are seeing in communities across this country. As you know, my predecessor in the Senate, Paul Shin, was one of Washington’s first Asian-American lawmakers. First Korean American elected to the Legislature. And, I can recall Senator Shin, both in public and private conversations, sharing some of the hateful experiences he had experienced in our country decades ago and it is horrifying to see that here in 2021, Asian-Americans in my district, across our state, across the country continue to experience hate and violence and marginalization. And I know we’ve got some Senators working on a more formal statement of the Senate’s condemnation of this violence, but I just want to say today, as we continue to reflect on this issue that there is no space for this kind of hateful conduct in our state and each of us has an obligation to seek out and protect vulnerable members of our community and stand in solidarity with Asian-Americans across our communities and across the state in this difficult moment.”

Sincerely,

JAY INSLEE, Governor
