INTRODUCTION OF SPECIAL GUESTS

The President Pro Tempore welcomed and introduced members of the YMCA who were seated in the gallery.

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Fraser: "Thank you Madam President. I would like to take a couple moments to note historic significance of today. About ten years ago today, the Legislature and the Department of General Administration, Governor's Office, were in a big discussion about the scheduling for remodeling the Legislative Building. Major plans had been made to upgrade it in terms of heating and cooling, the air system, making the building better to accommodate computers, better handicap accessibility and so forth. There have been a couple of commissions that have worked on this. There was major planning involved in it and the big dispute was, how do we schedule this. Do we schedule a floor at a time? Do we schedule a wing at a time? How do we get people out of the building so this major construction can take place? Should we empty the building? Oh no, we can't do that. That would be too hard. How can you completely empty the legislative building? Well, at about half of a n hour from now, at about two minutes before eleven, the decision was made for us. The Nisqually Earthquake occurred. I believe it was 6.8 on the Richter scale. It was a day very similar to this., We were running bills. We were going into caucus to get briefed on bills. Kind of routine day in the Legislature. At that time, the time of the earthquake, the Democrats had the caucus room in the corner over there and the Republicans had the caucus room here and we were in caucus. So we were sitting around our respective tables just going through bills and all of a sudden we felt the earth move. At first, just speaking for the people in our room, we didn't think too much about it because this is earthquake country and little ones aren't that unusual but this one kept going. It kept going and it picked up in intensity and pretty soon it felt a lot riding a school bus down a railroad ties on a railroad track, bounce, bounce, bounce. It was very noisy. It was like grind, grind and I thought, 'Wow, the rocks under the earth are grinding together with this strong earthquake.' Pretty soon little pieces of ceiling started to fall down and then people dove under the tables and into the doorways and so forth. I ended up standing up against the wall so I kind of watched the whole thing wishing, hoping it would stop but it kept going and you wondered what was going to happen next. Anyway, it got very intense and bumpy and very noisy and then it suddenly stopped and we all filed out of the building and we stood around outside in the cold without car keys, without jackets, without the ability to come back in the building. Thank you to Security who was really looking out for us and we looked up toward the Dome and here was a huge probably a multi ton decorative block of granite that was poised to fall over the edge of the Legislative Building and, if it had, it would of come down straight through the Senate Chamber, down through the Governor's office, who knows what the loss of life would have been and I think if, so, anyway. Later we found out that all this grinding noise. It wasn't the rocks under the ground. It was the dome. The dome lifted up to zero gravity, and we learned after the fact that all the Dome was being held together with was gravity and so, as the top of the Dome lifted up to zero gravity the pillars kind of the drum area of the Dome started to tip. They weren't held there by anything other than the gravity of the Dome. So that's what all the noise was. I think if the earthquake had gone for say ten more seconds at its full intensity it would have been total tragedy. So, anyway, we were closed for what about a week and then Senate and House staff magically arranged for temporary quarters for the Legislature to meet. We met in temporary quarters for two years and what we thought was impossible when we were looking at remodeling became what we did thanks to the earthquake. So, it occurred that about I think about two minutes before eleven so I don't know if we'll be on the floor or in caucus then but it's certainly a day to remember."

FIFTIETH DAY, FEBRUARY 28, 2011

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Hewitt: "Thank you Madam President. Well, this certainly brings back memories. I recall being in the caucus room over here, my first year here. Very close to early session, I thought, 'Gosh I really worked very hard to get elected and I'm going to die in this building.' There were lots of noises and some of the chandeliers were coming down but I can recall when we finally got straightened out a little bit and we headed out of the building and I'm thinking, 'Ok, I'm out of here' in a hurry and I'm headed down the stairs and I'm going lickity split and here's Senator Rasmussen holding on to the rail going one step at a time. I'm thinking, 'Oh no, darn it; and I had to grab a hold of her arm. 'Come on Senator; we're going to go a little faster than this.' But it was the first time that I ever encountered an earthquake especially that magnitude and being inside this building all I could think about was the hundreds of tons of marble and concrete around us and above us. I thought, 'My God it will be forever before they find us out of this building' but it was an exciting time. It wasn't much fun coming back and living in the Library for a year or so but it was exciting to be here. I think it's an experience that, if you were here you'll never forget. Thank you Madam President."

2011 REGULAR SESSION

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Parlette: "Speaking of that day of the earthquake I had a young page who came to our caucus and the Senate Republican Caucus allows guests to stay so I told her, 'Ashley, now you can stay as long as you want and if you get bored it's ok to leave.' So, anyway as soon as that earthquake happened she was the first person who talked to me. She said 'Senator Parlette, I'm going to leave now.' I think she was the first one out the door and what I learned is how well the pages were trained. They knew exactly what to do if there was an emergency, where to go and it made me think for us. We all went outside but we didn't go to one spot and it made me realize, wow, we as Senators should have some sort of a plan so we all go to one location so we can be counted. We have that now but we didn't have that then. Again, we will all remember that day ten years ago."

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Honeyford: "Thank you Madam President. Well, I have two remembrances of that day. One was when the earthquake hit, rather than jump under a table, I jumped into a window in the caucus room over and all of a sudden the window started banging against my back side and I thought that was kind of stupid so I got into the doorway. I didn't realize four Senators my size and larger can fit into a doorway but we did. The other remembrance I had was that after we were out of the building some of us were down at the bus stop shelter there and Jim West was there, Sid Snyder was there and Brad Owen was there and all of a sudden I don't know if it was Sid or Brad well, we have to adjourn to someplace, time certain and maybe someplace. So, they talked for a minute and Brad banged his fist in his hand and said we were adjourned until whatever time and date it was but I thought it was very interesting that they thought of that at that time. Thank you Madam President."

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Swecker: "Thank you Madam President. I just had a couple of remembrances from that one is that was my birthday so I will never forget when the earthquake happened. The other one was I was really convinced that would be the big news for the year for the State of Washington. You have to remember that that was the year of 9/11, which was an incredible development that none of us at that point and time even anticipated. So, makes you think. Makes you sober. Thank you.”

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

Senator Prentice: “Did the President hear correctly that today is the anniversary of your birthday?”

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Swecker: “Madam President, yes, that is correct.”

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

Senator Prentice: “Happy Birthday. The President states that you were just a child.”

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Eide: “Well, I have to comment not only is it Senator Swecker’s birthday it’s also Lucas Brown’s birthday. He is nineteen and I can still remember being in the House of Representatives and Lucas was just a baby and had a few episodes where that we were here until four o’clock in the morning and Senator Brown had to go get Lucas before the day care closed. It’s amazing how fast time has gone, and most of you know today is also my thirty-fifth wedding anniversary. Our twenty-fifth I will never forget. I always told my husband he rocks my world and I told him to stop it now because of the earthquake on the twenty-fifth anniversary scared the beejeevies out of me but I can also remember Senator Hewitt saying that he was going to die, but quite frankly all of us were in the caucus room over here and I remember Julia Patterson, bless her heart yelled, ‘Under the desk! under the desk.’ so all the Senators got under the desk and I’m sitting under there and I’m thinking, ‘You know I feel like I got a toothpick on top of my head’ because if that dome went down there was going to be no way that we were going to survive and I think only person that was not in this building at that time was Senator Regala. She was home ill, so she would have been the one running the Senate, running the probably the State of Washington because I think everyone of us were in the dome. I just wanted to say it also snowed on my wedding day so today it is snowing, so, it has happened before at the end of February but I wanted to tell my husband I love him very much. Unfortunately I think I have spent every single anniversary down here for the past over decade so, maybe that’s why it’s working. But anyway I just want to say I love him and he does still rock my world.”

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Kohl-Welles: “Thank you Madam President. Well, a couple of things too I understand that it is Senator Pflug’s birthday today as well. She’s not here right now. I congratulate her. But also, I do have to make a correction and I did mention this on the floor on Friday, not everybody was in the caucus room. I was the only Senator and person in the senate chamber. I came out to make a phone call. As I had lived through earthquakes in California earlier in my life, even I wasn’t sure what was happening. It appeared to me like a plane, a small plane, had struck the dome but with all rolling that ensued I knew right away it was an earthquake and I ran out when it subsided a little bit and found and at that time King County Executive, Ron Sims over there. He just came out of a meeting. So when we could we ran down the stairs clutching each other. It was one of the scariest parts. One thing that has not been mentioned is that before we went to the state library in the Pritchard to finish the session we convened in Senate Hearing Room Four and I thought it was a wonderful experience. We cannot help but have collegial relationships with everybody there because we were so close together. We did that through the end of the session and then moved to the Pritchard building but I will never forget saving Senator Eide’s flowers.”

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Carrell: “Thank you Madam President. Well, I believe there was actually one at least one other person that was not in this chamber during the big earthquake other than Senator Regala. I was over on the third floor in the corner office in the other body in that office building. I remember I was giving an interview to the Columbia newspaper at the time and the building started rocking and rolling. I jumped up just in time, because all those big heavy law books we may all have in our office. They all fell down right where I’d been sitting and then a big huge plant and all of the soil landed on top of that. I said, ‘This meeting is over’.”

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Hobbs: "Well, I just want to take this time to thank the good Senator, Senator White, for the hard work that you did. I know the last bill had the word conservation in it and I believe the Senator from the Nineteenth District voted for it so that really surprised me. I also, I'm a little biased, I like you. My brother-in-law works for you so I think you're my Senator-in-law. But on top of that I'm just amazed that how much you've done so far. The previous Senator that was here, it took him, I don't know, over fifteen years to even get a 'Schrammy' and the good Senator, it took him thirty days and he got two. So, good job, I hope you get many and it's a pleasure serving with you."

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Kohl-Welles: "Thank you Madam President. Well, actually I knew, or I do know, the predecessor of Senator White from the Forty-Sixth District very well. Senator Jacobsen as we had experienced, had an abundance of knowledge about historical events and was continually giving us really meaningful significant araldite quotes and I've been a little disappointed that I haven't heard any similarity coming from our new Senator but we'll give him a little bit of slack. I have to say, my biggest disappointment is that he has only introduced thirty-one bills so far. Now, with the former Senator from the Forty-Sixth District we would had at least double that. Eighty-two by this point so I'm watching you. I expect great things of you and especially that you will, at some point, to live up to the amazing imagination and abilities for coming up with terrific bill ideas especially one such as we had, all love the 'dogs in bars' bill."

FIFTIETH DAY, FEBRUARY 28, 2011

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Hargrove: "Well, thank you Madam President. I just noticed that Senator White along with the other new Senators in our body this year. They have increased the average height of the Senators, particularly the men, I think they have more hair than most of the rest of us but I would have to note that the IQ average has gone down."

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Haugen: "Well thank you very much. Well, you know actually my history with the good Senator goes back a long ways. His mother actually went to school with one of my older brothers and actually he was an intern in my office when I was in the House. That was a very long time ago and so, it was kind of surprising he ended up as my Vice Chair because I thought, 'My gosh, this guy went to King County,' and you know what happens in King County and we find that he likes process still. He really likes process. I will tell you that I have been disappointed that he can't make those wonderful bird sounds that his former colleague could make. We really do need a birder in this body. Somebody that can tell us what kind of bird is outside the window. But seriously, Senator White is a very bright young man and he has a great future. It's just too bad that his family ever left the Camano Stanwood community area and moved on to the big city of Seattle. It's nice to have someone to represent the metropolitan area on our committee but I will tell you as big and bright as he is those guys from the real county really have a concern about that stuff that comes out of his district. We're going to work with him and hopefully, hopefully he is as good as he predecessor. We don't want him move as many bills but I will tell you I'm disappointed that his first bill you didn't have come out of Transportation. Did I not teach you anything?"

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator McAuliffe: "I'd like to take this opportunity to note that your first speech on the floor of the Senate is on the tenth anniversary of the Nisqually Quake. We look forward to your rocking and rolling on the floor and serving with in the State Senate. Congratulations."

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator White: "Thank you Madam President. It truly is an honor to serve with you all and to the Gentle lady from the Thirty-Sixth I hope to live up to her expectations. I look forward to working with all of you towards 'one Washington.' To my colleagues from the suburban swing districts representing our strip malls and cul-de-sacs as the Majority Whip and speaking on behalf of my good colleague from the other side of the aisle from the Forty-Second, we understand that you are an indecisive bunch and we understand that you represent the voters that are undecided as well but please know that we have a job to do and we have to count votes and when we come up to you with our vote card please don't get mad at us for taking up your time. It's just a formality. We already have you marked on our vote card as undecided so please bear with us on that. I do want to be clear, 'we know who you are.' To my friends in the rural district representing some of the most fertile farm lands and scenic country in the nation, I want you to know that my grandfather was a poor apple farmer in Eastern Washington in the Okanogan. He benefited from President Roosevelt New Deal that brought electricity and irrigation to the farm lands in his community. So, I understand how important it is for us to work together so that our tax revenues may continue to subsidize your lavish life styles of rural socialism. I want you to know, as a legislator from an urban area, we're going to do our best to continue to export those urban tax dollars to you. To my latte-sipping liberal pinko commie friends representing urban districts around the state, I'm confident that if we put all of our PhD, JD, MPA, IOUS together that our over-educated minds can come up with a few more business tax loopholes that we can add to the list because, with our insecurities that we have representing the urban areas, we do need to prove that we do in fact care about the economy.

So, on a serious note I really do want to say it is a tremendous honor to serve here with you today, it is a true honor to represent the citizens of the Forty-Sixth District and to serve the citizens of the State of Washington. I realize that I have big shoes to fill. Senator Jacobsen had a tremendous mind, was a great historian, knew more about this state and different corners of the state than many people that I have met. Today as a token of my friendship I have brought fresh blueberry scones that were baked this morning from a coffee shop that is located in my district. It's actually a classic story of a small business. Two young men, Scott and Ryan, opened up this business ten years ago. They do all the work in the shop. They do the baking in the back room. Five years ago they expanded to a second shop and I think it's symbolic for two reasons not just from the small business perspective but also in North Seattle we love coffee but coffee shops are a community place. They are a gathering place and you will find professionals, you will find family, kids coloring their books in these coffee shops. They will be talking about politics, schools and the status of their communities. So, please enjoy these fresh scones again baked just hours ago. I picked them up on my way down this morning and I look forward to working with you all."
