In cooperation with the cattle industry, legislation has been enacted that provides authority for the Department of Agriculture to adopt rules to establish the framework and fees for ongoing operation of an animal disease traceability data base for cattle. Additionally, funds were included in the capital budget to assist in the acquisition of equipment necessary to establish the data base.

Staff will monitor and provide updates to the committee on the development of the animal disease traceability system including the purchase of equipment and adoption of necessary rules to implement the system.

786-7410/786-7407

REFERENCES: ESSB 5882 - SEC. 305 \(2013\)

DESCRIPTION: In 2008, the Legislature provided temporary tax relief to the honey bee industry due to higher than normal losses of hives from what is referred to as colony collapse disorder. These pollinating insects are essential for the production of a number of major and minor crops produced in the state. The tax relief was granted on a temporary basis to provide time for the causes of the high hive losses to be diagnosed and addressed. This tax relief was set to expire on July 1, 2013.

Due to continuing high bee losses, the honey bee industry requested and was granted extension of the tax relief through July 1, 2017. During this period, the Department of Agriculture (Department) was instructed to convene a honey bee work group to address challenges facing the honey bee industry. A report is required to be submitted by the Department by December 31, 2014 to address a number of issues specified in the legislation.

DESCRIPTION: Approved by voters in 2006, the Energy Independence Act, also known as Initiative 937, requires electric utilities with 25,000 or more customers to meet targets for energy conservation and for using eligible renewable resources. There have been numerous legislative attempts to amend I-937. The first two amendments were passed in 2012:

During the 2013 regular session, the Senate Energy, Environment & Telecommunications Committee heard ten bills amending I-937, three of which were signed by the Governor:

- allowing certain slow-growing utilities to purchase I-937 compliant electricity from the Centralia coal plant (SB 5297);
- authorizing qualifying multi-state utilities to count as an eligible renewable resource any renewable resource it owns, other than freshwater, if the resource is in a state where it serves retail customers (SSB 5400); and
- allowing facilities that capture and use methane to generate electricity to collect both renewable energy credits and carbon reduction credits (HB 1154).

Because of continuing interest in making additional changes to I-937, the committee will hold at least one public meeting during the interim to hear proposals for additional amendments. Senate committee staff will plan the meetings and assist in the preparation of any draft legislation as directed.

DESCRIPTION: Current law authorizes multiple methods for municipal annexations. While code cities, noncode cities, and towns have separate statutory provisions for governance and operation, the annexation methods they may employ are largely similar. Each annexation method must follow specified processes set forth in statute and methods vary somewhat by city classification. Committee staff will research the various methods for municipal annexations, review the requirements that must be met under each method and determine how often each method is used. Committee staff will draft legislation as directed.

DESCRIPTION: The GMA is the comprehensive land use planning framework for counties and cities in Washington. Originally enacted in 1990 and 1991, the GMA establishes land use designation and environmental protection requirements for all Washington counties and cities, and a significantly wider array of planning duties for the 29 counties, and the cities within those counties, that are obligated to satisfy all requirements of the GMA. Committee staff will review developments in the GMA since its enactment in 1990. Committee staff will contact various stakeholders and solicit their input regarding what possible changes may be needed in the GMA. Committee staff will draft legislation as directed.

If a majority of voters approve the recall, the official is discharged from office and a vacancy is created. Committee staff will research proposals seeking to clarify grounds for recall and addressing other aspects of the recall process. Committee staff will draft legislation as directed.

COMPLETION DATE: December 2013

STAFF: Sam Brown
786-7470

REFERENCES: N/A

DESCRIPTION: Cyber intrusions and attacks have increased dramatically over the last decade, exposing sensitive personal and business information, disrupting critical operations, and imposing high costs on the economy. In April 2013, hackers stole more than $1 million from an electronic bank account held by Leavenworth's Chelan County Public Hospital District No. 1, less than half which had been recovered as of June. A data breach in the state Administrative Office of the Courts earlier this year may have compromised as many as 160,000 Social Security numbers and one million driver's license numbers. Committee staff will review the IT Security Policy adopted by the Chief Information Officer, review policies and statutes adopted in other states, and work with interested members and stakeholders to address concerns around the issue of cyber security. ## Work Plan Summary – 2013 Interim

PROJECT: Guardianships

COMPLETION DATE: To Be Determined

STAFF: Sharon Swanson
786-7447

REFERENCES: SB 5694 \(2013\)

DESCRIPTION: Guardianship is a legal arrangement where someone can handle the affairs of another. The "guardian" is entrusted with the care and custody of the "ward," and this usually includes control of all the assets of the ward as well as business and health care decision-making and substantial control over the affairs of daily living. A guardianship is established by a legal proceeding overseen by a judge or court commissioner who must make a finding that the "alleged incapacitated person" is unable to manage their own affairs and that there are not "lesser restrictive alternatives" which could be used to avoid the imposition of a guardianship. In 2013, SB 5694 was introduced, but was not enacted. The bill would have modified provisions relating to the appointment, qualification, removal, and duties of guardians in order to improve protections for incapacitated adults and would have required the administrator for the courts and a long-term care ombudsman to publish information regarding professional and lay guardians. Staff will prepare a summary of the protections provided to guardianship wards by Washington law and will consult with the administrator for the courts, the long-term care ombudsman, and other interested parties regarding possible changes to the guardianship provisions. Legislation may be drafted as directed.

The Washington State Constitution forbids the government from using eminent domain to take private property for private use except for a few expressly stated exceptions. These exceptions include private ways of necessity, and drains, flumes, or ditches on or across the lands of others for agricultural, domestic, or sanitary purposes. In 2013, SB 5014 was introduced, but was not enacted. The bill defined permissible purposes for eminent domain to include streets, roads, highways, street and road lighting systems, traffic signals, transportation corridors and rights of way, utility corridors and rights of ways, water systems, storm and sanitary sewer systems, sewage treatment facilities, landfills, park and recreational facilities, and schools. Staff will summarize the current state and use of eminent domain in Washington and survey the states to discern the permissible uses of eminent domain in each.
