopted by a majority vote of the councilmen present at the meeting at which the levy is made, and shall be entered in the record of the proceedings of the council, and in making such estimate, the probable revenues from licenses and from all sources, other than from taxes, shall be taken into consideration, and the levy shall not exceed, by more than twenty per cent., the amount of such estimate. Current expenses shall be deemed to include all salaries, the expenses of the various departments of the city government, the making, improvement and repairs of streets and sidewalks (excepting such improvements the cost of which is to be assessed against any specific property), the making and improvement of sewers, and any and all other expenses necessary to be incurred in maintaining the corporation and in its government, in accordance with its charter and the needs of its inhabitants.

SEC. 5. The tax for payment of indebtedness shall be based upon a statement of such indebtedness, which shall be prepared by the clerk and approved by the council by a majority vote, at the meeting at which the levy is made, which statement shall be entered in the record of the proceedings of the council. In making the levy, consideration shall be taken of all outstanding warrants, certificates and all other obligations and indebtedness of the city, with the interest thereon, for the payment of which no provision is made by law, by the levy of a special tax, or otherwise than by a general tax, and this act shall not affect existing laws relating to the levy or collection of any tax, or the maintenance of any fund, for the payment of any bonded or funded indebtedness, or of the interest thereon.

SEC. 6. On the first day of February, 1898, or as soon thereafter as practicable, all moneys in the hands of the treasurer to the credit of the street fund, or the sewer fund, in excess of the amount necessary to pay any and all warrants outstanding against said funds, shall be transferred and credited and applied to the current expense fund.

SEC. 7. All moneys collected on and after the first day of February, 1896, from taxes of the year 1896 and previous years, and from penalty and interest thereon, shall be paid into the indebtedness fund.

SEC. 8. From and after the first day of February, 1898, any and all moneys, which by any law enacted prior hereto are payable into the general fund, except taxes, shall be credited and applied to the current expense fund.

SEC. 9. All moneys in the current expense fund shall be paid and applied upon current expenses, and from and after the first day of February, 1898, all current expenses shall be paid out of said current expense fund.

SEC. 10. Any such municipal corporation maintaining water works, lighting plants, cemetery or other public works or institutions, from which rents or other revenues or income are derived, shall maintain separate funds for each of said public works or institutions, designated as "Water Works Fund," "Lighting Fund," "Cemetery Fund," or otherwise, as the case may be. No special tax shall be levied for the maintenance of such water works, electric lighting plant, cemetery or other public works or institutions, but the expense of such public works or institutions, less the rents or other revenues or income therefrom, shall be considered in levying the taxes for payment of current expenses, and any deficit in the maintenance of such public works or institutions shall be paid out of the current expense fund, and any surplus in said "Water Works Fund," "Lighting Fund," "Cemetery Fund," or other like funds, shall, at the end of each fiscal year, be paid and transferred to the current expense fund: Provided, That this act shall not affect existing laws relating to any funded or bonded indebtedness incurred in the construction or purchase of such public works or institutions, or to the levy and collection of taxes for the payment of such funded or bonded indebtedness: Provided, That if the council shall find, and enter such finding in the record of their proceedings, that it is necessary to retain such surplus or any part thereof in such fund for the purpose of extending or repairing such public works or institutions, or for the purpose of paying interest or principal of any indebtedness incurred in the construction or purchase of such public works or institutions, or for the purpose of creating or adding to a sinking fund for the payment of such indebtedness, then such surplus or any part thereof may be so retained or paid upon such indebtedness or interest thereon, or may be transferred to such sinking fund.

SEC. 11. In all cases where the limits of such corporations have been or shall be extended, and additional territory annexed, it shall be the duty of the council and officers of the corporation to arrange and keep and maintain the accounts and funds of the corporation in such a manner that the interests of the inhabitants and taxpayers of the several districts of the corporation, in the various funds and property of the city shall be clearly shown, and in all transactions these different interests shall be considered and protected.

SEC. 12. All elections for the validation of any debt, created by any city, which has since become consolidated with any other city, shall be by, and the vote shall be taken in, the new consolidated city, as the same is constituted at the time of any such election.

SEC. 13. An emergency exists and this act shall take effect immediately.

The bill was then placed on its final passage, and passed by the following vote: Yeas 25, nays 0, absent or not voting 9.
