1985 REGULAR SESSION

FIRST DAY

MORNING SESSION

House Chamber, Olympia, Wash., January 14, 1985

The Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives of the Forty-eighth Legislature, Dean R. Foster, called the House to order at 10:00 a.m.

The Chief Clerk requested the Sergeant at Arms to escort the Members-elect to seats on the floor of the House, as selections were played by the Washington Air National Guard Band.

The flag was escorted to the rostrum by the Color Guard from the Washington Army National Guard.

Prayer was offered by Sister Carol Wagner, SNJM, of Our Lady Queen of Heaven Church in Spanaway:

"Wondrous Creator, we praise and thank You for all the gifts You have given us.

"For the beauty of our state's golden wheat fields, blooming deserts and majestic mountains, WE PRAISE YOU.

"May we be good stewards making good decisions that will protect our environment as well as utilize its resources. For the keenness of our minds, for our ability to see and hear, WE THANK YOU.

"O Spirit of Wisdom and Understanding, give us insight that we may see clearly what is best for the good of all people. Teach us to listen with openness that we may hear fairly all sides. Enable us to legislate well on the many issues before us.

"For the presence of Your Son who became one with us in all but sin, WE PRAISE AND THANK YOU.

"Jesus, who calls us to love one another, help us in all our deliberations to be sensitive to the less fortunate, to work together in a loving manner, being led not by selfish interests or personal pride, but by the call deep within us to live Your gospel message of love and peace.

"Our Loving Creator, we offer You the worship of our minds, the thanks of our hearts, and the service of our persons. Accept us and our gifts. Bless our work in Your name. Grant to us the peace of Your presence and the joy of Your love.

"We praise and thank You through Jesus in the power of His Spirit who lives with us now and forever. Amen."

The Chief Clerk appointed Representatives Armstrong and Padden to escort The Honorable Orris Hamilton, retired Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Washington, to the rostrum.

No motion to postpone to a day certain, to commit, to postpone indefinitely, being decided, shall again be allowed on the same day and at the same stage of the proceedings, and when a question has been postponed indefinitely, it shall not again be introduced during the session. The motion to postpone indefinitely may be made at any stage of the bill except when on first reading.

(D) Without Debate. A motion to adjourn, to take a recess, to lay on the table and a call for the previous question shall be decided without debate.

All incidental questions of order arising after a motion is made for any of the questions named in this rule and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.

A motion for suspension of the rules shall not be debatable, except, however, the mover of the motion may briefly explain the purpose of the motion, and one member may briefly state the opposition to the motion.

MEMBERS RIGHT TO DEBATE

RULE 17. The methods by which a member may exercise his or her right to debate are as follows:

(A) Recognition of Speaker. When any member is about to speak in debate or deliver any matter to the house, the member shall rise and respectfully address the speaker, pause until recognized, shall confine all remarks to the question under debate, and avoid personalities; and no member shall impugn the motive of any member's vote or argument.

(B) Order of Speaking. When two or more member arise at once, the speaker shall name the one who is to speak.

(C) Right of Member to Speak. No member shall speak longer than ten minutes without consent of the house: PROVIDED, That when only five (5) days remain before a session must end by law or three (3) days remain before a measure must be reported from the house of origin or opposite house as established by House concurrent resolution ~~32 as adopted on January 9, 1984~~, no member shall speak more than three minutes without the consent of the house. No member shall speak more than twice on the same question without leave of the house: PROVIDED, That the chair of the committee or the mover of the question may close debate so long as the act is consistent with Rule 19(B) (Previous Question).

RULES OF DEBATE

RULE 18. The rules for debate in the house are as follows:

(A) Question of Privilege. Any member may rise to a question of privilege and explain a personal matter, by leave of the speaker, but the member shall not discuss any pending question in such explanations.

(B) Withdrawal of Motion, Bill, Etc. After a motion is stated by the speaker, or a bill, memorial, resolution, petition or remonstrance is read by the clerk, it shall be deemed to be in possession of the house, but may be withdrawn by consent of the house at any time before decision or amendment.

(C) Reading of a Paper. When the reading of any paper is called for, and is objected to by any member, it shall be determined by a vote of the house.

(D) Order of Questions. All questions, whether in committee or in the house, shall be propounded in the order in which they are named, except that in filling blanks the largest sum and the longest time shall be put first.

(E) Division of Points of Debate. Any member may call for a division of a question which shall be divided if it embraces subjects so distinct that one being taken away a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the house; but a motion to strike out and to insert shall not be divided. The rejection of a motion to strike out and to insert one proposition shall not prevent a motion to strike out and to insert a different proposition.

(F) Decorum of Members. While the speaker is putting the question, no member shall walk across or out of the house; nor when a member is speaking shall any member entertain private discourse or pass between the speaking member and the rostrum.

(G) Exception to Words Spoken in Debate. If any member be called to order for words spoken in debate, the person calling the member to order shall repeat the words excepted to and they shall be taken down in writing at the clerk's table. No member shall be held in answer or be subject to the censure of the house for words spoken in debate if any other member has spoken before exception to them shall have been taken.

(H) Transgression of Rules--Appeal. If any member, in speaking or otherwise, transgresses the rules of the house the speaker shall, or any member may, call the member to order, in which case the member so called to order shall immediately sit down unless permitted to explain; and the house shall, if appealed to, decide the case without debate; if there be no appeal, the decision of the chair shall be submitted to.

If the decision be in favor of the member called to order, the member shall be at liberty to proceed; if otherwise, and the case shall require it, the member shall be liable to the censure of the house.

ENDING OF DEBATE

RULE 19. The rules for ending debate are as follows:

(A) Putting of Question. Question shall be put in this form, to-wit: "As many as are in favor of (as the question shall be) say 'Aye';" and after the affirmative vote is expressed, "as many as are opposed say 'No'."

(B) Previous Question. The previous question upon all recognized motions or amendments which are debatable may be ordered by two-thirds (2/3) of the members present, and shall have the effect of cutting off all debate and bringing the house to a direct vote upon the motion or amendment on which it has been ordered: PROVIDED, HOWEVER, That one of the sponsors of a bill, memorial, or resolution, or the chair of the committee, when the measure is on final passage or when the motion to postpone indefinitely is pending, may have the privilege of closing debate after the previous question has been ordered.

(C) Putting the Motion Ending Debate. The previous question is not debatable and cannot be amended. The previous question shall be put in this form: "Representative . . . . . demands the previous question. As many as are in favor of ordering the previous question will say 'Aye'; as many as are opposed will say 'No'."

The results of the motion are as follows: If determined in the negative, the consideration goes on as if the motion had never been made; if decided in the affirmative, the presiding officer, without debate, proceeds to put the question.

If an adjournment is had after the previous question is ordered, the motion or proposition on which the previous question was ordered shall be put to the house immediately following the approval of the journal on the next working day, thus making the main question privileged over all other business, whether new or unfinished.

(D) Motion to Adjourn. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order, except when the house is voting or is working under the call of the house; but this rule shall not authorize any member to move an adjournment when another member has the floor.

VOTING

RULE 20. Every member who was in the house when the question was put shall vote unless, for special reasons, excused by the house.

All motions to excuse a member shall be made before the house divides or before the call for yeas and nays is commenced; and any member requesting to be excused from voting may make a brief and verbal statement of the reasons for making such request, and the question shall then be taken without further debate.

(A) Voting within Bar Only. Upon a division and count of the house on the question, only members at their desk within the bar of the house shall be counted.

(B) Change of Vote--Private Interest. When the electric roll call machine is used, no member shall be allowed to vote or change a vote after the speaker has locked the roll call machine. When the oral roll call is used, no member shall be allowed to change a vote after the result has been announced. No member shall vote on any question in the event of which that member is immediately or particularly interested,* or in any case when that member is not within the bar of the house before the last name was called, unless by unanimous consent; and when any member shall ask leave to vote, the speaker shall propound the question, "Were you within the bar of the house when the last name was called?"

*"A member who has a private interest in any bill or measure proposed or pending before the legislature shall disclose the fact to the house of which he is a member, and shall not vote thereon." (See also Constitution, Art. II § 30.)

METHOD OF VOTING

RULE 21. (A) Clerk's Desk During Voting. No member or other person shall visit or remain by the clerk's desk while the yeas and nays are being called.

(B) Yeas and Nays. Upon the final passage of any measure, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays and shall be recorded by the electric voting system: PROVIDED, HOWEVER, That an oral roll call shall be ordered when demanded by one-sixth (1/6) of the members present. (Art. II § 21.)

The speaker may vote last when the yeas and nays are called.

When the vote is by electric voting machine or by oral roll call on any question, it shall be entered upon the journal of the house. A recorded vote may be compiled by one-sixth (1/6) of the members present.

(C) Tie Vote, Question Loses. In case of an equal division, the question shall be lost.

If the speaker is in doubt, or if division is called for and is supported by at least seventeen members, the house shall divide and a recorded vote shall be taken.

(D) Reconsideration. Notice of a motion for reconsideration on the final passage of bills may be made only on the day the vote to be reconsidered was made.

The motion must be made by a member who voted on the prevailing side and may be acted upon on a succeeding day: PROVIDED, That the reconsideration of the vote by which a bill passed or failed must be taken on the next working day after such vote was taken: PROVIDED FURTHER, That when only five (5) days remain before a session must end by law or three (3) days remain before a measure must be reported from the house of origin or opposite house as established by ~~House concurrent resolution 32 as adopted on January 9, 1984~~, then reconsideration of votes on the final passage of measures must be taken on the same day as the original date.

A motion to reconsider can be decided only once when decided in the negative.

When a motion to reconsider has been carried, its effect shall be to place the original question before the house in the exact position it occupied before it was voted upon.

(E) Veto Bills--No Reconsideration. The veto message of the governor accompanying any bill passed by the legislature, together with the bill vetoed, shall be reading in the house. It shall then be in order to proceed to the reconsideration of the bill, refer it, lay it on the table, or postpone its consideration to a day certain.

The merits of the bill may be debated before the vote is taken, but the vote on a vetoed bill cannot be reconsidered.

In case of a bill containing several sections or items, one or more of which has been objected to by the governor, each section or item so objected to shall be voted upon separately by the house.

Action by the house upon all vetoed bills shall be endorsed upon the bill and certified by the speaker.

Vetoed bills originating in the house, which have not been passed notwithstanding the veto of the governor, shall remain in the custody of the officers of the house until the close of the session, after which they shall be filed with the secretary of state.

CALL OF THE HOUSE

RULE 22. One-sixth (1/6) of the members present may demand a call of the house at any time before the house has divided or the voting has commenced by yeas and nays.

(A) Doors to be Closed. A call of the house being ordered, the sergeant at arms shall close and lock the doors, and no member shall be allowed to leave the chamber: PROVIDED, That the rules committee shall be allowed to meet, upon request of the speaker, while the house stands at ease: AND PROVIDED FURTHER, That the speaker may permit members to use such portions of the fourth floor as may be properly secured.

(B) Sergeant at Arms to Bring in the Absentees. The clerk shall immediately call a roll of the members and note the absentees, whose names shall be read and entered upon the journal in such manner as to show who are absent with leave and who are absent without leave.

The clerk shall furnish the sergeant at arms with a list of those who are absent without leave, and the sergeant at arms shall proceed to bring in such absentees; but arrests of members for absence shall not be made unless ordered by a majority of the members present.

(C) House Under Call: Raising Call. While the house is under a call, no business shall be transacted except to receive and act on the report of the sergeant at arms; and no other motion shall be in order except a motion to proceed with business under the call of the house, a motion to suspend further proceedings under the call of the house, or a motion to excuse absentees, any of which motions shall be determined by viva voce vote unless a roll call is demanded by one-sixth (1/6) of the members present. The motion to suspend further proceedings under the call or to excuse absent members shall not be adopted unless a majority of the members elected vote in favor thereof.

(D) Call of House Raised when Absentees Return. When the sergeant at arms shall make a report showing that all who were absent without leave are present, the call of the house may be dispensed with; or the house may proceed under the call, on a majority vote of the members elected, with its regular business.

APPEAL FROM DECISION OF CHAIR

RULE 23. The decision of the chair may be appealed from by any member, on which appeal no member shall speak more than once unless by leave of the house. In all cases of appeal, the question shall be: "Shall the decision of the chair stand as the judgment of the house?"

Only such bills as are included on the written notice of a committee meeting may be considered at that meeting except upon the vote of a majority of the entire membership of the committee to consider another bill.

Majority recommendations of a committee can only be "do pass", "do pass as amended", or that "the attached substitute be substituted therefor and that the substitute bill do pass."

(4) All committee reports shall be spread upon the journal. The journal of the house shall contain an exact copy of all committee reports, together with the names of the members signing such reports.

A copy of all recorded committee votes shall be kept by the chief clerk and shall be available for public inspection.

(6) All bills having a direct negative revenue impact or a direct appropriation of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or more shall be referred to the ways and means committee or transportation committee as appropriate before their final passage.

(1) Any member of the house of representatives convicted and sentenced for any felony punishable by death or by imprisonment in a Washington state penal institution shall, as of the time of sentencing, be denied the legislative salary for future service and be denied per diem, compensation for expenses, and office space facilities and assistance. Any member convicted of a felony and sentenced therefor under any federal law or the law of any other state shall, as of the time of sentencing, be similarly denied such salary, per diem, expenses, facilities, and assistance if either (a) such crime would also constitute a crime punishable under the laws of Washington by death or by imprisonment in a state penal institution, or (b) the conduct resulting in the conviction and sentencing would also constitute a crime punishable under the laws of Washington by death or by imprisonment in a state penal institution.

(2) At any time, the house may vote by a constitutional majority to restore the salary, per diem, expenses, facilities, and assistance denied a member under subsection (1). If the conviction of a member is reversed, then the salary, per diem, and expense amounts denied the member since his sentencing shall be forthwith paid to him, and the member shall thereafter have the rights and privileges of other members.

MOTION

Mr. J. King moved adoption of House Resolution No. 85-1.

Representatives J. King and Barrett spoke in favor of the resolution, and it was adopted.

ELECTION OF SPEAKER

The Chief Clerk announced that nominations were in order for Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Mr. J. King: "It gives me great pleasure to nominate Representative Wayne Ehlers of Spanaway for Speaker of the House of Representatives. It is indeed an honor, and one that I haven't had the chance of having before, to nominate Representative Ehlers for an office. I'm not sure, as he has moved through the chairs, why that honor hasn't been accorded me before. We were roommates at one point and perhaps he was nervous about what I was likely to say when I rose to my feet, but perhaps it was because, on occasion, we engaged in a social game of chance and he was concerned about that, but it does give me a great deal of pleasure.

"I think Wayne has as much or more in common with the new members of this legislature than he does with some of the senior members. Many of you don't know that Wayne began his career as something of a rebel. He was, and still is, a man of strong ideals and sets high standards for himself and for this institution. I think a main measure of Wayne's success is that, if you have followed his career, his life from the former to Speaker of the House, you will see that most of the changes took place in the legislature, not in Wayne Ehlers. Open government, open doors, open minds have been some of the hallmarks and the changes that Wayne Ehlers has helped bring to this body. Responsibility to his constituents and respect for his peers are other examples of Wayne's style of public service.

"I understand that his nomination will not be adopted unanimously, but I think it is important that Wayne will be the Speaker for the whole body. If you have to choose one person who will represent all of us, both sides, it would be hard to get a more fair or honest man than Wayne Ehlers.

"Still another trait that we value in Wayne is his wisdom to understand men and women and have honest disagreements. Occasionally we do have that in this body, yet he still can face up to the difficult decisions and work through the process on common ground.

"I think one of the finest moments that Wayne had was the last session. It was the last night and, for you new members in this honorable body, there are occasionally honest disagreements. We were building toward the final hours, final minutes of the session; we had a budget to adopt and some major pieces of legislation. I sat near Wayne up there for a few minutes and watched the members come up; they were panicked; they had a bill that wasn't going to pass. Senators would pop their heads through that back curtain, absolutely imploring him that if their bill didn't go, they simply couldn't get a budget over here to us. Wayne handled it with great dignity, with some humor, and I started analyzing how he did that. I remembered back to some of the so-called games of chance that we would occasionally engage in and there were two things that I remembered about Wayne: He always counts the cards and he always knows the players. Leadership is all of these things, and I think one more thing: The primary ingredient that Wayne brings to this body is integrity.

"Every legislator who has ever served with Wayne knows that his word is absolutely his bond. I urge you to elect Wayne Ehlers as Speaker of the House of Representatives."

Ms. Hine: "I would like to second the nomination of Representative Ehlers for Speaker of the House. Representative Ehlers does not present a new face for this job, although his countenance has slightly changed. He has served us well for the last two years. You know, we all come down here with some expectations, many trepidations, and we don't know exactly how or what it is we want to do or can do in this body. There may be a few here who came down from the beginning saying, 'Someday I'm going to be Speaker.' Most of us come down saying, 'Please God, let me get through those first days and the first committee and the first time I have to speak on the floor.' I suggest that Wayne didn't come down here with great ideas of personal advancement, but rather as Representative King so eloquently stated, with an idea for some reform and respect and to do the things that will make this institution better. I think he's a little surprised to find himself not only having been Speaker the last two years, but also to be again before us as our Speaker for the next two years.

"I'd like to mention three qualities that I think Wayne has. One has already been discussed, that is his complete fairness in dealing with the highly controversial, and often very emotional, issues with which we all must come to grips. A second is his humanness. Wayne gets cranky, and Wayne gets cranky mostly because some of us aren't doing what we should be doing or we don't have the respect for the institution or the respect for each other. Wayne works within his own personality; he is very direct and I like that humanness. We are humans; we all have our own personalities. The third quality that I think Wayne brings to us is absolute enthusiasm, and none of us will ever forget the enthusiasm with which he adjourned us sine die and shattered glass all over the rostrum. It is with that enthusiasm that he charges into everything that he does, tucking in his shirttail and pulling up his trousers, because he's in too big a hurry to spend a lot of time taking care of those little things. This is a man who has served us very well for the last two years. This is a person that we can rely on to lead us once more in the next two years.

"We have a new governor; we have some new make-up in the other house, and of course, the new people in this house. We have a challenge; the session is about to begin. We know we don't have a lot of resources or additional dollars to spend; it is going to take a lot of good faith. While we are in a giant love-in, at the moment, with those other two groups that participate in the legislative process, it is feasible and probable that sometime we may come to a disagreement, and, Mr. Chief Clerk, you will forgive me, but if that should happen, Representative Ehlers, Speaker Ehlers, will be certain it is House first in any battle that we have to take on with the other two groups.

"It is with the confidence that he will do that, that I very respectfully, and happily, second the nomination of Representative Ehlers for Speaker of the House of Representatives of the 49th Legislature."

Mr. Tilly: "I am very proud today to nominate Sim Wilson of Marysville, Washington to be Speaker of the House. I've served with Sim twelve years, through six terms, and it has been a very close relationship serving with him through those years. We have seen times in our state when we had too much money to spend and there have been times when we didn't have enough, and I think it's time we had some reform and we'd like to serve under Representative Wilson under the good times. We would like to share in some of the fruits of that.

"The person that we choose to be Speaker of the House has an enormous responsibility and prior speakers have pointed that out. They have a responsibility not only to this body, the legislation that we pass and the management of the House of Representatives during the interim, but they also have a responsibility to the entire state and it probably even extends beyond the state. As we move into the second half of this decade, into the 80s, I feel that the people demand the very best in leadership from all of us and especially to the people that we pick as leaders. I say this in spite of the article in yesterday's leading Sunday paper that said that people don't even know who their legislators are. They do in the 10th District. Sim Wilson has had a distinctive career as a legislator and as a publisher of two weekly newspapers. Here in our ranks his main interest has been in transportation where he has been a minority chairperson; he has been a co-chair, chair, and even Chairman of LTC, plus nationally, he was Chairman of the National Conference of State Legislatures' Transportation Committee.

"Sim has a very, very deep interest in the arts and cultural things and he is also very innovative. When we were freshman legislators and were over on the fourth floor in the freshman nursery wing, because his name starts with a 'W,' he got the last choice of offices, so he got the only office without a window. To show you how innovative Representative Wilson is, he promptly found a picture of a window with a beautiful pastoral scene. I feel that his leadership qualities and his vision are the type that we need to lead this House of Representatives as Speaker, to be an influence-maker in the State of Washington.

"I want to confess that I have no illusions about what the vote will be today, in spite of these great words, but I feel that you will be right if you vote for Sim Wilson for Speaker of the House."

Mr. C. Smith: "It is also my privilege to second the nomination of Simeon Wilson for Speaker of the House. As I enter into my fourth term, I take pride in continuing to have the opportunity to serve the people in these chambers. The potential of all members to effectively represent the citizens in the State of Washington is enhanced by good leadership, and I think that Sim Wilson really justifies this. His leadership in our caucus is a direct result of our desire to unify the caucus and to direct the serious issues of the State of Washington and to work with the other side of the aisle in a cooperative fashion.

"In a little over three months from now, we will have to report back to the citizens of the State of Washington, and it is our hope that when we report back that we will have carried out the challenges or tasks that we have before us and have done it in good fashion. If we are to succeed and to earn mutual respect and the respect of our constituents, we must have a high standard of fairness and a quality of leadership. We think that Representative Sim Wilson exemplifies these qualities of fairness and I appreciate the privilege of seconding the nomination for Sim Wilson to be our next Speaker of the House of Representatives."

On motion of Mr. Appelwick, nominations for Speaker of the House were closed.

ROLL CALL

The Clerk called the roll and Representative Ehlers was elected Speaker of the House by the following vote: Mr. Ehlers, 53; Mr. Wilson, 45.

Those voting for Representative Ehlers: Representatives Appelwick, Armstrong, Basich, Baugher, Belcher, Braddock, Brekke, Bristow, Cole, Crane, Day, Dellwo, Ebersole, Fisch, Fisher, Gallagher, Grimm, Hargrove, Haugen, Hine, Jacobsen, J. King, P. King, R. King, Kremen, Leonard, Locke, Lux, Madsen, McMullen, D. Nelson, Niemi, Nutley, O'Brien, Peery, Rayburn, Rust, Sayan, Scott, Smitherman, Sommers, Sutherland, Tanner, Todd, Unsoeld, Valle, Vekich, Walk, Wang, K. Wilson, S. Wilson, Wineberry and Zellinsky.

Those voting for Mr. Wilson were: Representatives Addison, Allen, Ballard, Barnes, Barrett, Betzoff, Bond, Brooks, Brough, Chandler, Dobbs, Doty, Ehlers, Fuhrman, Hankins, Hastings, Holland, Isaacson, Lewis, Long, Lundquist, May, Miller, Nealey, G. Nelson, Padden, Patrick, Prince, Sanders, Schmidt, Schoon, Silver, C. Smith, L. Smith, Taylor, Thomas, Tilly, van Dyke, Van Luven, Vander Stoep, Walker, West, B. Williams, J. Williams and Winsley.

The Chief Clerk appointed Representatives Hine and Ballard to escort Speaker Ehlers to the rostrum and Justice Hamilton issued the oath of office to him.

The Chief Clerk presented the gavel to the Speaker.

SPEAKER'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

The Speaker: "Two years ago I was selected to serve this House as your Speaker. It was an honor that many seek but few have the opportunity to achieve. As a student of government and as one who respects and cherishes this institution, I accepted the task with full knowledge of the trust you placed in my hands. It is an even greater honor today that you have chosen once again to ask me to lead this House. It is, I believe, a reaffirmation that those goals I outlined to you two years ago—many of which we achieved—were ones that you shared.

"Two years ago, in my acceptance speech, I outlined a program of specific goals:

- To have the collective political courage to avoid fiscal gimmicks and lightbulb switches;

- To eliminate the budget gimmick called the twenty-fifth month;

- To avoid across-the-board cuts or increases to all agencies and programs, but to sort out the good from the bad programs and managers;

- To dedicate those funds from the ending balance of the biennium for our unfunded pension obligation rather than for new programs;

- To make a major effort to restore the fiscal integrity and the credit rating for this state;

- To emphasize legislative compromise rather than political partisanship;

- To create a rainy-day reserve account to bring more stability to our budgeting process.

"With the exception of the latter charge, we achieved those goals. I am proud of you for making it happen.

"Now we face two years of great expectations. There is an electricity--a spirit--in Olympia that I have not sensed in my previous twelve years of service. The public is expecting us to address, and solve, problems that have been with us for years and are not easily resolved in one biennium. We again have limited financial resources to solve complex issues that cannot be avoided. The easy path is to plead 'limited finances' and simply walk away. My challenge to you is to seek creative ways of dealing with these great expectations.

"Staging of program funding; pivot studies that are properly funded with provable results; increasing employee productivity by rekindling pride in what they do; and hands-on personal involvement in attracting new investors and new jobs to our state's economy are only some of the techniques that we can employ.

"The words that I shared with you two years ago are still appropriate today. There are many new faces here in these chambers. We must not concern ourselves with old wounds, only in new beginnings. If we are going to be measured for our performance here, let it be said this was a legislature of action and not a legislature of inaction."

ELECTION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The Speaker announced that nominations were in order for Speaker Pro Tempore.

Mr. Ebersole: "With a great deal of admiration and affection, I rise to nominate the most distinguished member of the Washington State House of Representatives, John Lawrence O'Brien. John Lawrence O'Brien is a great man. John O'Brien has been a member of the Washington State House of Representatives for forty-three years. John O'Brien was first elected in 1941. Franklin Delano Roosevelt was in the White House and John Lawrence O'Brien was in this state house. Since that time he has survived twenty-two reelection campaigns, and I'm proud to say in 1984, John O'Brien defended freedom by single-handedly defeating a communist. From 1955 to 1962, John O'Brien served as Speaker of this House. John O'Brien is the only person to be elected Speaker on four consecutive occasions. He also served as acting Speaker in 1976 and in 1980, when the House ran into a few difficulties and in fact, John O'Brien has served in a leadership position in a state legislature longer than any person in these United States.

"As I thought about John O'Brien in anticipation of this moment, I tried to come up with those characteristics which make O'Brien O'Brien, and I came up with the following: He has the wit and charm of an Irishman, the carriage and the refined courtly manners of an English gentleman, the style and good taste of a Frenchman and an Italian's love of art. Just a word to new members: Vote against the Art Commission at your own peril. Among his other many qualities, John Lawrence O'Brien has a very good memory. When you see John assume that Jack Benny pose and that Mona Lisa smile, you might want to reconsider your vote. John laid the age-issue to rest last session when he presided all night while members half his age slept in the wings. John has forty-three years worth of parliamentary rulings stored away in his memory, and he can go any way you want to go on any occasion. He is called Father O'Brien and, more reverently, Monsignor O'Brien. Speaker O'Brien is a legend. Father O'Brien is a tradition. Monsignor O'Brien is an inspiration. We look to him for guidance and counsel and he does not disappoint us. This is a man who has served us well. His very presence enriches our institution and brings a sense of dignity and decorum to these chambers. I asked John O'Brien once why he never moved across the rotunda to that other body, and he looked at me and said simply, 'I didn't want to leave home.' John, we don't want you to leave home.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I'm proud to nominate John Lawrence O'Brien to assume his rightful place as Speaker Pro Tem of the Washington State House of Representatives."

Ms. Niemi: "It gives me great pleasure to second the nomination of John O'Brien for Speaker Pro Tem. John O'Brien represents a neighboring district and in this particular legislature with this particular governor, it's very nice to have someone from the City of Seattle in a leadership position. We can all learn to be more effective legislators by watching John O'Brien. His bills pass as if by magic just as effortlessly as he presides. I hope he is around quite a few sessions more so that I can pick up a little bit more from John O'Brien. He teaches us all also how to deal with technicalities and those of us who would ignore or skip over some of his sessions will not be nearly as effective in dealing with the legislature. I urge you all to support this very experienced and dignified Representative for Speaker Pro Tem."

Mr. Dellwo: "I, too, rise with pride to second the nomination of John O'Brien as Speaker Pro Tem. John, as you must recognize, is a legislator's legislator. He is the most senior member of the House of Representatives. In fact, when he took office in 1941, it was four years before my birth. John is so much a part of legend, the lore and history of this institution, that it is easy to convey to the new members what this means to the House. John can contribute so much, so many benefits to the House, that it is with pride that I second the nomination of John O'Brien for Speaker Pro Tem."

On motion of Mr. Appelwick, the nominations for Speaker Pro Tem were closed and Representative John L. O'Brien was elected unanimously as Speaker Pro Tem of the House of Representatives.

The Speaker appointed Representatives Ebersole and G. Nelson to escort Representative O'Brien to the rostrum and Justice Hamilton issued the oath of office to him.

ELECTION OF CHIEF CLERK

Mr. Grimm: "For position of Chief Clerk of the Washington State House of Representatives, I nominate Mr. Dennis Lynn Heck. I hope you will please forgive me if my remarks appear somewhat ill-prepared. I was planning to give this nominating speech, but not for about two years and even then, for another position. I realize that coronations are best when done quickly, but I would like to take a moment, with the consent of the Speaker, to recognize someone in the gallery, if I may: The product of eight years of hard labor, Robert Dennis Heck and his mother, Paula Fruci Heck. Thank you for that.

"For those of you who are new, the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives is our official keeper of the records and actually could best be described as being the equivalent of an agency director in the executive branch. There is no question that the gentleman I am nominating, and for whom I hope you will join me and by acclamation, elect as Chief Clerk is qualified for the job. But I would, given a few years of working together, appreciate just a moment to take a measure of the man.

He is a leader we have had and he is a leader we will have still, even though the relationship will be different.

"Several years ago I was new to these Chambers, as all of us are at one time or another even the Speaker Pro Tem; we are always very nervous about getting reelected, and that seems to consume a great deal of our time, our thoughts and our energy. There was a vote coming up on this floor and it was a close one, a volatile one, and it was one that everyone in this state who paid any attention to the legislature was paying attention to. I thought I knew how I wanted to vote, but I knew I was going to catch it back home. I was sitting back on that couch and I was distraught, I was scared because I knew that even if I didn't lose that next election because of that vote, I was at least going to get into an awful lot of trouble and it was going to be very, very difficult to prevail a year and a half later. Denny Heck sat down and asked me about it, and he asked, 'Well, how do you feel?' and I said, 'Well, left to my own devices, I think this is how I would voted.' He said, 'It will probably be tough, but some things are worth losing an election for.' That's the kind of strength and leadership that he provided and will continue to provide for us. He recognizes that we serve a purpose as legislators that is greater than each of us, that is greater than all of us. Eight years ago when he was first elected, he was part of a vanguard of legislators who had been born in the Viet Nam War era and who didn't have a whole lot of respect for the structure of government as it was. He came down here ambitious, and a question was asked by a gentleman named Mr. Horsey. He said, 'Well, he has all of the qualifications and he has all of the background and he knows how to target those instincts, but does he have a heart?' And now at this juncture where he is changing from a job as legislator to that of Chief Clerk, it is not inappropriate for me to answer that question for you, Mr. Horsey, the answer is 'Yes.' He has proved time and time again that he has a heart, courage, a heart of kindness, a heart of compassion, a heart of grace.

"If I'm taking too long and being too boring, I only ask that you recognize that Mr. Heck and I came here together as members in 1977, but even before that, we worked on the staff here in the House for at least a couple of years together. He, as analyst for the Education Committee and I, as the analyst for Higher Education Committee, and while we worked together all of us in a war-like effort where we have to rely on one another, he and I have developed a friendship that has gone through the years, and I don't begrudge him his having left--perhaps early--but now he's going back to a real job and I'm left here with this crummy desk on the floor.

"I hope you will join with me in voting for Mr. Heck for Chief Clerk of the Washington State House of Representatives."

Mr. Barrett: "I would like to remind all of my fellow members on the floor that the minority party has a major stake in the office of Chief Clerk. Mr. Speaker, we understand that your responsibility is to the state. You are one of the leaders of the legislative--executive--judicial branch, but the Chief Clerk is responsible to us. That person is the soul who sits up at the head of this room and makes sure that the procedure works well, and I suppose, that the files are kept, but more importantly, that both sides have an opportunity to express their opinions and that they are fairly heard. I, in the past two years in working with Dennis Heck as a fellow floor leader, have risen today to second the nomination because of one major thing, and that is that I have complete trust in Dennis Heck that he will always be fair to the minority party; that he will act as our advisor as well as an advisor to the majority party.

"Dennis, you are going to make a major change as you walk from the partisan part of this building to the nonpartisan, but I have absolute faith that of all the people in this room, you will do it as easily as anyone we might have suggested. I think that you and I, as members of this House, are going to find out that Dennis Heck is going to be an asset.

"He has some tremendous shoes to fill--size 500 I suppose, but I think his experience as one of us is going to stand in good stead. He is going to make sure that this system protects the system.

"I urge that you join me in voting for Dennis Heck for this position that he so richly deserves; and the minority party, Dennis, certainly looks forward to working with you."

On motion of Mr. J. King, nominations for Chief Clerk were closed and Dennis L. Heck was unanimously elected Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives.

The Speaker appointed Representatives Grimm and Hankins to escort Chief Clerk Heck to the rostrum and Justice Hamilton issued the oath of office to him.

ELECTION OF ASSISTANT CHIEF CLERK

Ms. Hine: "I would like to place in nomination the name of Sharon Case for Assistant Chief Clerk. Sharon has served in this role, which was created a couple years ago, and has served it extremely well. Sharon is one of these people who not only is able to work behind the scenes to do what is necessary, but also she is one who feels hurt when you are hurt and happy when you are happy, and she has truly been an extension of all of us when we need some of that emotional assistance and uplift. I will tell you, of all the people nominated for various positions today, I don't think the new people know anyone better than they know Sharon Case. Sharon put together the orientation program which went on first in December and then again last week. She, I think, did an excellent job of giving you the kind of information and tools that you are going to need to help you to become a good legislator. This is the first time in the last couple of years that we have had that intensive training program and Sharon has the credit for that.

"Sharon has worked around here since 1969, although she must have started as a page in that year. I asked her for a little information and she said she is a fourth generation resident of Thurston County, and I certainly hope you won't hold that against her as you pass this vote. She has been very active with all of us. I think that Chief Clerk Denny Heck will be the first to say that he probably couldn't have survived the past few weeks of getting used to his new job without Sharon Case. Nobody understands what it takes to run an operation like this, both in the institutional structure of the day-to-day kinds of activities as well as in the personalities of the staff and the preparation for all us ego-guys to come down here and make life difficult. Without Sharon's very, very strong support and ability to carry out many of those tasks, I know that we would not have the smooth-running operation that we do. I know that Denny Heck will kill us all if we don't give him Sharon to serve with him."

Ms. Hankins: "I rise to second the nomination of Sharon Case as Assistant Chief Clerk of the House. I think most of you are well aware of Sharon's abilities to organize and take care of the day-to-day functions of this institution. All I can say is, when you're rated a ten as I rate Sharon, and she's a good friend to all of us, please support her."

On motion of Mr. Appelwick, nominations for Assistant Chief Clerk were closed and Ms. Sharon Case was unanimously elected Assistant Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives.

The Speaker appointed Representatives Hine and Addison to escort Sharon Case to the rostrum and Justice Hamilton issued the oath of office to her.

ELECTION OF SERGEANT AT ARMS

Mr. Lux: "It is with a great deal of jubilation and sincerity that I place the name of Ross Young in nomination for Sergeant at Arms. The Sergeant at Arms of this body is the keeper of the keys, and he has been so in that position for over a decade in the Sergeant at Arms' office, in one way or another. There was an interlude there when he was not the official Sergeant at Arms, but he did know where those keys belonged. He is also charged with the care and comfort of the members of this House of Representatives and handles that responsibility and has handled it very, very well, and he treats with equal fairness both the majority and minority members. Those of you who have served here before know that Ross Young can help you in so many ways, in many, many ways that you probably are not aware of yet. The younger members will find that there are things they need help with and Ross Young has the ability, he has the staff, and he will work for you.

"I think Ross Young is the best person we can nominate for this position. I appreciate your support."

Mr. Prince: "I rise today to second the nomination of Ross Young, and I would like to depart, just a bit, from tradition. I would like to second the nomination in behalf of someone who went before us. A gentleman, that when I first came to this body, it was a privilege to work with and to work for; a man who gave his all and who believed in the sanctity of this body, who spent the latter part of his life trying to do the things that we are all doing at the moment; a man who would be duly proud today to see Ross voted as Sergeant at Arms again; a man who was the Assistant Sergeant at Arms for quite a number of years. This man, Brigham Young, the father of Ross Young, was a friend of mine and in his memory and his honor, I'm as proud as he would be if he could have been here today. I would like to second the nomination."

On motion of Mr. Appelwick, the nominations for Sergeant at Arms were closed. Ross Young was unanimously elected Sergeant at Arms.

The Speaker appointed Representatives Lux and Silver to escort Ross Young to the rostrum. Justice Hamilton issued the oath of office to Ross Young.

The Speaker appointed Representatives Armstrong and Padden to escort Justice Hamilton from the House Chamber.

MOTION

On motion of Mr. J. King, the House advanced to the eighth order of business.

Representative O'Brien moved adoption of the resolution. Representatives O'Brien and S. Wilson spoke in favor of the resolution, and it was adopted.

SPEAKER'S PRIVILEGE

The Speaker appointed Representatives Grimm and Prince to escort former Chief Clerk Dean R. Foster to the rostrum.

The Speaker: "It is a pleasure to have the opportunity to present House Floor Resolution 85-2 to you, Dean. I came into this body in 1973 as you became Chief Clerk. Most recently, there have been a number --I remember when Governor-elect Booth Gardner called me and said, 'I've got some bad news I want to talk to you about,' and I said, 'What is it?' and he said, 'I want to hire Dean Foster, but I haven't talked to him yet.' And I said, 'How about any six members and three first-round choices?' Many of you don't know that in the last three days, three other of our staff members, besides Dean, have gone to work for Governor-elect Gardner. So I'd like to think, Dean, that you and your three colleagues who are now working for Booth Gardner, are still with us. We'll consider you the House staff in-exile, down on the second floor. Dean Foster, I'm very pleased to give you this resolution."

Dean Foster: "First, I like to say just a bit about this institution. Twelve years ago when I was here taking oath of office for the first time, there were three members who were senior members sitting in this audience: Representative O'Brien, Representative Gallagher and Representative Dick King. There were also five other people who were freshmen, just like me: Representative Speaker Ehlers, Representative Sommers, Representatives Gary Nelson, Earl Tilly and Sim Wilson. We embarked on a course that has taken us through five speakers: Speaker Sawyer, Speaker Bagnariol, Speaker Berentson, Speaker Polk and Speaker Ehlers, always with the guidance of Speaker O'Brien and Speaker Pro Tem Amen. I believe the people of this state need to know that this institution, for better or worse, when we're down, when people ridicule, when people talk about it, make jokes about the legislature, this institution pulls itself up from its bootstraps. The kinds of things that the people in the House of Representatives and this legislature do for the people of this state often go unnoticed, but I've seen people working side-by-side who happen to disagree on a particular issue. But to work out a problem, I have seen Republicans and Democrats work night after night to work out a state budget, when other people went home at 5 o'clock, went home on weekends. I believe the whole is certainly greater than any of its parts and this institution, the people of this state need to know, will continue to perform the kind of service that is asked for in the Constitution and is demanded by the public. That is the group of people who truly represent the people in Walla Walla and Spokane and throughout eastern Washington and western Washington--who truly represent those kinds of ideas that are happening out there--and I would just like to applaud the institution of the Legislature. When those nights get long, you wonder why you doorbelled all summer; you wonder why you're here; somebody's yelling at you on the phone for a vote. We're part of it, and when it's over and when our time has come, we can all be proud of the fact that we spent time in this legislature and served the public as we have.

"Finally, I'd like to make some thank yous. First, I'd like to ask the people in the back room to bring Phyllis Mottman out. As they are doing that, I'd like to thank, particularly, the members of this body and those whom I've known for so long. When I first started working for the legislature in 1959, I worked in the Senate. There was a young man who was working in the House. His name was Gene Prince. Gene and I have worked together for a long time and I want to thank him for the support he's given me. There are also other members of this body who have been staff members: John Betzoff, Dan Grimm--I'm sure I'm going to miss some--but I'm proud of the fact that there are people in this body who have been staff members, and those who worked with us have given us the kind of support that we have certainly needed when those hours were long and we wondered sometimes why we're here. I'd also like to thank my family who are in the gallery, my mother and father, Wanda and Bob Foster from Sim Wilson's district, Whidbey Island. Sharon Petty and my three sons who love these kinds of days because they get out of school for the entire day, but I know they are here to see me--in the order of where they are sitting, Michael Foster, David Foster and Scott Foster.

"Finally, thanks go, and it was said earlier by Sharon Case, the staff of the Washington State Legislature is the finest of any legislative staff in this country. When I first came to the legislature, there was a much smaller staff. The staff has grown, not only in size, but also in quality. There's one person on this staff to whom I owe most of my good credit, good press, and her name is Phyllis Mottman. When I first came here, Phyllis and her husband George were working in the House. They were an institution, and they brought to the legislature the kind of dedication that the people of this state deserve. About a year and a half ago, George died of cancer. Phyllis has continued essentially to run the House of Representatives. As a symbol of the staff of the House of Representatives, I would like to present these roses to Phyllis and thank her for helping me and making this such a great institution.

"Thank you, members of the House, my family, Phyllis, Mr. Speaker; I'll quit before we all cry."

The Speaker presented Dean Foster with a gift from the members of the House of Representatives.

GOVERNOR'S ADDRESS

ADDRESS BY GOVERNOR SPELLMAN

Governor Spellman: "Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, esteemed members of the Supreme Court, statewide elected officials, members of the House and Senate, ladies and gentlemen: Four years ago I stood here with a song in my heart anticipating the future of the State of Washington. Our very distinguished presiding officer coaxed that song from my heart as he ended the ceremony and we talked about the sun that was going to come out tomorrow. Throughout some of the most difficult years in the history of the state of Washington, we maintained the optimism, thinking the sun would come out and it did. The state of the State of Washington is very good. The prospects for the State of Washington are even better. We have entered into the period that has been anticipated since the first territorial governor in all of the addresses that have ever been made--the Century of the Pacific has emerged. The state of Washington emerges as a leader in that new era of prosperity and amity between nations, with the State of Washington being in key position for the future of the United States.

"We have not kept our light hidden under a bushel basket. We have told the world of the grandeur and magnificence and the art that exists here in the State of Washington. Tourists from around the world are flocking in enjoying and adding to our economy. We have renewed friendships throughout the world and established new relationships with major nations of the world. The result will be, indeed, prosperity for our children and their children to come. Perhaps even more importantly, a strengthening of the bonds of friendship and understanding between the people of the world, an enhancement of the peace that must exist in the world.

"We have acknowledged that the bedrock upon which the strength of the state of Washington will be built and prosperity and our trade is in the education of our children. We have spent many years analyzing the educational system of this state and the opportunities for enhancement of that system. We are now in a position where that constitutionally-mandated age-old duty of the state of Washington, to educate, is being one hundred percent funded by the State of Washington. We must not, in our enthusiasm to get even better education, ignore higher education, which, even though it is not written specifically in the Constitution, is very much a part of the total educational system and of the state's duty to educate. Without education all of the dreams of this state will never be met. All of the opportunities will never be achieved. We have reaffirmed, sometimes under difficult circumstances, the commitment of the State of Washington to its blessed environment. We have embarked upon projects to maintain the quality of the water in the smallest brook to the great Puget Sound and to clean up the caustic wastes that have existed. We have, with vigor, gone forth to find them, identify them and do something about them. The people of this state will not be tolerant of anything other than clean water, clean air, clean land and an appreciation of the environment for which we are all stewards.

"Domestic tranquility--one of the reasons why governments exist--in the State of Washington, we have contributed to the domestic tranquility by a new emphasis on management and proper structuring of our correctional system. We have acquired new facilities; we have reached a point now where with adequate space, we can separate those from society who should be separated from society and we can also have the programs for education and rehabilitation in a less crowded atmosphere. Domestic tranquility cannot exist if the government itself is in a shambles, if the government itself is in a state of chaos. We have made great progress in restoring to the state its own intermanagement. This is the first biennium in a very long time in which the state is really living within its revenue. There is no more borrowing of a month from the next biennium. The state is not borrowing for cash flow and it should never again; if need never again. The state now engages in generally-accepted accounting principles and it has for three years running, had audited financial statements for the first time in the history of the state and is one of the few states in the United States that has done that. These good practices allow us to analyze what we are doing, what we are achieving and to go forth. We have had a lot of management studies across the state in the last few years and without exception, we found out that the program wasn't as bad as everybody thought it was, but the data was lacking to analyze. The data was lacking to probe improvement. In tough times it is very difficult to put the dollars into the systems of a data because the people's needs are very great. It is important though that we do better in those areas; that we put the necessary dollars into the accounting and the data systems, so that we can do the better job in all areas of both schools and the environment.

"We have ceased the improper practice of using capital funds for operating expenses and before you is a six-year capital plan—a first in the history of the state—which allows us to think ahead. We will build the facilities necessary for the growth and the maintenance of a sound state. Statewide, the state of the state is very good. The state of the economy is strong. We have long awaited the day when we could say that and yet, even now, it is apparent that expenditure anticipation exceeds expenditure ability. I suspect that will always be the case. If we were to meet all of that pent-up anticipation for expenditures, we would have a pervasive, powerful, prying government that would dominate all and we would have families and taxpayers who were in a state of poverty, and an economy that was in a state of being damped down. The answer to the problems of the state for a sound growth of its economy, its education, its environmental problems is growth of jobs and economic development within the state.

"I have in the past, and I will not today, talk about economic development and jobs and the like. They are two old plights. The systems are there—the industrial revenue bonds program, the housing finance program, the tourism program, the world trade program. I will not linger on that, but it is important to acknowledge that there are pillars upon which the economy of this state will depend. They are agriculture, our natural resources industry—fishing and timber—the services we provide one another, technology and trade. Always, education must be added to any such group. To the extent any part of that group is ignored, it is likely the entire state suffers. Each part must be nurtured. Some parts need a great deal of nurturing and it seems to me it is our mutual task to make sure that occurs.

"Having presided over what was known as the Boeing—bust of the early 70s, I learned an important lesson and I have told it to economic development groups throughout the state for some time. I can't miss the opportunity to mention it again. That is that economic development and jobs' programs are not something that we can have the luxury of turning our attention to only in bad times, as a matter of fact if we do, we are wasting money and we are wasting effort and we're not accomplishing anything. It is almost like a tribal ritual that whenever the economy goes bad and there's unemployment, we start—we start committees, we start actions—and we talk about it and when the adverse situation goes away, we think we have solved the problem. Of course, the problem is solved without all those activities. It is important that we maintain a long-term commitment to jobs and economic development, year in and year out, in order to maintain the stability of the economy and the jobs and the families within the state of Washington.

"Certainly, no person in this room, even the freshmen, can help but take some pride in having hung in there during some very tough times. We cannot help but feel pride for working the difficult problems. I thank you; I thank you for cooperation. I remember when our distinguished senior statesman, Senator Magnuson, stood here (not that long ago) and gave one of his secrets of success and that was that we should, if we didn't agree, disagree without being disagreeable. By and large we have been able to carry that out and I want to thank you for it. There are many people who have contributed to the common will of the state of Washington, many seated in front of us, and many in the various departments of state government. I will not enumerate. There is one person who I think has contributed a great deal, sometimes with some anonymity, and that is the first lady of each governor and she is there again today. Lois has been quietly, not always quietly, personally, made a tremendous impact I think. She doggedly hung in there for the council against child abuse. She suffered some disappointment and then went directly to the legislature on the Council for Voluntary Action. The volunteer programs, and the recognition of the volunteers that have been here in these chambers, I think are an inspiration and, again, something that should not only exist in tough times, but should be nurtured and grow so there will be a place in good times and bad times. The food banks and the network of stores, and shippers and growers, who have served with the network for food distribution in the state—and the art of the northwest which was brought to the Governor's mansion—and the home that was established not just for the children and me, but for all of us—the Governor's home, it is something that I thank Lois for.

"I have been in government service, almost exactly to the day, eighteen years. I have enjoyed every day of it. The challenges sometimes seemed insurmountable, but the optimism was more than enough to carry through those tough times. I believe government is important. I believe it is a high calling. I believe it is a civilizing influence that keeps people working together for common goals. In this state, it is a means by which we reach a consensus as to what tasks we shall take up mutually that cannot be done by individuals or cannot profitably be done by the private sector. It is a calling into which I hope many young people will come and will find the inspiration that will come from you here because it is a rare commodity in the world today and it is something I will always cherish, as I will the time I have served here as governor. I have mentioned optimism two or three times in these remarks, and I think it is the most important asset that we can have here in the State of Washington, in our neighborhoods, our families and in our government. There are a lot of doom and gloomers, but there is everything to be optimistic about in the state of Washington. It is the most glorious place on the face of the earth in which to live; it has people who are energetic, who have always out-performed people in other parts of the country, and it is sitting on the springboard of prosperity for generations to come. The world has changed its entire balance toward the Pacific Northwest.

"Washington is a state that has always had promise; it is achieving rapidly that full promise and I think we are just at the point of the preamble to the glorious future in this state.

"Lois and I wish Booth and Jean Gardner the wisdom and the tenacity and the strength to continue to assist in achieving that destiny, which is abundantly clear and magnificent for this state. It is time now to bid farewell and I cannot do so without saying how grateful I am to each of you for the contributions, for the consultations, for the actions that have occurred along the way. I, indeed, recall the first night we met Olympia, a consensus reached within our own family and that was that we shouldn't be doing this if we did not enjoy it, and we have enjoyed it. I am very excited about the future of this state. I'm also very excited about the future out there for Lois and myself. May God bless each of you and God bless the State of Washington."

INAUGURAL ADDRESS

"Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Mr. Chief Justice, distinguished Justices of the Supreme Court, members of the Legislature, honored elected officials and fellow citizens of Washington State:

"Ninety-six years ago, at his inauguration as Washington's first governor, Elisha Ferry said: 'With resources superior to those of any equal area, with a population as enterprising as it is courageous, with a climate which commends itself to all who experience it, occupying a position at the gateway of Oriental and Occidental commerce of the future, there is no reason why the state of Washington should not rank among the most prominent States of the Union, nor why our people should not enjoy the priceless blessings of prosperity, health and happiness.'

"Looking back over our state's first century, we can see that Governor Ferry had good reason for his optimism. He saw accurately that the state's key location, its abundant resources and its enterprising population would result in growth and prosperity.

"Now, as we stand on the brink of Washington's second century, we must keep Elisha Ferry's flame of optimism alive as we accept the responsibilities of governance. They include:

- A responsibility to turn over a clean and safe environment to our children;
- A responsibility to provide our children with the best education possible;
- And a responsibility to diversify and expand our economy, bringing jobs to the unemployed, food to hungry and a stable and predictable revenue base to support basic state services.

"The burden of these responsibilities is compounded by serious problems that we face as a state. Nearly 200,000 of our citizens who want work cannot find it. Much of our abundant agricultural harvest has no market. Our timber industry faces high transportation costs to the fastest growing markets, a strong dollar that limits our exports, and competition from cheap foreign imports and faster growing Southern timber. Overfishing and poor management have vastly depleted our salmon resources to the point that only the strongest action has any chance to restore the fishery to its former success. Pollution threatens our shellfish harvests. Roads, bridges and public buildings are in critical need of repair at a time when our revenue base simply will not permit us to address all our needs. Many people have lost confidence in the ability of our public schools and institutions of higher learning to provide quality education. For too long, these problems have been pushed ahead of us, and now it's collection day. These problems are not an indictment, but our failure to begin to solve them would be.

"The challenges we face are difficult, but difficulty is an excuse that history never accepts. And we do have the chance -- a golden opportunity -- to make history here in Washington state. History lies in transforming Washington into the Gateway of the future. We must work to solve our immediate problems, but we must also begin to think and to reach beyond the next four years. We must begin to put in place the foundation for our second century. We can begin by utilizing our greatest asset -- one which is too often overlooked -- our people.

"Adam Smith first observed that the real wealth of nations is in their people and nowhere is that more true than here in our state of Washington. This can be seen in our gleaming cities where, with tremendous pride, the people have put together the resources to create nationally famous landmarks such as the Space Needle and the Pike Place Market in Seattle, Riverfront Park and the Opera House in Spokane, and the Pantages Theater and the Tacoma Dome in my home town. The tremendous resources of our people can be found every evening as hundreds of volunteer boards gather in communities all across the state. These volunteer organizations give meaning to the word community. Without volunteers, in this age of limited resources and government cutbacks, thousands of our poor, handicapped and elderly citizens would not be able to participate in the life of the greater community that most of us take for granted.

"We must utilize yet another of our unnoticed assets -- the energy and talents of the people who work in state and local governments. Their efforts can provide the firm foundation for a state community built on cooperation and trust between government and citizens. I want to take a moment to talk directly to my fellow state employees. In the week since the election, I've spent a good deal of time observing your work firsthand. In agency after agency, I've seen the hard work and dedication to the common good that I expected. I want you to know that I have faith and confidence in you. Our challenge, working together, is to make the people of this state proud of their government. We must also have cooperation here in the halls of this Legislature, and between the legislative and executive branches of government. We have with us a host of pressing problems. I can as Governor address those problems, but I cannot solve them without the help and support of the legislature. In each house there is an aisle which separates the two political parties. Between the two houses there is a corridor which separates them. One floor in this building separates the executive from the legislative branch of government. These barriers can be passageway as we join our talents in serving the people and doing their business. Those things which unite us are far greater than those barriers which separate us. Never has it been more essential for state government to be united. Every responsible economist is predicting some tight times in the state for the next two years. Government must set some priorities which acknowledge these forecasts. Here are mine:

-- First, we must develop an approach to economic growth which will give us a diversified economy based on the realities of a post industrial world.

-- Second, we must sustain necessary services to help those in need and to protect the public health and safety;

-- Third, we must end the practice of pushing our problems into the future and onto the shoulders of our children, whether the subject is pensions or repairs to our infrastructure;

-- Fourth, we must create a budget reserve large enough to absorb unanticipated drops in revenue without having to resort to session after session and service cut after service cut to balance the budget. In my mind, these are the things that are most important and areas in which I'm most hopeful something can be accomplished.

"These are our immediate objectives, but we need to do more. We must start by tending to those things which will provide the foundation for our future. We must start with education, the environment and economic development -- even if funding limitations do not allow us to do all that we would like.

"In education, I want to achieve excellence at all levels and in every classroom of our K-12 and higher education systems. There is much that needs to be done. Responsible studies, such as the one done by the Washington Roundtable and the 3609 Commission, point to the needs. What is not evident is the means to pay for excellence. Today, state government cannot afford to do all that it should in education. The economic climate prevents the full commitment of resources necessary to rebuild our education system. But we must begin the process. We must demonstrate our commitment to improving the schools. A place to begin is to double the preschool enrollment of those children who are identified as being at-risk, and I will propose legislation that will accomplish this by the end of the biennium. No area of government was hit harder during the recession of the last four years than higher education. When hard times come, our universities and community colleges are the easiest place to cut tax dollars -- but it is not the wisest area to cut. The economic development of this state will rely on our commitment to rebuild our higher education system. In the next four years, my efforts will center on expanding the tax base through expansion and diversification of the economy. As the economy expands, we must make the commitment to the improvement of higher education. If we continue to face difficult times in the coming two years, we must recognize that higher education cannot tolerate more cuts.

"Next I want to talk about Puget Sound and the state's other vital water resources. I am determined to stop further pollution. Our efforts can begin in this biennium by strengthening our ability to identify pollution sources and by agreeing on a long-term plan against which all actions of the state and local governments can be measured. I will propose legislation enhancing the ability of the Puget Sound Water Quality Authority to achieve these results. I will also ask you to approve legislation that will immediately improve the Department of Ecology's ability to monitor and enforce restrictions on wastewater discharge into the Sound and other waterways.

Finally, commerce and economic development. I see economic development as the best long-term answer to the financial problems that plague this state. In the short-term, there are things we can and must do. A strategic plan for economic development must be developed for our state. I will take the lead in developing this plan, but local economic development groups, the business community, labor and environmental interests must take their part if the plan is going to be realistic. Once we have this plan, I will have the Department of Commerce and Economic Development organized and ready to carry it out with the highest professionalism and commitment. There is no graphic reminder of the need for economic development than what is happening today in towns like Raymond and Shelton, where people have been forced out of employment due to mill closures and our changing economy. Many are people who have spent ten, twenty, even thirty years in a job and now find that their skills may not be needed again, at least in the foreseeable future. It is not enough to tell these people to wait until the economy booms again. It's not going to be easy for towns like Raymond and Shelton, but there are a couple of things we can do. Our state economic development strategy must explicitly address the needs of these communities. As we recruit new jobs from other states and other parts of the world, we must match them to the resources of our communities in economic distress. No action will be more important to the future of the entire state than a targeted recruitment of new industries for communities in need. I will propose legislation creating a process to designate hard hit communities as economically distressed areas. Funds from the Job Training Partnership Act and Community Economic Revitalization Board will be directed toward these communities.

There are two further subjects we must address. First, health care costs. We can begin now to contain the rising cost of health care. Next to education, these costs are the largest in our state budget. Over the last decade they have been rising at rates far higher than inflation. We must join with the private sector to bring these costs under control. I will ask you to approve several measures to give the state the authorities and structures it needs to contain health care costs.

Finally, we must search for other ways to save tax dollars without sacrificing vital services. When I became Pierce County Executive I was faced with a government deeply in debt and workers demoralized by a system that failed to recognize their value. At that time, I had the authority to reorganize government. This allowed me to restructure the county agencies, eliminate duplication and unnecessary management, and make each employee's work more meaningful. We were also able to improve service to the citizens.

It is time state government does the same. I will work with the Legislature, and support legislation, to streamline state government. It is the only way to turn the rhetoric of government efficiency into action. Our times are difficult, but they offer great opportunity. It is in times like these that people work best together, take risks with new ideas and fresh approaches, and lay solid groundwork for better times.

As I mentioned at the beginning of this address, we are standing at the brink of the state's second century. I believe we can and should use the time between now and the celebration of this anniversary in a spirit of rediscovery, rededication and renewal.

-- Rediscovery of our rich heritage and the many valuable resources we have in our state;

-- Rededication to the spirit of cooperation, working together and sharing together has characterized this state's greatest moments since the pioneer days;

-- and renewal of our institutions of government, to make them responsive to the needs of the future. We should spend the next four years actively preparing for our second century.

"The age of the Pacific is upon us. The focus of the world is moving away from the European continent; it is turning toward the nations and states of the Pacific Rim. And we are the natural gateway to the Pacific and to the bright economic future that it holds. We can make this our future. It will take the same strong effort that our pioneer ancestors used to transform a wilderness into the Evergreen State. There will be mistakes along the way, but we will be making progress if each mistake we make is a new one. I am honored today to take up these challenges. I hope that all of you -- legislators, state employees and officials, and the citizens throughout this state -- will join with me in a commitment to our future. Washington will become the Gateway of the Future. We have it within our power. Let us match our power to the possibilities of progress and build our Gateway of the future. Let's get to work. Thank You."

WHEREAS, The members of the Select Committee on Campaign Practices, appointed jointly by the Honorable Speaker and Honorable Minority Leader of the House of Representatives, after hearing public testimony given under oath, considering physical evidence, considering instructions of law provided by independent counsel, and due deliberation have concluded that: (1) The use of the advertising pamphlet entitled "Our Opinion" by Representative van Dyke constitutes an unfair campaign practice; and (2) the unfair campaign practice engaged in by Representative van Dyke, considered in the context of the entire campaign, did not result in an unfair election; and

"I'm sorry.

"Simple words, but not a simple thought.

"I am truly sorry, and I do apologize for the problems I caused and the embarrassment I caused to this institution and the members of this body and to our electoral process.

RESOLUTION

HOUSE FLOOR RESOLUTION NO. 85-7, by Representatives Hine, S. Wilson and Lundquist

WHEREAS, The 2,200 square miles of Puget Sound and its connecting waterways are a unique and precious resource to the economy and population of the State of Washington; and

WHEREAS, The health and cleanliness of Puget Sound is essential to economic diversity, strength and vitality, to public health and safety, and to the comfort and well-being of the entire state's population; and

WHEREAS, We are discovering increasing numbers of our embayments to be threatened by toxic chemicals and other pollutants coming from numerous sources; and

WHEREAS, Puget Sound ports, a vital component of Washington's success in trade with international markets, must dredge waterways to keep them open, yet face the uncertainty about disposal of toxic dredge spoils; and

WHEREAS, Our aquaculture industry is threatened by contamination that has led to the closure of increasing numbers of shellfish growing areas; and

WHEREAS, Our recreational fishing and industrial fishing are threatened by increasing incidents of disease in bottom fish; and

WHEREAS, We are finding increasing incidents of high levels of polychlorinated biphenyls and other toxics in marine birds and marine mammals generating concern for human health from long-term exposure; and

WHEREAS, Water in rivers and streams which feed into Puget Sound often are contaminated with agricultural pesticides and fertilizers; and

WHEREAS, The rapidly increasing population of the Puget Sound Basin is pumping ever larger quantities of surface water runoff containing toxics and other harmful pollutants into our rivers, streams and bays that discharge into Puget Sound; and

WHEREAS, Industrial and residential development and human activities along the Puget Sound shorelines need to be planned and managed across jurisdictional lines to minimize and, wherever possible, to prevent future contamination; and

WHEREAS, The handling, treatment, storage and disposal of hazardous and toxic materials and wastes of industry and the sewage and garbage from households are creating increasingly difficult, complicated and expensive problems requiring specialized scientific technologies and expertise beyond the fiscal and personnel resources of most jurisdictions; and

WHEREAS, The comprehensive management, clean-up and preservation of Puget Sound will require Sound-wide research, monitoring and testing, and interagency coordination to determine an appropriate and effective long-range plan which includes all jurisdictions impacting the sound;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the House of Representatives of the State of Washington establish a Select Committee on the Clean-up and Management of Puget Sound to address these complex and difficult pollution problems across jurisdictional lines and multiple funding sources after:

- (1) Conducting hearings;
- (2) Reviewing recommendations of state agencies, local government and other interested parties; and
- (3) Acting upon the legislative report by the Puget Sound Water Quality Authority; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the committee membership and the chair shall be chosen in a manner as indicated in the House Rules and that membership shall be composed of eight Democrats and seven Republicans; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the following standing committees of the House of Representatives shall be included in the membership of the select committee to assure a diversity of views in dealing with these complex and pressing problems:

- (1) Local Government Committee;
- (2) Environmental Affairs Committee;
- (3) Natural Resources Committee;
- (4) Agriculture Committee; and
- (5) Ways and Means Committee.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That this select committee shall have the same powers and duties of other House committees as provided for in the House Rules.

Ms. Hine moved adoption of the resolution. Representatives Hine, S. Wilson and Rust spoke in favor of the resolution and Mr. Taylor spoke against it.

POINT OF INQUIRY

Ms. Hine yielded to question by Mr. Sanders.

Mr. Sanders: "Representative Hine, I notice on the second page, line 28, that your resolution calls for a partisan makeup of eight Democrats and seven Republicans. I would think an issue as important as this would be nonpartisan and there would be an equal number of Democrats and an equal number of Republicans on this committee. Why have you made this resolution partisan?"

Ms. Hine: "It seems to me that most of our select committees do carry this kind of a makeup. It will have the power to vote bills out the same as a standing committee. It is consistent with a standing committee-type makeup with only a one member difference."

Mr. Sanders spoke against adoption of the resolution, and Mr. Barnes spoke in favor of it.

House Resolution No. 85-7 was adopted.

MOTION

On motion of Mr. J. King, the House adjourned until 11:00 a.m., Monday, January 21, 1985.

SPEAKER'S RULING

The Speaker: "For purposes of interpretation of 'Chambers' as it relates to this particular rule, it means the area within the curtains on the wings--anything within these wings. If this is adopted it would mean that there would be no smoking in this area."

Ms. Schmidt: "By that definition, does that also include the press tables? If so, what are the penalties for press and members who do violate this law?"

The Speaker: "For purposes of interpretation of this rule, it applies to all members, including on the rostrum, members and staff, as well as at the press tables--anything within the confines. As far as punishment, I'm sure nobody, Representative Schmidt, would dare violate any of our rules and we will, in fact, decide those as they come up as we would in any violation of any rule."

The Speaker declared the question before the House to be the final passage of House Floor Resolution No. 85-8 as amended.

RESOLUTIONS

HOUSE FLOOR RESOLUTION NO. 85-9, by Representatives J. King and Barrett

WHEREAS, It has been the custom for many years that the House of Representatives arrange and pay for a group picture of all members thereof, to be properly mounted and framed, in order that said picture may be hung in the legislative halls; and

WHEREAS, A certain procedure is necessary in order to designate whom the photographer shall be; and

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, By the House of Representatives, That the Speaker appoint a committee of three House members to consider and recommend to the House the official photographer for the Forty-ninth Session of the Legislature.

On motion of Mr. J. King, the resolution was adopted.

MOTION

On motion of Mr. Barrett, the rules were suspended to allow consideration of House Floor Resolution No. 85-10.

HOUSE FLOOR RESOLUTION NO. 85-10, by Representative Unsoeld

WHEREAS, The members of the House of Representatives hold a sacred trust with the people of the State of Washington to set a high standard of leadership in order to develop public trust in our political system; and

WHEREAS, The unfair campaign practices of a member of this body, Representative van Dyke, impugn the honor and integrity of the House of Representatives; and

WHEREAS, The actions of Representative van Dyke have shown contempt for the House of Representatives and for the electoral process;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, By the members of the House of Representatives, That Representative van Dyke is hereby expelled from the House of Representatives under Article II, Section 9 of the State Constitution for contempt, for violating the public trust and for failing to meet the high standards demanded of a Representative from District Thirty-nine B; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the Chief Clerk notify the Secretary of State and the county officials of Snohomish County, State of Washington, that a vacancy be filled in the manner provided by the Constitution and laws of the State of Washington.

Ms. Unsoeld moved adoption of the resolution. Representative Unsoeld spoke in favor of the resolution, and Mr. Tilly spoke against it.

POINT OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. van Dyke: "Mr. Speaker, am I eligible to vote on this matter?"

SPEAKER'S RULING

The Speaker: "The Speaker would like to call to the attention of all the members, Rule 20 of the Rules of the House, and to the citation which mentioned in the adopted Rules, page 9, and to the constitutional reference of Article II, section 30, Representative van Dyke. It is the view of the Speaker that Representative van Dyke shall be excused from voting on this issue because of Rule 20."

POINT OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. Dellwo: "What vote does it require for the passage of this resolution?"

The Speaker: "Sixty-six of those members elected."

Mr. Appelwick demanded an electric roll call vote and the demand was sustained.

MOTION

On motion of Mr. Barrett, the following remarks were ordered spread upon the Journal:

Ms. Unsoeld: "Mr. Speaker and members of the House: This is not a speech I care to make today. It is probably not a speech you care to hear, but it is a speech that must be made. This issue is with us when we arrive in the morning; it distracts us, it hovers over us throughout the day and then haunts us in the dark. We owe it to the citizens of this state and to Representative van Dyke to place this issue before us and act upon it. This issue is of a significance, such that we need to face it squarely as individuals and as a legislative body accountable to the public and decide how this situation can best be resolved.

"We all carry with us the frailties of being human. We all make mistakes and sometimes our actions send forth waves that break upon shores we may never see. I rise to speak in support of this resolution. Each of us, in our minds, must weigh for ourselves and our constituents the consequences to the public trust of the events of the election in District 39B. We must weigh the harmful effects, all of which we may not know -- we may not now be aware -- but we must, nevertheless weigh the effects of those events on this legislature and on the political process. The duty to confront our responsibility for maintaining the integrity of this institution and the political process falls first upon the shoulders of the individual, Representative van Dyke, and then on all of us together as members of the House of Representatives; not just as individuals, but as a single representative of the citizens of the State of Washington. We may not know whether or not our actions here today, when this comes to a vote, will, in the final analysis, be the right one. Nevertheless, the gravity of this situation is such that we need to take a stand. Each of us must examine our conscience and then in fear, in trembling, each of us must vote to defend the integrity of this institution and to make the term 'politicians' something to which our young can aspire."

Mr. Tilly: "It was a very heavy time on me, when I was asked if I would like to speak on this particular resolution today. I would like you to consider my reasons why I feel that we should vote against this resolution. I have to confess that after doing a lot of reading on this issue and listening to some of the media reports and talking to the six members who have served on the select committee, that I feel that what we have gone through is going to be of benefit to all of us. I like to use the words, adversity equals opportunity, and in conclusion I will mention that again, because I feel that out of this, we have the opportunity to improve ourselves. I share with the speaker and with the rest of you a concern about this institution because I'm proud that I'm a politician, that I'm a State Representative. It's something I've given a lot of my life to and I want the people of my district and in this state to be proud of what I am doing. I feel that the process that's been going on here -- the appointment of the select committee that was bipartisan -- has been a good process for the institution and for the six people who served on that, a good process for the person who offended the institution.

"Historically, according to the House Journals, one person has been expelled by the House of Representatives. That was in 1933, and was a person by the name of Nelson Robinson who was a convicted rapist. We have a far different situation today. Let's talk about the process again and the trust between the six members of that select committee, and we with you. We supported the committee -- we supported your conclusion on January 14, when we accepted your report, and again, on the 17th, following up on the process, and we all voted -- I believe it was unanimously -- to reprimand our colleague. I really felt that there was a lot of trust built up by the work of the committee and those of us here in the institution. I think the real question comes up as to how sincere was this member about his apology. How contrite was he in his apology? I think I really had questions about that at first because I think the member and some of the rest took it rather lightly. I think there has been a real change because I think the person really feels that we weren't kidding and the people back home aren't kidding either. I'm sure it has been very, very difficult, but it takes an awful lot for any of us to get up here and say, 'I'm sorry for what I did, and I am wrong.' I believe that person now is contrite and for those reasons we should accept him as a member.

"Yesterday there was, I believe, a hearing before the Public Disclosure Commission. Representative van Dyke went to the Commission. He made no defense for his action; he said, 'I'm guilty,' and the only thing he offered was an apology. He could have gummed up the works by denying it and pointing his finger at others and all that sort of thing. I think we all realize what is possible in the legal process. They found him in violation and they fined him the maximum. I hope he paid it. I believe that this is further proof of his sincerity to want to be a member of this body, to be the best possible representative that he can be from his district, 39B.

"I would like to conclude by saying that I feel that we should turn down the resolution; we have publicly reprimanded this member. I also would like to say that I appreciate the comments that many people have made to me in conversations the last two weeks on both sides of the aisle. There has definitely been deep concern. There has been no one who has been happy about this. I feel that we should learn from adversity. I feel that we should tighten up the Campaign Practices Act. Finally, I feel that, if this is turned down, we should do everything we can to uplift one another to improve the process and especially the member from 39B. I feel that we should, as brothers and sisters, help that person to be the best possible representative there is."

Modifying the regulation of water heater temperatures.

The bill was read the third time and placed on final passage.

Mr. Smitherman spoke in favor of passage of the bill.

POINT OF INQUIRY

Mr. Smitherman yielded to question by Mr. Wang.

Mr. Wang: "Representative Smitherman, the 1983 law referred to individual water heaters. My understanding is that this language does not really intend to reference the 1983 law on individual water heaters, that it was intended to exclude multiple residences supplied by central water heating systems and therefore, this is just a clarification rather than a change in policy. Is that correct?"

Mr. Smitherman: "That is correct."

ROLL CALL

The Clerk called the roll on the final passage of House Bill No. 34, and the bill passed the House by the following vote: Yeas, 95; excused, 3.

Voting yea: Representatives Addison, Allen, Appelwick, Armstrong, Ballard, Barnes, Barrett, Basich, Baugher, Belcher, Betzoff, Bond, Braddock, Brekke, Bristow, Brooks, Brough, Chandler, Cole, Crane, Day, Dobbs, Doty, Ebersole, Fisch, Fisher, Fuhrman, Gallagher, Grimm, Hankins, Hargrove, Hastings, Haugen, Hine, Holland, Isaacson, Jacobsen, King J, King P, King R, Kremen, Leonard, Lewis, Locke, Long, Lundquist, Lux, Madsen, May, McMullen, Miller, Nealey, Nelson D, Nelson G, Niemi, Nutley, O'Brien, Padden, Patrick, Peery, Prince, Rayburn, Rust, Sanders, Sayan, Schmidt, Schoon, Scott, Silver, Smith C, Smith L, Smitherman, Sommers, Sutherland, Tanner, Taylor, Thomas, Tilly, Todd, Unsoeld, Valle, van Dyke, Van Luven, Vander Stoep, Vekich, Walk, Walker, Wang, Williams B, Williams J, Wilson K, Wilson S, Winsley, Zellinsky, and Mr. Speaker - 95.

Excused: Representatives Dellwo, West, Wineberry - 3.

House Bill No. 34, having received the constitutional majority, was declared passed. There being no objection, the title of the bill was ordered to stand as the title of the act.

ENGROSSED HOUSE BILL NO. 37, by Representatives D. Nelson, Brough, Rust, Allen, Unsoeld, R. King, P. King, Fisch, McMullen and Lux

Authorizing above-ground tanks for recycling used oil.

The bill was read the third time and placed on final passage.

Mr. D. Nelson spoke in favor of passage of the bill.

POINT OF INQUIRY

Ms. Rust yielded to question by Ms. Allen.

Ms. Allen: "Representative Rust, is there any intent on the part of the committee to allow the Department of Energy to stipulate the placement of these tanks?"

Ms. Rust: "The intent of the bill is to adopt rules for standardized above-ground tanks for the collection of used oil. There is no intention in stipulating that local governments have to provide them in any particular place, at any time, any way, in this bill."

Ms. Allen spoke in favor of the bill.

POINT OF INQUIRY

Ms. Rust yielded to question by Mr. Isaacson.

Mr. Isaacson: "Representative Rust, many small collectors still do use fifty-five gallon drums for collecting their oil. Does this bill make it possible then that the Department of Ecology may make it illegal to store used oil in fifty-five gallon drums?"

Ms. Rust: "I'm sorry, I can't answer that question. The bill states that the State Fire Marshal, in cooperation with the Department of Ecology, shall adopt rules to allow for the placement of above-ground tanks for collection of used oil. It could be in their rule-making that they would decide that the drums are not safe."

Mr. Isaacson spoke in favor of the bill.

POINT OF INQUIRY

Mr. Isaacson yielded to question by Mr. Sanders.

Mr. Sanders: "Representative Isaacson, what is your understanding of the intent of this legislation?"

Mr. Isaacson: "The intent is to permit the Department of Ecology to establish a standardized design for a maximum-sized container for the collection of used oil. A standardized design would have many improvements and applications and perhaps be safer, especially as defined by the Fire Marshal over other types of containers. However, the intent is not to outlaw the use of standard fifty-five gallon drums for this purpose because those are standard containers that have particularly easy application. They are easy to handle; people are accustomed to them and they are easy to pick up and transport and replace."

POINT OF INQUIRY

Mr. D. Nelson yielded to question by Mr. Bond.

Mr. Bond: "Representative Nelson, I pretty well understand what you are doing here, but there's a major problem I think you left out, and that's the matter of a container to get it from home to the collection tank. Does this bill prescribe an authorized container with which to do that?"

Mr. D. Nelson: "No, Representative Bond, it does not. That issue was raised in the Environmental Affairs Committee. The State Fire Marshal's office indicated that would be included in the rules and the industry's representative indicated that is an issue that they plan to take care of by providing for a receptacle for people bringing their oil to deposit."

Mr. Bond spoke in favor of passage of the bill.

POINT OF INQUIRY

Mr. Locke yielded to question by Mr. Barnes.

Mr. Barnes: "Representative Locke, we may run into this 'presumption of guilt' or liability in another bill that is coming up later. I think perhaps myself and several other members who are not too cognizant of these legal matters may be helped in our decisions if we knew the answer to my question: If there is an inherent danger in transporting waste, (I'm using that as an example; it would apply in general to other things) and if something were to happen and it was nobody's fault—an act of God—and there were some damages caused, who would then, under 'presumption of guilt,' be liable?"

Mr. Locke: "When you say it's an act of God, and you say it's not the fault of the operator, then the operator would not be liable."

Mr. Barnes: "Then in case there is an inherent danger in the transportation, the operator or the people using or providing the service, could not be held liable under this presumptive context?"

Mr. Locke: "If there is only a presumption and that presumption is rebutted by the operator, indicating as is stated in the language,—it says, '...the presumption may be rebutted by a clear and convincing showing by the operator that the nuclear incident was not the result of the operator's negligence and that the operator's negligence was not an actual cause of the nuclear incident.' So if you show that it was an act of God or was the result of someone else and that it was through no control of the operator, and he was not the actual cause of the incident, that operator is not liable just because an incident occurs or an accident occurs."

POINT OF INQUIRY

Mr. Locke yielded to question by Mr. Hastings.

Mr. Hastings: "Representative Locke, I'm probably going someplace, and I'm not sure where it's heading because I'm not an attorney either, but part of our arguments to differentiate (and let me use laymen's terms) 'guilty until proven innocent' was the difference between criminal law and civil law. In subsection (2) there is a glaring statement that stands out and the statement is 'clear and convincing.' If I were, in laymen's terms, to turn that around, a person is presumed guilty until he can clearly and convincingly prove his innocence. My question to you is: In criminal law is the reverse true, you are innocent until proven guilty?"

Does the criminal law state 'clear and convincing'? What are the terms that we use in that sense?"

Mr. Locke: "In criminal law the burden is much, much higher. It's 'beyond a reasonable doubt.' 'Clear and convincing' is a much lower, lower standard, so that the person, the operator, does not have to use a higher standard in rebutting the evidence."

Mr. Hastings: "Are those phrases in law when you say difference is the weightedness on those phrases? 'Beyond all reasonable doubt' is much higher than 'clear and convincing'?"

Mr. Locke: "It's a judicial term, a legal term and universally accepted that 'beyond a reasonable doubt' is a very high burden, and 'clear and convincing' is a much lower burden. That's been defined in case law and is universally accepted throughout the United States. It is judicial language."

MOTION

Mr. Barrett moved that House Bill No. 54 be rereferred to Committee on Judiciary.

Mr. Barrett spoke in favor of the motion, and Mr. J. King opposed it.

The bill was read the second time. On motion of Mr. Peery, Substitute House Bill No. 2 was substituted for House Bill No. 2, and the substitute bill was placed on the calendar for second reading.

Substitute House Bill No. 2 was read the second time and passed to Committee on Rules for third reading.

The Speaker assumed the Chair.

On motion of Mr. J. King, the House advanced to the seventh order of business.

SIGNED BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker announced he was signing:
SENATE BILL NO. 3065.

THIRD READING

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 107, by Senators Goltz, Talmadge and Vognild

Establishing Joint Legislative Rules.

The resolution was read the third time and placed on final passage.

Mr. J. King spoke in favor of the resolution and Mr. Barrett spoke against it.

POINT OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. Lux: "Mr. Speaker, I hate to get involved in sticky business; it's not my nature to do this, but I see in Rule 6 there is some wording scratched out about meetings and it now allows that the conference committee can confer. My point is, are conference committees open to the public or is it at the discretion of the Speaker, the President of the Senate, the Chair of the Committee, or who makes the determination whether my constituents can sit in or not?"

SPEAKER'S REPLY

The Speaker: "It has been the practice of this body for a long time, Representative Lux, to let the majority of the people on the conference committee make that decision. I know when I was Chair of State Government Committee, that I did open up the preconference committee to the general public and the press, but it is a majority decision of the committee. On a number of cases those conferences have been open; other times they have chosen not to."

I see the language in the proposed bill without the amendment is eight years. Under Article XXIII on how amendments to the Constitution are made, my inquiry is, will it take two-thirds of the members present to pass a bill for this amendment? If so, will this measure have to be submitted for a vote of the people since we are changing the Constitution?"

SPEAKER'S RULING

The Speaker: "Representative Lewis, the Constitution indicates no more than four years. It is a precedent in this House, this body, that we can be more restrictive than that; we cannot be any less restrictive than that. So it does not take a two-thirds vote."

Ms. Brough spoke again in favor of the amendment.

MOTION

On motion of Mr. Barrett, the memorials and resolutions listed on today's calendar under the fourth order of business were considered first reading and referred to the committees designated.

MOTION

On motion of Mr. Appelwick, the House adjourned until 10:30 a.m., Monday, February 11, 1985.

WAYNE EHLERS, Speaker

DENNIS L. HECK, Chief Clerk

TWENTY-NINTH DAY

MORNING SESSION

House Chamber, Olympia, Wash., Monday, February 11, 1985

The House was called to order at 10:30 a.m. by the Speaker. The Clerk called the roll and all members were present except Representatives P. King and Zellinsky. Representative Zellinsky was excused.

The flag was escorted to the rostrum by a Sergeant at Arms Color Guard: Scouts from the Tumwater Council Boy Scouts of America, Mickey Gilchrist, Chief Seattle Council and Todd Schmidt, Inland Empire Council. Prayer was offered by Reverend John Wingfield, Minister of the Unity Church of Olympia.

Reading of the Journal of the previous day was dispensed with and it was ordered to stand approved.

SPEAKER'S PRIVILEGE

The Speaker: "We are honored today to have with us representatives from the Tumwater area Council of the Boy Scouts of America. These young men are part of the twelve councils of the State of Washington that are meeting in Olympia for the Annual Report to the Governor Program.

"At this time I would like to introduce Horatio Sprague Taveau V who represents the Mount Rainier Council from Tacoma. Accompanying Horatio are Shane Hazard, Evergreen Area Council; Steven D. Princehouse, North Central Washington and Todd Kean, Mt. Baker Area Council.

"Horatio Sprague Taveau V is the son of Horatio Sprague Taveau IV and Maria C. Taveau. He joined cub scouts; earned the Year of the Light Award; earned his Eagle Scout award in 1984. He is a C/LT. Colonel, Junior ROTC, Senior at Washington High School, Tacoma. He carries a 3.07 grade point average, fifty-first in his class."

Horatio Sprague Taveau V briefly addressed the House.

MOTION

On motion of Mr. J. King, the House advanced to the seventh order of business.

THIRD READING

SUBSTITUTE HOUSE BILL NO. 46, by Committee on Judiciary (originally sponsored by Representatives Armstrong and Kremen)

Clarifying the intent of the consumer protection act.

The bill was read the third time and placed on final passage.

Mr. Armstrong spoke in favor of passage of the bill.

POINT OF INQUIRY

Ms. Niemi yielded to question by Mr. Appelwick.

Mr. Appelwick: "Representative Niemi, you amended House Bill 46 to delete reference to the Black case. Is it your belief and intent that House Bill 46 changes previous intent of the Consumer Protection Act?"

Ms. Niemi: "No. Previous legislative intent is not changed by Substitute House Bill No. 46. Because of the Supreme Court decision in Black it is necessary to clarify past intent and make present and future intent clear in regard to per se violation of trade practices. Black makes it possible for the court to improperly construe legislative intent in future cases. Substitute House Bill 46 corrects this, but does not change substance or intent of the law."

ROLL CALL

The Clerk called the roll on the final passage of Substitute House Bill No. 46, and the bill passed the House by the following vote: Yeas, 96; absent, 1; excused, 1.

Voting yea: Representatives Addison, Allen, Appelwick, Armstrong, Ballard, Barnes, Barrett, Basich, Baugher, Belcher, Betzoff, Bond, Braddock, Brekke, Bristow, Brooks, Brough, Chandler, Cole, Crane, Day, Dellwo, Dobbs, Doty, Ebersole, Fisch, Fisher, Fuhrman, Gallagher, Grimm, Hankins, Hargrove, Hastings, Haugen, Hine, Holland, Isaacson, Jacobsen, King J, King R, Kremen, Leonard, Lewis, Locke, Long, Lundquist, Lux, Madsen, May, McMullen, Miller, Nealey, Nelson D, Nelson G, Niemi, Nutley, O'Brien, Padden, Patrick, Peery, Prince, Rayburn, Rust, Sanders, Sayan, Schmidt, Schoon, Scott, Silver, Smith C, Smith L, Smitherman, Sommers, Sutherland, Tanner, Taylor, Thomas, Tilly, Todd, Unsoeld, Valle, van Dyke, Van Luven, Vander Stoep, Vekich, Walk, Walker, Wang, West, Williams B, Williams J, Wilson K, Wilson S, Wineberry, Winsley, and Mr. Speaker - 96.

Excused: Representative Zellinsky - 1.

Substitute House Bill No. 46, having received the constitutional majority, was declared passed. There being no objection, the title of the bill was ordered to stand as the title of the act.

SUBSTITUTE HOUSE BILL NO. 155, by Committee on Judiciary (originally sponsored by Representative P. King)

Changing requirements relating to notaries.

The bill was read the third time and placed on final passage.

Mr. Armstrong spoke in favor of passage of the bill, and Mr. Padden spoke against it.

POINT OF INQUIRY

Mr. Armstrong yielded to question by Mr. Sanders.

Mr. Sanders: "Representative Armstrong, I notice that the bill transfers the authority for the fee from the legislature, from statute, to the Department of Licensing. Apparently the notary fee is established in statute by us. Why are we transferring that responsibility to the Department of Licensing?"

Mr. Armstrong: "It's a very small fee. It's a fee that has to be changed and is in changing circumstances. I think it's two dollars or three dollars or something like that. Most people don't charge it at all and it seems unreasonable for the notaries to have to come back to the legislature every time they want to change due to the inflationary impact."

Mr. Armstrong spoke again in favor of the bill, and Mr. Padden again opposed it.

ROLL CALL

The Clerk called the roll on the final passage of Substitute House Bill No. 155, and the bill passed the House by the following vote: Yeas, 87; nays, 9; absent, 1; excused, 1.

POINT OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. B. Williams: "Virtually all Americans and American historians regard Abraham Lincoln as our greatest President. American author and editor, Bernard DeVoto, captured the essence of Lincoln's legend when he said: 'When American democracy reaches its crisis and needs a savior, and a great one, out of its native earth, its native shrewdness and reality and common sense, it produces Abraham Lincoln, a backwoods politician and one of the greatest statesmen in all history.'

"As we pause here today in this Chamber to remember Lincoln, I want us to focus on characteristics that made him great. He had wisdom, courage, faith, justice, compassion and vision. He possessed these qualities in greater quantities than many. Perhaps his greatest characteristic was having the wisdom to know when to compromise and when not to compromise.

"Perhaps Lincoln could have held the nation together a season longer and avoided war had he chosen a pluralistic solution to slavery. It would have been an immoral choice, but some would have taken that route. Lincoln knew that for a nation to stand, it must stand for what is right in the eyes of a just and holy God. Slavery was not merely out of date or wrong for that time, but it was wrong in God's plan.

"Lincoln did not want to divide the nation, but he had to choose between compromise and standing for what was right. He chose to stand. He did not stand in an arrogant, defiant manner; he stood in a humble and forgiving way with confidence that he was right. His conviction came from a spiritual strength he developed during a lifetime of setbacks and defeat. He spent hours in study of the scriptures and in prayer, something too few do today. His commitment to his faith did not only give him the strength to stand firm, but also the character to love his enemy. Said Lincoln (and I quote): 'We trust, sir, that God is on our side. It is more important to know that we are on God's side.'

"Lincoln has come to be viewed by history as a great President and a great leader. What we too often forget is that he made his mark on history despite the fact that his leadership and his decisions were very often unpopular at the time. This demonstrates one of Lincoln's greatest characteristics -- the ability to decide.

"It may sound trivial, but the ability to decide -- to make up your mind--to choose wisely and courageously, under any circumstances -- is one of the earmarks of greatness. Lincoln carried the terrible burden of a nation engaged in Civil War, his methods criticized by his own party and with his generals denouncing him. He is an example of the price people pay for courageous decisions.

"Lincoln's understanding of the challenge of leadership he faced is demonstrated by his own words: 'I desire so to conduct the affairs of this administration that if at the end, when I come to lay down the reins of power, I have lost every other friend on earth, I shall have at least one friend left, and that friend shall be down inside of me.'

'Lincoln also demonstrated his confidence in the path he chose for our nation when he said, 'If I were to try to read, much less answer, all of the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for any other business. I do the very best I know how; the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference.'

'As we remember and honor the legacy that is Lincoln's, let us also recognize that Lincoln was a product of his time. To paraphrase former Kansas Governor Henry Allen, had Abraham Lincoln been living today, the Rotary Club would supply him with a set of books; the Lions Club with a good reading lamp; and the Kiwanis Club with writing equipment.

'He would receive loans and grants to attend college. He would receive a subsidy for rail splitting, another one for raising a crop he was going to raise anyway and still another subsidy for not raising a crop he had no intention of raising. As a result, there would have been no Abraham Lincoln.

'Lincoln's character, his strength, and his greatness all sprang from the kind of life he led -- from the adversity he overcame and the challenges he met head on. Now we must strive to learn from Lincoln's example -- to make ourselves, our state, and our nation better. Let us have leaders who strive to be right, yet who are humble enough to admit that neither they nor their party are perfect. Let us have leaders who will be humble enough not to blame every ill on the last administration, yet claim every victory for themselves. Let us have leaders who have the strength of conviction to vote right and the strength of character to live right.

'Let's learn from Lincoln's example.'

The existence of joint employment is determined by the courts on a case-by-case basis, and the court considers many factors."

Mr. Patrick: "Is ownership of the property sufficient to establish joint employment?"

Mr. R. King: "No."

Mr. Patrick: "Would the factor of supervision standing alone be sufficient to constitute joint employment?"

Mr. R. King: "No, if the major portion of the supervision is exorcised by the fair labor contractor."

Mr. Patrick spoke in favor of passage of the bill.

(10) 'Guardian' or 'limited guardian' means a personal representative of the person or estate of an incompetent or disabled person as defined in RCW 11.88.010 and the term may be used in lieu of 'personal representative' wherever required by context.

(11) 'Administrator' means a personal representative of the estate of a decedent and the term may be used in lieu of 'personal representative' wherever required by context.

Sec. 8. Section 23, chapter 117, Laws of 1974 ex. sess. as last amended by section 11, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.68.110 are each reenacted to read as follows:

If a personal representative who has acquired nonintervention powers does not apply to the court for either of the final decrees provided for in RCW 11.68.100 as now or hereafter amended, the personal representative shall, when the administration of the estate has been completed, file a declaration to that effect, which declaration shall state as follows:

Subject to the requirement of notice as provided in this section, unless an heir, devisee, or legatee of a decedent petitions the court either for an order requiring the personal representative to obtain court approval of the amount of fees paid or to be paid to the personal representative, lawyers, appraisers, or accountants, or for an order requiring an accounting, or both, within thirty days from the date of filing a declaration of completion of probate, the personal representative will be automatically discharged without further order of the court and the representative's powers will cease thirty days after the filing of the declaration of completion of probate, and the declaration of completion of probate shall, at that time, be the equivalent of the entry of a decree of distribution in accordance with chapter 11.76 RCW for all legal intents and purposes.

Within five days of the date of the filing of the declaration of completion, the personal representative or the representative's lawyer shall mail a copy of the declaration of completion to each heir, legatee, or devisee of the decedent (who has not waived notice of said filing, in writing, filed in the cause) together with a notice which shall be substantially as follows:

(3) Consistent with the powers granted by the court, if he or she is a guardian or limited guardian of the person, to care for and maintain the incompetent or disabled person, assert his or her rights and best interests, and provide timely, informed consent to necessary medical procedures, and if the incompetent or disabled person is a minor, to see that the incompetent or disabled person is properly trained and educated and that the incompetent or disabled person has the opportunity to learn a trade, occupation, or profession. The guardian or limited guardian of the person may be required to report the condition of his or her incompetent or disabled person to the court, at regular intervals or otherwise as the court may direct: PROVIDED, That no guardian, limited guardian, or standby guardian may involuntarily commit for mental health treatment, observation, or evaluation an alleged incompetent or disabled person who is, himself or herself, unable or unwilling to give informed consent to such commitment unless the procedures for involuntary commitment set forth in chapters 71.05 or 72.23 RCW are followed: PROVIDED FURTHER, That nothing in this section shall be construed to allow a guardian, limited guardian, or standby guardian to consent to:

A guardian, limited guardian, or standby guardian who believes such procedures to be necessary for the proper care and maintenance of the incompetent or disabled person shall petition the court for an order unless the court has previously approved that procedure within thirty days immediately past. The court may make such order only after an attorney is appointed in accordance with RCW 11.88.045, as now or hereafter amended, if none has heretofore appeared, notice is given, and a hearing is held in accordance with RCW 11.88.040, as now or hereafter amended;

Except as provided to the contrary herein, the court may authorize a guardian or limited guardian to do anything that a trustee can do under the provisions of RCW 11.98.070 for a period not exceeding one year from the date of the order or for a period corresponding to the interval in which the guardian's or limited guardian's report is required to be filed by the court pursuant to subsection (2) of this section, whichever period is longer;

(a) No investments shall be made without prior order of the court in any property other than unconditional interest bearing obligations of this state or of the United States and in obligations the interest and principal of which are unconditionally guaranteed by the United States, and in share accounts or deposits which are insured by an agency of the United States government. Such prior order of the court may authorize specific investments, or, in the discretion of the court, may authorize the guardian or limited guardian during a period not exceeding one year following the date of the order or for a period corresponding to the interval in which the guardian's or limited guardian's report is required to be filed by the court pursuant to subsection (2) of this section, whichever period is longer, to invest and reinvest as provided in chapter 11.100 RCW without further order of the court;

(b) If it is for the best interests of the incompetent or disabled person that a specific property be used by the incompetent or disabled person rather than sold and the proceeds invested, the court may so order;

(6) To apply to the court for an order authorizing any disbursement on behalf of the incompetent or disabled person: PROVIDED, HOWEVER, That the guardian or limited guardian of the estate, or the person, department, bureau, agency, or charitable organization having the care and custody of an incompetent or disabled person, may apply to the court for an order directing the guardian or limited guardian of the estate to pay to the person, department, bureau, agency, or charitable organization having the care and custody of an incompetent or disabled person, or if the guardian or limited guardian of the estate has the care and custody of the incompetent or disabled person, directing the guardian or limited guardian of the estate to apply an amount weekly, monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, or annually, as the court may direct, to be expended in the care, maintenance, and education of the incompetent or disabled person and of his or her dependents. In proper cases, the court may order payment of amounts directly to the incompetent or disabled person for his or her maintenance or incidental expenses. The amounts authorized under this section may be decreased or increased from time to time by direction of the court. If payments are made to another under an order of the court, the guardian or limited guardian of the estate is not bound to see to the application thereof.

Sec. 10. Section 13, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.92.140 are each reenacted to read as follows:

The court, upon the petition of a guardian of the estate of an incompetent or disabled person (collectively hereafter referred to in this section as 'incompetent'), other than the guardian of a minor, and after such notice as the court directs and other notice to all persons interested as required by chapter 11.96 RCW, may authorize the guardian to take any action, or to apply funds not required for the incompetent's own maintenance and support, in any fashion the court approves as being in keeping with the incompetent's wishes so far as they can be ascertained and as designed to minimize insofar as possible current or prospective state or federal income and estate taxes, and to provide for gifts to such charities, relatives, and friends as would be likely recipients of donations from the incompetent.

The action or application of funds may include but shall not be limited to the making of gifts, to the conveyance or release of the incompetent's contingent and expectant interests in property including marital property rights and any right of survivorship incident to joint tenancy or tenancy by the entirety, to the exercise or release of the incompetent's powers as donee of a power of appointment, the making of contracts, the creation of revocable or irrevocable trusts of property of the incompetent's estate which may extend beyond the incompetent's disability or life, the exercise of options of the incompetent to purchase securities or other property, the exercise of the incompetent's right to elect options and to change beneficiaries under insurance and annuity policies and the surrendering of policies for their cash value, the exercise of the incompetent's right to any elective share in the estate of the incompetent's deceased spouse, and the renunciation or disclaimer of any interest acquired by testate or intestate succession or by inter vivos transfer.

The guardian in the petition shall briefly outline the action or application of funds for which approval is sought, the results expected to be accomplished thereby and the tax savings expected to accrue. The proposed action or application of funds may include gifts of the incompetent's personal or real property. Gifts may be for the benefit of prospective legatees, devisees, or heirs apparent of the incompetent, or may be made to individuals or charities in which the incompetent is believed to have an interest. Gifts may or may not, in the discretion of the court, be treated as advancements to donees who would otherwise inherit property from the incompetent under the incompetent's will or under the laws of descent and distribution. The guardian shall also indicate in the petition that any planned disposition is consistent with the intentions of the incompetent insofar as the intentions can be ascertained, and if the incompetent's intentions cannot be ascertained, the incompetent will be presumed to favor reduction in the incidence of the various forms of taxation and the partial distribution of the incompetent's estate as provided in this section. The guardian shall not, however, be required to include as a beneficiary any person whom there is reason to believe would be excluded by the incompetent. No guardian may be required to file a petition as provided in this section, and a failure or refusal to so petition the court does not constitute a breach of the guardian's fiduciary duties.

Sec. 11. Section 11.92.150, chapter 145, Laws of 1965 as last amended by section 14, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.92.150 are each reenacted to read as follows:

At any time after the issuance of letters of guardianship in the estate of any incompetent or disabled person, any person interested in the estate, or in the incompetent or disabled person, or any relative of the incompetent or disabled person, or any authorized representative of any agency, bureau, or department of the United States government from or through which any compensation, insurance, pension or other benefit is being paid, or is payable, may serve upon the guardian or limited guardian, or upon the attorney for the guardian or limited guardian, and file with the clerk of the court where the administration of the guardianship or limited guardianship estate is pending, a written request stating that special written notice is desired of any or all of the following matters, steps or proceedings in the administration of the estate:

(1) Filing of petition for sales, exchanges, leases, mortgages, or grants of easements, licenses, or similar interests in any property of the estate.

(2) Filing of all intermediate or final accountings or accountings of any nature whatsoever.

(3) Petitions by the guardian or limited guardian for family allowances or allowances for the incompetent or disabled person or any other allowance of every nature from the funds of the estate.

(4) Petitions for the investment of the funds of the estate.

(5) Petition to terminate guardianship or limited guardianship or petition for adjudication of competency.

(6) Petition for judicial proceedings under chapter 11.96 RCW.

The request for special written notice shall designate the name, address and post office address of the person upon whom the notice is to be served and no service shall be required under this section and RCW 11.92.160 as now or hereafter amended other than in accordance with the designation unless and until a new designation has been made.

When any account, petition, or proceeding is filed in the estate of which special written notice is requested, the court shall fix a time for hearing which shall allow at least ten days for service of the notice before the hearing; and notice of the hearing shall be served upon the person designated in the written request at least ten days before the date fixed for the hearing. The service may be made by leaving a copy with the person designated, or that person's authorized representative, or by mailing through the United States mail, with postage prepaid to the person and place designated.

Sec. 12. Section 1, chapter 202, Laws of 1959 as last amended by section 16, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.93.010 are each reenacted to read as follows:

In this chapter, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) A 'bank' is a bank, trust company, national banking association, or mutual savings bank.

(2) A 'broker' is a person lawfully engaged in the business of effecting transactions in securities for the account of others. The term includes a bank which effects such transactions. The term also includes a person lawfully engaged in buying and selling securities for his own account, through a broker or otherwise, as a part of a regular business.

(3) 'Court' means the superior courts of the state of Washington.

(4) The 'custodial property' includes:

(a) Any property transferred to the same custodian for the same minor as a consequence of a gift or gifts made to the minor in a manner prescribed in this chapter;

(b) The income from the custodial property; and

(c) The proceeds, immediate and remote, from the sale, exchange, conversion, investment, reinvestment, surrender or other disposition of such custodial property.

(7) A 'guardian' of a minor means the general guardian, guardian, tutor or curator of the minor's property, or estate appointed or qualified by a court of this state or another state.

(8) An 'issuer' is a person who places or authorizes the placing of his or her name on a security (other than as a transfer agent) to evidence that it represents a share, participation or other interest in his or her property or in an enterprise or to evidence his or her duty or undertaking to perform an obligation evidenced by the security, or who becomes responsible for or in place of any such person.

Sec. 13. Section 2, chapter 202, Laws of 1959 as last amended by section 17, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.93.020 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) A person who is eighteen years or older may, outright or by a trust agreement executed during his or her lifetime or by will, make or provide for a gift of tangible or intangible personal property, including securities, money, life insurance policies, annuity contracts, or real property interests to a person who is a minor on the date of the gift or distribution:

(a) If the subject of the gift is a security in registered form, by registering it in the name of the donor, another person who is eighteen years or older, or a trust company, followed, in substance, by the words: 'As custodian for (name of minor) under the Washington uniform gifts to minors act';

(b) If the subject of the gift is a security not in registered form, by delivering it to a person who is eighteen years or older other than the donor or a trust company accompanied by a statement of gift in the following form, in substance, signed by the donor and the person designated as custodian:

'GIFT UNDER THE WASHINGTON UNIFORM
GIFTS TO MINORS ACT

I, (name of donor), hereby deliver to (name of custodian) as custodian for (name of minor) under the Washington uniform gifts to minors act, the following property: (Insert an appropriate description of the tangible or intangible property delivered sufficient to identify it or them) ..... (signature of donor) (name of custodian) hereby acknowledges receipt of the above described property as custodian for the above minor under the Washington uniform gifts to minors act.

Dated: ..... (signature of custodian)';

(c) If the subject of the gift is money, by paying or delivering it to a broker or a financial institution for credit to an account in the name of the donor, another person who is eighteen years or older, or a trust company, followed, in substance, by the words: 'As custodian for (name of minor) under the Washington uniform gifts to minors act';

(d) If the subject of the gift is a real property interest and constitutes a recordable interest or charge in or against real property in the records of the county auditor or recorder, by registering it in the name of the donor, another person who is eighteen years or older, or a trust company, followed, in substance, by the words: 'As custodian for (name of minor) under the Washington uniform gifts to minors act';

(e) If the subject of the gift is a life insurance policy or annuity contract, by causing the ownership of the policy or contract to be registered with the issuing insurance company in the name of the donor, another person who is eighteen years or older, or a trust company, followed, in substance, by the words: 'as custodian for (name of minor) under the Washington uniform gifts to minors act';

(f) If the gift is by will or as a distribution under a trust agreement, by the legal representative or trustee delivering the subject of the gift to the person, who is eighteen years or older, or a trust company designated by the decedent or settlor to serve as custodian for the minor under the Washington uniform gifts to minors act or similar uniform act of the domicile of the designated custodian and causing the subject of the gift to be registered in the name of that custodian, followed, in substance, by the words: 'As custodian for (name of minor) under the Washington (or, alternatively, state of the custodian's domicile) uniform gifts to minor's act.' If the decedent or settlor fails to designate a specific custodian or if the designated custodian dies or is unable or unwilling to serve, the legal representative, with the approval of the court having jurisdiction over the decedent's estate, or the trustee may designate a member of the minor's family who is eighteen years or older, a guardian of the minor, or a trust company as custodian. The legal representative or trustee may designate himself or herself as custodian, provided he or she falls within the class of persons or entities permitted in this subsection. The custodian's receipt constitutes a sufficient release and discharge of further accountability by the legal representative or trustee for the gift and acceptance of the custodianship by the custodian.

(2) Each gift made in a manner prescribed in subsection (1) of this section may be made to only one minor and only one person may be the custodian.

(3) A donor who makes a gift to a minor in a manner prescribed in subsection (1) of this section shall promptly do all things within his or her power to put the subject of the gift in the possession and control of the custodian, but neither the donor's failure to comply with this subsection, nor his or her designation of an ineligible person as custodian, nor renunciation by the person designated as custodian affects the consummation of the gift.

(4) The legal representative of an estate to whom a certificate of qualification, or letters testamentary or of administration are issued may, with the approval of the court having jurisdiction over the decedent's estate, or the trustee of a trust of which a minor is a distributee or beneficiary may pay or transfer to a custodian for the minor under this chapter or a similar uniform act of the jurisdiction in which the minor may be domiciled, in the form and manner prescribed in subsection (1) (a) through (e) of this section or comparable provisions of the uniform act of the other jurisdiction, any money, security, or other property qualifying for custodial gifts which is distributable to the minor. The legal representative or trustee may make distribution in this manner if the legal representative or the trustee deems it to be in the best interests of the minor, except where the decedent, settlor, or court authorizing the distribution has expressly directed that distribution of the property due that minor shall not be made in the manner provided for in this subsection. The legal representative, with the approval of the court having jurisdiction over the decedent's estate, or the trustee shall designate a member of the minor's family who is eighteen years or older, a guardian of the minor, or a trust company as custodian. The legal representative or trustee may designate himself or herself as custodian, provided he or she falls within the class of persons or entities permitted in this subsection. This chapter governs the custodianship in the same manner as though the legal representative or trustee were the donor. The custodian's receipt constitutes a sufficient release of the transferor and discharge of further accountability by the legal representative or trustee for the property distributed and acceptance of the custodianship by the custodian. Subject to specific directions in the governing instrument, no legal representative or trustee may be required to pay or transfer to a custodian property otherwise distributable to a minor. A failure or refusal to distribute property to a custodian as authorized in this section does not constitute a breach of the legal representative's or trustee's fiduciary duties.

(5) Only property that could be the subject of a lifetime gift under this chapter may be distributed under subsections (1)(f) and (4) of this section.

(6) This section is applicable to gifts made before or after January 1, 1985, and regardless of whether the persons who made the gifts are alive on that date.

Sec. 14. Section 3, chapter 202, Laws of 1959 as last amended by section 18, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.93.030 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) A gift made in a manner prescribed in this chapter is irrevocable and conveys to the minor indefeasibly vested legal title to the security, real property, life insurance policy, annuity contract or money given, but no guardian of the minor has any right, power, duty, or authority with respect to the custodial property except as provided in this chapter.

(2) By making a gift in a manner prescribed in this chapter, the donor incorporates in the gift all the provisions of this chapter and grants to the custodian, and to any issuer, transfer agent, bank, financial institution, life insurance company, broker or third person dealing with a person designated as custodian, the respective powers, rights, and immunities provided in this chapter.

Sec. 15. Section 4, chapter 202, Laws of 1959 as last amended by section 19, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.93.040 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) The custodian shall collect, hold, manage, invest and reinvest the custodial property.

(2) The custodian shall pay over to the minor for expenditure by the minor, or expend for the minor's benefit, so much of or all the custodial property as the custodian deems advisable for the support, maintenance, education, and benefit of the minor in the manner, at the time or times, and to the extent that the custodian in the custodian's discretion deems suitable and proper, with or without court order, with or without regard to the duty of the custodian or of any other person to support the minor or his or her ability to do so, and with or without regard to any other income or property of the minor which may be applicable or available for any such purpose.

(3) The court, on the petition of a parent or guardian of the minor or of the minor, if the minor has attained the age of fourteen years, may order the custodian to pay over to the minor for expenditure by the minor or to expend so much of or all the custodial property as is necessary for the minor's support, maintenance or education.

(4) To the extent that the custodial property is not so expended, the custodian shall deliver or pay it over to the minor on attaining the age of twenty-one years, or, if the minor dies before attaining the age of twenty-one years, the custodian shall thereupon deliver or pay it over to the estate of the minor.

(5) The custodian, notwithstanding statutes restricting investments by fiduciaries, shall invest and reinvest the custodial property as would a prudent person of discretion and intelligence who is seeking a reasonable income and the preservation of capital, except that the custodian may, in his or her discretion and without liability to the minor or the minor's estate, retain a security given to the minor in a manner prescribed in this chapter or hold money so given in an account in a financial institution to which it was paid or delivered by the donor.

(6) The custodian may sell, exchange, convert, surrender or otherwise dispose of custodial property in the manner, at the time or times, for the price or prices and upon the terms the custodian deems advisable. The custodian may vote in person or by general or limited proxy a security which is custodial property. The custodian may consent, directly or through a committee or other agent, to the reorganization, consolidation, merger, dissolution or liquidation of an issuer, a security which is custodial property, and to the sale, lease, pledge, or mortgage of any property by or to such an issuer, and to any other action by such an issuer. The custodian may execute and deliver any and all instruments in writing which the custodian deems advisable to carry out any power as custodian.

(7) The custodian shall register each security which is custodial property and in registered form in the name of the custodian, followed, in substance, by the words: 'as custodian for (name of minor) under the Washington uniform gifts to minors act'. The custodian shall hold all money which is custodial property in an account with a broker or in an insured financial institution in the name of the custodian, followed, in substance, by the words: 'As custodian for (name of minor) under the Washington uniform gifts to minors act'. The custodian shall keep all other custodial property separate and distinct from the custodian's own property in a manner to identify it clearly as custodial property.

(8) The custodian shall keep records of all transactions with respect to the custodial property and make them available for inspection at reasonable intervals by a parent or legal representative of the minor or by the minor, if the minor has attained the age of fourteen years.

(9) A custodian has, with respect to the custodial property, in addition to the rights and powers provided in this chapter, all the rights and powers which a guardian has with respect to property not held as custodial property, and all the rights and powers of a trustee under RCW 11.98.070.

(10) If the subject of the gift is a life insurance policy or annuity contract, the custodian:

(a) In the capacity as custodian, has all the incidents of ownership in the policy or contract to the same extent as if the custodian were the owner, except that the designated beneficiary of any policy or contract on the life of the minor shall be the minor's estate and the designated beneficiary of any policy or contract on the life of a person other than the minor shall be the custodian as custodian for the minor for whom the custodian is acting; and

(b) May pay premiums on the policy or contract out of the custodial property.

Sec. 16. Section 5, chapter 202, Laws of 1959 as amended by section 20, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.93.050 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) A custodian is entitled to reimbursement from the custodial property for reasonable expenses incurred in the performance of custodial duties.

(2) A custodian may act without compensation for services.

(3) Unless he or she is a donor, a custodian may receive from the custodial property reasonable compensation for his or her services determined by one of the following standards in the order stated:

(a) A direction by the donor when the gift is made; or

(b) An order of the court.

(4) Except as otherwise provided in this chapter, a custodian shall not be required to give a bond for the performance of his or her duties.

(5) A custodian not compensated for services is not liable for losses to the custodial property unless they result from bad faith, intentional wrongdoing, or gross negligence, or from failure to maintain the standard of prudence in investing the custodial property provided in this chapter.

Sec. 17. Section 6, chapter 202, Laws of 1959 as last amended by section 21, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.93.060 are each reenacted to read as follows:

No issuer, transfer agent, bank, life insurance company, broker or other person or financial institution acting on the instructions of or otherwise dealing with any person purporting to act as a donor or in the capacity of a custodian is responsible for determining whether the person designated as custodian by the purported donor or by the custodian or purporting to act as a custodian has been duly designated or whether any purchase, sale or transfer to or by or any other act of any person purporting to act in the capacity of custodian is in accordance with or authorized by this chapter, or is obliged to inquire into the validity or propriety under this chapter of any instrument of instructions executed or given by a person purporting to act as a donor or in the capacity of a custodian, or is bound to see to the application by any person purporting to act in the capacity of a custodian of any money or other property paid or delivered to the custodian. No issuer, transfer agent, bank, life insurance company, broker or other person or financial institution acting on any instrument of designation of a successor custodian, executed as provided in subsection (1) of RCW 11.93.070 by a minor to whom a gift has been made in a manner prescribed in this chapter, and who has attained the age of fourteen years, is responsible for determining whether the person designated by the minor as successor custodian has been duly designated, or is obliged to inquire into the validity or propriety under this chapter of the instrument of designation.

Sec. 18. Section 7, chapter 202, Laws of 1959 as last amended by section 22, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.93.070 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) Only a member of the minor's family who is eighteen years or older, a guardian of the minor, or a trust company is eligible to become successor custodian. A custodian may designate a successor by executing and dating an instrument of designation before a subscribing witness other than the successor; the instrument of designation may but need not contain the resignation of the custodian. If the custodian does not so designate a successor before the custodian dies or becomes legally incapacitated and the minor has attained the age of fourteen years, the minor may designate a successor custodian by executing an instrument of designation before a subscribing witness other than the successor. A successor custodian has all the rights, powers, duties, and immunities of a custodian designated in a manner prescribed by this chapter.

(2) The designation of a successor custodian as provided in subsection (1) takes effect as to each item of the custodial property when the custodian resigns, dies, or becomes legally incapacitated and the custodian or his or her legal representative:

(a) Causes the item if it is a security in registered form or a life insurance policy or annuity contract, to be registered, with the issuing insurance company in the case of a life insurance policy or annuity contract, in the name of the successor custodian followed, in substance, by the words: 'As custodian for (name of minor) under the Washington uniform gifts to minors act'; and

(b) Delivers or causes to be delivered to the successor custodian any other item of the custodial property, together with the instrument of designation of the successor custodian or a true copy thereof and any additional instruments required for the transfer thereof to the successor custodian.

(3) A custodian who executes an instrument of designation of a successor containing the custodian's resignation as provided in subsection (1) of this section shall promptly do all things within his or her power to put each item of the custodial property in the possession and control of the successor custodian named in the instrument. The legal representative of a custodian who dies or becomes legally incapacitated shall promptly do all things within his or her power to put each item of the custodial property in the possession and control of the successor custodian named in an instrument of designation executed as provided in subsection (1) of this section by the custodian or, if none, by the minor if the minor has no guardian and has attained the age of fourteen years, or in the possession and control of the guardian of the minor if the minor has a guardian. If the custodian has executed as provided in subsection (1) of this section more than one instrument of designation, the custodian's legal representative shall treat the instrument dated on an earlier date as having been revoked by the instrument dated on a later date.

(4) If a person designated as custodian or as successor custodian by the custodian as provided in subsection (1) of this section is not eligible, dies, or becomes legally incapacitated before the minor attains the age of twenty-one years and if the minor has a guardian, the guardian of the minor shall be successor custodian. If the minor has no guardian and if no successor custodian who is eligible and has not died or become legally incapacitated has been designated as provided in subsection (1) of this section, a donor, his or her legal representative, the legal representative of the custodian, or an adult member of the minor's family may petition the court for the designation of a successor custodian.

(5) A donor, the legal representative of a donor, a successor custodian, a member of the minor's family who is eighteen years or older, or a guardian of the minor or the minor if the minor has attained the age of fourteen years, may petition the court that, for cause shown in the petition, the custodian be removed and a successor custodian be designated or, in the alternative, that the custodian be required to give bond for the performance of his or her duties.

(6) Upon the filing of a petition as provided in this section, the court shall grant an order, directed to the persons and returnable on such notice as the court may require, to show cause why the relief prayed for in the petition should not be granted and, in due course, grant such relief as the court finds to be in the best interests of the minor.

Sec. 19. Section 8, chapter 202, Laws of 1959 as amended by section 23, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.93.080 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) The minor, if the minor has attained the age of fourteen years, or the legal representative of the minor, a member of the minor's family who is eighteen years or older, or a donor or his or her legal representative may petition the court for an accounting by the custodian or the custodian's legal representative.

(2) The court, in a proceeding under this chapter or otherwise, may require or permit the custodian or the custodian's legal representative to account and, if the custodian is removed, shall so require and order delivery of all custodial property to the successor custodian and the execution of all instruments required for the transfer thereof.

Sec. 20. Section 10, chapter 202, Laws of 1959 and RCW 11.93.900 are each reenacted to read as follows:

This chapter may be cited as the 'Washington uniform gifts to minors act'.

Sec. 21. Section 9, chapter 202, Laws of 1959 and RCW 11.93.910 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) This chapter shall be so construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it.

(2) This chapter shall not be construed as providing an exclusive method for making gifts to minors.

Sec. 22. Section 7, chapter 88, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. and RCW 11.93.911 are each reenacted to read as follows:

The provisions of chapter 202, Laws of 1959 hereby amended as hereby amended shall be construed as a continuation of chapter 202, Laws of 1959 hereby amended according to the language employed and not as a new enactment. This amendment of chapter 202, Laws of 1959 hereby amended does not affect gifts made in a manner prescribed therein nor the powers, duties or immunities conferred by gifts in such manner upon custodians and persons dealing with custodians. The provisions of chapter 202, Laws of 1959 hereby amended as hereby amended henceforth apply, however, to all gifts made in a manner and form prescribed in chapter 202, Laws of 1959 hereby amended except insofar as such application impairs constitutionally vested rights.

Sec. 23. Section 25, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.93.912 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

All custodianships established prior to January 1, 1985, that have not been fully distributed as of that date shall not terminate upon the minor attaining the age of eighteen, but these custodianships shall remain operative until the minor reaches the age of twenty-one or sooner dies, except that, as to any custodianship established after August 9, 1971, but before January 1, 1985, a minor has the right after attaining the age of eighteen to demand delivery from the custodian of all or any portion of the custodianship property.

Sec. 24. Section 11, chapter 202, Laws of 1959 and RCW 11.93.920 are each reenacted to read as follows:

If any provision of this chapter or the application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, the invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of the chapter which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this chapter are severable.

Sec. 25. Section 52, chapter 117, Laws of 1974 ex. sess. as amended by section 26, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.94.010 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) Whenever a principal designates another ~~((the))~~ as his or her attorney in fact or agent, by a power of attorney in writing, and the writing contains the words 'This power of attorney shall not be affected by disability of the principal,' or 'This power of attorney shall become effective upon the disability of the principal,' or similar words showing the intent of the principal that the authority conferred shall be exercisable notwithstanding the principal's disability, the authority of the attorney in fact or agent is exercisable ~~((by the principal in the power))~~ on behalf of the principal as provided notwithstanding later disability or incapacity of the principal at law or later uncertainty as to whether the principal is dead or alive. All acts done by the attorney in fact or agent pursuant to the power during any period of disability or incompetence or uncertainty as to whether the principal is dead or alive have the same effect and inure to the benefit of and bind the principal or the principal's guardian or heirs, devisees, and personal representative as if the principal were alive, competent, and not disabled. A principal may nominate, by a durable power of attorney, the guardian or limited guardian of his or her estate or person for consideration by the court if protective proceedings for the principal's person or estate are thereafter commenced. The court shall make its appointment in accordance with the principal's most recent nomination in a durable power of attorney except for good cause or disqualification. If a guardian thereafter is appointed for the principal, the attorney in fact or agent, during the continuance of the appointment, shall account to the guardian rather than the principal. The guardian has the same power the principal would have had if the principal were not disabled or incompetent, to revoke, suspend or terminate all or any part of the power of attorney or agency.

(2) Persons shall place reasonable reliance on any determination of disability or incompetence as provided in the instrument that specifies the time and the circumstances under which the power of attorney document becomes effective.

Sec. 26. Section 53, chapter 117, Laws of 1974 ex. sess. as last amended by section 27, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.94.020 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) The death, disability, or incompetence of any principal who has executed a power of attorney in writing other than a power as described by RCW 11.94.010, does not revoke or terminate the agency as to the attorney in fact, agent, or other person who, without actual knowledge of the death, disability, or incompetence of the principal, acts in good faith under the power of attorney or agency. Any action so taken, unless otherwise invalid or unenforceable, binds the principal and the principal's heirs, devisees, and personal representatives.

(2) An affidavit, executed by the attorney in fact, or agent, stating that the attorney did not have, at the time of doing an act pursuant to the power of attorney, actual knowledge of the revocation or termination of the power of attorney by death, disability, or incompetence, is, in the absence of a showing of fraud or bad faith, conclusive proof of the nonrevocation or non-termination of the power at that time. If the exercise of the power requires execution and delivery of any instrument which is recordable, the affidavit when authenticated for record is likewise recordable.

(3) This section shall not be construed to alter or affect any provision for revocation or termination contained in the power of attorney.

~~((4) Any person may place reasonable reliance on any determination of disability or incompetence as provided in the instrument which specifies the time and the circumstances under which the power of attorney document becomes effective.))~~

Sec. 27. Section 28, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.94.030 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

If a principal, pursuant to RCW 11.94.010 or 11.94.020, has given a designated attorney in fact or agent all the principal's powers of absolute ownership or has used language to indicate that the attorney in fact or agent has all the powers the principal would have if alive and competent, then that language, notwithstanding chapter 30.22 RCW, includes the authority (1) to deposit and to make payments from any account in a financial institution, as defined in RCW 30.22.040, in the name of the principal, and (2) to enter any safe deposit box to which the principal has a right of access, subject to any contrary provision in any agreement governing the safe deposit box.

Sec. 28. Section 29, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.94.040 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

Any person acting without negligence and in good faith in reasonable reliance on a power of attorney shall not incur any liability thereby. Unless the document contains a time limit, the length of time which has elapsed from its date of execution shall not prevent a party from reasonably relying on the document. Unless the document contains a requirement that it be filed for record to be effective, a person ~~((may))~~ shall place reasonable reliance on it regardless of whether it is so filed.

Sec. 29. Section 30, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.94.050 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) ~~((Except as provided in subsection (2) of this section, even though))~~ Although a designated attorney in fact or agent has all powers of absolute ownership of the principal, or the document has language to indicate that the attorney in fact or agent shall have all the powers the principal would have if alive and competent, the attorney in fact or agent shall not have the power, unless specifically provided otherwise in the document: To make, amend, alter, or revoke any of the principal's wills, codicils, life insurance beneficiary designations, employee benefit plan beneficiary designations, trust agreements, community property agreements; to make any gifts of property owned by the principal; to make transfers of property to any trust (whether or not created by the principal) unless the trust benefits the principal alone and does not have dispositive provisions which are different from those which would have governed the property had it not been transferred into the trust, or to disclaim property.

(2) Nothing in subsection (1) of this section prohibits ~~((a spouse of a principal from acting as))~~ an attorney in fact or ~~((as an))~~ agent ~~((to make))~~ from making any transfer of resources not prohibited under RCW 74.09.532 when the transfer is for the purpose of qualifying the principal for medical assistance or the limited casualty program for the medically needy.

Sec. 30. Section 31, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.94.060 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

If a principal, pursuant to RCW 11.94.010 or 11.94.020, has given a designated attorney in fact or agent all the principal's powers of absolute ownership or has used language to indicate that the attorney in fact or agent has all the powers the principal would have if alive and competent, then these powers include the right to convey or encumber the principal's homestead.

Sec. 31. Section 1, chapter 160, Laws of 1955 as amended by section 33, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.95.010 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Any power exercisable by deed, will, or otherwise, other than a power in trust which is imperative, is releasable, either with or without consideration, by written instrument signed by the holder and delivered as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 32. Section 2, chapter 160, Laws of 1955 as amended by section 34, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.95.020 are each reenacted to read as follows:

A power which is releasable may be released with respect to the whole or any part of the property subject to the power and may also be released in such manner as to reduce or limit the persons or objects, or classes of persons or objects, in whose favor the powers would otherwise be exercisable. A release of a power shall not be deemed to make imperative a power which was not imperative prior to the release, unless the instrument of release expressly so provides.

Sec. 33. Section 3, chapter 160, Laws of 1955 as amended by section 35, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.95.030 are each reenacted to read as follows:

In order to be effective as a release of a power, the instrument of release must be delivered to any trustee or co-trustee of the property, and the person holding the property, to which the power relates. Delivery of a copy of the instrument of release may be made to the secretary of state, which shall from the time of delivery constitute notice of the release to all other persons.

Sec. 34. Section 4, chapter 160, Laws of 1955 as amended by section 36, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.95.040 are each reenacted to read as follows:

The enactment of RCW 11.95.010 through 11.95.050 shall not be construed to impair the validity of any release heretofore made which was otherwise valid when executed.

Sec. 35. Section 5, chapter 160, Laws of 1955 and RCW 11.95.050 are each reenacted to read as follows:

It shall be the duty of the secretary of state to mark each instrument of release filed in his office with a consecutive file number and with the date and hour of filing, and to note and index the filing in a suitable alphabetical index according to the name or names of the person or persons signing the same and containing a notation of the address or addresses of the signer or signers, if given in the instrument. The fee for filing is one dollar. The secretary of state shall deliver or mail to the person filing the instrument a receipt showing the filing number and date and hour of filing.

Sec. 36. Section 38, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.95.060 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) The holder of a testamentary or lifetime power of appointment may exercise the power by appointing property outright or in trust and may grant further powers to appoint. The powerholder may designate the trustee, powers, situs, and governing law for property appointed in trust.

(2) The holder of a testamentary power may exercise the power only by the powerholder's last will, signed before or after the effective date of the instrument granting the power, that manifests an intent to exercise the power and that identifies the instrument granting the power and its date. Unless the person holding the property subject to the power has within six months after the holder's death received written notice that the powerholder's last will has been admitted to probate or an adjudication of testacy has been entered with respect to the powerholder's last will in some jurisdiction, the person may, until the time the notice is received, transfer the property subject to appointment on the basis that the power has not been effectively exercised. The person holding the property shall not incur liability to anyone for transfers so made. A testamentary residuary clause is not deemed the exercise of a testamentary power.

(3) The holder of a lifetime power of appointment shall exercise that power only by delivering a written instrument, signed by the holder, to the person holding the property subject to the power. If the holder conditions the distribution of the appointed property on a future event, the written instrument may be (made revocable until the event specified has occurred and shall specify the method of its revocation) revoked in the same manner at any time before the property becomes distributable upon occurrence of the event specified, except that any contrary provisions in the written instrument exercising the power, including provisions stating the exercise of the power is irrevocable, shall be controlling. If the written instrument is revoked, the holder of the power may reappoint the property that was appointed in the instrument. In the absence of signing and delivery of such a written instrument, a lifetime power is not deemed exercised.

Sec. 37. Section 39, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.95.070 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) This chapter does not apply to any power as trustee described in and subject to RCW 11.98.019.

(2) Sections 33 through 36, 38, and 39, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and the 1984 recodification of RCW 64.24.050 as RCW 11.95.050 apply as of January 1, 1985, to all existing or subsequently created powers of appointment, but not to any power of appointment that expressly or by necessary implication make those 1984 changes inapplicable.

Sec. 38. Section 2, chapter 124, Laws of 1959 as amended by section 64, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.97.010 are each reenacted to read as follows:

The trustor of a trust may by the provisions of the trust relieve the trustee from any or all of the duties, restrictions, and liabilities which would otherwise be imposed by chapters 11.95, 11.98, 11.100, and 11.104 RCW and RCW 11.106.020, or may alter or deny any or all of the privileges and powers conferred by those provisions; or may add duties, restrictions, liabilities, privileges, or powers to those imposed or granted by those provisions. If any specific provision of those chapters is in conflict with the provisions of a trust, the provisions of the trust control whether or not specific reference is made in the trust to any of those chapters. In no event may a trustee be relieved of the duty to act in good faith and with honest judgment.

Sec. 39. Section 65, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.97.900 are each reenacted to read as follows:

This chapter applies to the provisions of chapters 11.95, 11.98, 11.100, and 11.104 RCW and to RCW 11.106.020.

Sec. 40. Section 1, chapter 124, Laws of 1959 as last amended by section 67, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.009 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Except as provided in this section, this chapter applies to express trusts executed by the trustor after June 10, 1959, and does not apply to resulting trusts, constructive trusts, business trusts where certificates of beneficial interest are issued to the beneficiary, investment trusts, voting trusts, trusts in the nature of mortgages or pledges, trusts created by the judgment or decree of a court not sitting in probate, liquidation trusts, or trusts for the sole purpose of paying dividends, interest, interest coupons, salaries, wages, pensions or profits, trusts created in deposits in any financial institution pursuant to chapter 30.22 RCW, unless any such trust which is created in writing incorporates this chapter in whole or in part.

Sec. 41. Section 3, chapter 124, Laws of 1959 as amended by section 68, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.016 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) Any power vested in three or more trustees jointly may be exercised by a majority of such trustees; but no trustee who has not joined in exercising a power is liable to the beneficiaries or to others for the consequences of such exercise; nor is a dissenting trustee liable for the consequences of an act in which that trustee joins at the direction of the majority of the trustees, if that trustee expressed his or her dissent in writing to each of the co-trustees at or before the time of such joinder.

(2) Where two or more trustees are appointed to execute a trust and one or more of them for any reason does not accept the appointment or having accepted ceases to be a trustee, the survivor or survivors shall execute the trust and shall succeed to all the powers, duties and discretionary authority given to the trustees jointly.

(3) An individual trustee, with a co-trustee's consent, may, by a signed, written instrument, delegate any power, duty, or authority as trustee to that co-trustee. This delegation is effective upon delivery of the instrument to that co-trustee and may be revoked at any time by delivery of a similar signed, written instrument to that co-trustee. However, if a power, duty, or authority is expressly conferred upon only one trustee, it shall not be delegated to a co-trustee. If that power, duty, or authority is expressly excluded from exercise by a trustee, it shall not be delegated to the excluded trustee.

(4) If one trustee gives written notice to all other co-trustees of an action that the trustee proposes to be taken, then the failure of any co-trustee to deliver a written objection to the proposal to the trustee, at the trustee's then address of record and within fifteen days from the date the co-trustee actually receives the notice, constitutes formal approval by the co-trustee, unless the co-trustee had previously given written notice that was unrevoked at the time of the trustee's notice, to that trustee that this fifteen-day notice provision is inoperative.

(5) As to any effective delegation made under subsection (3) of this section, a co-trustee has no liability for failure to participate in the administration of the trust.

Nothing in this section, however, otherwise excuses a co-trustee from liability for failure to participate in the administration of the trust and nothing in this section, including subsection (3) of this section, excuses a co-trustee from liability for the failure to attempt to prevent a breach of trust.

Sec. 42. Section 69, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.019 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

Any (~~individual co-trustee~~) trustee may, by written instrument delivered to (~~the~~) any then acting co-trustee and to the current adult income beneficiaries of the trust, relinquish to any extent and upon any terms any or all of the trustee's powers, rights, authorities, or discretions that are or may be tax sensitive in that they cause or may cause adverse tax consequences to the trustee or the trust. Any trustee not relinquishing such a power, right, authority, or discretion and upon whom it is conferred continues to have full power to exercise it.

Sec. 43. Section 4, chapter 124, Laws of 1959 and RCW 11.98.029 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

~~(Upon petition of the trustee of a trust, the superior court having jurisdiction may accept his resignation and discharge him from the trust upon such notice, if any, and upon such terms as such court may require.)~~ Any trustee may resign, without judicial proceedings, by a writing signed by the trustee and filed with the trust records, to be effective upon the trustee's discharge as provided in section 141 of this 1985 act.

Sec. 44. Section 5, chapter 124, Laws of 1959 as amended by section 72, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.039 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) Where a vacancy occurs in the office of the trustee and there is a successor trustee who is willing to serve as trustee and (a) is named in the governing instrument as successor trustee or (b) has been selected to serve as successor trustee under the procedure established in the governing instrument for the selection of a successor trustee, the outgoing trustee, or any other interested party, shall give notice of such vacancy, whether arising because of the trustee's resignation or because of any other reason, and of the successor trustee's agreement to serve as trustee, to all adult income beneficiaries of the trust and to all known and identifiable adults for whom the income of the trust is being accumulated. If there are no such adults, no notice need be given. The successor trustee named in the governing instrument or selected pursuant to the procedure therefor established in the governing instrument shall be entitled to act as trustee except for good cause or disqualification. The successor trustee shall serve as of the effective date of the discharge of the predecessor trustee as provided in RCW 11.98.040.

(2) Where a vacancy exists or occurs in the office of the trustee and there is no successor trustee who is named in the governing instrument or who has been selected to serve as successor trustee under the procedure established in the governing instrument for the selection of a successor trustee, and who is willing to serve as trustee, the beneficiaries and the then-acting trustee, if any, of a trust may agree for the nonjudicial change of the trustee under RCW 11.96.170 ~~((if the governing instrument does not name a successor trustee who is willing to serve)).~~ The trustee, or any beneficiary if there is no then-acting trustee, shall give written notice of the proposed change in trustee to every beneficiary or special representative, and to the trustor if alive. The notice shall: (a) State the name and mailing address of the trustee or the beneficiary giving the notice; (b) include a copy of the governing instrument; ~~((and))~~ (c) state the name and mailing address of the successor trustee; and (d) include a copy of the proposed successor trustee's agreement to serve as trustee. The notice shall advise the recipient of the right to petition for ~~((the))~~ a judicial ~~((determination of the proposed))~~ appointment or change in trustee as provided in subsection ~~((2))~~ (3) of this section. The notice shall include a form on which consent or objection to the proposed change in trustee may be indicated. The successor trustee shall serve as of the effective date of the discharge of the predecessor trustee as provided in section 141 of this 1985 act or, in circumstances where there is no predecessor trustee, as of the effective date of the trustee's appointment.

~~((2))~~ (3) Any beneficiary of a trust, the trustor if alive, or the trustee may petition the superior court having jurisdiction for the appointment or change of a trustee under the procedures provided in chapter 11.96 RCW (a) whenever the office of trustee becomes vacant, (b) upon filing of a petition of resignation by a trustee, ~~((or))~~ (c) upon the giving of notice of the change in trustee as referred to in subsection (1) or (2) of this section, or (d) for any other reasonable cause.

~~((3))~~ (4) For purposes of this subsection, the term fiduciary includes both trustee and personal representative.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in the governing instrument, a successor fiduciary, absent actual knowledge of a breach of fiduciary duty: (i) Is not liable for any act or omission of a predecessor fiduciary and is not obligated to inquire into the validity or propriety of any such act or omission; (ii) is authorized to accept as conclusively accurate any accounting or statement of assets tendered to the successor fiduciary by a predecessor fiduciary; and (iii) is authorized to receipt only for assets actually delivered and has no duty to make further inquiry as to undisclosed assets of the trust or estate.

(b) Nothing in this section relieves a successor fiduciary from liability for retaining improper investments, nor does this section in any way bar the successor fiduciary, trust beneficiaries, or other party in interest from bringing an action against a predecessor fiduciary arising out of the acts or omissions of the predecessor fiduciary, nor does it relieve the successor fiduciary of liability for its own acts or omissions except as specifically stated or authorized in this section.

Sec. 45. Section 74, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.045 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) A trustee may transfer trust assets to a trustee in another jurisdiction or may transfer the place of administration of a trust to another jurisdiction if the trust instrument so provides or in accordance with RCW 11.98.051 or 11.98.055.

(2) Transfer under this section is permitted only if:

(a) The transfer would facilitate the economic and convenient administration of the trust;

(b) The transfer would not materially impair the interests of the beneficiaries or others interested in the trust;

(c) The transfer does not violate the terms of the trust; and

(d) The new trustee is qualified and able to administer the trust or such assets on the terms set forth in the trust.

(3) Acceptance of such transfer by a foreign corporate trustee or trust company under this section, RCW 11.98.051, or 11.98.055 shall not be construed to be doing a 'trust business' as described in RCW 30.08.150(9).

Sec. 46. Section 75, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.051 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) The trustee may transfer trust assets or the place of administration in accordance with RCW 11.96.170. In addition, the trustee shall give written notice to those persons entitled to notice as provided for under RCW 11.96.100 and 11.96.110 and to the attorney general in the case of a charitable trust subject to chapter 11.110 RCW. The notice shall:

(a) State the name and mailing address of the trustee;

(b) Include a copy of the governing instrument of the trust;

(c) Include a statement of assets and liabilities of the trust dated within ninety days of the notice;

(d) State the name and mailing address of the trustee to whom the assets or administration will be transferred together with evidence that the trustee has agreed to accept the assets or trust administration in the manner provided by law of the new place of administration. The notice shall also contain a statement of the trustee's qualifications and the name of the court, if any, having jurisdiction of that trustee or in which a proceeding with respect to the administration of the trust may be heard;

(e) State the facts supporting the requirements of RCW 11.98.045(2);

(f) Advise the beneficiaries of the right to petition for judicial determination of the proposed transfer as provided in RCW 11.98.055; and

(g) Include a form on which the recipient may indicate consent or objection to the proposed transfer.

(2) If the trustee receives written consent to the proposed transfer from all persons entitled to notice, the trustee may transfer the trust assets or place of administration as provided in the notice. Transfer in accordance with the notice is a full discharge of the trustee's duties in relation to all property referred to therein. Any person dealing with the trustee is entitled to rely on the authority of the trustee to act and is not obliged to inquire into the validity or propriety of the transfer.

Sec. 47. Section 76, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.055 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) Any trustee, beneficiary, or beneficiary representative may petition the superior court of the county of the situs of the trust for a transfer of trust assets or transfer of the place of administration in accordance with chapter 11.96 RCW.

(2) At the conclusion of the hearing, if the court finds the requirements of RCW 11.98.045(2) have been satisfied, it may direct the transfer of trust assets or the place of trust administration on such terms and conditions as it deems appropriate. The court in its discretion may provide for payment from the trust of reasonable fees and expenses for any party to the proceeding. Delivery of trust assets in accordance with the court's order is a full discharge of the trustee's duties in relation to all transferred property.

Sec. 48. Section 6, chapter 124, Laws of 1959 and RCW 11.98.060 are each reenacted to read as follows:

A successor trustee of a trust shall succeed to all the powers, duties and discretionary authority of the original trustee.

Sec. 49. Section 78, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.065 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Any appointment of a specific bank, trust company, or corporation as trustee is conclusively presumed to authorize the appointment or continued service of that entity's successor in interest in the event of a merger, acquisition, or reorganization, and no court proceeding is necessary to affirm the appointment or continuance of service.

Sec. 50. Section 7, chapter 124, Laws of 1959 as amended by section 80, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.070 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

A trustee, or the trustees jointly, of a trust, in addition to the authority otherwise given by law, have discretionary power to acquire, invest, reinvest, exchange, sell, convey, control, divide, partition, and manage the trust property in accordance with the standards provided by law, and in so doing may:

(a) To hold, retain, and continue to operate that business interest solely at the risk of the trust, without need to diversify and without liability on the part of the trustee for any resulting losses;

(b) To enlarge or diminish the scope or nature or the activities of any business;

(c) To authorize the participation and contribution by the business to any employee benefit plan, whether or not qualified as being tax deductible, as may be desirable from time to time;

(g) To engage, compensate, and discharge or to vote for the engaging, compensating, and discharging of managers, employees, agents, lawyers, accountants, consultants, or other representatives, including anyone who may be a beneficiary of the trust or any trustee;

(h) To cause or agree that surplus be accumulated or that dividends be paid;

(i) To accept as correct financial or other statements rendered by any accountant for any sole proprietorship or by any partnership or corporation as to matters pertaining to the business except upon actual notice to the contrary;

(k) To exercise with respect to the retention, continuance, or disposition of any such business all the rights and powers that the trustor of the trust would have if alive at the time of the exercise, including all powers as are conferred on the trustee by law or as are necessary to enable the trustee to administer the trust in accordance with the instrument governing the trust, subject to any limitations provided for in the instrument; and

(l) To satisfy contractual and tort liabilities arising out of an unincorporated business, including any partnership, first out of the business and second out of the estate or trust, but in no event may there be a liability of the trustee, except as provided in RCW 11.98.110 (2) and (4), and if the trustee is liable, the trustee is entitled to indemnification from the business and the trust, respectively;

(22) Participate in the establishment of, and thereafter in the operation of, any business or other enterprise according to subsection (21) of this section except that the trustee shall not be relieved of the duty to diversify;

(23) Cause or participate in, directly or indirectly, the formation, reorganization, merger, consolidation, dissolution, or other change in the form of any corporate or other business undertaking where trust property may be affected and retain any property received pursuant to the change;

(27) Employ persons, including lawyers, accountants, investment advisors, or agents, even if they are associated with the trustee, to advise or assist the trustee in the performance of the trustee's duties or to perform any act, regardless of whether the act is discretionary, and to act without independent investigation upon their recommendations, except a trustee may not delegate all of the trustee's duties and responsibilities, and except that this employment does not relieve the trustee of liability for the discretionary acts of a person, which if done by the trustee, would result in liability to the trustee, or of the duty to select and retain a person with reasonable care;

(28) Appoint an ancillary trustee or agent to facilitate management of assets located in another state or foreign country;

(29) Retain and store such items of tangible personal property as the trustee selects and pay reasonable storage charges thereon from the trust estate;

(31) Place all or any part of the securities at any time held by the trustee in the care and custody of any bank, trust company, or member firm of the New York Stock Exchange with no obligation while the securities are so deposited to inspect or verify the same and with no responsibility for any loss or misapplication by the bank, trust company, or firm, so long as the bank, trust company, or firm was selected and retained with reasonable care, and have all stocks and registered securities placed in the name of the bank, trust company, or firm, or in the name of its nominee, and to appoint such bank, trust company, or firm agent as attorney to collect, receive, receipt for, and disburse any income, and generally may perform, but is under no requirement to perform, the duties and services incident to a so-called 'custodian' account;

(33) Rely with acquittance on advice of counsel on questions of law; and

(34) Continue to be a party to any existing voting trust agreement or enter into any new voting trust agreement or renew an existing voting trust agreement with respect to any assets contained in trust.

Sec. 51, Section 81, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.080 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) Two or more trusts may be consolidated if:

(a) The trusts so provide; or

(b) Whether provided in the trusts or not, in accordance with subsection (2) of this section, if all interested persons consent as provided in subsection (2)((c))~~(b)~~ of this section and the requirements of subsection (1)(d) of this section are satisfied; or

(c) Whether provided in the trusts or not, in accordance with subsection (3) of this section if the requirements of subsection (1)(d) of this section are satisfied;

(d) Consolidation under subsection (2) or (3) of this section is permitted only if:

(i) The dispositive provisions of each trust to be consolidated are substantially similar;

(ii) Consolidation is not inconsistent with the intent of the trustor with regard to any trust to be consolidated; and

(iii) Consolidation would facilitate administration of the trusts and would not materially impair the interests of the beneficiaries;

(e) Trusts may be consolidated whether created inter vivos or by will, by the same or different instruments, by the same or different trustors, whether the trustees are the same, and regardless of where the trusts were created or administered.

(2) The trustees of two or more trusts may consolidate the trusts on such terms and conditions as appropriate without court approval as provided in RCW 11.96.170.

(a) The trustee shall give written notice of proposed consolidation by personal service or by certified mail to the beneficiaries of every trust affected by the consolidation as provided in RCW 11.96.100 and 11.96.110 and to any trustee of such trusts who does not join in the notice. The notice shall: (i) State the name and mailing address of the trustee; (ii) include a copy of the governing instrument of each trust to be consolidated; (iii) include a statement of assets and liabilities of each trust to be consolidated, dated within ninety days of the notice; (iv) fully describe the terms and manner of consolidation; and (v) state the reasons supporting the requirements of subsection (1)(d) of this section. The notice shall advise the recipient of the right to petition for a judicial determination of the proposed consolidation as provided in subsection (3) of this section. The notice shall include a form on which consent or objection to the proposed consolidation may be indicated.

(b) If the trustee receives written consent to the proposed consolidation from all persons entitled to notice as provided in RCW 11.96.100 and 11.96.110, the trustee may consolidate the trusts as provided in the notice. Any person dealing with the trustee of the resulting consolidated trust is entitled to rely on the authority of that trustee to act and is not obliged to inquire into the validity or propriety of the consolidation under this section.

(3)(a) Any trustee, beneficiary, or special representative may petition the superior court of the county in which the principal place of administration of a trust is located for an order consolidating two or more trusts under chapter 11.96 RCW. If nonjudicial consolidation has been commenced pursuant to subsection (2) of this section, a petition may be filed under this section unless the trustee has received all necessary consents. The principal place of administration of the trust is the trustee's usual place of business where the records pertaining to the trust are kept, or the trustee's residence if the trustee has no such place of business.

(b) At the conclusion of the hearing, if the court finds that the requirements of subsection (1)(d) of this section have been satisfied, it may direct consolidation of two or more trusts on such terms and conditions as appropriate. The court in its discretion may provide for payment from one or more of the trusts of reasonable fees and expenses for any party to the proceeding.

(4) This section applies to all trusts whenever created.

Sec. 52. Section 8, chapter 124, Laws of 1959 as amended by section 83, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.090 are each reenacted to read as follows:

In the absence of knowledge of a breach of trust, no party dealing with a trustee is required to see to the application of any moneys or other properties delivered to the trustee.

Sec. 53. Section 9, chapter 124, Laws of 1959 as amended by section 84, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.100 are each reenacted to read as follows:

When the happening of any event, including but not limited to such events as marriage, divorce, performance of educational requirements, or death, affects the administration or distribution of the trust, then a trustee who has exercised reasonable care to ascertain the happening of the event is not liable for any action or inaction based on lack of knowledge of the event. A corporate trustee is not liable prior to receiving such knowledge or notice in its trust department office where the trust is being administered.

Sec. 54. Section 10, chapter 124, Laws of 1959 as last amended by section 85, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.110 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

As used in this section, a trust includes a probate estate, and a trustee includes a personal representative. The words 'trustee' and 'as trustee' mean 'personal representative' and 'as personal representative' where this section is being construed in regard to personal representatives.

Actions on contracts which have been transferred to a trust and on contracts made by a trustee, and actions in tort for personal liability incurred by a trustee in the course of administration may be maintained by the party in whose favor the cause of action has accrued as follows:

(1) The plaintiff may sue the trustee in the trustee's representative capacity and any judgment rendered in favor of the plaintiff is collectible by execution out of the trust property: PROVIDED, HOWEVER, if the action is in tort, collection shall not be had from the trust property unless the court determines in the action that (a) the tort was a common incident of the kind of business activity in which the trustee or the trustee's predecessor was properly engaged for the trust; or (b) that, although the tort was not a common incident of such activity, neither the trustee nor the trustee's predecessor, nor any officer or employee of the trustee or the trustee's predecessor, was guilty of personal fault in incurring the liability; or (c) that, although the tort did not fall within classes (a) or (b) above, it increased the value of the trust property. If the tort is within classes (a) or (b) above, collection may be had of the full amount of damage proved, and if the tort is within class (c) above, collection may be had only to the extent of the increase in the value of the trust property.

(2) If the action is on a contract made by the trustee, the trustee may be held personally liable on the contract, if personal liability is not excluded. Either the addition by the trustee of the words 'trustee' or 'as trustee' after the signature of a trustee to a contract or the transaction of business as trustee under an assumed name in compliance with chapter 19.80 RCW excludes the trustee from personal liability. If the action is on a contract transferred to the trust or trustee, subject to any rights therein vested at time of the transfer, the trustee is personally liable only if he or she has in writing assumed that liability.

(3) In any such action against the trustee in the trustee's representative capacity the plaintiff need not prove that the trustee could have secured reimbursement from the trust fund if the trustee had paid the plaintiff's claim.

(4) The trustee may also be held personally liable for any tort committed by him or her, or by his or her agents or employees in the course of their employments, subject to the rights of exoneration or reimbursement:

(a) A trustee who has incurred personal liability for a tort committed in the administration of the trust is entitled to exoneration therefor from the trust property if (i) the tort was a common incident of the kind of business activity in which the trustee was properly engaged for the trust, or (ii) although the tort was not a common incident of such activity, if neither the trustee nor any officer or employee of the trustee was guilty of personal fault in incurring the liability;

(b) A trustee who commits a tort which increases the value of the trust property is entitled to exoneration or reimbursement with respect thereto to the extent of such increase in value, even though the trustee would not otherwise be entitled to exoneration or reimbursement.

(5) The procedure for all actions provided in this section is as provided in chapter 11.96 RCW.

(6) Nothing in this section shall be construed to change the existing law with regard to the liability of the trustee of a charitable trust for the torts of the trustee.

Sec. 55. Section 11.98.010, chapter 145, Laws of 1965 as amended by section 87, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.130 are each reenacted to read as follows:

If any provision of an instrument creating a trust, including the provisions of any further trust created, or any other disposition of property made pursuant to exercise of a power of appointment granted in or created through authority under such instrument violates the rule against perpetuities, neither such provision nor any other provisions of the trust, or such further trust or other disposition, is thereby rendered invalid during any of the following periods:

(1) The twenty-one years following the effective date of the instrument.

(2) The period measured by any life or lives in being or conceived at the effective date of the instrument if by the terms of the instrument the trust is to continue for such life or lives.

(3) The period measured by any portion of any life or lives in being or conceived at the effective date of the instrument if by the terms of the instrument the trust is to continue for such portion of such life or lives; and

(4) The twenty-one years following the expiration of the periods specified in (2) and (3) above.

Sec. 56. Section 11.98.020, chapter 145, Laws of 1965 as amended by section 88, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.140 are each reenacted to read as follows:

If, during any period in which an instrument creating a trust, as described in RCW 11.98.130, or any provision thereof, is not to be rendered invalid by the rule against perpetuities, any of the trust assets should by the terms of the instrument or pursuant to any further trust or other disposition resulting from exercise of the power of appointment granted in or created through authority under such instrument, become distributable or any beneficial interest in any of the trust assets should by the terms of the instrument, or such further trust or other disposition become vested, such assets shall be distributed and such beneficial interest shall validly vest in accordance with the instrument, or such further trust or other disposition.

Sec. 57. Section 11.98.030, chapter 145, Laws of 1965 as amended by section 89, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.150 are each reenacted to read as follows:

If, at the expiration of any period in which an instrument creating a trust, as described in RCW 11.98.009, or any provision thereof, is not to be rendered invalid by the rule against perpetuities, any of the trust assets have not by the terms of the trust instrument become distributable or vested, then the assets shall be distributed as the superior court having jurisdiction directs, giving effect to the general intent of the creator of the trust or person exercising a power of appointment in the case of any further trust or other disposition of property made pursuant to the exercise of a power of appointment.

Sec. 58. Section 11.98.040, chapter 145, Laws of 1965 as amended by section 90, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.160 are each reenacted to read as follows:

For the purposes of this chapter the effective date of an instrument purporting to create an irrevocable inter vivos trust is the date on which it is executed by the trustor, and the effective date of an instrument purporting to create either a revocable inter vivos trust or a testamentary trust is the date of the trustor's or testator's death.

Sec. 59. Section 91, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.98.170 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) Any life insurance policy or retirement plan payment provision may designate as beneficiary:

(a) A trustee named or to be named by will, and immediately after the proving of the will, the proceeds of such insurance or of such plan designated as payable to that trustee, in part or in whole, shall be paid to the trustee in accordance with the beneficiary designation, to be held and disposed of under the terms of the will governing the testamentary trust; or

(b) A trustee named or to be named under a trust agreement executed by the insured, the plan participant, or any other person, and the proceeds of such insurance or retirement plan designated as payable to such trustee, in part or in whole, shall be paid to the trustee in accordance with the beneficiary designation, to be held and disposed of by the trustee as provided in such trust agreement; a trust is valid even if the only corpus consists of the right of the trustee to receive as beneficiary insurance or retirement plan proceeds; any such trustee may also receive assets, other than insurance or retirement plan proceeds, by testamentary disposition or otherwise and, unless directed otherwise by the transferor of the assets, shall administer all property of the trust according to the terms of the trust agreement.

(2) If no qualified trustee makes claim to the insurance policy or retirement plan proceeds from the insurance company or the plan administrator within twelve months after the death of the insured or plan participant, determination of the proper recipient of the proceeds shall be made pursuant to the judicial or nonjudicial dispute resolution procedures of chapter 11.96 RCW, unless prior to the institution of the judicial procedures, a qualified trustee makes claim to the proceeds, except that (a) if satisfactory evidence is furnished the insurance company or plan administrator within the twelve-month period showing that no trustee can or will qualify to receive such proceeds, payment shall be made to those otherwise entitled to the proceeds under the terms of the policy or retirement plan, including the terms of the beneficiary designation except that (b) if there is any dispute as to the proper recipient of insurance policy or retirement plan proceeds, the dispute shall be resolved pursuant to the judicial or nonjudicial resolution procedures in chapter 11.96 RCW.

(3) The proceeds of the insurance or retirement plan as collected by the trustee are not subject to debts of the insured or the plan participant to any greater extent than if the proceeds were payable to any named beneficiary other than the personal representative or the estate of the insured or of the plan participant.

(4) For purposes of this section the following definitions apply:

(a) 'Plan administrator' means the person upon whom claim must be made in order for retirement plan proceeds to be paid upon the death of the plan participant.

(b) 'Retirement plan' means any plan, account, deposit, annuity, or benefit, other than a life insurance policy, that provides for payment to a beneficiary designated by the plan participant for whom the plan is established. The term includes, without limitation, such plans regardless of source of funding, and, for example, includes pensions, annuities, stock bonus plans, employee stock ownership plans, profit sharing plans, self-employed retirement plans, individual retirement accounts, individual retirement annuities, and retirement bonds, as well as any other retirement plan or program.

(c) 'Trustee' includes any custodian under chapter 11.93 RCW or any similar statutory provisions of any other state and the terms 'trust agreement' and 'will' refer to the provisions of chapter 11.93 RCW or such similar statutory provisions of any other state.

(5) Enactment of this section does not invalidate life insurance policy or retirement plan beneficiary designations executed prior to January 1, 1985, naming a trustee established by will or by trust agreement.

Sec. 62. Section 12, chapter 124, Laws of 1959 and RCW 11.98.920 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) A fiduciary is authorized to acquire and retain every kind of property. In acquiring, investing, reinvesting, exchanging, selling and managing property for the benefit of another, a fiduciary, in determining the prudence of a particular investment, shall give due consideration to the role that the proposed investment or investment course of action plays within the overall portfolio of assets. In applying such total asset management approach, a fiduciary shall exercise the judgment and care under the circumstances then prevailing, which persons of prudence, discretion and intelligence exercise in the management of their own affairs, not in regard to speculation but in regard to the permanent disposition of their funds, and if the fiduciary has special skills or is named trustee on the basis of representations of special skills or expertise, the fiduciary is under a duty to use those skills.

(2) Except as may be provided to the contrary in the instrument, the following are among the factors that should be considered by a fiduciary in applying this total asset management approach:

- (a) The probable income as well as the probable safety of their capital;
- (b) Marketability of investments;
- (c) Length of the term of the investments;
- (d) Duration of the trust;
- (e) Liquidity needs;

Within the limitations of the foregoing standard, and subject to any express provisions or limitations contained in any particular trust instrument, a fiduciary is authorized to acquire and retain every kind of property, real, personal, or mixed, and every kind of investment specifically including but not by way of limitation, debentures and other corporate obligations, and stocks, preferred or common, which persons of prudence, discretion, and intelligence acquire for their own account.

Subject to the standards of RCW 11.100.020, a fiduciary is authorized to invest in new, unproven, untried, or other enterprises with a potential for significant growth whether producing a current return, either by investing directly therein or by investing as a limited partner or otherwise in one or more commingled funds which in turn invest primarily in such enterprises. The aggregate amount of investments ~~((made))~~ held by a fiduciary under the authority of this section valued at cost shall not exceed ten percent of the net fair market value of the trust corpus ~~((at the time)), including investments made under the authority of this section valued at fair market value, immediately after~~ any such investment is made. Any investment which would have been authorized by this section if in force at the time the investment was made is hereby authorized.

Sec. 67. Section 99, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.100.025 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

A corporation doing a trust business may invest trust funds in savings accounts with itself to the extent that deposits are insured by an agency of the federal government. Additional trust funds may be so invested by the corporation only if it first sets aside under the control of its trust department as collateral security:

- (1) Direct obligations of the United States or other obligations fully guaranteed by the United States as to principal and interest; or
- (2) Bonds or other obligations which constitute general obligations of any state of the United States or municipal subdivision thereof.

The securities so deposited or securities substituted therefor as collateral shall at all times be at least equal in market value to the amount of the funds so deposited.

Funds held by a bank or trust company in a fiduciary capacity awaiting investment or distribution shall not be held uninvested or undistributed any longer than is reasonable for the proper management of the account. These funds, including managing agency accounts, may, unless prohibited by the instrument creating the trust or by other statutes of this state, be deposited in the commercial or savings or other department of the bank or trust company, only if the bank or trust company first sets aside under control of the trust department as collateral security:

(1) Direct obligations of the United States or other obligations fully guaranteed by the United States as to principal and interest; or

(2) Bonds or other obligations which constitute general obligations of any state of the United States or municipal subdivision thereof.

The securities so deposited or securities substituted therefor as collateral shall at all times be at least equal in market value to the amount of the funds so deposited, but such security shall not be required to the extent that the funds so deposited are insured by an agency of the federal government.

Sec. 71. Section 30.24.040, chapter 33, Laws of 1955 and RCW 11.100.040 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Nothing contained in this chapter shall be construed as restricting the power of a court of proper jurisdiction to permit a fiduciary to deviate from the terms of any will, agreement, or other instrument relating to the acquisition, investment, reinvestment, exchange, retention, sale, or management of fiduciary property.

Sec. 72. Section 30.24.050, chapter 33, Laws of 1955 as amended by section 107, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.100.050 are each reenacted to read as follows:

The provisions of this chapter govern fiduciaries acting under wills, agreements, court orders, and other instruments effective before or after January 1, 1985.

Sec. 73. Section 108, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.100.060 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

((Any fiduciary may hold during the life of the trust all securities or other property, real or personal, received into or acquired by the trust from any source, except such as are purchased by the fiduciary in administering the trust, unless there are express provisions to the contrary in the instrument)) Subject to express provisions to the contrary in the trust instrument, any fiduciary may hold and retain any real or personal property received into or acquired by the trust from any source. Except as to trust property acquired for consideration, a fiduciary may hold and retain any such property without need for diversification as to kinds or amount and whether or not the property is income producing.

Any fiduciary may invest funds held in trust under an instrument creating the trust in any manner and in any investment or in any class of investments authorized by the instrument.

The investments described in this section are permissible even though the securities or other property are not permitted under other provisions of this chapter, and even though the securities may be securities issued by the corporation that is the fiduciary.

A fiduciary is not liable for any loss incurred with respect to any investment held under the authority of or pursuant to this section if that investment was permitted when received or when the investment was made by the fiduciary, and if the fiduciary exercises due care and prudence in the disposition or retention of any such investment.

Sec. 74. Section 30.24.070, chapter 33, Laws of 1955 as amended by section 110, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.100.070 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Sec. 75. Section 30.24.090, chapter 33, Laws of 1955 as amended by section 111, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.100.090 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Unless the instrument creating the trust expressly provides to the contrary, any fiduciary in carrying out the obligations of the trust, may not buy or sell investments from or to himself, herself, or itself or any affiliated or subsidiary company or association. This section shall not be construed as prohibiting the trustee's powers under RCW 11.98.070(12).

Sec. 76. Section 1, chapter 89, Laws of 1973 1st ex. sess. as amended by section 112, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.100.120 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Subject to the standards of RCW 11.100.020, a fiduciary is authorized to use trust funds to acquire life insurance upon the life of any beneficiary or upon the life of another in whose life such beneficiary has an insurable interest.

Sec. 77. Section 2, chapter 89, Laws of 1973 1st ex. sess. and RCW 11.100.130 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Whenever power or authority to direct or control the acts of a trustee or the investments of a trust is conferred directly or indirectly upon any person other than the designated trustee of the trust, such person shall be deemed to be a fiduciary and shall be liable to the beneficiaries of said trust and to the designated trustee to the same extent as if he were a designated trustee in relation to the exercise or nonexercise of such power or authority.

Sec. 78. Section 114, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.100.140 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) A trustee shall not enter into a significant nonroutine transaction in the absence of a compelling circumstance without:

(a) Providing the written notice called for by subsection (4) of this section; and

(b) If the significant nonroutine transaction is of the type described in subsection (2)(a) of this section, obtaining an independent appraisal, or selling in an open-market transaction.

(2) A 'significant nonroutine transaction' for the purpose of this section is defined as any of the following:

(a) Any sale, option, lease, or other agreement, binding for a period of ten years or more, dealing with any interest in real estate other than real estate purchased by the trustee or a vendor's interest in a real estate contract, the value of which constitutes twenty-five percent or more of the net fair market value of trust principal at the time of the transaction; or

(b) The sale of any item or items of tangible personal property, including a sale of precious metals or investment gems other than precious metals or investment gems purchased by the trustee, the value of which constitutes twenty-five percent or more of the net fair market value of trust principal at the time of the transaction; or

(c) The sale of shares of stock in a corporation whose stock is not traded on the open market, if the stock in question constitutes more than twenty-five percent of the corporation's outstanding shares; or

(d) The sale of shares of stock in any corporation where the stock to be sold constitutes a controlling interest, or would cause the trust to no longer own a controlling interest, in the corporation.

(3) A 'compelling circumstance' for the purpose of this section is defined as a condition, fact, or event that the trustee believes necessitates action without compliance with this section in order to avoid immediate and significant detriment to the trust. If faced with a compelling circumstance, the trustee shall give the notice called for in subsection (4) of this section and may thereafter enter into the significant nonroutine transaction without waiting for the expiration of the twenty-day period.

(4) The written notice required by this section shall set forth such material facts as necessary to advise properly the recipient of the notice of the nature and terms of the intended transaction. This notice shall be given to the trustor, if living, to each person who is eighteen years or older and to whom income is presently payable or for whom income is presently being accumulated for distribution as income and for whom an address is known to the trustee, and to the attorney general if the trust is a charitable trust under RCW 11.110.020. The notice shall be mailed by United States certified mail, postage prepaid, return receipt requested, to the recipient's last-known address, or may be personally served, at least twenty days prior to the trustee entering into any binding agreements.

(5) The trustor, if living, or persons entitled to notice under this section may, by written instrument, waive any requirement imposed by this section.

(6) Except as required by this section for nonroutine transactions defined in subsection (2) of this section, a trustee shall not be required to notify beneficiaries of a trust of the trustee's intended action, to obtain an independent appraisal, or to sell in an open-market transaction.

(7) Any person dealing with a trustee may rely upon the trustee's written statement that the requirements of this section have been met for a particular transaction. If a trustee gives such a statement, the transaction shall be final unless the party relying on the statement has actual knowledge that the requirements of this section have not been met.

(8) The requirements of this section, and any similar requirements imposed by prior case law, shall not apply to personal representatives or to those trusts excluded from the definition of express trusts under RCW 11.98.009.

Sec. 79. Section 30.28.010, chapter 33, Laws of 1955 as amended by section 1, chapter 105, Laws of 1979 and RCW 11.102.010 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Any bank or trust company qualified to act as fiduciary in this state, or in any other state if affiliated with a bank or trust company qualified to act as fiduciary in this state, may establish common trust funds for the purpose of furnishing investments to itself and its affiliated or related bank or trust company as fiduciary, or to itself and its affiliated or related bank or trust company, and others, as cotrustees; and may, as such fiduciary or cotrustee, invest funds which it lawfully holds for investment in interests in such common trust funds, if such investment is not prohibited by the instrument, judgment, decree, or order creating such fiduciary relationship, and if, in the case of cotrustees, the bank or trust company procures the consent of its cotrustee or cotrustees to such investment: PROVIDED, That any bank or trust company qualified to act as fiduciary in the state of its charter, which is not a member of the federal reserve system, shall, in the operation of such common trust fund, comply with the rules and regulations as made from time to time by the supervisor of banking in the state where chartered and in Washington the supervisor is hereby authorized and empowered to make such rules and regulations as he may deem necessary and proper in the premises.

'Affiliated' as used in this section means two or more banks or trust companies:

(1) In which twenty-five percent or more of their voting shares, excluding shares owned by the United States or by any company wholly owned by the United States, are directly or indirectly owned or controlled by a holding company; or

(2) In which the election of a majority of the directors is controlled in any manner by a holding company.

Sec. 80. Section 30.28.020, chapter 33, Laws of 1955 and RCW 11.102.020 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Unless ordered by a court of competent jurisdiction the bank or trust company operating such common trust funds is not required to render a court accounting with regard to such funds; but it may, by application to the superior court, secure approval of such an accounting on such conditions as the court may establish.

Sec. 81. Section 30.28.030, chapter 33, Laws of 1955 and RCW 11.102.030 are each reenacted to read as follows:

This chapter shall apply to fiduciary relationships in existence on June 11, 1943, or thereafter established.

Sec. 82. Section 30.28.040, chapter 33, Laws of 1955 and RCW 11.102.040 are each reenacted to read as follows:

This chapter shall be so interpreted and construed to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the laws of those states which enact it.

Sec. 83. Section 30.28.050, chapter 33, Laws of 1955 and RCW 11.102.050 are each reenacted to read as follows:

This chapter may be cited as the uniform common trust fund act.

Sec. 84. Section 1, chapter 74, Laws of 1971 as amended by section 116, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.104.010 are each reenacted to read as follows:

As used in this chapter:

(1) 'Income beneficiary' means the person to whom income is presently payable or for whom it is accumulated for distribution as income;

(2) 'Inventory value' means the cost of property purchased by the trustee and the cost or adjusted basis for federal income tax purposes of other property at the time it became subject to the trust, but in the case of a trust asset that is included on any death tax return the trustee may, but need not, use the value finally determined for the purposes of the federal estate tax if applicable, otherwise for another estate or inheritance tax;

(3) 'Remainderman' means the person entitled to principal, including income which has been accumulated and added to principal.

Sec. 85. Section 2, chapter 74, Laws of 1971 as amended by section 117, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.104.020 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) A trust shall be administered with due regard to the respective interests of income beneficiaries and remaindermen. A trust is so administered with respect to the allocation of receipts and expenditures if a receipt is credited or an expenditure is charged to income or principal or partly to each:

(a) In accordance with the terms of the trust instrument, notwithstanding contrary provisions of this chapter;

(b) In the absence of any contrary terms of the trust instrument, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter; or

(c) If neither of the preceding rules of administration is applicable, in accordance with what is reasonable and equitable in view of the interests of those entitled to income as well as of those entitled to principal, and in view of the manner in which persons of prudence, discretion, and intelligence would act in the management of their own affairs.

(2) If the trust instrument gives the trustee discretion in crediting a receipt or charging an expenditure to income or principal or partly to each, no inference of imprudence or partiality arises from the fact that the trustee has made an allocation consistent with the instrument but that is contrary to a provision of this chapter.

Sec. 86. Section 3, chapter 74, Laws of 1971 as amended by section 118, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.104.030 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) Income is the return in money or property derived from the use of principal, including:

(a) Rent of real or personal property, including sums received for cancellation or renewal of a lease;

(b) Interest on money lent, including sums received as consideration for the privilege of prepayment of principal except as provided in RCW 11.104.070 on bond premiums and bond discounts;

(c) Income earned during administration of a decedent's estate as provided in RCW 11.104.050;

(d) Corporate distributions as provided in RCW 11.104.060;

(e) Increment in value on bonds or other obligations issued at a discount as provided in RCW 11.104.070;

(f) Receipts from business and farming operations as provided in RCW 11.104.080;

(g) Receipts from disposition of natural resources as provided in RCW 11.104.090 and 11.104.100;

(h) Receipts from other principal subject to depletion as provided in RCW 11.104.110; and

(i) Receipts from disposition of underproductive property as provided in RCW 11.104.120.

(2) Principal is the property which has been set aside by the owner or the person legally empowered so that it is held in trust eventually to be delivered to a remainderman while the return on or use of the principal is in the meantime taken or received by or held for accumulation for an income beneficiary. Principal includes:

(a) Consideration received by the trustee on the sale or other transfer of principal or on repayment of a loan or as a refund or replacement or change in the form of principal;

(b) Proceeds of property taken on eminent domain proceedings;

(c) Proceeds of insurance upon property forming part of the principal except proceeds of insurance upon a separate interest of an income beneficiary;

(d) Stock dividends, receipts on liquidation of a corporation, and other corporate distributions as provided in RCW 11.104.060;

(e) Receipts from the disposition of corporate securities, bonds, or other obligations for the payment of money as provided in RCW 11.104.070;

(3) After determining income and principal in accordance with the terms of the trust instrument or of this chapter, the trustee shall charge to income or principal expenses and other charges as provided in RCW 11.104.130.

Sec. 87. Section 4, chapter 74, Laws of 1971 as amended by section 119, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.104.040 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) An income beneficiary is entitled to income from the date specified in the trust instrument, or, if none is specified, from the date an asset becomes subject to the trust. In the case of an asset becoming subject to a trust by reason of a will, it becomes subject to the trust as of the date of the death of the testator even though there is an intervening period of administration of the testator's estate.

(2) Subject to subsection (2) (a) and (b) of this section, in the administration of a decedent's estate or of an asset becoming subject to a trust by reason of a will all receipts paid on or before the date of death of the testator are principal and all receipts paid after that date are income.

(a) Notwithstanding the foregoing, receipts due but not paid on or before the date of death of the testator are principal; and

(b) Receipts in the form of periodic payments (other than corporate distributions to stockholders), including rent, interest, or annuities, not due on or before the date of the death of the testator shall be treated as accruing from day to day. That portion of the receipt accruing before the date of death is principal, and the balance is income.

(3) In all other cases, any receipt from an income producing asset is income even though the receipt was earned or accrued in whole or in part before the date when the asset became subject to the trust.

(4) On the termination of an income beneficiary's income interest, if such interest was not subject to any discretion to withhold, accumulate, or distribute income to or for any other beneficiary, then income on hand but undistributed belongs to that income beneficiary or that beneficiary's estate, except that if the income beneficiary is the surviving spouse of the testator or grantor of the trust and the income interest otherwise qualifies for the marital deduction on any federal estate or gift tax return, then all accrued but undistributed income is subject to a testamentary general power of appointment in the surviving spouse, exercisable ((by will by specifically referring to this statute)) as provided in RCW 11.95.060 by specific reference to this statutory provision, to appoint the same to ((the testator or grantor or)) himself or herself, or to his or her estate. All undistributed income not disposed of under the foregoing provisions of this subsection shall be held and distributed as part of the next eventual interest or estate in accordance with the provisions of the will or trust relating to such next eventual interest or estate.

(5) Corporate distributions to stockholders shall be treated as due on the date fixed by the corporation for determination of stockholders of record entitled to distribution, or if no date is fixed, on the date of declaration of the distribution by the corporation.

Sec. 88. Section 5, chapter 74, Laws of 1971 as amended by section 120, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.104.050 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) Unless the will or the court otherwise provides and subject to subsection (2) of this section, all expenses incurred in connection with the settlement of a decedent's estate, including debts, funeral expenses, estate taxes, interest due at death, and penalties concerning taxes, family allowances, fees of attorneys and personal representatives, and court costs shall be charged against the principal of the estate, except that the principal shall be reimbursed from income for any increase in estate taxes due to the use of administration expenses that were paid from principal as deductions for income tax purposes.

(2) Unless the will or the court otherwise provides, income from the assets of a decedent's estate after the death of the testator and before distribution, including income from property used to discharge liabilities, shall be determined in accordance with the rules applicable to a trust under this chapter and distributed as follows:

(a) To beneficiaries of any specific bequest, legacy, or devise, the income from the property bequeathed or devised to them respectively, less taxes, ordinary repairs, and other expenses of management and operation of the property, and appropriate portions of interest accrued since the death of the testator and of taxes imposed on income (excluding taxes on capital gains) which accrue during the period of administration;

(b) Subject to (c) of this subsection, to all other beneficiaries, including trusts, the balance of the income less the balance of taxes, ordinary repairs, and other expenses of management and operation of all property from which the estate is entitled to income, plus the balance of all income accrued since the death of the testator, and less the balance of all taxes imposed on income (excluding taxes on capital gains) which accrue during the period of administration, in proportion to their respective interests in the undistributed assets of the estate computed at times of distribution on the basis of the fair value, provided, that the amount of income earned before the date or dates of payment of any estate or inheritance tax shall be distributed to those beneficiaries in proportion to their interests immediately before the making of those payments; and

(c) Pecuniary bequests not in trust do not receive income, and, subject to the provisions of RCW 11.56.160, all such bequests, including those to the decedent's surviving spouse, are not allocated any share of the expenses identified in subsection (2)(b) of this section.

(3) Any income with respect to which the income taxes have been paid which is payable in whole or in part to one or more charitable or other tax exempt ((organization(s))) organizations, and for which an income tax charitable deduction was allowable, shall be allocated among the distributees in such manner that the diminution in such taxes resulting from the charitable deduction allowable will inure to the benefit of the charitable or tax exempt organization giving rise to the deduction.

(4) Income received by a trustee under subsection (2) of this section shall be treated as income of the trust.

Sec. 89. Section 6, chapter 74, Laws of 1971 as amended by section 121, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.104.060 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) Corporate distributions of shares of the distributing corporation, including distributions in the form of a stock split or stock dividend, are principal. A right to subscribe to shares or other securities issued by the distributing corporation accruing to stockholders on account of their stock ownership and the proceeds of any sale of the right are principal.

(2) Except to the extent that the corporation indicates that some part of a corporate distribution is a settlement of preferred or guaranteed dividends accrued since the stock became a part of the trust corpus or is in lieu of an ordinary cash dividend, a corporate distribution is principal if the distribution is pursuant to:

(a) A call of shares;

(b) A merger, consolidation, reorganization, or other plan by which assets of the corporation are acquired by another corporation; or

(c) A total or partial liquidation of the corporation, including any distribution which the corporation indicates is a distribution in total or partial liquidation or any distribution of assets, other than cash, pursuant to a court decree or final administrative order by a government agency ordering distribution of the particular assets.

(3) Distributions made from ordinary income by a regulated investment company or by a trust qualifying and electing to be taxed under federal law as a real estate investment trust are income. All other distributions made by the company or trust, including distributions from capital gains, depreciation, or depletion, whether in the form of cash or an option to take new stock or cash or an option to purchase additional shares, are principal.

(4) Except as provided in subsections (1), (2), and (3) of this section all corporate distributions are income, including cash dividends, distributions of or rights to subscribe to shares or securities or obligations of corporations other than the distributing corporation, and the proceeds of the rights or property distributions. Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3) of this section, if the distributing corporation gives a stockholder an option to receive a distribution either in cash or in its own shares, the distribution chosen is income.

(5) The trustee may rely upon any statement of the distributing corporation as to any fact relevant under any provision of this chapter concerning the source or character of dividends or distributions of corporate assets.

Sec. 90. Section 7, chapter 74, Laws of 1971 as amended by section 122, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.104.070 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) Bonds or other obligations for the payment of money are principal at their inventory value, except as provided in subsection (2) for discount bonds. The trustee shall not provide for amortization of bond premiums or for accumulation of discount except where the trust instrument provides otherwise. If the instrument provides for amortization of premiums or accumulation of discount, but not both, and is silent as to one, it is the duty of the trustee to amortize premiums and accumulate discount. The proceeds of sale, redemption, or other disposition of the bonds or obligations are principal.

(2) The increment in value of a bond or other obligation for the payment of money bearing no fixed rate of interest or payable at a future time in accordance with a fixed schedule of appreciation in excess of the price at which it was issued is distributable as income. Except as otherwise provided in RCW 11.104.040(4), the increment in value is distributable to the beneficiary who was the income beneficiary at the time of increment from the first principal cash available or, if none is available, when realized by sale, redemption, or other disposition. Whenever unrealized increment is distributed as income but out of principal, the principal shall be reimbursed for the increment when realized.

Sec. 91. Section 8, chapter 74, Laws of 1971 as amended by section 123, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.104.080 are each reenacted to read as follows:

If a trustee uses any part of the principal in the operation of a trade, business or farming operation, the proceeds and losses of the business shall be allocated in accordance with what is reasonable and equitable in view of the interest of those entitled to income as well as those entitled to principal, and in view of the manner in which persons of prudence, discretion, and intelligence would act in the management of their own affairs in accordance with RCW 11.104.020. The operation of real estate for rent is considered a business.

Sec. 92. Section 9, chapter 74, Laws of 1971 as amended by section 124, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.104.090 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) If any part of the principal consists of a right to receive royalties, overriding or limited royalties, working interests, production payments, net profit interests, or other interests in minerals or other natural resources in, on or under land, the receipts from taking the natural resources from the land shall be allocated as follows:

(a) If received as rent on a lease or extension payments on a lease, the receipts are income;

(b) If received from a production payment, the receipts are income to the extent of any factor for interest or its equivalent provided in the governing instrument. There shall be allocated to principal the fraction of the balance of the receipts which the unrecovered cost of the production payment bears to the balance owed on the production payment exclusive of any factor for interest or its equivalent. The receipts not allocated to principal are income; and

(c) If received as a royalty, overriding or limited royalty, or bonus, or from a working, net profit, or any other interest in minerals or other natural resources, receipts not provided for in the preceding paragraphs of this section shall be apportioned on a yearly basis in accordance with this paragraph whether or not any natural resource was being taken from the land at the time the trust was established. Receipts shall be allocated to income or apportioned between income and principal at the discretion of the trustee, but in no event may principal be allocated more than that portion of the gross receipts that is deductible for federal income tax purposes during that year. The balance of the gross receipts, after payment therefrom of all expenses, direct and indirect, is income.

(2) If a trustee, on January 1, 1972, held an item of depletable property of a type specified in this section, the trustee shall allocate receipts from the property in the manner used before January 1, 1972, but as to all depletable property acquired after January 1, 1972 by an existing or new trust, the method of allocation provided herein shall be used.

(3) This section does not apply to timber, water, soil, sod, dirt, turf, or mosses.

Sec. 93. Section 12, chapter 74, Laws of 1971 as amended by section 125, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.104.120 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) Except as provided in subsection (5) of this section, a portion of the net proceeds of sale of any part of principal which is underproductive shall be treated as delayed income to which the income beneficiary is entitled as provided in this section. The net proceeds of sale are the gross proceeds received, including the value of any property received, less expenses, including any capital gains tax incurred in disposition, and less any carrying charges paid while the property was underproductive.

(2) The sum allocated as delayed income is the difference between the net proceeds and the amount which, had it been invested at simple interest at four percent per year while the property was underproductive, would have produced the net proceeds. This sum, plus any carrying charges and expenses previously charged against income while the property was underproductive, less any income received by the income beneficiary from the property and less the value of any use of the property by the income beneficiary, is income, and the balance is principal.

(3) Except as otherwise provided in RCW 11.104.040(4), an income beneficiary is entitled to delayed income under this section as if it accrued from day to day during the time he was a beneficiary.

(4) If principal subject to this section is disposed of by conversion into property which cannot be apportioned easily, including land or mortgages (for example, realty acquired by or in lieu of foreclosure), the income beneficiary is entitled to the net income from any property or obligation into which the original principal is converted while the substituted property or obligation is held. If within five years after the conversion the substituted property has not been further converted into easily apportionable property, no allocation as provided in this section shall be made.

(5) This section does not apply to underproductive property that the trustee is authorized to retain by the terms of the controlling document or by law; that is received into or acquired by the trust from any source, except property which is purchased by the fiduciary in administering the trust((:)); the retention of which has been authorized in writing by the income beneficiaries((:)); or the retention of which would be considered proper under the standard set forth in RCW 11.100.020.

(6) As used in this section, the term 'underproductive property' refers to any property that has not produced an average net income of at least one percent per year (simple interest) of its inventory value for more than a year (including as income the value of any use of the property by the income beneficiary).

Sec. 94. Section 13, chapter 74, Laws of 1971 as amended by section 126, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.104.130 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) The following charges shall be made against income:

(a) Ordinary expenses incurred in connection with the administration, management, or preservation of the trust property, including regularly recurring taxes assessed against any portion of the principal, water rates, premiums on insurance taken upon the interests of the income beneficiary, remainderman, or trustee, interest paid by the trustee, and ordinary repairs;

(b) If the trustee deems the same to be appropriate under the standards in RCW 11.104.020(1)(c), a reasonable allowance for depreciation on property subject to depreciation under generally accepted accounting principles; no allowance shall be made for depreciation of that portion of any real property used by a beneficiary as a residence or for depreciation of any property held by the trustee on January 1, 1972 for which the trustee is not then making an allowance for depreciation;

(c) One-half of court costs, attorney's fees, and other fees on periodic accountings, unless the court directs otherwise;

(d) Court costs, attorney's fees, and other fees on other accountings or judicial proceedings if the matter primarily concerns the income interest, unless the court directs otherwise;

(e) One-half of the trustee's regular compensation, whether based on a percentage of principal or income( ~~and all expenses reasonably incurred for current management of principal and application of income~~);

(f) All expenses reasonably incurred for current management of principal and application of income; and

(g) Any tax levied upon receipts allocated to income under this chapter or the trust instrument and payable by the trustee.

(2) If charges against income are of unusual amount, the trustee may by means of reserves or other reasonable means charge them over a reasonable period of time and withhold from distribution sufficient sums to regularize distributions.

(3) The following charges shall be made against principal:

(a) Trustee's compensation not chargeable to income under subsections (1)(d) and (1)(e) of this section, special compensation of trustees, expenses reasonably incurred in connection with principal, court costs and attorney's fees primarily concerning matters of principal, and trustee's compensation computed on principal as an acceptance, distribution, or termination fee;

(b) Charges not provided for in subsection (1) of this section, including the cost of investing and reinvesting principal, the payments on principal of an indebtedness (including a mortgage amortized by periodic payments of principal), expenses for preparation of property for rental or sale, and, unless the court directs otherwise, expenses incurred in maintaining or defending any action to construe the trust or protect it or the property or assure the title of any trust property;

(c) Extraordinary repairs or expenses incurred in making a capital improvement to principal, including special assessments, but, a trustee may establish an allowance for depreciation out of income to the extent permitted by subsection (1)(b) of this section and by RCW 11.104.080;

(d) Any tax levied upon profit, gain, or other receipts allocated to principal notwithstanding denomination of the tax as an income tax by the tax authority; and

(e) If an estate or inheritance tax is levied in respect of a trust in which both an income beneficiary and a remainderman have an interest, any amount apportioned to the trust, including interest, whether on account of direct or indirect borrowing for the purpose of paying those taxes, and penalties, even though the income beneficiary also has rights in the principal.

(4) Regularly recurring charges payable from income shall be apportioned to the same extent and in the same manner that income is apportioned under RCW 11.104.040.

Sec. 95. Section 30.30.010, chapter 33, Laws of 1955 as amended by section 128, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.106.010 are each reenacted to read as follows:

This chapter does not apply to resulting trusts, constructive trusts, business trusts where certificates of beneficial interest are issued to the beneficiaries, investment trusts, voting trusts, insurance trusts prior to the death of the insured, trusts in the nature of mortgages or pledges, trusts created by judgment or decree of a federal court or of the superior court when not sitting in probate, liquidation trusts or trusts for the sole purpose of paying dividends, interest or interest coupons, salaries, wages or pensions; nor does this chapter apply to personal representatives.

Sec. 96. Section 30.30.020, chapter 33, Laws of 1955 as amended by section 129, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.106.020 are each reenacted to read as follows:

The trustee or trustees appointed by any will, deed, or agreement executed shall mail or deliver at least annually to each adult income trust beneficiary a written itemized statement of all current receipts and disbursements made by the trustee of the funds of the trust both principal and income, and upon the request of any such beneficiary shall furnish the beneficiary an itemized statement of all property then held by that trustee, and may also file any such statement in the superior court of the county in which the trustee or one of the trustees resides.

This chapter is declared to be of similar import to the uniform trustees' accounting act. Sec. 106. Section 140, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.108.010 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Unless the context clearly requires otherwise, the definitions in this section apply throughout this chapter.

(1) The term 'pecuniary bequest' means a gift in a governing instrument which either is expressly stated as a fixed dollar amount or is a gift of a dollar amount determinable by the governing instrument, and a gift expressed in terms of a 'sum' or an 'amount,' unless the context dictates otherwise, is a gift of a dollar amount.

(2) The term 'marital deduction' means the federal estate tax deduction allowed for transfers under section 2056 of the internal revenue code.

(3) The term 'maximum marital deduction' means the maximum amount qualifying for the marital deduction.

(4) The term 'marital deduction gift' means a gift intended to qualify for the marital deduction.

(5) The term 'governing instrument' includes a will and codicils, irrevocable, and revocable trusts.

(6) 'Fiduciary' means trustee or personal representative. Reference to a fiduciary in the singular includes the plural where the context requires.

(7) References to the 'internal revenue code' are to the United States internal revenue code of 1954, as it is amended from time to time. Each reference to a section of the internal revenue code refers as well to any subsequent provisions of law enacted in its place.

(8) The term 'gift' refers to all legacies, devises, and bequests made in a governing instrument.

Sec. 107. Section 141, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.108.020 are each reenacted to read as follows:

If a governing instrument contains a marital deduction gift, the governing instrument, including any power, duty, or discretionary authority given to the fiduciary, shall be construed to comply with the marital deduction provisions of the internal revenue code and the regulations thereunder in order to conform to that intent. Whether the governing instrument contains a marital deduction depends upon the intent of the testator at the time the governing instrument is executed. If the testator has adequately evidenced an intention to make a marital deduction gift, the fiduciary shall not take any action or have any power that may impair that deduction. This section shall neither require nor prohibit a fiduciary from making the election referred to in section 2056(b)(7) of the internal revenue code.

Sec. 108. Section 142, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.108.030 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) If a governing instrument authorizes the fiduciary to satisfy a pecuniary bequest in whole or in part by distribution of property other than money, the assets selected for that purpose shall be valued at their respective fair market values on the date or dates of distribution, unless the governing instrument expressly provides otherwise. If the governing instrument permits the fiduciary to value the assets selected for the distribution as of a date other than the date or dates of distribution, then, unless the governing instrument expressly provides otherwise, the assets selected by the fiduciary for that purpose shall have an aggregate fair market value on the date or dates of distribution which, when added to any cash distributed, will amount to no less than the amount of that gift as stated in, or determined by, the governing instrument.

(2) A marital deduction gift shall be satisfied only with assets that qualify for those deductions.

Sec. 109. Section 143, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.108.040 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) If a testator, under the terms of a governing instrument executed prior to September 12, 1981, leaves outright to or in trust for the benefit of that testator's surviving spouse an amount or fractional share of that testator's estate or a trust estate expressed in terms of one-half of that testator's federal adjusted gross estate, or by any other reference to the maximum estate tax marital deduction allowable under federal law without referring, either in that governing instrument or in any codicil or amendment thereto, specifically to the unlimited federal estate tax marital deduction enacted as part of the economic recovery tax act of 1981, such expression shall, unless subsection ~~((1) or)~~ (2) or (3) of this section applies, be construed as referring to the unlimited federal estate tax marital deduction, and also as expressing such amount or fractional share, as the case may be, in terms of the minimum amount which will cause the least possible amount of federal estate tax to be payable as a result of the testator's death, taking into account other property passing to the surviving spouse that qualifies for the marital deduction, at the value at which it qualifies, and also taking into account all credits against the federal estate tax, but only to the extent that the use of these credits do not increase the death tax payable.

(2) If this subsection applies to a testator, such expression shall be construed as referring to the estate tax marital deduction allowed by federal law immediately prior to the enactment of the unlimited estate tax marital deduction as a part of the economic recovery tax act of 1981. This subsection applies if subsection (3) of this section does not apply and:

(a) The application of this subsection to the testator will not cause an increase in the federal estate taxes payable as a result of the testator's death over the amount of such taxes which would be payable if subsection (1) of this section applied; or

(b) The testator is survived by a blood or adopted descendant who is not also a blood or adopted descendant of the testator's surviving spouse, unless such person or persons have entered into an agreement under the dispute resolution procedures in chapter 11.96 RCW; or

(c) The testator amended the governing instrument containing such expression after December 31, 1981, without amending such expression to refer expressly to the unlimited federal estate tax marital deduction.

(3) If the governing instrument contains language expressly stating that federal law of a particular time prior to January 1, 1982, is to govern the construction or interpretation of such expression, the expression shall be construed as referring to the marital deduction allowable under federal law in force and effect as of that time.

(4) If subsection (2) or (3) of this section applies to the testator ~~((and if the expression contains any provision reducing the amount or the fractional share left outright to or in trust for the benefit of the surviving spouse by other property passing to the surviving spouse and qualifying for the federal estate tax marital deduction, the provision)),~~ the expression shall not be construed as referring to any property that the personal representative of the testator's estate or other authorized fiduciary elects to qualify for the federal estate tax marital deduction as qualified terminable interest property. If subsection (1) of this section applies to the testator, any ~~((such))~~ provision shall be construed as referring to any property that the personal representative of the testator's estate or other authorized fiduciary elects to qualify for the federal estate tax marital deduction as qualified terminable interest property, but only to the extent that such construction does not cause the amount or fractional share left to or for the benefit of the surviving spouse to be reduced below the amount that would pass under subsection (2) or (3) of this section, whichever is applicable.

(5) This section is effective with respect to testators dying after December 31, 1982.

Sec. 110. Section 144, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.108.050 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

If a governing instrument indicates the testator's intention to make a marital deduction gift in trust, in addition to the other provisions of this section, each of the following also applies to the trust; provided, however, that such provisions shall not apply to any trust which provides for the entire then remaining trust estate to be paid on the termination of the income interest to the estate of the spouse of the trust's creator, or to a charitable beneficiary, contributions to which are tax deductible for federal income tax purposes:

(1) The only income beneficiary of a marital deduction trust is the testator's surviving spouse;

(2) The income beneficiary is entitled to all of the trust income until the trust terminates;

(3) The trust income is payable to the income beneficiary not less frequently than annually; and

(4) Except in the case of ~~((qualified terminable interest property resulting from))~~ property that has or would otherwise have qualified for the marital deduction only as the result of an election under section 2056(b)(7) of the internal revenue code, upon termination of the trust, all of the remaining trust assets, including accrued or undistributed income, pass either to the income beneficiary or under the exercise of a general power of appointment granted to the income beneficiary in favor of the income beneficiary's estate or to any other person or entity in trust or outright. The general power of appointment is exercisable by the income beneficiary alone and in all events (~~and the income beneficiary, or a fiduciary acting in behalf of the income beneficiary if he or she is then a minor or incompetent, may exercise it in a will or an instrument other than a will unless the instrument creating the power specifically directs otherwise~~).

The exercise of the general power of appointment provided in this section shall be done only by ((express written reference to this general power of appointment in a will or inter vivos trust instrument executed by)) the income beneficiary in the manner provided by RCW 11.95.060 by specifically referring to this section.

Sec. 111. Section 145, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.108.060 are each reenacted to read as follows:

If a governing instrument contains a marital deduction gift, whether outright or in trust and whether there is a specific reference to this section, any survivorship requirement expressed in the governing instrument in excess of six months does not apply to property passing under a marital deduction, and in addition, is limited to a six-month period beginning with the testator's death.

Sec. 112. Section 146, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.108.900 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

This chapter applies to ((any distribution made)) all estates, trusts, and governing instruments in existence on or any time after March 7, 1984, ((whether the testator died before or)) and to all proceedings with respect thereto after that date, whether the proceedings commenced before or after that date, and including distributions made after that date. This chapter shall not apply to any governing instrument the terms of which expressly or by necessary implication make this chapter inapplicable. The judicial and nonjudicial dispute resolution procedures of chapter 11.96 RCW apply to this chapter.

Sec. 113. Section 1, chapter 53, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. and RCW 11.110.010 are each reenacted to read as follows:

The purpose of this chapter is to facilitate public supervision over the administration of public charitable trusts and similar relationships and to clarify and implement the powers and duties of the attorney general with relation thereto.

Sec. 114. Section 2, chapter 53, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. as amended by section 1, chapter 226, Laws of 1971 ex. sess. and RCW 11.110.020 are each reenacted to read as follows:

When used in this chapter, unless the context otherwise requires:

'Person' means an individual, organization, group, association, partnership, corporation, or any combination of them.

'Trustee' means (1) any person holding property in trust for a public charitable purpose; except the United States, its states, territories, and possessions, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and their agencies and subdivisions; and (2) a corporation formed for the administration of a charitable trust or holding assets subject to limitations permitting their use only for charitable, religious, eleemosynary, benevolent, educational, or similar purposes: PROVIDED, That the term 'trustee' does not apply to (a) religious corporations duly organized and operated in good faith as religious organizations, which have received a declaration of current tax exempt status from the government of the United States; their duly organized branches or chapters; and charities, agencies, and organizations affiliated with and forming an integral part of said organization, or operated, supervised, or controlled directly by such religious corporations nor any officer of any such religious organization who holds property for religious purposes: PROVIDED, That if such organization has not received from the United States government a declaration of current tax exempt status prior to the time it receives property under the terms of a charitable trust, this exemption shall be applicable for two years only from the time of receiving such property, or until such tax exempt status is finally declared, whichever is sooner; or (b) an educational institution which is nonprofit and charitable, having a program of primary, secondary, or collegiate instruction comparable in scope to that of any public school or college operated by the state of Washington or any of its school districts.

Sec. 115. Section 4, chapter 53, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. and RCW 11.110.040 are each reenacted to read as follows:

All information, documents, and reports filed with the attorney general under this chapter are matters of public record and shall be open to public inspection, subject to reasonable regulation: PROVIDED, That the attorney general shall withhold from public inspection any trust instrument so filed whose content is not exclusively for charitable purposes. The attorney general may publish, on a periodic or other basis, such information as may be necessary or appropriate in the public interest concerning the registration, reports, and information filed with him or any other matters relevant to the administration and enforcement of this chapter.

Sec. 116. Section 5, chapter 53, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. as amended by section 149, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.110.050 are each reenacted to read as follows:

The attorney general shall establish and maintain a register of trustees as defined in RCW 11.110.020 and, to that end, shall conduct whatever investigation is necessary, and shall obtain from public records, court officers, taxing authorities, trustees, and other sources whatever information, copies of instruments, reports, and records are needed, for the establishment and maintenance of the register.

Sec. 117. Section 6, chapter 53, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. as last amended by section 150, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.110.060 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

Every trustee shall file with the attorney general within two months after receiving possession or control of the trust corpus a copy of the instrument establishing his title, powers, or duties, and an inventory of the assets of such charitable trust. In addition, trustees exempted from the provisions of RCW 11.110.070 by RCW 11.110.073 shall file with the attorney general a copy of the declaration of the tax-exempt status or other basis of the claim for such exemption; a copy of the instrument establishing the trustee's title, powers or duties; an inventory of the assets of such trust; and, annually, a copy of each publicly available United States tax or information return or report of the trust which the trustee files with the internal revenue service. The trustees of charitable trusts existing at the time this chapter ~~((takes effect))~~ takes effect or on August 9, 1971, shall comply with this section within six months thereafter.

Sec. 118. Section 7, chapter 53, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. as amended by section 3, chapter 226, Laws of 1971 ex. sess. and RCW 11.110.070 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Except as otherwise provided every trustee subject to this chapter shall file with the attorney general annual reports, under oath, setting forth information as to the nature of the assets held for charitable purposes and the administration thereof by the trustee, in accordance with rules and regulations of the attorney general.

The attorney general shall make rules and regulations as to the time for filing reports, the contents thereof, and the manner of executing and filing them. He may classify trusts and other relationships concerning property held for a charitable purpose as to purpose, nature of assets, duration of the trust or other relationship, amount of assets, amounts to be devoted to charitable purposes, nature of trustee, or otherwise, and may establish different rules for the different classes as to time and nature of the reports required, to the ends (1) that he shall receive reasonably current, periodic reports as to all charitable trusts or other relationships of a similar nature which will enable him to ascertain whether they are being properly administered, and (2) that periodic reports shall not unreasonably add to the expense of the administration of charitable trusts and similar relationships. The attorney general may suspend the filing of reports as to a particular charitable trust or relationship for a reasonable, specifically designated time upon written application of the trustee filed with the attorney general after the attorney general has filed in the register of charitable trusts a written statement that the interests of the beneficiaries will not be prejudiced thereby and that periodic reports are not required for proper supervision by his office.

A copy of an account filed by the trustee in any court having jurisdiction of the trust or other relationship, if the account substantially complies with the rules and regulations of the attorney general, may be filed as a report required by this section.

The first report for a trust or similar relationship hereafter established, unless the filing thereof is suspended as herein provided, shall be filed not later than one year after any part of the income or principal is authorized or required to be applied to a charitable purpose. If any part of the income or principal of a trust previously established is authorized or required to be applied to a charitable purpose at the time this act takes effect, the first report, unless the filing thereof is suspended, shall be filed within six months after the effective date of this act.

Sec. 119. Section 4, chapter 226, Laws of 1971 ex. sess. as amended by section 153, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.110.073 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(2) The governing body of a nonprofit community foundation or other nonprofit foundation incorporated for charitable purposes, contributions to which are currently allowed as charitable deductions under the United States income tax laws;

(3) The governing body of a hospital which is nonprofit and charitable, other than a hospital initially formed as a trustee pursuant to or in connection with the terms of a charitable trust.

A trust is not exclusively for charitable purposes, within the meaning of RCW 11.110.040, when the instrument creating it contains a trust for several or mixed purposes, and any one or more of such purposes is not charitable within the meaning of RCW 11.110.020, as enacted or hereafter amended. Such instrument shall be withheld from public inspection by the attorney general and no information as to such noncharitable purpose shall be made public.

Annual reporting of such trusts to the attorney general, as required by RCW 11.110.060 or 11.110.070, shall commence within one year after trust income or principal is authorized or required to be used for a charitable purpose.

When a trust consists of a vested charitable remainder preceded by a life estate, a copy of the instrument shall be filed by the trustee or by the life tenant, within two months after commencement of the life estate.

If the trust instrument contains only contingent gifts or remainders to charitable purposes, no charitable trust shall be deemed created until a charitable gift or remainder is legally vested. The first registration or report of such trust shall be filed within two months after trust income or principal is authorized or required to be used for a charitable purpose.

Sec. 121. Section 8, chapter 53, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. and RCW 11.110.080 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Every officer, agency, board or commission of this state receiving applications for exemption from taxation of any charitable trust or similar relationship in which the trustee is subject to this chapter shall annually file with the attorney general a list of all applications received during the year.

Sec. 122. Section 9, chapter 53, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. and RCW 11.110.090 are each reenacted to read as follows:

It is the purpose of this chapter to make uniform the laws of this and other states on the subject of charitable trusts and similar relationships. Recognizing the necessity for uniform application and enforcement of this chapter, its provisions are hereby declared mandatory and they shall not be superseded by the provisions of any trust instrument or similar instrument to the contrary.

Sec. 123. Section 10, chapter 53, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. and RCW 11.110.100 are each reenacted to read as follows:

The attorney general may investigate transactions and relationships of trustees and other persons subject to this chapter for the purpose of determining whether the trust or other relationship is administered according to law and the terms and purposes of the trust, or to determine compliance with this chapter in any other respect. He may require any officer, agent, trustee, fiduciary, beneficiary, or other person, to appear, at a time and place designated by the attorney general in the county where the person resides or is found, to give information under oath and to produce books, memoranda, papers, documents of title, and evidence of assets, liabilities, receipts, or disbursements in the possession or control of the person ordered to appear.

Sec. 124. Section 11, chapter 53, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. as last amended by section 157, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.110.110 are each reenacted to read as follows:

When the attorney general requires the attendance of any person, as provided in RCW 11.110.100, he shall issue an order setting forth the time when and the place where attendance is required and shall cause the same to be delivered to or sent by registered mail to the person at least fourteen days before the date fixed for attendance. Such order shall have the same force and effect as a subpoena, and, upon application of the attorney general, obedience to the order may be enforced by any superior court judge in the county where the person receiving it resides or is found, in the same manner as though the notice were a subpoena. The court, after hearing, for good cause, and upon application of any person aggrieved by the order, shall have the right to alter, amend, revise, suspend, or postpone all or any part of its provisions. In any case where the order is not enforced by the court according to its terms, the reasons for the court's actions shall be clearly stated in the record, and shall be subject to review by the supreme court or the court of appeals by certiorari or other appropriate proceeding.

Sec. 125. Section 12, chapter 53, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. as amended by section 158, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.110.120 are each reenacted to read as follows:

The attorney general may institute appropriate proceedings to secure compliance with this chapter and to secure the proper administration of any trust or other relationship to which this chapter applies. He shall be notified of all judicial proceedings involving or affecting the charitable trust or its administration in which, at common law, he is a necessary or proper party as representative of the public beneficiaries. The notification shall be given as provided in RCW 11.96.100, but this notice requirement may be waived at the discretion of the attorney general. The powers and duties of the attorney general provided in this chapter are in addition to his existing powers and duties, and are not to be construed to limit or to restrict the exercise of the powers or the performance of the duties of the attorney general or of any prosecuting attorney which they may exercise or perform under any other provision of law. Except as provided herein, nothing in this chapter shall impair or restrict the jurisdiction of any court with respect to any of the matters covered by it.

Sec. 126. Section 6, chapter 226, Laws of 1971 ex. sess. and RCW 11.110.125 are each reenacted to read as follows:

The wilful refusal by a trustee to make or file any report or to perform any other duties expressly required by this chapter, or to comply with any valid rule or regulation promulgated by the attorney general under this chapter, shall constitute a breach of trust and a violation of this chapter.

A civil action for a violation of this chapter may be prosecuted by the attorney general or by a prosecuting attorney designated by the attorney general.

Sec. 128. Section 14, chapter 53, Laws of 1967 ex. sess. and RCW 11.110.140 are each reenacted to read as follows:

Every false statement of material fact knowingly made or caused to be made by any person in any statement or report filed under this chapter and every other violation of this chapter is a gross misdemeanor.

SB 3073

Prime Sponsor, Senator Talmadge: Making technical corrections and reenacting wills provisions from the Washington trust act of 1984. Reported by Committee on Judiciary

MAJORITY recommendation: Do pass with the following amendments:

Strike everything after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. The purpose of this act is to make technical corrections to chapter 149, Laws of 1984, and to ensure that the changes made in that chapter meet the constitutional requirements of Article II, section 19 of the state Constitution.

Sec. 2. Section 11.12.250, chapter 145, Laws of 1965 as amended by section 5, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.12.250 are each reenacted to read as follows:

A gift may be made by a will to a trustee of a trust executed by any trustor or testator (including a funded or unfunded life insurance trust, although the trustor has reserved any or all rights of ownership of the insurance contracts) if (1) the trust is identified in the testator's will and (2) its terms are evidenced either (a) in a written instrument other than a will, executed by the trustor prior to or concurrently with the execution of the testator's will or (b) in the will of a person who has predeceased the testator, regardless of when executed. The existence, size, or character of the corpus of the trust is immaterial to the validity of the gift. Such gift shall not be invalid because the trust is amendable or revocable, or both, or because the trust was amended after the execution of the testator's will or after the testator's death. Unless the will provides otherwise, the property so given shall not be deemed to be held under a testamentary trust of the testator but shall become a part of the trust to which it is given to be administered and disposed of in accordance with the terms of the instrument establishing the trust, including any amendments, made prior to the death of the testator, and regardless of whether made before or after the execution of the will. Unless the will provides otherwise, an express revocation of the trust prior to the testator's death invalidates the gift. Any termination of the trust other than by express revocation does not invalidate the gift. For purposes of this section, the term 'gift' includes the exercise of any testamentary power of appointment.

Sec. 3. Section 6, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.12.255 are each reenacted to read as follows:

A will may incorporate by reference any writing in existence when the will is executed if the will itself manifests the testator's intent to incorporate the writing and describes the writing sufficiently to permit its identification. In the case of any inconsistency between the writing and the will, the will controls.

Sec. 4. Section 7, chapter 149, Laws of 1984 and RCW 11.12.260 are each reenacted to read as follows:

(1) A will may refer to a writing that directs disposition of tangible personal property not otherwise specifically disposed of by the will other than property used primarily in trade or business. Such a writing shall not be effective unless: (a) An unrevoked will refers to the writing, (b) the writing is either in the handwriting of, or signed by, the testator, and (c) the writing describes the items and the recipients of the property with reasonable certainty.

(2) The writing may be written or signed before or after the execution of the will and need not have significance apart from its effect upon the dispositions of property made by the will. A writing that meets the requirements of this section shall be given effect as if it were actually contained in the will itself, except that if any person designated to receive property in the writing dies before the testator, the property shall pass as further directed in the writing and in the absence of any further directions, the disposition shall lapse and RCW 11.12.110 shall not apply to such lapse.

(3) The testator may make subsequent handwritten or signed changes to any writing. If there is an inconsistent disposition of tangible personal property as between writings, the most recent writing controls.

(4) As used in this section 'tangible personal property' means articles of personal or household use or ornament, for example, furniture, furnishings, automobiles, boats, airplanes, and jewelry, as well as precious metals in any tangible form, for example, bullion or coins. The term includes articles even if held for investment purposes and encompasses tangible property that is not real property. The term does not include mobile homes or intangible property, for example, money that is normal currency or normal legal tender, evidences of indebtedness, bank accounts or other monetary deposits, documents of title, or securities.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 5. This act shall apply to wills of decedents dying after December 31, 1984.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 6. If any provision of this act or its application to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the remainder of the act or the application of the provision to other persons or circumstances is not affected.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 7. This act is necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, and safety, the support of the state government and its existing public institutions, and shall take effect immediately."

(3) At any time after the entry of an order suspending support payments under this section, the custodial parent may petition the court for relief from the suspension order. The court shall grant relief from the suspension order, release the support payments held in trust to the custodial parent, and reinstate the original child support order, if the custodial parent demonstrates compliance with the visitation order and gives adequate assurances of continuing compliance, or proves existence of a violation of one of the conditions set forth in this section.

(4) If relief is not granted from the suspension order within one year of entry, the court may, upon motion of a party, enter an appropriate order disposing of the support moneys held in trust, which may include the release of the moneys to the obligor and relief of the future obligation to pay support."

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Armstrong: "Mr. Speaker, I would like to request a ruling on scope and object of this amendment."

I want to let you know that I am going to continue to work on this and I would appreciate some bipartisan support on the issue."

On motion of Mr. Tilly the following remarks were ordered spread upon the Journal:

Mr. Wineberry: "Mr. Speaker and distinguished members of the House of Representatives: I rise today to urge your unanimous support for House Bill 222, the bill to commemorate the third Monday in January as a state holiday in honor of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

"This bill gives us an opportunity to move beyond a resolution. I say beyond a resolution because since Dr. King's assassination in 1968, our body has chosen to honor him year after year by passing a floor resolution giving recognition to his many deeds. But today we have an opportunity to go beyond a resolution and declare our true value and respect for Dr. King, and also for the principles for which he stood and the vision he had for our nation.

"I want to express at this time my wholehearted acceptance of the amendment proposed by the Representative from the 8th District. This amendment enables us to achieve what I call the ideal cost-benefit balance: We do not create an additional holiday; we are able to honor Dr. King and have zero fiscal impact to our state budget.

"This amendment also achieves the goal of uniformity between Washington State and our federal government. It, in effect, creates a President's Day in February as our federal government now recognizes, while the bill already creates a King holiday which President Reagan and the Congress have declared to begin celebrating next year.

"I know that some of you may feel we have already gone far enough in the past, beyond a resolution, particularly last year when we established a day off for our public schools. However, while this may have been a step in the right direction, it was not far enough. Our state workers should not be deprived of the historic, civic and cultural enlightenment which comes from observing a holiday in honor of Dr. King. Furthermore, our state employees who are parents of school age children should not be burdened with the unfair choice of either leaving their children home unsupervised while they are at work or paying the expense of child care for the entire day.

"This holiday bill goes beyond just honoring Dr. King, the man. Far more importantly, this holiday will be the first and only day of all of our holidays dedicated to the very noble principles of justice, peace, equality and brotherhood.

"We can all gain strength and inspiration from Dr. King's courage, first witnessed in Montgomery in 1955 and last seen in Memphis, Tennessee, where he was killed in 1968. But that thirteen-year span changed and continues to change the life of our nation.

"As elected leaders, we must be especially grateful to Dr. King for the political legacy he left. His memory challenges each of us to pursue equal justice through the power of politics and calls upon those of us who can wield the force of public office in the service of this same goal. It challenges us to believe, and to behave as if we believe, one of Dr. King's most profound tenets: 'Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere.' Dr. King believed, like many before him, that in America full political and economic participation are two direct roads to power sharing and to the improvement of the human condition.

"I believe that if Martin were alive today, he would give focus and leadership to the continuing struggle for political, social and economic empowerment, whether the cause was women's rights or for the elderly, the mentally and physically disabled or the rights of our children, that group I call tomorrow's generation.

"The objective would still be the same in the 80s as it was in the 50s and 60s--to achieve true equality and justice; to be heard, respected and taken seriously; to sit in the legislative chambers as well as the corporate executive suites and decide who gets what, when and how in this country. We have yet to reach that promised land so eloquently described by Dr. King in his 1968 speech, 'I Have a Dream.' But perseverance and the splendid example of his leadership that we will observe in this holiday can one day deliver us to the point when we can say, 'Mission accomplished.'

"So I ask you, in closing, to join with me and the signed co-sponsors of this bill as we vote a resounding 'aye' to move beyond a resolution--beyond a resolution to a permanent state holiday in honor of Dr. King--beyond a resolution at zero cost to our state--beyond a resolution to a holiday through which we can join the rest of the nation beginning next year in celebration of our first holiday dedicated to peace, freedom, justice and equality for all mankind.

"I urge unanimous passage of House Bill 222. Thank you very much."

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. G. Nelson: "Mr. Speaker, I would ask the Chair to rule in consideration of Reed's Rule 204 through 206 regarding when the motion for reconsideration may be made and how many times."

SPEAKER'S RULING (MR. O'BRIEN PRESIDING)

The Speaker (Mr. O'Brien presiding): "Rule 30 states as follows: 'The rules of parliamentary practice comprised in Reed's Parliamentary Rules shall govern all cases in which they are not inconsistent with the standing rules and orders of the house.' It appears that our House rules would supersede Reed's Rules. The question before you is: The amendment was decided in the affirmative and our House rules state that a motion to be reconsidered can be decided only once when decided in the negative. We are in the affirmative and it appears to be covered."

Mr. G. Nelson: "If because it was decided in the affirmative and our House rules are silent when it's decided in the affirmative, the only thing you would default to is Reed's Rules. We do not have any information in our House rules that decides the affirmative and whenever there is nothing in the House rules that addresses that, you automatically go to Reed's Rules."

The Speaker (Mr. O'Brien presiding): "It appears the question raised by Representative Ehlers on the affirmative basis is fairly well taken. Therefore, I'm going to rule that the motion to reconsider the affirmative vote on adoption of the amendment is in order."

(3) The provisions of this act apply to campaigns for state legislative office to fill regular terms in the house of representatives or senate if the campaign, as defined in this act, ends on or after December 1, 1986. However, for any campaign ending on December 1, 1986, the provisions of this act apply only to that portion of such campaign occurring after the effective date of this act.

NEW SECTION, Sec. 10. If any provision of this act or its application to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the remainder of the act or the application of the provision to other persons or circumstances is not affected.

NEW SECTION, Sec. 11. This act is necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety, the support of the state government and its existing public institutions, and shall take effect immediately."

Renumber the remaining sections consecutively and correct any internal references accordingly.

Mr. G. Nelson moved adoption of the following amendment to the Fisher amendment:

Strike all of section 11.

Mr. G. Nelson spoke in favor of the amendment.

POINT OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. Barrett: "Mr. Speaker, the amendment to the amendment is speaking to an emergency clause which either will or will not make this particular amendment effective at a certain time. Since there is just one member of this body who will be affected by the amendment and by the emergency clause, my point of parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker, is: Is it permissible or will it be allowed for that particular member of this body to take part in this debate and in the voting on this issue?"

The Speaker: "Your point is not well taken, Representative Barrett, because all members are affected."

Mr. Barrett: "If I may speak on this further. No, all members are not affected by the emergency clause, Mr. Speaker, because none of our terms, with one exception, are up within the prescribed emergency time. Also, I would point out that the particular member that we have in mind will be under this jurisdiction and is now in the process of running since this is the year that member will run. Section 8(3) which is affected by section 11, certainly applies to only one member, not to any of the rest of us, Mr. Speaker."

The Speaker: "Once again, this applies to one-year, two-year periods. It's not necessarily just this one particular election coming up. Your point is not well taken."

Ms. Fisher spoke against the amendment to the amendment, and Mr. G. Nelson spoke again in favor of it.

A division was called.

On page 1, line 4 after "Sec. 1," strike "(1) There" and all language down to and including "act," on page 1, line 28 and insert "The legislature finds there are numerous programs at the state and local levels which address the needs of children. The legislature further finds that a growing number of children, commonly known as 'street kids,' receive neither direct parental supervision and care nor services from the Department of Social and Health Services. The legislature further finds there is a need to address this population through a comprehensive review of services provided at the state and local levels.

The legislature deems it appropriate to implement an experimental, one-year service delivery system for 'street kids' while a comprehensive review of existing services is being conducted. The experimental program for 'street kids' may provide counseling, food, emergency shelter information and referral, medical care, outreach services and other services as necessary to promote the transition of these children to a supervised, safe and stable living environment.

The experimental program for 'street kids' shall be judged effective if it is shown that the program measurably diverts children living in unsupervised and dangerous urban environments from those environments and reduces inappropriate use of crisis residential or receiving home services.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 2. DEFINITIONS. Unless the context clearly indicates otherwise, words used in this chapter have the following meaning:

(1) 'Street kid' means a child under the age of eighteen who is not receiving care, shelter, or supervision from a parent, responsible relative, or other responsible adult; who is not receiving a residential care from the department of social and health services or a local service agency; and who is living in a dangerous urban environment.

(4) 'Department' means the department of social and health services.

(1) Street outreach, advocacy and counseling to 'street kids';

(2) Short or long-term foster care;

(3) Intervention, advocacy and counseling to children or youth at risk of becoming 'street kids';

(4) Multi-service centers as defined in section 2(2) of this chapter.

The multi-service centers may only provide services to 'street kids' between the ages of eight and seventeen. For purposes of this act, at any one time, the number of 'street kids' receiving services from any one center shall not exceed one hundred and fifty.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 4. The department shall adopt rules as necessary to implement this chapter no later than September 1, 1985, and shall contract with public or private nonprofit agencies for services under this chapter no later than November 1, 1985.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 5. The department shall report to the human services and ways and means committees of the senate and house of representatives on the effects of the experimental 'street kids' program no later than January 1, 1987. The report shall include at least the following information:

(1) A description of the types of services provided and the number of children served by each type of service.

(2) An analysis of the effects of each service in diverting children into appropriate educational programs.

(3) An analysis of the extent to which this program reduces the inappropriate use of crisis residential centers and receiving homes."

I know in the past you have given admonitions on that. I think it would be proper to go over Reed's Rule 212 at this point which indicates that a member should not allude to any member by name, but by some descriptive expression like 'the lady from a certain district' or 'the gentleman from a certain district.' I think it would add to the quality of debate."

POINT OF INQUIRY

Mr. Lux yielded to question by Mr. Barnes.

Would this make us liable for federal and state checks that were cashed because this law would require that was sufficient identity?"

Mr. Lux: "You are saying that if somebody stole an identification card that this would make it so that the bank wouldn't be liable? That is not true."

Representatives Barnes and Patrick spoke against the amendment.

POINT OF INQUIRY

Mr. Lux yielded to question by Mr. Hastings.

Mr. Hastings: "Representative Lux, with this in statute, and I were somebody who would cash the checks, would this make it mandatory that I cash the check?"

Mr. Lux: "Absolutely not. The way it is now, banks do not have to cash anybody's check. Banks can have a charge for a check. We have had legislation in committee trying to deal with that. This in no way says that the bank has to cash the check. We're not into that. We just say that this card will serve as suitable identification because a lot of welfare recipients don't have credit cards or some of the other identification that some banks require--two or three or four pieces. We're saying, because in the WAC there are already five or six different types of identification that are necessary to acquire this type of a card, that is not necessary to comply with all the other cards. Many, many people in those types of situations don't have credit cards to present. That's one of the general second types of identification that this asks for."

Mr. Hastings spoke in opposition to the amendment.

The amendment was not adopted.

The bill was passed to Committee on Rules for third reading.

POINT OF INQUIRY

Mr. Fisch yielded to question by Mr. Barnes.

Mr. Barnes: "Representative Fisch, I think on lines 25 and 26, page 1, the bill says something about each portion of the county area to be made into a new county would have to vote in the affirmative on the initiative to form the county?"

Mr. Fisch: "Yes, Representative Barnes, that's the last part of the process. That is, initially there would be a petition presented to the legislature and that refers to this process."

Mr. Barnes: "My question was, (and I think possibly you have answered it) does this amendment mean that each precinct would have to vote 'Yes' on the initiative in order to form the county?"

Mr. Fisch: "No, not at all, Representative Barnes. I'm glad you brought that question up. Actually, what this provides for is simply the petition process which is the first process. The referendum is the last part of the process, but between the petition process and the referendum process it is going to be left to the legislature to draw the county boundaries and the legislature, it seems to me, simply is going to have to have some method other than guessing for deciding whether to support, whether it's a majority opposition, to a county line being drawn. This simply, I think, gives us a tool to help decide that."

Mr. Barnes spoke in favor of the amendment.

The amendment was adopted.

The resolution was ordered engrossed and passed to Committee on Rules for third reading.

Mr. Jacobsen moved adoption of the following amendment by Representatives Jacobsen, Holland and Cole to the Haugen amendment:

On page 8, line 3 insert the following:

"NEW SECTION, Sec. 8. A new section is added to chapter 28A.57 RCW to read as follows:

Each member of the board of directors of a school district with an enrollment of twenty thousand or more students shall receive compensation of fifty dollars per day or portion thereof, not to exceed four thousand eight hundred dollars per year, for attendance at board meetings and for performance of other services in behalf of the district.

Representatives Jacobsen, Holland and Ebersole spoke in favor of the amendment to the amendment, and Representatives Zellinsky and Taylor spoke against it.

POINT OF INQUIRY

Mr. Jacobsen yielded to question by Mr. Barnes.

Mr. Barnes: "Representative Jacobsen, this amendments says, 'Each member of the board...shall receive compensation...' and beneath it says, 'Compensation...shall not be the obligation of the state of Washington.' Have you investigated the requirements of Initiative 62 and the effect it would have on this amendment?"

Mr. Jacobsen: "No, Representative Barnes, I haven't investigated Initiative 62. This language is identical to the other sections of the bill, they may waive it. They have the option of waiving. It says, 'shall' or 'may' waive and then the compensation would come out of local levy funds. The example I would use is that the cost is like a bill I'm proposing that a school board district be paid $24,000 a year and that worked out at fifty cents per child per year. I thought that was a very reasonable price."

Representatives Barnes and Schoon spoke against the amendment to the amendment, and Mr. Ebersole spoke again in favor of it.

Mr. Crane demanded the previous question and the demand was sustained.

ROLL CALL

The Clerk called the roll on adoption of the amendment by Representative Jacobsen to the Haugen amendment, and the amendment was not adopted by the following vote: Yeas, 43; nays, 55.

Voting nay: Representatives Ballard, Barnes, Barrett, Basich, Baugher, Betzoff, Bond, Braddock, Bristow, Brooks, Brough, Chandler, Day, Dobbs, Doty, Fuhrman, Gallagher, Grimm, Hankins, Hargrove, Hastings, Isaacson, Kremen, Lewis, Locke, Lundquist, Madsen, May, Miller, Nealey, Nelson G, Padden, Patrick, Peery, Prince, Rayburn, Sanders, Schmidt, Schoon, Silver, Smith C, Smith L, Smitherman, Sutherland, Taylor, Thomas, Tilly, van Dyke, Vekich, West, Williams B, Williams J, Wilson S, Zellinsky, and Mr. Speaker - 55.

The Speaker stated the question before the House to be the amendment by Representative Haugen as amended.

Representatives Haugen and Lundquist spoke in favor of the amendment.

POINT OF INQUIRY

Ms. Haugen yielded to question by Mr. Lux.

Mr. Lux: "Representative Haugen, Representative Ebersole piqued my interest when he mentioned something about equity with school board members. Do most of these district meetings transpire at night? Or are they day meetings? Do these take away from their jobs or how do most of these fire districts and sewer districts and water districts and irrigation districts and port districts and so on meet?"

Ms. Haugen: "I couldn't tell you for sure; I think it's depending on the district."

Mr. Lux: "So the bigger ones meet during the day and the little ones meet during the night?"

Ms. Haugen: "I would say some of the water district commissioners probably meet in the middle of the night when the water mains break."

Mr. Lux: "But they all get the same salary?"

Ms. Haugen: "Yes."

Ms. Miller spoke in favor of the amendment.

The amendment as amended was adopted.
