On Facebook earlier this month, former Yakima County Sheriff Candidate Anthony Bosworth posted a photograph of Spokane Valley Rep. Matt Shea presenting him with an award naming Bosworth a "2016 Patriot of the Year."

The comment "I'm your huckleberry," of course, references Doc Holliday's defiant line in Tombstone that precedes a shootout. Knezovich took it as an implied threat.

It caused Kit Lange, a leader of a "Liberty For All" 3 Percenter group in Washington state, to distance her group from Bosworth. Last December, Lange told us that she and Sam Wilson, another Liberty For All leader, "were not comfortable with the photos that were displayed.

"We wanted to focus more on training and educating people as opposed to starting that ruckus," Lange said. "We're not looking to start a fight."

It wasn't the first time Bosworth had made a Facebook comment with threatening undertones: Here he was on Facebook on July 20, 2015.
