SIXTY SIXTH LEGISLATURE - REGULAR SESSION

FIRST DAY

House Chamber, Olympia, Monday, January 14, 2019

The House was called to order at 12:00 noon by the Chief Clerk, Bernard Dean.

The flags were escorted to the rostrum by the Washington State Patrol Honor Guard commanded by Corporal Ian Morhouse, comprised of Sergeant Wynecoop, Trooper Gallanger, Trooper Maguire, Trooper Rutherford and Trooper Delano. Chief Clerk Dean led the Chamber in the Pledge of Allegiance. The prayer was offered by Rabbi Yohanna Kinberg, Congregation Kol Ami, Woodinville.

Rabbi Yohanna Kinberg: “A week in advance of our next national holiday, I begin my prayer with these words from Dr. Martin Luther King. He wrote: Time itself is neutral, it can be used either destructively or constructively. More and more I feel that people of ill will have to use that time much more effectively than people of good will. Human progress never rolls in on wheels of inevitability, it comes through the tireless efforts of men willing to be co-workers with God, and without this hard work time itself becomes an ally of the forces of social stagnation. We must use time creatively in the knowledge that time is always ripe to do right. My blessing for all of you, each of you unique and precious souls, dedicated to this state of Washington, to the people and the land, the time is ripe. May you use each moment of your service constructively. The time is ripe, may your hands aid only in creating health vitality and prosperity for this state and the people, the tribes, the young and old, sick and healthy, the trees and waterways, the Orca and the eagle. The time is ripe, may you work together, people from different regions from Neah Bay to Northport, Coupville to Colton, Representatives from different experiences and backgrounds, work together to become the voice of the people and the will of the people pushing our state only towards goodness and righteousness. Representatives, each of you are representatives of the hopes and dreams of our neighbors, of our fellow citizens, together you shape our future. The time is ripe, may you be blessed with meaningful work, success in the betterment of our state, strong relationships amongst each other, even across party and ideological lines. The time is ripe for democracy to shine, for those committed to the democratic process to show the world once again the power that comes from conversation, compromise, creative solutions, living a life of conscience, and serving and working for the good of all. People of good will, the time is ripe to be co-workers, co-servants, co-solution-makers, co-healers of the ills of our society through your good work. Now is the time, this is your moment, May the eternal bless you and keep you, you, your staff and families and this legislative body as a whole. May the light and compassion shine upon you and be gracious to you, and may all your pathways be that of peace and justice and we also want to offer a special blessing for healing for Representative McCaslin and who suffered a medical emergency this morning. We pray that he achieve a complete healing and return to this house to do the sacred work of this body. Amen.”

The Chief Clerk called upon Representatives-elect Lauren Davis and Skyler Rude to escort Justice Charles Johnson of the Supreme Court of the State of Washington to the rostrum.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand, and affixed the seal of the state of Washington at Olympia, this 4th day of December 2018.

Kim Wyman,
Secretary of State

The Clerk called the roll and a quorum was present.

OATH OF OFFICE

Justice Charles Johnson administered the Oath of Office to members of the House of Representatives. The Certificates of Election were distributed to the members.

RESOLUTION

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 2017-4600, by Representatives Sullivan and Kretz

BE IT RESOLVED, That a committee consisting of two members of the House of Representatives be appointed by the Speaker of the House to notify the Governor that the House is organized and ready to conduct business.

Representative Sullivan moved adoption of HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 4600

Representative Sullivan spoke in favor of the adoption of the resolution.

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 4600 was adopted.

ELECTION OF THE SPEAKER

Representative Sullivan moved that Representative Frank Chopp be elected Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Representative Sullivan: "Thank you Mr. Chief Clerk. It is an honor to make this nomination for this body today. This is the 11th time that this nomination has actually been made on the floor of the House. His twenty years of service are the longest of any speaker in the history of the state of Washington, and you know that, in and of itself, is an amazing accomplishment given the fact that the stress, the long days, the late nights, the sheer volume of work that it takes to do that job, I can't imagine anybody else having the ability to do it and I thank Speaker Chopp for his years of service to the state of Washington. You know while it's not something that you'll hear a speaker talk about very often, he's more focused on the state's most vulnerable. Whether it's providing health care to our children, housing to the homeless, or nutrition to families in need, that's what he's focused on Mr. Chief Clerk. That is something that he will always be known for, his compassion and being a champion of those issues that really move this state forward. He also cares very deeply about this institution and the integrity of this institution. While the other Washington is bogged down in stalemate, here in this Washington we do get work done and that's in great part to the leadership of Speaker Chopp over these last 20 years. You know Mr. Chief Clerk, it's been an amazing time working alongside Speaker Chopp and it's funny to see him do his job. He doesn't come out of his office very often. A lot of people call him the wizard behind the veil there in his office. Every once in a while, you hear "I had a speaker spotting today." He's also a very modest person. I would say that when he accomplishes a goal he doesn't wait to be patted on the back or to seek the accolades, he simply rolls up his sleeves and just moves on to the next task at hand. He's probably been given an award by every organization in the state of Washington, or practically everyone, but if you walk into his office, Mr. Chief Clerk, you won't see an award or a trophy on his walls or on his desk, he just doesn't do that. He simply, as I said, moves on to the next task at hand. As a matter of fact, if you go to his office you won't see much of anything other than some junior mints and a few other things. He was asked once why his office was so barren and his response was "Do you know how much it costs to hang a picture on the wall?" The one thing he did have, his daughter wrote this little thing that he had up by his desk that said "Dad, remember not to swear." I don't think it lasted very long, and I know that's a reform that the speaker is still working on so good luck with that Mr. Speaker. Finally, again, it's such an honor to stand here to nominate Speaker Chopp. Mr. Chief Clerk, I would ask for your support and for the support of this body to once again elect Frank Chopp Speaker of the house."

Representative DeBolt moved that Representative J.T. Wilcox be elected Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Representative DeBolt: "Thank you Mr. Chief Clerk. J.T. Wilcox is a Washingtonian through and through. He's a person that's stood for rural Washington and urban Washington for a lot of years. He is our minority leader and for all the 25 new members, that means his opinion only counts about that much, but one of the things that we do know is it's a tough office to have. The corner offices in both these buildings are things that we need to work together in, we need to be able to have strong negotiations. I believe J.T. Wilcox is a great leader. He's the opposite of the speaker right now, he's new. He's having a new look at Washington State and it would give us an opportunity, I think, to have a bipartisan nomination and I would love to see J.T. Wilcox nominated Speaker of the House, thank you.

Representative Wilcox: "Thank you Mr. Chief Clerk. In view of the relative sizes of the caucuses, I would like to respectfully withdraw from the nomination."

MOTIONS

Representative Sullivan moved that the nominations for the Office of Speaker of the House of Representatives be closed. The motion was carried.

Representative Sullivan moved that Representative Frank Chopp be elected Speaker of the House of Representatives. The motion was carried.

Representative Sullivan escorted Speaker Frank Chopp to the rostrum.

OATH OF OFFICE

Justice Charles Johnson administered the Oath of Office to Speaker Chopp.

Chief Clerk Dean congratulated the Speaker and turned the gavel over to him.

SPEAKER'S REMARKS

Mr. Speaker: "Thank you. Pat, I greatly appreciate your kind words. You are such an important part of our success. Thank you for your leadership.

Every legislative session, our job is to represent the people. This year, this House will be the most representative of all our people in state history! Will the new members please stand? You have a duty to serve the people of your district and the entire state. Will everyone now please stand – everybody up! Let's give the new members a rousing welcome!

The way we all got here is because of the support of our family and friends. I am so grateful for my wife, Nancy Long, and my daughter Ellie Chopp. Many families are here with us today. Will they please stand? Let's hear it for the families who support us in our work!

Let's also recognize J. T. Wilcox, in his new leadership role. I look forward to working with you – and your caucus.

We are all here to do our level best, to speak out for the people and to get things done. That includes getting our own House in order. Last year, a work group of members, staff, and lobbyists met to address sexual harassment in our workplace. The group proposed a new Code of Conduct, more training to prevent harassment, and a new independent resource to provide a safe place to share, find support, and set forth consequences when lines are crossed. We are proud of this work and thankful to everyone who participated. Together, we will create a workplace where everyone is treated with respect.

As we move forward to address the priorities of the people, it is important to remember what we've achieved these past years. With our response to a constitutional challenge, we made historic investments and reforms in Basic Education! By expanding and improving Early Learning, we made the wisest investment in a generation! With our State Need Grant, Opportunity Scholarships, and the Dream Act, we are national leaders in student financial aid! By creating and expanding Apple Health and the Washington State Health Exchange, we are covering more people than ever – including 98% of our kids! With our Voting Rights Act and Vote By Mail, we led the way to increased participation here and across the country! Through our paid family leave program, we enacted the most significant state expansion of Social Security ever! Our investments in transportation and capital projects have created the most public works jobs in state history. With Joel's Law, Ricky's Law, and Sheena's Law, we improved the lives of so many who are suffering from mental illness and substance use disorder.

We have made things better for people in every corner of Washington. This is about the basics: hope and opportunity for everyone, getting an education, caring for our health, creating jobs, having a home, and building the community. We have made so much progress! But, therein, lies the imperative for our future work.

In 2007, for example, we enacted mental health parity – a great accomplishment. But years later, we haven't gotten close to achieving that promise. If you have a heart attack, you expect that doctors, nurses, and hospitals will be there to care for you. But if you have a behavioral health emergency, you will face a shortage of health care providers. Meanwhile, Western State Hospital has been de-certified. And if you're homeless because of your health condition and you have nowhere to go – well the answer is... "that's just the way it is." This must change! We must care for our minds as much as for our hearts! It's way past time that we invest more in our mental health workforce. We must provide supportive housing, to save the lives of those at risk of death or trauma on our streets. For example, there are only a few thousand homeless young people, out of a population of over 7 million in our state. We can solve this problem. We should not see them as isolated individuals, but as our own kids – in our own family. For God's sake, let's meet this challenge to provide a home – and hope for all our kids. We can do this!

Focusing on our kids, there is still work to be done for our schools. The Supreme Court said that we met our paramount duty, thanks to the bi-partisan work led by our Majority Leader. But there is still work to do. We must pay special attention to special education. We must increase graduation rates. I've seen the recent work of Tacoma schools, its principals and teachers. With innovative ideas and targeted investments, they raised graduation rates, significantly! It has been done in Tacoma. It can be done across the state! We can do this!

Even with great progress in health care, there is still work to do. I have served as a pall bearer for too many of my relatives in the cemeteries in Roslyn, their lives cut short by smoking. We will work to raise the age to purchase tobacco to 21. And we should bring back our very successful Basic Health Plan, so that folks who don't qualify for Medicaid or who don't have employee benefits, can buy a good health plan at a good price. We can do this!

We have some of the best colleges and universities in the nation. We have excellent apprenticeship and certificate programs. But the best system available is not enough if students can't afford to participate. We must focus on the students, not just the institutions. Let's expand financial aid and help students being crushed by debt. Let's create a Student Assistance Account to lower the interest rates on student loans, starting with degrees in high demand fields. When I was a student at the UW, I was helped by the National Defense Education Act. As a national response to Russia's launch of the Sputnik satellite, I got a $3000 student loan at 3% interest. Today, we subsidize local street projects by lowering interest rates to 1%. But our students are often paying 8%. I ask you, shouldn't our young people be just as important as potholes? We can do this!

Our world is changing. It's getting warmer. There's a coalition forming in the Evergreen State, with advocates for clean air and champions of working people. We need clean air and good jobs. At the age of 12, my Dad started work in the coal mines of Roslyn. Even then, times were changing. The last coal mine closed in Roslyn 55 years ago. My Dad became a union electrician in the Bremerton shipyard, a blue collar job that provided well for our family. Let's create a better future: 100% clean electricity and investments in new jobs. Green Power – Blue Collar. We can do this!

Today, our state-wide unemployment rate is low. Overall, the economy is humming. But in rural parts of Washington, there are still inequities. That's why we will pursue Rural Development, with a diverse agenda for jobs and communities. Culvert repairs to benefit the fish and local construction workers. Cross laminated timber to construct our buildings and store carbon. This should be cause for bi-partisan work. If ever there was a time for this, it is now. We can do this!

Twenty-four years ago, I had the good fortune to meet Bill Grant, a representative from Walla Walla. His family immigrated from Ireland, 5 generations ago. My family immigrated from Croatia about a hundred years ago. You might think a west side community activist and an eastern Washington wheat farmer would have little in common. And yet we did. We both saw the potential of legislation to help people – regardless of where they came from. Bill became my best friend in Olympia. It was Bill who blessed our guiding principle: Working Together for One Washington. Instead of favoring the districts of certain parties, we must look out for every part of our great state. Instead of ploys to divide urban from rural, or set one group against another, our job is to bring people together in common purpose! To inspire our dedication, to overcome our doubts, to dilute the venom of despair, we should look to the people of Washington. People like Cheri Marusa and her husband Rob from South Cle Elum, who created Life Support for emergencies along Interstate-90, and helped raise funds for Junior Achievement to teach financial education in Yakima. Then there's Alan Naiman, a state social worker, a former banker, who dedicated his work to helping children in need. He scrimped and saved on a modest wage. He patched his shoes with duct tape. When he passed away last year, he left eleven million dollars to non-profit agencies who care for young people. Then there's Mandy Manning from Ferris High School in Spokane, who was selected as the State and National Teacher of the Year. She teaches math and English language for refugee and immigrant students. Mandy is now on a year-long trip around the United States, being a voice for these New Americans. One more example: the partnership in Pierce County that recently broke ground for the Arlington Drive Campus for Homeless Youth and Young Adults. Michael Mirra of the Tacoma Housing Authority, Mayor Victoria Woodard, County Executive Bruce Dammeier, the YMCA, Community Youth Services, and legislators -- Laurie Jinkins, Jeannie Darnielle, and Hans Zeiger – are all part of that partnership! It is so inspiring! They are doing the Lord's work, lighting the way home for a better future for these children and the entire community. Michael and others are in the gallery. So are Cheri and Rob. Would they please stand to be recognized?

Here in the legislature, we must do our part to respond to the compelling challenges of our time. With renewed commitment to One Washington, with the energy of our new members, and with a sense of optimism and hope we can do this! Let's get to work! Thank you so much!"

POINT OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Representative Wilcox : “Thank you Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, your words were moving, and your dedication, your sense of commitment, your emotion is appreciated by the people on this side as well and it is amazing how many of these things that we all have in common. I also want to say publicly, Mr. Speaker, to a public that is used to watching TV and seeing pictures of people from Washington D.C. that can't get along who come out of a meeting and immediately start pointing fingers, don't seem to understand that politics is a human business and it's about trust in human relationships. I want to share the fact, I've shared it before, that it was very touching to me when you came out to my home on the farm shortly after I was first elected to be minority leader, and I also want to share the fact that the Governor did the same thing, it means a great deal to me. We, in both cases, sat down in the old green house that my great grandfather came to in 1909 and, in fact my dad, who's here in the wings I think for the first time on an opening day when I've been here, was also deeply touched by the kind of caring that exists at its best between parties, so I don't relish the idea of following you in your last speech of this type, especially when it was so from the heart, but it's important that we recognize the relationships that we have and the ones that are so good. And Mr. Speaker, I also am very happy and excited that you talked about One Washington. Both dad and I knew Bill Grant, long before I ever thought that I would be doing a job like this, and he was very sincere in his efforts for one Washington and the parties have gotten a little less geographically, in fact a lot less geographically, diverse since then and we need to find a way to put that back together. I think it's more important now than it was then because it seems to me that many of the problems that we have in our state and maybe across the country are converging. It doesn't matter whether you represent a really big world class city or a tiny little town like many of us do. We have very much the same kinds of heart rending human problems. Your homelessness, people struggling with mental health crisis, affordable housing, addiction to any kind of chemical that just seems to be getting worse. School safety is an issue again in small towns and big cities and we all know now that you don't have to be in the county that has a wildfire to understand that it's going to impact all of us in the state of Washington. And Mr. Speaker, our members are ready to go to work.

Many of us have been in a minority in fact almost all of us have been in a minority nearly our whole careers here and you can approach that in two ways. You can simply give up and decide that your approach is just going to be as loud as it can be and get as much attention because you're not going to accomplish anything that substantive, or you can understand that your job here is to work hard to influence the conversation and make sure that the voices from the less urban parts of the state are recognized and make it very plain that although we have in many cases exactly the same kinds of problems, it's quite possible that different solutions are most appropriate in different places. And I'd like to highlight just a few areas that we're going to have what I think are some of the best approaches and most sincerely offered ideas that I have ever seen in my eight years here. First of all when it comes to affordable housing, we have among us my seatmate, the other good gentleman from the second district, who has housed more people personally in his career than almost anyone else in this building and I think you could give him some competition for that Mr. Speaker. He is going to be offering a series of very innovative bills that are going to move us farther in the direction of affordable housing and preventing people from losing their housing than anything that's been done before, and I would urge that these ideas be considered strongly by both sides. The good gentleman who has sat next to me for six years is going to be offering a very innovative and free market oriented approach to climate and carbon and clean air, and again Mr. Speaker we're doing this because we want to be effective. We don't want to be purely symbolic although symbols are important too, we want to make an actual difference in the world that our grandchildren are going to live in. We have another school safety approach that will come from the good gentleman from the nineteenth and I am perhaps most excited about a series of bills that are always offered by the two good ladies from the twenty-sixth and the fourteenth district and we're going to have a serious conversation, Mr. Speaker, about the abuse of women, of vulnerable people, of children, and we're especially going to be talking a lot about this scourge that affects so many people of domestic violence and I would again ask that both sides listen carefully to the good things that we're going to be talking about. Now Mr. Speaker, we are in a minority, everybody knows that, it's been plain since the election, and we are also in a position where we have what I would describe as single party government. So we know that your party and your caucus is going to win any vote on a bill that they want to bring to the floor but that doesn't mean that in the minority you don't have serious responsibilities. You took their votes, you took the people's votes after all and you are collecting a salary, so that means that you have to be very serious about the things that you're going to do. And one thing that I would like to call on my caucus to do is we need to be the accountability people. It is hard for single party government to hold itself accountable. It's not natural for the party that holds the legislature and also holds the executive branch to be as tough nosed as they need to be with the agencies that are managed by the executive and I call on my caucus and I call on your caucus to make this discussion happen. We need to be the ones that hold government accountable. Mr. Speaker, I came here eight years ago, at the end of the great recession, and my first vote was a unique vote - I was the only freshman on Ways and Means, and we had before us the moment that we came here, the biggest supplemental budget cut in the history of Washington and that made a great impact on me and like every other budget bill there was extensive debate.

Testimony went into the wee hours of the morning for several days, and for somebody who had grown up on sort of a sheltered place, I've spent almost all my life on my farm, I learned a great deal then. A couple of lessons Mr. Speaker: First, this is a hard world if you have somehow lost contact with your family your community or with your church, and there are people that are able to be successful under those circumstances but the vast majority of people that need our help have somehow lost those connections and it's up to us to try to create a world where those things can be rebuilt. The other thing that I took away from that experience was the fact that in our rush to do as much good as possible, it's very easy to create a budget that is unsustainable and that's what happened then. The legislature before then was in a position very much like the one that we're in right now. There was more money coming in than we almost knew what to do with, and there was almost no way to say no to people's always well-meaning policy ideas, and so the legislature of those days spent every dime and then added taxes to create a bigger Washington state budget and what happened? All of those people that came in to testify, who needed our help the most, were the ones that were hurt first and the most. And Mr. Speaker, we are going to talk an awful lot about taxes, we're going to talk an awful lot about budgets, but I just want to make it plain- this is not because we're cruel, in fact we all believe that if we stay with the current rate of growth in the budget, it will help more people in the long run than if we lose control and in an economic recovery that's already the second longest in the post-war history of the United States, we end up in that 2011 situation again and hurt those people that were counting so much on us. Mr. Speaker one other policy area that I meant to talk about earlier because I've got a story that means something to me. We all know that one of our iconic creatures here, the Orca, is threatened. The Governor's been very eloquent about this. We also know that the Orca is about salmon and salmon are about people. I want to share a story very briefly. I was in a committee meeting recently, not here somewhere else, where a tribal fisherman got up and talked with great passion, just like you did a few moments ago, about the fact that catching and consuming salmon is a critical part of their culture and what I appreciated so much about him is he went on at length about the fact that it's not just his tribe, it's all of the rest of us too that have a culture around the outdoors, catching salmon, it meant a great deal to me that this was not just about one culture, this was about all cultures. And Mr. Speaker, I hope as we talk about the environment and about all of these economic issues, we continue to remember that both sides of this chamber represent cultures and we should never dismiss any of those.

Mr. Speaker, we are going to be aggressive when it's necessary and I have always honored the fact that I think that your intentions are as honorable as they could be when it comes to conducting business in this chamber so that the minorities' viewpoints are present and I just want to finish up today by saying we'll continue to do that and I would ask that we, we all think carefully about how our approach to this chamber will mean the maximum amount of conversation, the maximum amount of debate, the maximum amount of diversity in thought, and the minimal application of restraint to the responsibility of the minority to express itself. Thank you Mr. Speaker."

ELECTION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

Representative Mead: "Mr. Speaker, it is my honor to stand here today and make this nomination for my friend, John Lovick from the 44th for Speaker Pro-Tem. A man that I have known and admired for almost half my life. He won't remember the first time that we met, but I do. He came and spoke to my high school government class when I was sixteen years old. He talked about the importance of selfless service to others. And I believed him because that's what his whole career has been dedicated to. He's helped so many people in our community be successful regardless of their political affiliation or their background. Years after our first interaction, I approached him for advice on running for the Mill Creek City Council. And he didn't know me at the time, I don't think he knew me at all, but he didn't ask me about my political party or who I knew. What he wanted to know was that I had a good heart and that I cared about helping people, because that is what his whole life has been about, helping people. And he helps this chamber, the People's House, debate important legislation with civility and seriousness, and he works hard to make sure that he treats every member and everybody that he meets with dignity and with respect. John has a saying which I've heard him say about a million times in the last ten months, and that's "Whenever I meet somebody I learn something." Well, I've been very lucky to meet him during critical times in my life, and I've always learned something. So, I'm so proud to be standing here today using my first floor speech sharing the floor with him to make this nomination. Thank you."

SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE REMARKS

Representative Lovick: "Unspoken praise is of value to no one. Growing up in Louisiana, I heard those words many times. So today, in the peoples house, I want to give voice to that unspoken praise.

I want to talk about a quiet man a man of the people who never forgot his roots and never stopped fighting for all the people of the great state of Washington. A man who never wanted his name in the paper or his face on television screens. Who wanted to be known not for his words but for his deeds. I'd like to give you a short list of those deeds, a short list of what he fought for: Health care coverage for every child; better wages for working families; housing for those who are homeless; food for those who are hungry; and equality and opportunity for people of all races, creeds, colors and orientations. He fought to make the American dream a reality for anyone willing to work hard and play by the rules.

That quiet man made sure that in 2003 when I was sworn in as Speaker Pro Tem of this great body, that my grandmother, my mom's mother 93 year old Elsie Lee Lovick the granddaughter of a Louisiana slave, a lady who worked her entire life cleaning homes in Louisiana, homes she cleaned she had to walk in the back door and eat her meals on the back porch by herself. My grandmother was able to walk in the front door of the people's house and join me at the rostrum. He invited my family, my friends and those who are at times invisible to society, to his table, into this chamber and into his heart. THE HEART OF A LION.

Thinking of him. I am reminded of something that the great Heavyweight Boxing champion Muhammad Ali said. Ali said that service to others is the rent you pay for your time here on earth. Watching this wonderful man pay that rent over these many years, helped me, and I am sure others, become better friends and better lawmakers. His hard work and his leadership made this chamber and this state a far better place. Anyone interested in public service should be inspired by his integrity, his dignity, his commitment and his extraordinary pride in this institution.

And so I will speak the unspoken praise. Not because he needs to hear it. But because his example and his legacy should live on in this body to the benefit of all the people of Washington. That man's name is Frank Chopp. And Mr. Speaker it has been the greatest honor of my life to serve with you in the peoples house. Thank you for your service, your leadership, your friendship and most importantly the kind way that you show everyone that the Washington State House of Representatives really is "The Peoples House"

ELECTION OF DEPUTY SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

Representative Pellicciotti: "Thank you Mr. Speaker. It is a pleasure to nominate the good lady of the 33rd, Tina Orwall, to be Deputy Speaker Pro-Tem of this body. I've had the opportunity to work with the good lady of the 33rd, since we have neighboring districts, on a range of issues, and I've seen her passion and commitment to issues she cares about that serve her district well, but I've also seen and come to appreciate in her service over ten years to this body, how she has been a voice for the voiceless on a multitude of issues and has worked with every member of this body in advancing issues that advance justice for those who deserve it in our state. Mr. Speaker she has taken that level of service and that dedication in her service as Speaker Pro-Tem of this body, her commitment to inclusivity of this body, and making sure that all voices are heard, and we have been lucky to have her in that role and I very much ask this body to continue to allow for the good lady of the 33rd to serve in this capacity at the rostrum of this chamber.”

DEPUTY SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE REMARKS

Representative Orwall: “You know there's not a day that I don't walk up those marble stairs or enter this chamber that I don't feel humbled. It's such an incredible institution that we all get a chance to work in for a brief period of time and I work with some of the most amazing people I have ever met. I often think of all the members who walked up those stairs before us and I understand Mr. Speaker you've been here to greet a great many of them, and I want to start by thanking you. I first met Speaker Chopp many years ago at a homeless meeting in Seattle. We were in a basement of a Y.M.C.A. and he spent an hour with homeless advocates asking us what we needed to do our jobs, you know, telling us to make our voices heard in Olympia, and I have never forgotten that. I think Mr. Speaker I just want to thank you. I want to thank you for being a voice for people that don't have a voice. I want to thank you for advocating those most in need, and I really feel like you have left a legacy of opportunity for people in this state, so again I want to say thank you for your incredible work. As I look around this room I see a lot of new faces and I want to welcome all the members. I also want to say thank you the families - we really can't do this job without your support. I want to thank my dear friend Ravi Sanga, who is joining me today - thank you my dear friend. There's a great quote that makes me think of the work we do by a philosopher who says “one note does not make a symphony, one artist does not make an orchestra.” It's when we all come together with our talents and our dedication that's where we find that perfect harmony to get things done for the people of Washington State. We take on issues that are not simple, they're complex issues. Children that are harmed by trafficking, standing up for sexual assault survivors, health care, mental health, and I really feel that when we all work together that we make Washington a better place for everyone and I just want to say thank you. Thank you for the honor of letting me be part of this with you and looking forward to a great session. Thanks.”

ELECTION OF THE CHIEF CLERK

Representative Ortiz-Self: “Thank you Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, Bernard has given a large portion of his life to this institution. He has worked for the House for approximately 19 years, seven of those years as OPR staff and 12 here in House Administration. He did leave us for a moment and even in that brief time his absence was felt and the gap was huge. Many aren't aware of all the work that goes on behind the scenes to continue to move this House forward not just to move it forward but to do so in a way that has accountability and transparency as its foundation. Mr. Speaker, Bernard has a sense of overwhelming responsibility for the ethics for this institution. He wants to make sure that we not just run this institution, but we do so in a way that our people demand in the great state of Washington. He wants to make sure that ethics is at the core of everything. Bernard is dedicated to do just that. His commitment and respect for this institution is evident. From the first time I was asked to go meet with Bernard as a new member, that was quite evident. We had long conversations about how to keep me out of trouble. I don't know if he had these conversations with everyone else but he certainly did with me. But you know, it was more than just keeping me out of trouble, there was a sense in his conversation that it was about an awareness that he knew that if I got in trouble I would be letting down the people who put their trust in me and that was at the core of everything he was doing. How does he make sure that we are responsible to the public and the people who put trust in us? Mr. Speaker he came back and he took on a huge role. In the midst of all this we were dealing with code of conduct and many aren't aware that there was a parallel process going on where he was also dealing with respectful workplace policy. Policy that took hours of meeting with members individually and in groups and long hours to get this done all the while looking at things like fulfilling the other duties, such as new member orientation and trainings, and accounting and numerous other duties that the office holds. Mr. Speaker, this institution needs someone who takes the job of public service as seriously as Bernard does and I am honored to nominate him as Chief Clerk.”

Representative Kretz: “Thank you Mr. Speaker. You look good up there. Well this is an interesting time for me. I want to support Bernard's nomination too. He's got, I think, one of the toughest jobs here when you think about the cast of characters that we're all dealing with here, and staff, and the public, and everything else, and he's trying to keep this house, this institution, on course. I didn't always feel that way about him. When we were, I don't know ten years ago, we had thirty-some members and we were feeling like we were getting the short end of some things and one of the attractions about working for the majority was you know hey if we get the majority we could fire Bernard Dean. Sounded pretty good, you know. And I was around here a little bit longer and then I found out well the Democrats don't really like him either so. But what I found out is how hard he works, and I've spent more time with him over the last few years and the difficulties of keeping things on the straight and narrow course here. Always trying to urge all of us individually and as a collective group to act with integrity, and he protects the institution here, keeps it "integrity number one," and that is one of the hardest jobs here I think. It makes me excited to help with the nomination. Any doubt about Bernard was removed this last year when I heard that he'd gotten married to someone I have tremendous respect for, Bernard I got to say you married way up you know. But I want to say congratulations to the two of you and appreciate your service. Thanks for this moment Bernard. Thanks for doing you do.

Representative Sullivan moved that Bernard Dean be elected Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives. The motion was carried.

Representatives Ortiz-Self and Kretz escorted Chief Clerk Dean to the rostrum.

OATH OF OFFICE

Justice Charles Johnson administered the Oath of Office to Chief Clerk Dean.

Chief Clerk Dean: "Thank you Chief Justice Johnson, thank you Representative Ortiz-self, and maybe Representative Kretz. I appreciate your kind nominating remarks. Thank you Speaker Chopp and members of the house with this opportunity to serve. I want to start by first expressing my deep appreciation for each staff person in the house. Your commitment to this institution and the legislative process is exceptional. I know how hard you work and the personal sacrifices you make year after year to be here. Your smarts, humor, and dedication is invaluable. I'd like to thank my parents for being here today and for the love and support over the years. I also want to thank my beautiful wife Jamila for her steadfast support and probably more importantly her patience. My interest in public policy began as a young child. Dinnertime in my house routinely included watching the news and discussing it. The walls of my bedroom were plastered with National Geographic Maps. My parents taught me the importance of being aware of the world around me and of the issues that impact everyday life. They also modeled public service. My mother was a volunteer for a nonprofit organization focused on human rights. She was also a Court Appointed Special Advocate helping children in Pierce County who experienced neglect or abuse. My father served in the military for nearly thirty years helping to rehabilitate injured soldiers. He did this during a time when overt racism was a given. He served faithfully while dealing with the indignity of racial discrimination. He demonstrated a commitment to service in the face of challenges. Government, private businesses, and organizations across the country are facing challenges. This institution is not immune. We have workplace issues that must be addressed and we have a moral responsibility to make sure that the House is an environment where everyone can work free from all forms of harassment, intimidation, and discrimination. Over the interim, with the help of our staff, we've updated our respectful workplace policy. This new policy sets clear expectations for behavior and defines prohibited conduct in the workplace, including harassment, bullying, and other abusive conduct. It also clarifies the complaint process - it describes what disciplinary actions may be taken for violations of our respect workplace policy. These changes represent steps in the right direction but, as the speaker mentioned, there is more work to do. We must ensure that these policies are not just words on paper rather they must translate into actions that reflect our values, inform how we treat each other, and hold ourselves accountable when we fall short. We can and will do better. Each of you has your own story, your reasons for being here. You know the path that led you to the House and you have specific goals that you want to achieve. I've met with several of the new members and can tell that you arrived ready to get to work. I want you to all know that we stand by ready to help you accomplish your goals. So like they used to say at Home Depot "you can do it we can help." Thank you again for the opportunity to serve. Let's have a great session."

Speaker Chopp thanked Justice Johnson.

STATE OF THE STATE

Governor Inslee: “Thank you, Rabbi Dunsker, for your inspiring words.

Thank you, Sergeant Scheer, for the beautiful rendition of the national anthem and for your service in the Army National Guard.

I extend a warm welcome to former Governor Gary Locke here today and thank him for his service as well.

I welcome the new legislators in your ranks who have stepped up to serve the people of this state. I congratulate your families who will be part of your adventure.

And I thank my wife, Trudi, and my entire family for joining me on my adventure.

I’m pleased to note a couple historic firsts in this Legislature. The people of Washington elected the first Native American woman to the House, Representative Debra Lekanoff.

And they elected the first refugee, Representative My-Linh Thai, to the Legislature. These are firsts we all are proud of.

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Madam Chief Justice, distinguished justices of the court, members of the Legislature, tribal leaders, state and local government officials, members of the Consular Corps, and most importantly, my fellow Washingtonians.

Today, we gather in a place that tells much of our Washington story.

Today, we come together from across the state — from the rolling hills of the Palouse to the coastal rocks of La Push — to find inspiration for the work we do.

And today, as we reflect on our 2018 successes, we look ahead to 2019 and offer a rallying cry to build this new and enduring chapter that is the profound story of Washington state.

Our story already reflects optimism and strength. But as Washington’s leaders, we carry an obligation to never be satisfied with how far we’ve come.

That was embodied in what Bruce Lee, the Washington actor, philosopher and martial artist said: “There are no limits. There are only plateaus, and you must not stay there, you must go beyond them.”

He was right. Our state history offers example after example of leaders willing to do more and to be more — even after they toppled barriers and shattered expectations.

Did Bill Gates and Paul Allen stop after forever changing the world of personal computing? No. They kept asking “what if?” and not only built on the landscape of the technological world, but delved deep into science, medical research and culture and redefined what giving back means.

Did Steve Gleason, one of the best Cougars out there, stop after he blocked that punt during the 2006 New Orleans Saints game? No. Congress just awarded him the Congressional Gold Medal for his advocacy for people with Lou Gehrig’s disease, something he works through every single day.

Did Tarra Simmons of Bremerton quit after she redirected her life while serving time in prison? No. She earned a prestigious fellowship, graduated from Seattle University School of Law, and when told she couldn’t fulfill her ultimate dream of being a lawyer, she appealed to the state’s highest court so she could take the bar exam. Today, she practices law and helps others find a second chance after incarceration. We’re glad she can join us today.

We are drawn to stories about people who don’t quit. They call to us because they remind us we have the same promise for greatness.

In 2019, we are again poised to be more and do more. Yes, we’ve accomplished much already. But all of it — everything we’ve done — brings us to a tipping point.

So today offers us two choices:

One, do we reflect on the success of our current story and decide we’ve done enough?

Or two, do we rise up to write one of the worthiest chapters of our time that tells future generations who we are?

Though we’ve accomplished much, we still face challenges that require us to push further.

At the top of that list is the imminent threat of climate change.

In just the past few years, our state experienced record-high temperatures, record-low snowpack in some locations, higher ocean temperatures and high acidity in our waters.

Historic wildfires blackened our air so much that we had the worst air quality in the world. Not China, not India. Washington state. The smoke shut down outdoor pools in Wenatchee, and impacted all of us, forcing kids and older adults to stay inside to protect their health.

Scientists say if we don't act now, this will become the norm — a permanent degradation of what we love, our magnificent state.

I don't know of any other issue that touches the heart of things so many of us care about: our jobs, our health, our safety and our children's future.

But this doesn't have to be our future. Science affirms the necessity of action — this day.

This is the 11th hour, but it is Washington's hour to shine. It's a time of great peril, but also of great promise.

Clean energy and low-carbon technologies are increasingly competitive in the marketplace. Innovation brings us cleaner, cheaper, better fossil-fuel alternatives every day.

This innovation benefits our rural economies as much as our urban and suburban economies.

Just last year, I helped cut the ribbon for our state's largest solar array in the small town of Lind. I was joined by Senator Schoesler and Representatives Dye and Schmick to celebrate the good-paying jobs the project brings to their community.

These kinds of jobs have propelled our clean energy sector to grow more than twice as fast as the rest of our economy. There is no greater job opportunity than the opportunity of clean energy. It's why a historic alliance of labor and communities of color has joined with conservation and environmental groups to push for climate action.

Looking at the many new faces in this chamber today, I am more optimistic than ever about the clean energy future we'll build together.

We will pass legislation to transition to 100 percent clean electricity, transform our buildings with cost-saving efficiencies, and modernize and electrify our transportation system. We'll phase down super-pollutants and phase in cleaner fuels.

This means by 2035, nearly all our electricity will come from solar, wind and hydroelectricity, instead of polluting fossil fuels.

It means you'll save money on lighting and heating costs because our homes and businesses will be much more energy efficient.

It means our transportation system will be the cleanest in the United States because we'll power it with clean electricity and clean fuels.

Combined, these policies will steeply cut emissions — the equivalent of taking about 3 million cars off our roads.

This transformation has started but we need to do more, do it bigger and do it faster.

So when your grandchildren ask what you did to protect them from climate change, you can tell them you weren't sitting around saying it was someone else's problem. You took action. Because that is who we are in the state of Washington.

It's going to feel really good to be part of the solution. It's going to feel really good to make history.

Another historic chapter we need to write about is mental health.

While we've taken significant steps to improve our physical health in medical schools like the Elson Floyd College of Medicine at WSU, we can improve our mental health care efforts, too.

We need to transform behavioral health from a system that responds to crisis to one that helps people before they reach crisis.

For those with a loved one who has waited too long for the right kind of treatment, we know this challenge is urgent.

Our families and friends are suffering and we can do so much better.

We must find room for hundreds of people at new community-based facilities so patients receive services in places close to their families, homes, places of worship and communities. We must also expand our professional workforce so patients are treated.

That's why I'm proud to pursue a new partnership with the University of Washington to create a teaching hospital to serve these patients and to train behavioral health providers using a unique new curriculum.

We can turn this story around and direct it toward hope.

And I'm pleased that we're at the beginning of a bipartisan effort to do just that. We will create a story this year about a holistic model for behavioral health that encompasses the family, the community and the promise of timely care.

The third thing we need to focus on is saving the Southern Resident orcas.

Despite our orca task force already in place, the event that truly told the story of the orcas' fate happened last summer.

Many of us watched as Tahlequah, a mother orca, carried her dead calf for at least 17 days. We saw a mother's grief. We felt it. Our hearts broke as we shared in her loss.

This cannot be their fate.

We must make unprecedented investments to save our orcas.

The demise of any species is a warning in our natural systems. We have to restore the balance of our ecosystem to sustain orcas, salmon and the quality of life for all Washingtonians. For as the orca go, so go we.

We've received thousands of calls from people around the world pleading for us to do more. Our orca task force, led by Dr. Les Purce and Stephanie Solien, has spent hundreds of hours researching the science behind survival. We thank you and the members of the task force.

The actions we have to take, such as increasing salmon stocks, fixing culverts and decreasing vessel traffic risks, are hard but necessary.

We have just one last chance to save these orcas. In this perilous moment, we must answer back with action.

The fourth issue — one still at the forefront — is education. I thank everyone in this chamber who has been part of the years-long effort to fully fund basic education. This was an enormously heavy lift that I'm proud we accomplished together last year. This was a remarkable bipartisan effort; both parties shared in that success.

But we have always said we couldn't stop at basic education. For anyone who cares about equity in education, early learning is the best way to secure a strong start for every child, regardless of their family's economic circumstances.

We're investing in children well before they enter the elementary school classroom for the first time. In the past six years we've nearly doubled the number of children in early learning programs to more than 15,000.

My budget builds on that to expand preschool with a new 'birth to 3' preschool program. And it would create a statewide referral system to connect families with early learning services and facilities.

My budget would also offer universal home visits. This gives every new parent the opportunity to get a visit from a nurse during the first few weeks back home with their newborn to share important information and build confidence.

And once those children reach the other end of their education and prepare to graduate from high school, we want to open up as many pathways as possible, including apprenticeships, certificates and degrees. For high-school students or individuals who seek an experience outside a four-year program, our Career Connect Washington initiative gives them that option.

It links students to real-world experience in careers that interest them. And we know that experience is invaluable. It gives them a better shot when they apply for that first job.

My budget will provide 100,000 students over the next 10 years an option to dive into their interests through apprenticeships and paid internships, and fall in love with a career before they graduate. This means more Washington students can take advantage of great careers here at home in one of the best economies anywhere. Don't our kids deserve that?

We're also supporting future students who want more education but can't afford it. The Washington College Promise is our new statewide free college program that guarantees state financial aid to eligible students. We did this because a student's financial challenges should not stand in the way of the pursuit of their dreams.

As we grapple with these challenges in our state, we must also confront other forces seeking to undermine our progress.

During the past two years, we've been challenged by federal actions that appeal more to our darker natures than our better angels.

But we know that's not who we are. We are going to write an even brighter chapter of our Washington story.

We're the state that invests in our people. That's why we're the only state that ranks as the best place to work and the best place to do business. What an incredible achievement.

We're the state significantly ramping up efforts to help struggling Washingtonians find stable, affordable housing. I propose using more than $400 million for chronically homeless individuals, homeless youth and unsheltered families with children.

We're the state offering to pardon thousands of people with misdemeanor marijuana convictions.

We're the state that's going to tear down the systemic barriers to work and education faced by people of color, people with disabilities, veterans and women. Initiative 1000 is a well-reasoned approach to do just that.

We're the first state to pass a bill requiring net neutrality, which will guarantee free and open internet. And we're the state pushing for broadband for Washingtonians who want to start a business or further their education — no matter where they live in the state.

We're the state that believes women and survivors deserve to be heard. We will make sure our policies set the expectation that every employee feels safe and welcome in the workplace.

We're the state that supports a woman's right to make her own health care decisions. I promise you, we will always provide reproductive health services to women in our state.

While too many in D.C. remain in the grips of the NRA, we're the state that stands up for common-sense gun-safety reforms. We've closed background check loopholes, banned bump stocks and approved protective orders that keep guns away from people in crisis.

And at that same time, we're making sure students don't worry more about bullying or gun violence than they do about their algebra homework. We've heard over and over what an impact a caring adult makes in a child's life when the child is working through issues like depression, bullying or peer rejection. That's why we're committed to putting more social workers, counselors, psychologists and nurses in our schools.

We're the state that put a stop to the death penalty, and I hope this Legislature acts to definitively end this practice once and for all.

We're the state that updated deadly force laws and require training to help law enforcement officers de-escalate violence. Communities and much of law enforcement came together on this and produced a model for the country on how to have what can be a very difficult conversation. I tip my hat to the people involved who helped form these changes.

While there has been an unprecedented assault on working families, we're the state that protects workers' rights. We built the best-in-the-nation paid family and medical leave program, we're supporting long-term care planning and we will fight for a public health option to ensure health care for all.

While other places close their borders and fear the unfamiliar, we're the state that opens our communities to refugees seeking safety, shelter and sanctuary.

While the president stokes fear of 'the other' at every opportunity, we're the state that embraces our differences and diversity. I'm proud of the incredible diversity of the people we're appointing to judicial benches, boards, commissions and cabinet agencies. We're the state making sure our government looks like the people it serves.

We're the state that passed the Voting Rights Act. And while other states threw up barriers to suppress voting, we're the state that passed a nation-leading Access to Democracy package to make sure more people cast their ballots, not fewer.

All this builds toward our promise for greatness.

We're constantly refreshed with new ideas, new cultures, new communities and new technologies. We seek out new talent from the world's many pockets because that makes Washington stronger.

We affirm that diversity is a strength, not a weakness.

It's the collective stories of all — the story of the refugee from Vietnam and the story of the third-generation Chelan orchardist — that ground us in longstanding Washington values.

Now I know the things we're proposing this year are not small or easy.

But good things in our story haven't happened through timidity. They happened because of our optimism and bold action.

Good things in our story happened because we didn't give up.

Again, I ask you: Which Washington story will prevail? A story where we rested on our laurels? Or the story where we rose up, called out and wrote a golden chapter that's worthy of our best selves?

... This chapter will show we answered our obligation to lead with higher expectations;

... This chapter will show that we made Washington better for everyone seeking a fair shot;

... This chapter will show that we defended the values we stand for;

... And more than anything, this chapter will show the heart of who we are.

We're the people who always make history. I really believe in the state of Washington.

And I believe our next Washington chapter must show that we pushed the limit and moved beyond our plateau, that we always looked for the next beginning.

So let this be our profound story. Let it be bold. And most of all, let it make history."

STATE OF THE JUDICIARY

Chief Justice Mary Fairhurst: “Thank you President Habib, Speaker Chopp, Governor Inslee, members of the Washington State Legislature, judges, elected officials and residents of Washington.

Today, we renew the tradition of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court every other year delivering a State of the Judiciary address to a joint session of the Washington State Legislature.

Thank you for reestablishing this tradition so that I may present this report to you, our lawmakers and executive and the people of the state of Washington, so you can gauge the health of the judicial branch, one of the three key components of our government.

I am very pleased to report that Washington’s judicial branch is strong, managing hundreds of thousands of cases every year – cases impacting the lives of all the people of Washington.

In addition to our casework, judges, judicial branch staff and justice partners devote significant time and energy to improving the justice system so that it can continue to deliver justice. Later, I will detail the challenges before us as well as some recent innovations to meet those challenges.

Before I do, I want to thank you again for opening your doors and the lines of communications between our respective branches. Right now, our nation needs to see that their government leaders – those in the legislative, the executive and the judicial branches – are working together.

Genuine partnership, good will and civility are not only possible – they are essential.

Your invitation marks the beginning of a renewed partnership, founded on principles of comity and respect for our shared values and goals.

Each year brings new challenges – and continued challenges – that need to be addressed. We can meet these challenges, knowing that the legislative, executive and judicial branches are each responsible in different ways for promoting and upholding the rule of law.

The rule of law is comprised of four principles: A system of self-government in which all persons, including the government, are accountable under the law; a system based on fair, publicized, broadly understood and stable laws; a legal process that is fair, robust and accessible, in which rights and responsibilities based in law are evenly enforced; and a judiciary that is diverse, competent and independent.

The rule of law by itself is not moral or ethical. It is we – the makers, enforcers and guardians of the law – who must uphold a quality that is moral and ethical in nature. As human beings, we bring a human understanding to the rule of law. Each of us has the skills, the knowledge and experience to do our jobs, but it is the extra dedication, honesty, integrity and trust that brings us truly together for the betterment of our society.

An oft told fable, oft told by me, anyway, illustrates how we can make a difference.

There had been a big storm and a man headed to the beach to see what had washed up. Standing on the bluff in the early morning, he could see a lone person walking on the beach, taking a few steps, leaning over, picking something up, and throwing it into the water, over and over again.

When he got down on the shore, he could see hundreds of starfish. Reaching the man on the beach, he asked, ‘What are you doing?’ He said, ‘Why, I am throwing the starfish into the sea, if I don’t they will die.’ He then asked: ‘Why are you doing that? There are hundreds of starfish, you can’t possibly make any difference.’ As the man picked up the starfish and threw it into the sea, he said, ‘Well, I made a difference to that one.’

We do make a difference every day, individually, collectively. We make a difference . . . by what we do, and what we don’t do. And we make a difference by how we do it. Every day . . . every moment of every day, we get to decide the difference we make.

I often ask people, ‘What would you attempt to do if you knew you could not fail?’ ‘What would you attempt to do if you knew you could not fail?’ I think that is what you should be doing. To understand that we hold in our hands the power to change a circumstance, a mind or a life today – right now – is incredible. And we each have that power.

The judicial branch is responsible for the delivery of justice. We who work in the branch – justices, judges, administrators, clerks and professional staff, at the Administrative Office of the Courts and all court levels: municipal, district, superior, intermediate appellate and supreme – are stewards of justice.

As stewards of justice, it is our duty to see that the judicial branch carries out its responsibilities and achieves its goals.

I see those as being: A justice system that works hard to address the challenges it is facing; a justice system that recognizes the role it plays in people’s lives and society’s fabric; a justice system where all who come to the court and all who work in the court feel they are, and actually are, treated fairly and with dignity and respect; a justice system where parties feel they are, and actually are, welcome and safe, regardless of income, age, ability or any status; a justice system that has the necessary infrastructure and information systems to handle cases effectively and efficiently; and a justice system that the public deserves to, and does, have trust and confidence in.

Bringing fair, efficient, effective justice to the people of Washington in an era of uncertain funding and contentious times is an enormous challenge. We, in the justice system, are committed to continually improving justice by seeking new knowledge and better methods while not allowing the circumstances to overwhelm us – believing that each individual, each committee, and each court can make a difference and that every improvement, no matter the size, adds to the better whole.

Washington is fortunate to have a judicial branch filled with people who will never give up trying to make a difference and improving justice, in ways big and small.

My goal as Chief Justice is to encourage and support those efforts, and today, I applaud and report to you the work being done in our justice system.

As you know, our state's justice system is present in every corner of our state. It functions in state, county and municipal courthouses, and is presided over by nine Supreme Court justices, twenty-two Court of Appeals judges, one-hundred ninety-three superior court judges and two-hundred six full and part-time district and municipal court judges.

At every level, our courts have a direct impact on the lives of individuals and businesses. This is particularly true of our trial courts.

At the limited jurisdiction court level, our municipal court and district court judges handle misdemeanor and gross misdemeanor crimes. District courts also handle small claims cases and civil actions when less than $100,000 are sought in small claims cases. Our limited jurisdiction trial court judges see huge numbers of persons in their courts each year and can truly be called our 'people's courts.'

At the superior court level, which is our general jurisdiction trial court level, judges hear cases on all matter of issues including civil matters over $100,000, felony crimes, family law issues and juvenile matters.

At the trial courts is also where our therapeutic courts may be—drug court, mental health court, veterans' court, community court, etc. These therapeutic courts are problem solving courts.

The Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court review cases that have been decided in the trial courts.

Important work is being done at each level of court and throughout the judicial branch. We are working hard to have and maintain a strong and fair justice system because justice matters. 'If we do not maintain justice, justice will not maintain us.'

While the state of the judiciary is strong, it cannot remain so unless we continue to examine and address issues that confront us now, anticipate new issues on the horizon and prepare to meet them.

Leadership of a branch does not happen in a vacuum – it takes active listening, openness to understanding the problems, respect for different viewpoints, and enthusiasm for working with others. We are blessed with outstanding judges, court personnel and others who embrace that role and work tirelessly to maintain and move our justice system into the future.

Speaking of our justice system in the future – there is no greater way to preserve democracy than to ensure that our youth respect and understand their rights and responsibilities.

With that goal, the Council on Public Legal Education developed an initiative to address gaps in meaningful civil learning by youth. The legislative, executive and judicial branches, with many community partners, then worked together to establish the Civic Learning Initiative, focusing on the policies, resources, and support necessary for successful civics education in K through 12 and youth development programs, with emphasized outreach to underserved youth.

Governor Inslee and I convened two summits. The Legislature passed and the Governor signed House Bill 1896, which requires every Washington high school, beginning with the 2020 - 2021 school year to provide a one-semester civics course.

Complementing that effort, last September 17, the anniversary of the adoption of the United States Constitution in 1787, we launched a new Constitution Day outreach event in classrooms across the state. More than one hundred judicial officers and attorneys engaged students in conversations about the constitution and what it means to them.

Judges and lawyers and partners in the justice system are working together on many other projects. For example, the Superior Court Judges' Association sponsors a 'Color of Justice' program, and the Supreme Court Minority and Justice Commission sponsors 'Youth and Justice Forums', which connect judicial mentors of color and attorneys of color to minority youth. In 2018, students ages 11 to 18 met with judge and attorney mentors in Thurston, Yakima and King Counties and in the Tri-Cities. These events give the young people the opportunity to talk with judges and attorneys who look like them, and have similar backgrounds. They get to learn about the judicial branch and careers in law, and are able to imagine themselves in those positions one day.

A 2016 nationwide study by the American Constitution Society found that the judicial branch does not reflect the country's diversity, with minorities only making up 20% of judges and women only making up 30%. Our judicial branch is working on changing that disparity, because we know that by valuing diversity in our workforce, we promote equity and justice for all.

The Supreme Court Gender and Justice Commission will be examining in depth the degree to which gender affects justice in Washington today. Their work is supported by a national grant provided to help fund the study.

The Commission will use an evidence-based research model to look at gender impacts on justice. One particular focus will be on how race and poverty impact women who access the courts. Recent public awareness regarding the extent to which gender bias and sexual harassment remain significant issues in the workplace make the timing of the study appropriate and necessary.

2018 marked the fourteenth year that courts statewide have celebrated National Adoption Day and hosted community events in order to celebrate adoptions and raise awareness of the many foster children who are legally free and waiting and wanting to join new families.

2018 was the first year that the Supreme Court Commission on Children in Foster Care designated that June be Family Reunification Month. The Commission asked courts statewide to host public celebrations of families in dependency cases who worked hard and completed reunification with their children.

The legislature and the courts have also worked together the last couple of years to examine legal financial obligations. Legal financial obligations are those fines and costs that our laws and court orders impose on people who are convicted of infractions and crimes.

More and more, we are realizing that failure to pay in many instances is due to a person's inability to pay or indigency, rather than a willful failure to pay. The Legal Financial Obligations Consortium has been and is gathering data and developing strategies for collection of legal financial obligations that support, rather than undermine, accountability and rehabilitation for those who struggle to afford court fines and fees.

Significant steps have already been taken based on this work. The legislature passed and the governor signed House Bill 1783. We launched the legal financial obligations calculator prototype, designed to help Washington judges set appropriate levels of fines and fees based on current laws and statutes, and a defendant's ability to pay. The consortium has more than 50 members from different sectors across the state.

Another area where a wide group of people have come together to discuss, and hopefully solve a problem, is the area of pretrial reform. Every day across Washington, trial judges make decisions regarding pretrial release or detention that have consequences for our communities and for people accused of crimes. The Pretrial Reform Task Force is composed of judges, prosecutors, public defenders, bail business owners, legal aid attorneys, court administrators and officials, researchers and more.

The task force will assess the information judges need to make these pretrial decisions and gather data to formulate recommendations for expanding pretrial release. They will also evaluate ways to minimize the impact of pretrial detention of low risk offenders by exploring safe and cost-effective alternatives to full incarceration.

I have spent some time discussing our policy work. Let me talk now about the practical aspect of delivering justice.

In Washington, we are a decentralized judicial system, meaning we are not a unified system. Court funding comes from the state, county and cities. Judges in Washington are elected in statewide, county and sometimes municipal elections. The Supreme Court and superior courts are created by the State Constitution. The Court of Appeals and the district and municipal courts are created by legislation, either state or local.

The one area that we do have a mainly unified system is in the area of information technology. The Judicial Information System Committee, created by state legislation, is responsible for information technology decisions implemented by the Administrative Office of the Courts. Our funding comes from a dedicated Judicial Information System account and recently also from the general fund as there is not enough dedicated money for the information technology work that needs to be done.

For many years, we have worked hard to replace antiquated systems at all levels of court. We are still working. However, I am happy to report there has been major progress.

At the end of 2018, five years after beginning implementation, we successfully completed statewide implementation of the Superior Court Case Management System, known as Odyssey, in thirty-seven of the thirty-nine counties. King and Pierce Counties chose not to come on the state system and were allowed by the legislature to develop or keep their own systems. The Odyssey system replaces a case processing system from the 1970s that was used by superior courts and county clerks.

The new system provides much more case management functionality and modern information, and document sharing abilities. A new Judges' Edition enhances tools for judges in the courtroom and in their offices. A new public portal provides the public with free access to case information. I am very proud to report that the Superior Court Case Management System project was successfully completed, on time and within budget.

In 2017, the Supreme Court and the three divisions of the Court of Appeals began using their new Appellate Court Enterprise Content Management System.

Because of this system, the appellate courts are using the same document management system and have automated many of their workflows and business processes. Our plan for the future includes having fully electronic appellate court records.

Our district and municipal courts cannot efficiently serve the public with their current system based on 1980s technology. We must acquire a modern case management system for Washington courts of limited jurisdiction. We had earnestly begun this work, but, when faced with a solution that did not meet our needs or subjected the state to unreasonable risk, we took a pause to regroup and re-evaluate our options. The Courts of Limited Jurisdiction Case Management Project Steering Committee has developed guiding principles and key features of a case management system, and is now working with a consulting firm that is assisting us to determine a solution or solutions that best meets the needs of our courts of limited jurisdiction and probation departments. Although we made a wise and prudent choice to delay acquiring a new case management system for our courts of limited jurisdiction, the need is great and the work continues.

One final major project we are working on is an information networking hub, which is a statewide enterprise data repository system and data exchange. This is necessary for at least two reasons – first to make sure courts across Washington have access to the same case information, and second to exchange data with state agencies. Since Washington has a nonunified court system and some courts are implementing their own case management systems, we are developing a statewide data repository and establishing standard methods for local court systems to share data with that central repository. When complete, this will maintain a statewide view of case information for judicial decision-making. This exchange is in the works and will be piloted with King County.

While working on these significant statewide judicial information technology projects, the Administrative Office of the Courts is also working on information technology projects with other state agencies that impact the delivery of justice.

For example, in September 2018, the Supreme Court and Division III of the Court of Appeals, in conjunction with the Washington State Penitentiary and the Department of Corrections, launched a pilot project to assess the benefits of allowing inmates to file legal documents electronically, because a large number of prisoner petitions are filed in the appellate courts.

Also in 2018, the Administrative Office of the Courts supported the Department of Licensing's major modernization of driver licensing systems by replacing or modifying key interfaces between the two agencies. Because there are over 800,000 licensing-related filings in the courts per year, it is critical that the courts and the Department of Licensing are able to share and retrieve accurate information.

And now for what we are focusing on specifically in this legislative session – interpreter funding and court system education.

It is fundamental to justice that all individuals, including those with limited English proficiency or who are deaf or hard of hearing, are able to understand and meaningfully participate in courtroom proceedings.

A recent survey revealed that 59% of courts experienced delays in proceedings when interpreter services were unavailable. Small and rural courts report particular difficulties in providing qualified interpreters. Delays impose extra costs on the public and on the participants in the proceedings.

Ensuring that a qualified interpreter is available at the beginning of a case, not only ensures that minor legal issues are resolved promptly, but can also help avoid legal issues from compounding, if not handled appropriately.

State funding for interpreters has been flat since 2008, yet a recent study of Washington courts found that the cost of providing interpreters is increasing. Also increasing are the number of languages spoken in courts – nearly 30% more languages are being spoken statewide, with one court reporting that nearly 165 languages are spoken.

Access to qualified interpreters can have life-altering consequences. Without access, victims of crimes or abuse often face negative impacts, delayed responses or no assistance. For those seeking resolutions in high-risk situations, such as when needing a protection order, a court interpreter can be a matter of life and death.

To address this, the Board for Judicial Administration, using a plan developed by the Interpreter Services Funding Task Force, are asking state lawmakers in 2019 for $2.1 million dollars in additional state funds for interpreter costs. Increased funding will help additional courts, especially rural and small courts, access the Interpreter Reimbursement Program and support interpreter recruitment and testing to increase the number of qualified interpreters.

Another major priority for the judicial branch this year is proper training for judges and court staff across Washington. It is essential that all who work in the court system are well trained in substantive law, technical areas and societal issues. In the last three years, the legislature passed or amended more than 150 laws in a wide array of substantive policy areas, for example, relating to driving under the influence, family law and parentage, guardianship, mental health, public records, and juvenile justice.

Besides knowing the law, judges and court personnel must use and understand technical systems critical to criminal history information, sentencing, case management, and more. And judges and staff, especially in trial courts, see first-hand the impacts of changing societal factors like the crack and opioid epidemics and the exploding number of self-represented litigants. Judges and court personnel must be trained to effectively and efficiently insure that justice occurs in the cases that come before them.

One other thing to note is that the judicial branch is experiencing significant turnover of judges and court staff in staggering numbers due to the aging of our workforce and the lure of better paying jobs. We have a record sixty-nine brand new judicial officers since last January.

Funding for court training has remained the same for more than a decade, despite increasing needs. The Board for Judicial Administration, using a plan established by the Court System Education Funding Task Force, is seeking an increase of $1.4 million dollars for court training, recognizing that without necessary training in these critical areas the work of the courts will be ineffective and inefficient. Such funding will also ensure equal access for small and rural courts that struggle to afford training opportunities.

Another issue of great concern to the judicial branch, and what we will be dedicating our energy to next, is courthouse security. A safe courthouse environment is fundamental to the administration of justice.

To address court security, the Board for Judicial Administration is now convening a Court Security Task Force to assess security at all trial courts throughout Washington. The Court Security Task Force will develop recommendations for how we can ensure that every courthouse in Washington is safe for jurors, litigants, court employees and the public that we serve.

Finally, all of the work of the judicial branch is supported and enhanced by the Administrative Office of the Courts. In 2017, the Administrative Office of the Courts celebrated 60 years of serving Washington's judiciary. I want to publicly thank the staff of the Administrative Office of the Courts for their hard work, thoughtfulness and professionalism. Every day, the people who work for the Administrative Office of the Courts show their dedication to the people of Washington and their commitment to advancing the efficient and effective operation of the Washington judicial system.

We have a new State Court Administrator, Dawn Marie Rubio. She brings a depth of knowledge about court issues from her varied experience with multiple state court systems. We are thrilled someone of her caliber will continue the strong leadership of the Administrative Office of the Courts.

Although we are not a unified court system, we are unified in many ways. I have the great pleasure, having been elected by my colleagues, to serve as the Chief Justice of the state of Washington. Because of that, every day I get to work with, and see the work of, court staff, judicial officers and judicial branch personnel across the state. I get to see the difference they are making every day.

As Chief Justice, I also get to work with you – our legislative and executive branch partners. I get to see the difference you are making every day.

I want to remind you that time is precious. For whatever reasons, this is our individual and collective time and place. It is when and where we are serving in the three branches of government. It is when we are deciding what government looks like in our Washington.

None of us know how many days we have to make a difference. This is again especially true for me. My stage four cancer that I survived eight years ago has returned, and I am currently undergoing treatment. I will continue working. I still believe in miracles. As Albert Einstein said, 'There are only two ways to live your life. One is as though nothing is a miracle. The other is as though everything is a miracle.'

Everything is a miracle. Every day is a miracle. Let's not waste the days we have. Working individually and together, on behalf of those that we faithfully serve, we can, and are, making a difference.

Together, we will not fail. We can change the world to be what we want it to be, and we must ensure that all who seek justice, find it.

I would like to close with what my family calls the 'joy' pose. This is what we often do when we are overwhelmed with happiness. Because I am overflowing with happiness, hope and gratitude for you, for me, for us, and for all of Washington."

The President thanked Chief Justice Fairhurst for her remarks.

The President called upon the committee of honor to escort Chief Justice Fairhurst from the rostrum and the Chief Justice retired from the Chamber.

PROVISIONAL CERTIFICATION

Pursuant to Article II, Section 1, of the Washington State Constitution and RCW 29A.72.230, prior to the deadline of January 4, 2019, the Office of the Secretary of State received signature petitions submitted in support of Initiative to the Legislature No. 1000 concerning equal opportunity affirmative action.

The Office of the Secretary of State is currently examining signatures. Article II, Section 1, of the Washington State Constitution requires 259,622 valid signatures.

I hereby attach a true and correct copy of Initiative to the Legislature No. 1000 and the ballot title wording and summary.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Seal of the State of Washington this 9th day of January, 2019.

Kim Wyman,
Secretary of State

(By Mark Neary, Assistant Secretary of State)

CERTIFICATION OF INITIATIVE TO THE LEGISLATURE NO. 976

Pursuant to Article II, Section 1 of the Washington State Constitution, RCW 29A.72.230, and WAC 434-379-010, the Office of the Secretary of State has caused the signatures submitted in support of Initiative to the Legislature No. 976 to be examined in the following manner:

1. It was determined that 352,093 signatures were submitted by the sponsors of the initiative. A random sample of 10,598 signatures was taken from those submitted;
2. Each sampled signature was examined to determine if the signer was a registered voter of the state, if the signature was reasonably similar to the one appearing on the record of that voter, and if the same signature appeared more than once in the sample. We found 9,128 valid signatures, 1,451 signatures that were invalid and 19 pairs of duplicated signatures in the sample;
3. We calculated an allowance for the chance error of sampling (57) by multiplying the square root of the number of invalid signatures by 1.5;
4. We estimated the upper limit of the number of signatures on the initiative petition which were invalid (50,104) by dividing the sum of the number of invalid signatures in the sample and allowance for the chance of error of sampling by the sampling ratio;
5. We determined the maximum allowable number of duplicate pairs of signatures on the petition (42,367) by subtracting the sum of the number of signatures required by Article II, Section 1 of the Washington State Constitution (259,622) and the estimate of the upper limit of the number of invalid signatures on the petition from the number of signatures submitted;
6. We determined the expected number of duplicate pairs of signatures in the sample (38) by multiplying the square of the sampling ratio by the maximum allowable number of pairs of signatures on the initiative petition;
7. We determined the acceptable number of duplicate pairs of signatures in the sample (28) by subtracting 1.65 times the square root of the expected number of pairs of signatures in the sample from the expected number of pairs of signatures in the sample; and
8. The number of duplicate pairs of signatures in the sample is less than the acceptable number of duplicate pairs of signatures in the sample.

Therefore, I hereby declare Initiative to the Legislature No. 976 to contain sufficient signatures.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Seal of the State of Washington this 15th day of January, 2019.

Kim Wyman,
Secretary of State

(6) All bills having a direct appropriation shall be referred to the appropriate fiscal committee before their final passage.

(7) No standing committee shall vote by secret written ballot on any issue.

(8) During its consideration of or vote on any bill, resolution, or memorial, the deliberations of any standing committee of the house of representatives shall be open to the public.

(9) A standing committee to which a bill was originally referred shall, prior to voting the bill out of committee, consider whether the bill authorizes rule-making powers or requires the exercise of rule-making powers and, if so, consider:

- (a) The nature of the new rule-making powers; and
- (b) To which agencies the new rule-making powers would be delegated and which agencies, if any, may have related rule-making powers.

(10) Standing committee subcommittees established in Rule 23 have the same powers and duties as standing committees.

(11) Insofar as practicable, testimony in public hearings should be balanced between those in support of and in opposition to proposed legislation, with consideration given to providing an opportunity for members of the public to testify within available time.

Standing Committees - Expenses - Subpoena Power

Rule 25. Regardless of whether the legislature is in session, members of the house may receive from moneys appropriated for the legislature, reimbursement for necessary travel expenses, and payments in lieu of subsistence and lodging for conducting official business of the house.

The standing committees of the house may have the powers of subpoena, the power to administer oaths, and the power to issue commissions for the examination of witnesses in accordance with the provisions of chapter 44.16 RCW. Before a standing committee of the house may issue any process, the committee chairperson shall submit for approval of the executive rules committee a statement of purpose setting forth the name or names of those subject to process. The process shall not be issued prior to approval by the executive rules committee. The process shall be limited to the named individuals.

Vetoed Bills

Rule 26. Veto messages of the governor shall be read in the house and entered upon the journal. It shall then be in order to proceed to reconsider the bill, refer it, lay it on the table, or postpone its consideration to a day certain.

The merits of the bill may be debated before the vote is taken, but the vote on a vetoed bill cannot be reconsidered.

In case of a bill containing several sections or items, one or more of which has been objected to by the governor, each section or item so objected to shall be voted upon separately by the house. Action by the house upon all vetoed bills shall be endorsed upon the bill and certified by the speaker.

Vetoed bills originating in the house, which have not been passed notwithstanding the veto of the governor, shall remain in the custody of the officers of the house until the close of the term, after which they shall be filed with the secretary of state.

Suspension of Compensation

Rule 27. (1) Any member of the house of representatives convicted and sentenced for any felony punishable by death or by imprisonment in a Washington state penal institution shall, as of the time of sentencing, be denied the legislative salary for future service and be denied per diem, compensation for expenses, office space facilities, and assistance. Any member convicted of a felony and sentenced therefor under any federal law or the law of any other state shall, as of the time of sentencing, be similarly denied such salary, per diem, expenses, facilities, and assistance if either (a) such crime would also constitute a crime punishable under the laws of Washington by death or by imprisonment in a state penal institution, or (b) the conduct resulting in the conviction and sentencing would also constitute a crime punishable under the laws of Washington by death or by imprisonment in a state penal institution.

(2) At any time, the house may vote by a constitutional majority to restore the salary, per diem, expenses, facilities, and assistance denied a member under subsection (1). If the conviction of a member is reversed, then the salary, per diem, and expense amounts denied the member since sentencing shall be forthwith paid, and the member shall thereafter have the rights and privileges of other members.

Smoking

Rule 28. Smoking of cigarettes, pipes, or cigars shall not be permitted at any public meeting of any committee of the house of representatives or within House facilities.

"No smoking" signs shall be posted so as to give notice of this rule.

Liquor

Standing Rules Amendment

Rule 31. Any standing rule may be rescinded or changed by a majority vote of the members elected: PROVIDED, That the proposed change or changes be submitted at least one day in advance in writing to the members together with notice of the consideration thereof. Any standing rule may be suspended temporarily by a two-thirds (2/3) vote of the members present except as provided in Rule 10.

(C) BUDGET BILLS. No final passage vote may be taken on an operating budget, transportation budget, or capital budget bill until twenty-four (24) hours after the bill is placed on the third reading calendar. No final passage vote may be taken on an operating budget bill until any revenue bills necessary for the operating budget bill to comply with the balanced budget requirement of RCW 43.88.055 have been approved on third reading by a majority vote of members elected to the House. The requirements of this subsection do not apply to conference reports, which are governed by Joint Rule 20, or to bills placed on the third reading calendar by a two-thirds (2/3) vote of the members present.

This requirement does not apply to the operating, transportation, or capital budget bills, to conference reports, or to bills placed on the third reading calendar by a two-thirds (2/3) vote of the members present.

(E) BILLS WITH SIGNIFICANT FISCAL IMPACT. If a bill has a significant fiscal impact, then no final passage vote may be taken on the bill unless the bill contains a nonbinding declaration of legislative intent that explains which revenues the legislature intends to increase or which expenditures the legislature intends to decrease to pay for the projected costs of the bill. For the purposes of this subsection, "significant fiscal impact" means that for the current version of the bill, the fiscal note prepared under chapter 43.88A RCW or other fiscal estimate reasonably projects that the bill is likely to result in an expenditure increase of more than ten million dollars, and "expenditure increase" means a net increase in state expenditures over the ensuing three biennia from the state general fund and related funds as defined in RCW 43.88.055 as compared to the expenditure levels authorized in the current biennium's operating appropriations act from those funds.

MESSAGES FROM THE SECRETARY OF STATE

CERTIFICATION OF INITIATIVE TO THE LEGISLATURE NO. 1000

On January 4, 2019, petition sheets containing voter signatures in favor of Initiative to the Legislature No. 1000 were submitted to the Secretary of State Elections Division by the sponsor. The following is the certificate of the facts relating to the filing, verification, and canvass of this initiative, as required by RCW 29A.72.230.

64 petition sheets contained a ballot title, ballot summary, and initiative text that was different than the established ballot title, ballot summary, and initiative text for No. 1000. (Exhibit A) These petition sheets were removed and were not included in the total signature count.

218 petition sheets contained a sticker with the established ballot title and ballot summary for No. 1000 on the front side of the petition sheet, but containing the text of a different measure on the backside of the petition sheet. (Exhibit B) These petition sheets were included in the total signature count in accordance with RCW 29A.72.170.

21,258 petition sheets contained the established ballot title, ballot summary, and initiative text for No. 1000. (Exhibit C) These petition sheets were included in the total signature count.

Pursuant to Article II, Section 1 of the Washington State Constitution, RCW 29A.72.230, and WAC 434-379-010, the Office of the Secretary of State has caused the signatures submitted in support of Initiative to the Legislature No, 1000 to be examined in the following manner:

1. It was determined that 395,938 signatures were submitted by the sponsors of the initiative. A random sample of 11,919 signatures was taken from those submitted;

2. Each sampled signature was examined to determine if the signer was a registered voter of the state, if the signature was reasonably similar to the one appearing on the record of that voter, and if the same signature appeared more than once in the sample. We found 9,047 valid signatures, 2,859 signatures that were invalid and 13 pairs of duplicated signatures in the sample;

3. We calculated an allowance for the chance error of sampling (80) by multiplying the square root of the number of invalid signatures by 1.5;

4. We estimated the upper limit of the number of signatures on the initiative petition which were invalid (97,638) by dividing the sum of the number of invalid signatures in the sample and allowance for the chance of error of sampling by the sampling ratio;

5. We determined the maximum allowable number of duplicate pairs of signatures on the petition (38,678) by subtracting the sum of the number of signatures required by Article II, Section 1 of the Washington State Constitution (259,622) and the estimate of the upper limit of the number of invalid signatures on the petition from the number of signatures submitted;

6. We determined the expected number of duplicate pairs of signatures in the sample (35) by multiplying the square of the sampling ratio by the maximum allowable number of pairs of signatures on the initiative petition;

7. We determined the acceptable number of duplicate pairs of signatures in the sample (25) by subtracting 1.65 times the square root of the expected number of pairs of signatures in the sample from the expected number of pairs of signatures in the sample; and

8. The number of duplicate pairs of signatures in the sample is less than the acceptable number of duplicate pairs of signatures in the sample.

Therefore, I hereby declare Initiative to the Legislature No. 1000 to contain sufficient signatures

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Seal of the State of Washington this 6th day of February, 2019.

Kim Wyman, Secretary of State

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 2019-4614, by Representative Morgan

WHEREAS, This celebration of history got its start in 1925, as an idea of historian Carter G. Woodson to raise awareness of the history and contribution of black Americans in the hopes that reason would overcome prejudice; and

WHEREAS, Woodson's week of history was first observed in 1926 during a week of February that included the birthdays of two great men; and

WHEREAS, The first man was Frederick Douglass, who chose to celebrate his birthday on February 14th because he was born a slave on a plantation in Maryland, and was of mixed race, including Native American and African on his mother's side and European on his father's side, and escaped slavery in 1838 to become a skilled preacher, thinker, and author; and

WHEREAS, The second man was born on February 12th and is Abraham Lincoln, the 16th president of the United States and the man who issued the Emancipation Proclamation, ending slavery; and

WHEREAS, The two men met in the summer of 1863 in the White House, and discussed ways to treat black soldiers fighting on the Union side as equals to white soldiers; and

WHEREAS, There was a great response to Woodson's idea, with black history clubs created throughout the nation and teachers asking for material for use in their classrooms; and

WHEREAS, By the time Woodson died in 1950, this week of history had become well-established, and the civil rights movement of the 1960s only strengthened the effort to explore the contributions of black Americans; and

WHEREAS, In the bicentennial year of 1976, fifty years after Woodson gave birth to the idea, President Gerald Ford expanded the week to the month of February, urging all Americans to "seize the opportunity to honor the too-often neglected accomplishments of black Americans in every area of endeavor throughout our history"; and

WHEREAS, The list of accomplishments and contributions is long and includes the writings of Douglass, Booker T. Washington, Ralph Ellison, and Toni Morrison; and

WHEREAS, Scientific achievements include the inventions of George Washington Carver and the three NASA workers—Katherine Goble, Mary Jackson, and Dorothy Vaughan—whose calculations helped put astronauts on the moon; and

WHEREAS, Warriors for justice and equality include Sojourner Truth, Harriet Tubman, Thurgood Marshall, Rosa Parks, and Martin Luther King, Jr.; and

WHEREAS, We also recognize the vision of inspiring political leaders such as Congressman John Lewis, Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm—the first black woman elected to Congress and the first black woman to run for president—and America's first black president, Barack Obama;

WHEREAS, On February 19, 1942, President Franklin D. Roosevelt issued Executive Order 9066, which authorized the United States military to forcibly remove and incarcerate more than 120,000 persons of Japanese ancestry from the West Coast, including 12,000 Japanese American residents of Washington State; and

WHEREAS, The first civilian evacuation order gave Japanese Americans from Bainbridge Island less than one week to leave behind homes, personal belongings, farms, businesses, friends, and family and report to hastily constructed detention centers like Camp Harmony on the grounds of the Washington State fair in Puyallup; and

WHEREAS, This drastic course of action allegedly aimed to prevent acts of espionage and sabotage by Japanese Americans who were deemed untrustworthy and disloyal to the United States; and

WHEREAS, On March 23, 1943, the War Department organized a segregated unit of Japanese Americans, many of whom reported for military duty from the concentration camps surrounded by barbed wire in which they and their families were detained; and

WHEREAS, More than 12,000 volunteers responded to questions about their loyalty and patriotism by amassing a battle record unparalleled in United States military history with 7 Presidential Unit Citations, 21 Medals of Honor, 29 Distinguished Service Crosses, 1 Distinguished Service Medal, 588 Silver Stars, more than 4,000 Bronze Stars, 22 Legion of Merit Medals, 145 Soldier's Medals, 9,486 Purple Hearts, 16 decorations from France and Italy, and, in 2010, the Congressional Gold Medal; and

WHEREAS, Equally loyal and patriotic Japanese Americans fought to protect our constitutional rights and liberties through dissent, like University of Washington student Gordon Hirabayashi who was arrested, convicted, and imprisoned for defying the military curfew on select civilians and refusing to evacuate when ordered; and

WHEREAS, In 1982, the Congressional commission on wartime relocation and internment of civilians found "no military or security reason for the internment" of persons of Japanese ancestry, but determined the cause of the incarceration as "racial prejudice, war hysteria, and a failure of political leadership"; and

WHEREAS, Through this travesty of justice, Japanese Americans suffered immense economic loss of property and assets, immeasurable physical and psychological harm, and were deprived of their constitutional liberties without due process of law; and

WHEREAS, In 1979, Washington State Congressman Mike Lowry introduced H.R. 5977 to provide reparations and an apology to the Japanese American incarcerated, thus initiating a ten-year legislative quest that ended when President Ronald Reagan signed the Civil Liberties Act of 1988; and

WHEREAS, Throughout Washington State, the last remaining survivors of the European and Asian Pacific battlefields of World War II and of American incarceration camps live their golden years in quiet contrast to their extraordinary acts of conscience and valor while all of America continues to benefit from their heroic patriotism;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the Washington State House of Representatives pause to acknowledge the seventy-seventh anniversary of the signing of Executive Order 9066; to recognize and remember Japanese American veterans, incarcerated, and civil rights activists from the State of Washington, and to honor the lessons and blessings of liberty and justice for all; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That copies of this resolution be immediately transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives to the Nisei Veterans Committee, Densho, the Japanese American Citizens League, the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Washington State, and the Wing Luke Museum of the Asian Pacific American Experience.

SECOND READING

HOUSE BILL NO. 1074, by Representatives Harris, Orwell, Riccelli, Jinkins, DeBolt, Pollet, Stonier, Stanford, Rude, Davis, Tharinger, Macri, Slatter, Kloba, Peterson, Valdez, Kilduff, Ryu, Fitzgibbon, Robinson, Appleton, Wylie, Cody, Bergquist, Doglio, Senn, Frame, Walen and Callan

Protecting youth from tobacco products and vapor products by increasing the minimum legal age of sale of tobacco and vapor products.

The bill was read the second time.

Representative Schmick moved the adoption of amendment (017):

On page 10, line 5, after "with" insert "federally recognized"

Representatives Schmick and Cody spoke in favor of the adoption of the amendment.

Amendment (017) was adopted.

Representative Schmick moved the adoption of the striking amendment (018):

Strike everything after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"Sec. 1. RCW 26.28.080 and 2016 1st sp.s. c 38 s 1 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) ~~((Every))~~ A person who sells or gives, or permits to be sold or given, to any person under the age of ~~((eighteen))~~ nineteen years any cigar, cigarette, cigarette paper or wrapper, tobacco in any form, or a vapor product is guilty of a gross misdemeanor.

(2) It is not a defense to a prosecution for a violation of this section that the person acted, or was believed by the defendant to act, as agent or representative of another.

(3) For the purposes of this section, "vapor product" has the same meaning as provided in RCW 70.345.010.

Sec. 2. RCW 70.155.005 and 1993 c 507 s 1 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) The legislature finds that chapter ..., Laws of 2019 (this act) furthers the public health, safety, and welfare by reducing youth access to addictive and harmful products.

(2) While present state law prohibits the sale and distribution of tobacco and vapor products to ~~((minors))~~ youth under the age of eighteen, youth obtain ~~((tobacco))~~ these products with ease. ~~((Availability and lack of enforcement put tobacco products in the hands of youth.))~~

(3) The legislature recognizes that many people who purchase cigarettes for minors are eighteen year old high school students. By decreasing the number of eligible buyers in high school, raising the minimum legal age to sell tobacco and vapor products will decrease the access of students to tobacco products. According to the 2014 healthy youth survey, forty-one percent of tenth graders say it is "sort of easy" to "very easy" to get cigarettes. Nationally, among youth who smoke, more than twice as many get their cigarettes from social sources than from a store or vending machine.

(4) The legislature recognizes that eighty percent of smokers start by the age of eighteen.

(5) The legislature recognizes that jurisdictions across the country are increasing the age of sale for tobacco products to nineteen.

(6) The legislature recognizes the national institute of medicine report predicted increasing the tobacco sale age will make the greatest difference among those ages fifteen to seventeen, who will no longer be able to pass for legal age and will have a harder time getting tobacco products from older classmates and friends.

(7) The legislature recognizes that reducing the youth smoking rate will save lives and reduce health care costs. Every year, two billion eight hundred ten million dollars in health care costs can be directly attributed to tobacco use in Washington. Smoking-caused government expenditures cost every Washington household eight hundred twenty-one dollars per year.

(8) Federal law requires states to enforce laws prohibiting sale and distribution of tobacco products to minors in a manner that can reasonably be expected to reduce the extent to which the products are available to minors. It is imperative to effectively reduce the sale, distribution, and availability of tobacco products to minors.

Sec. 3. RCW 70.155.010 and 2009 c 278 s 1 are each amended to read as follows:

The definitions set forth in RCW 82.24.010 ~~((shall))~~ apply to this chapter. In addition, for the purposes of this chapter, unless otherwise required by the context:

~~((14))~~ (13) "Retail outlet" means each place of business from which vapor products are sold to consumers.

"NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. The legislature finds that homelessness has reached a crisis level across Washington state. Every community has felt the impact as affordable housing continues to be out of reach for many residents of the state. Therefore, the legislature intends to help provide cities and counties with the flexibility and tools to take on this crisis by investing in facilities and projects that keep people in homes, provide the services that can help prevent people from entering homelessness, and ensure affordable housing in every community.

Sec. 2. RCW 82.46.035 and 2011 c 354 s 3 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) The legislative authority of any county or city must identify in the adopted budget the capital projects funded in whole or in part from the proceeds of the tax authorized in this section, and must indicate that such tax is intended to be in addition to other funds that may be reasonably available for such capital projects.

(2) The legislative authority of any county or any city that plans under RCW 36.70A.040(1) may impose an additional excise tax on each sale of real property in the unincorporated areas of the county for the county tax and in the corporate limits of the city for the city tax at a rate not exceeding one-quarter of one percent of the selling price. Any county choosing to plan under RCW 36.70A.040(2) and any city within such a county may only adopt an ordinance imposing the excise tax authorized by this section if the ordinance is first authorized by a proposition approved by a majority of the voters of the taxing district voting on the proposition at a general election held within the district or at a special election within the taxing district called by the district for the purpose of submitting such proposition to the voters.

(3) Revenues generated from the tax imposed under subsection (2) of this section must be used by such counties and cities solely for financing capital projects specified in a capital facilities plan element of a comprehensive plan. However, revenues (a) pledged by such counties and cities to debt retirement prior to March 1, 1992, may continue to be used for that purpose until the original debt for which the revenues were pledged is retired, or (b) committed prior to March 1, 1992, by such counties or cities to a project may continue to be used for that purpose until the project is completed.

(4) Revenues generated by the tax imposed by this section must be deposited in a separate account.

(5) As used in this section, "city" means any city or town and "capital project" means those public works projects of a local government for:

(a) Planning, acquisition, construction, reconstruction, repair, replacement, rehabilitation, or improvement of streets, roads, highways, sidewalks, street and road lighting systems, traffic signals, bridges, domestic water systems, storm and sanitary sewer systems~~((and))~~;

(b) Planning, construction, reconstruction, repair, rehabilitation, or improvement of parks; and

(c) Until January 1, 2026, planning, acquisition, construction, reconstruction, repair, replacement, rehabilitation, or improvement of facilities for those experiencing homelessness and affordable housing projects.

(6) A county or city may use the greater of one hundred thousand dollars or twenty-five percent of available funds, but not to exceed one million dollars, for capital projects as defined in subsection (5)(c) of this section. The limits in this subsection do not apply to any county or city that used revenue under this section for the acquisition, construction, improvement, or rehabilitation of facilities to provide housing for the homeless prior to June 30, 2019.

(7) A county or city using funds for uses in subsection (5)(c) of this section must document in its plan under RCW 36.70A.070(3) that it has funds during the next two years for capital projects in subsection (5)(a) of this section.

(8) When the governor files a notice of noncompliance under RCW 36.70A.340 with the secretary of state and the appropriate county or city, the county or city's authority to impose the additional excise tax under this section is temporarily rescinded until the governor files a subsequent notice rescinding the notice of noncompliance.

(1)(a) The department shall develop or contract for the development of training for entertainers. The training must include, but not be limited to:

(i) Education about the rights and responsibilities of entertainers, including with respect to working as an employee or independent contractor;

(ii) Reporting of workplace injuries, including sexual and physical abuse and sexual harassment;

and
(v) Resources for assistance.

(b) As a condition of receiving or renewing an adult entertainer license issued by a local government, an entertainer must provide proof that the entertainer took the training described in (a) of this subsection.

(2) An adult entertainment establishment must provide a panic button in each room in the establishment in which an entertainer may be alone with a customer, and in bathrooms and dressing rooms. An entertainer may use the panic button if the entertainer has been harmed, reasonably believes there is a risk of harm, or there is an other emergency in the entertainer's presence. The entertainer may cease work and leave the immediate area to await the arrival of assistance.

(3)(a) An adult entertainment establishment must record the accusations it receives that a customer has committed an act of violence, including assault, sexual assault, or sexual harassment, towards an entertainer. The establishment must make every effort to obtain the customer's name and if the establishment cannot determine the name, it must record as much identifying information about the customer as is reasonably possible. The establishment must retain a record of the customer's identifying information for at least five years after the most recent accusation.

(b) If an accusation is supported by a statement made under penalty of perjury or other evidence, the adult entertainment establishment must decline to allow the customer to return to the establishment for at least three years after the date of the incident. The establishment must share the information about the customer with other establishments with common ownership and those establishments with common ownership must also decline to

(6) The department shall convene an entertainer advisory committee to assist with the implementation of this section, including the elements of the training under subsection (1) of this section. At least half of the advisory committee members must be former entertainers who held or current entertainers who have held an adult entertainer license issued by a local government for at least five years. The advisory committee shall also consider whether additional measures would increase the safety and security of entertainers, such as by examining ways to make the procedures described in subsection (3) of this section more effective and reviewing the fee structure for entertainers. If the advisory committee finds and recommends additional measures that would increase the safety and security of entertainers and that those additional measures would require legislative action, the department must report those recommendations to the appropriate committees of the legislature.

(7) The definitions in this subsection apply throughout this section unless the context clearly requires otherwise.

(a) "Adult entertainment" means any exhibition, performance, or dance of any type conducted in a premises where such exhibition, performance, or dance involves an entertainer who:

NEW SECTION. Sec. 5. A new section is added to chapter 59.18 RCW to read as follows:

Under this chapter:

(1) A landlord must first apply any payment made by a tenant toward rent, as that term is defined in RCW 59.18.030, before applying any payment toward late payments, damages, legal costs, or other fees, including attorneys' fees.

(2) Except as provided in RCW 59.18.410, the tenant's right to possession may not be conditioned on a tenant's payment or satisfaction of any monetary amount other than rent. However, this does not foreclose a landlord from pursuing other lawful remedies to collect late payments, damages, legal costs, or other fees, including attorneys' fees.

Sec. 6. RCW 59.18.410 and 2011 c 132 s 20 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) If upon the trial the verdict of the jury or, if the case be tried without a jury, the finding of the court be in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant, judgment shall be entered for the restitution of the premises; and if the proceeding be for unlawful detainer after neglect or failure to perform any condition or covenant of a lease or agreement under which the property is held, or after default in the payment of rent, the judgment shall also declare the forfeiture of the lease, agreement, or tenancy. The jury, or the court, if the proceedings be tried without a jury, shall also assess the damages arising out of the tenancy occasioned to the plaintiff by any forcible entry, or by any forcible or unlawful detainer, alleged in the complaint and proved on the trial, and, if the alleged unlawful detainer be after default in the payment of rent, find the amount of any rent due, and the judgment shall be rendered against the defendant guilty of the forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer for the amount of damages thus assessed and for the rent, if any, found due, and the court may award statutory costs and reasonable ~~((attorney's))~~ attorneys' fees; however, if the alleged unlawful detainer is after default in the payment of rent, or for violation of a condition of the rental agreement, the court may award reasonable attorneys' fees only after a finding that the tenant did not act in good faith, willfully performed an act prohibited by the lease or the governing law, or willfully refrained from performing an act required by the lease or the governing law.

(2) When the ~~((proceeding))~~ tenant is liable for ~~((an))~~ unlawful detainer after default in the payment of rent, ~~((and the lease or agreement under which the rent is payable has not by its terms expired,))~~ execution upon the judgment shall not be issued until the expiration of five court days after the entry of the judgment, ~~((within which))~~ and before such time the tenant or any subtenant, or any mortgagee of the term, or other party interested in the continuance of the tenancy, may pay to the landlord or into court for the landlord the amount of the ~~((judgment and costs, and thereupon the judgment shall be satisfied and))~~ rent owed, court costs incurred, late fees provided such fees are due under the lease and do not exceed seventy-five dollars in total, and attorneys' fees if imposed pursuant to this section, in which event the tenant shall be restored to his or her tenancy ~~((; but))~~. If payment ~~((; as herein provided, be))~~ of the amount specified herein is not made within five court days after the judgment, the judgment may be enforced for its full amount and for the possession of the premises.

(3)(a) Following the entry of a judgment in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant for the restitution of the premises and forfeiture of tenancy due to nonpayment of rent, the court, at the time of the show cause hearing or trial, or upon subsequent motion of the tenant but before the execution of the writ of restitution, may stay or vacate the writ of restitution upon good cause and on such terms that the court deems fair and just for both parties. In making this decision, the court shall consider the following factors:

(i) The defendant's payment history;
(ii) Evidence the nonpayment was caused by exigent circumstances that were beyond the defendant's control and that are not likely to recur;

(iii) Evidence or lack of evidence of the defendant's willful or intentional failure to pay rent;

(iv) The defendant's ability to timely pay the judgment;

(v) The relative burden on the parties resulting from reinstatement or refusal to reinstate;

(vi) Conduct related to other notices served contemporaneously with the notice to pay or vacate regardless of whether the other notices were part of the court's judgment.

(b) The burden of proof for such relief under this subsection shall be on the tenant. The court may issue an order pursuant to this subsection upon appropriate terms, which may include the payment or severing of all or part of the monetary judgment. Any severing of the judgment shall not preclude the landlord from pursuing other lawful remedies to collect the remainder of the judgment.

(c) In any order issued pursuant to this subsection (3):

(i) The court shall not stay the writ more than three months from the date of judgment, but may order repayment of the balance within such time;

(ii) The court shall require the tenant to tender to the landlord or deposit with the court one month's rent within five court days of the order;

(iii) Providing for repayment of the balance found by the court, the court shall issue the writ of restitution, but require that the writ of restitution not be served by the sheriff on the tenant unless the tenant defaults on the repayment order; in such event, the court shall extend the writ of restitution as necessary to enforce the order in the event of default.

(4) In all other cases the judgment may be enforced immediately. If writ of restitution shall have been executed prior to judgment no further writ or execution for the premises shall be required.

(5) This section also applies if the writ of restitution is issued pursuant to a final judgment entered after a show cause hearing conducted in accordance with RCW 59.18.380.

Sec. 7. RCW 59.18.290 and 2010 c 8 s 19028 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) It ~~((shall be))~~ is unlawful for the landlord to remove or exclude from the premises the tenant thereof except under a court order so authorizing. Any tenant so removed or excluded in violation of this section may recover possession of the property or terminate the rental agreement and, in either case, may recover the actual damages sustained. The prevailing party may recover the costs of suit or arbitration and reasonable ~~((attorney's))~~ attorneys' fees.

(2) It ~~((shall be))~~ is unlawful for the tenant to hold over in the premises or exclude the landlord therefrom after the termination of the rental agreement except under a valid court order so authorizing. Subject to RCW 59.18.410, any landlord so deprived of possession of premises in violation of this section may recover possession of the property and damages sustained by him or her, and the prevailing party may recover his or her costs of suit or arbitration and reasonable ~~((attorney's))~~ attorneys' fees.

Sec. 8. RCW 59.18.390 and 2011 c 132 s 19 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) The sheriff shall, upon receiving the writ of restitution, forthwith serve a copy thereof upon the defendant, his or her agent, or attorney, or a person in possession of the premises, and shall not execute the same for three days thereafter(~~and the defendant, or person in possession of the premises within three days after the service of the writ of restitution may execute to the plaintiff a bond to be filed with and approved by the clerk of the court in such sum as may be fixed by the judge, with sufficient surety to be approved by the clerk of the court, conditioned that they will pay to the plaintiff such sum as the plaintiff may recover for the use and occupation of the premises, or any rent found due, together with all damages the plaintiff may sustain by reason of the defendant occupying or keeping possession of the premises, together with all damages which the court theretofore has awarded to the plaintiff as provided in this chapter, and also all the costs of the action. If the writ of restitution was issued after alternative service provided for in RCW 59.18.055, the court shall determine the amount of the bond after considering the rent claimed and any other factors the court deems relevant. The plaintiff, his or her agent or attorneys, shall have notice of the time and place where the court or judge thereof shall fix the amount of the defendant's bond, and shall have notice and a reasonable opportunity to examine into the qualification and sufficiency of the sureties upon the bond before the bond shall be approved by the clerk~~)). After the issuance of a writ of restitution, acceptance of a payment by the landlord or plaintiff that only partially satisfies the judgment will not invalidate the writ unless pursuant to a written agreement executed by both parties. The eviction will not be postponed or stopped unless a copy of that written agreement is provided to the sheriff. It is the responsibility of the tenant or defendant to ensure a copy of the agreement is provided to the sheriff. Upon receipt of the agreement the sheriff will cease action unless ordered to do otherwise by the court. The writ of restitution and the notice that accompanies the writ of restitution required under RCW 59.18.312 shall conspicuously state in bold face type, all capitals, not less than twelve points information about partial payments as set forth in subsection (2) of this section. If the writ of restitution has been based upon a finding by the court that the tenant, subtenant, sublessee, or a person residing at the rental premises has engaged in drug-related activity or has allowed any other person to engage in drug-related activity at those premises with his or her knowledge or approval, neither the tenant, the defendant, nor a person in possession of the premises shall be entitled to post a bond in order to retain possession of the premises. The writ may be served by the sheriff, in the event he or she shall be unable to find the defendant, an agent or attorney, or a person in possession of the premises, by affixing a copy of the writ in a conspicuous place upon the premises: PROVIDED, That the sheriff shall not require any bond for the service or execution of the writ. The sheriff shall be immune from all civil liability for serving and enforcing writs of restitution unless the sheriff is grossly negligent in carrying out his or her duty.

(2) The notice accompanying a writ of restitution required under RCW 59.18.312 shall be substantially similar to the following:

"NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. (1) The legislature finds that domestic violence causes physical and psychological harm, broken families, economic loss, and other societal ills. According to the center for disease control's national intimate partner and sexual violence survey, about one in three women and one in three men reported experiencing intimate partner violence in their lifetime. In Washington in 2017, over fifty-four thousand domestic violence offenses were reported to law enforcement and forty-nine domestic violence homicides were committed.

(2) The legislature finds that the workplace may be the only location in which an individual experiencing domestic violence may be free from a perpetrator and feel safe. Individuals experiencing domestic violence may also find the workplace a place of shared confidences. Therefore, the legislature intends to create a task force to explore ways in which the employer and employee community may help curb domestic violence.

(3) This section expires June 30, 2021.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 2. (1) The department of commerce shall convene a task force on domestic violence and workplace resources to identify the role of the workplace in helping to curb domestic violence.

- (3) The task force shall choose the chair or cochair from among its membership.
- (4) The task force shall review the following issues:
- (a) The role of the workplace in the lives of individuals experiencing domestic violence;
 - (b) The appropriate role of employers and employees in helping reduce the incidence of domestic violence; and
 - (c) Whether legislation is needed to address the issues outlined in this subsection.

(5) The department of commerce shall convene the meetings and provide staff support for the task force.

(6) The task force shall submit:

Strike everything after the enacting clause and insert the following:

" NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. The legislature finds that while many parts of the state are thriving economically, some rural and distressed communities have struggled to keep pace. These communities represent significant opportunity for economic growth and innovation. However, businesses and entrepreneurs often find it difficult to obtain the capital they need to expand and grow in these areas. Therefore, it is the intent of the legislature to incentivize private investments and job creation in rural and distressed communities while ensuring no loss of revenue to the state.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 2. TAX PREFERENCE PERFORMANCE STATEMENT. (1) This section is the tax preference performance statement for the tax preferences created in sections 7 and 13, chapter . . . , Laws of 2019 (sections 7 and 13 of this act). This performance statement is only intended to be used for subsequent evaluation of the tax preference.

(2) The legislature categorizes these tax preferences as ones intended to create or retain jobs, as indicated in RCW 82.32.808(2)(c).

(3) It is the legislature's specific public policy objective to create and retain jobs in rural development and distressed opportunity zone areas of Washington. It is the legislature's intent to provide a vested tax credit that may be used to offset certain business and occupation taxes under chapter 82.04 RCW, and insurance premium taxes under chapter 48.14 RCW owed by Washington taxpayers, in order to induce such taxpayers to invest in rural development and distressed opportunity zone funds whose management teams:

(a) Have experience investing in companies located in rural development and distressed opportunity zone areas;

(b) Have been vetted by the United States small business administration or the United States department of agriculture; and

(c) Have submitted a business plan that:

(i) Projects the number of jobs that will be created or retained as a result of such investment fund's investments in rural companies and includes the assumptions used to determine the projection; and

(ii) Includes a revenue impact assessment that demonstrates that the business plan will result in a positive economic impact on Washington state over a ten-year period that exceeds the cumulative amount of tax credits that would be issued to the investment fund's investors, thereby:

(A) Enabling the capitalization of rural development and distressed opportunity zone funds;

(B) Incentivizing and requiring rural development and distressed opportunity zone funds to invest in companies located in rural areas of Washington; and

(C) Enabling the creation or retention of jobs in rural development and distressed opportunity zone areas of Washington.

(4) If the joint legislative audit and review committee finds that the aggregate number of jobs created or retained matches or exceeds the aggregate number of jobs set forth in the business plans of approved rural development and distressed opportunity zone funds, in the six years following enactment of these tax preferences, then the legislature intends to continue the tax preferences created in sections 7 and 13, chapter . . . , Laws of 2019 (sections 7 and 13 of this act).

(5) In order to obtain the data necessary to perform the review in subsection (4) of this section, the joint legislative audit and review committee may refer to:

(a) The annual report that a taxpayer claiming the tax credit in section 13 of this act must file with the department of revenue under RCW 82.32.534; and

(b) The annual reports required under section 11 of this act.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 3. SHORT TITLE. This chapter may be known and cited as the Washington rural development and distressed opportunity zone act.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 4. DEFINITIONS. The definitions in this section apply throughout this chapter unless the context clearly requires otherwise.

(1) "Affiliate" means an entity that directly or indirectly, through one or more intermediaries, controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with another entity. For the purposes of this chapter, "control" means the possession, directly or indirectly, of more than fifty percent of the power to direct or cause the direction of the management and policies of a person, whether through the ownership of voting shares, by contract, or otherwise.

(2) "Average monthly employment" means the cumulative number of full-time employees on the last day of each month of a calendar year divided by twelve.

(3) "Closing date" means the date on which a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund has collected all of the amounts specified by section 5 of this act.

(4) "Credit-eligible capital contribution" means an investment of cash by a person who, as of the closing date, is subject to (a) business and occupation taxes under chapter 82.04 RCW and/or (b) insurance premium taxes under chapter 48.14 RCW in a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund that equals the amount specified on a tax credit certificate issued by the department under section

5 of this act. The investment must purchase an equity interest in the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund or purchase, at par value or premium, a debt instrument that has a maturity date at least five years from the closing date and a repayment schedule that is no faster than level principal amortization over five years.

(5) "Department" means the department of commerce.

(6) "Full-time employee" means an employment position that requires at least thirty-five hours of work each week.

(7) "Growth investment" means any capital or equity investment in a targeted small business or any loan to a targeted small business with a stated maturity at least one year after the date of issuance.

(8) "Investment authority" means the amount stated on the written approval issued under section 5(8) of this act certifying the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund. At least sixty percent of a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's investment authority must be comprised of credit-eligible capital contributions.

(12) "NAICS code" means the North American industry classification system code used by federal statistical agencies and the state in classifying business establishments for the purpose of collecting, analyzing, and publishing statistical data related to the business economy.

(13) "Principal business operations" means a business located at the place or places where at least sixty percent of its employees work or where employees that are paid at least sixty percent of its payroll work. An out-of-state business that has agreed to relocate employees or an in-state business that has agreed to hire full-time employees using the proceeds of a growth investment to establish its principal business operations in a qualified area in the state is deemed to have its principal business operations in this new location provided it satisfies this definition within one hundred eighty days after receiving the growth investment, unless the department agrees to a later date.

(14) "Qualified area" means:

(a) A county with a population density of less than one hundred persons per square mile or a county smaller than two hundred twenty-five square miles as determined by the office of financial management and published each year by the department for the period July 1st to June 30th; or

(b) A qualified opportunity zone as defined by Title 26 U.S.C. Sec. 1400Z-1 of the federal internal revenue code of 1986, as amended, located in a distressed area as defined in RCW 43.169.020.

(15) "Rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund" or "fund" means an entity certified by the department under section 5 of this act.

(16) "Targeted small business" means a business that, at the time of the initial investment in the company by a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund:

(b) Has its principal business operations in one or more qualified areas in the state; and

(c) Is engaged in industries related to manufacturing, plant sciences, services, distribution, warehousing, farming, forestry, biotechnology, fisheries, biofuels, technology, or the marketing and sale of technology, business that supplies inputs for agriculture and food industry, agricultural primary production, feed industry, branded or other food production, or if the business is not engaged in such industries, the department makes a determination that the investment will be highly beneficial to the economic growth of the state.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 5. TAX CREDIT APPLICATION, APPROVAL, AND ALLOCATIONS. (1) Beginning January 1, 2020, the department must accept applications for approval as a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund. The application must include all of the following:

(a) The total investment authority sought by the applicant under the business plan;

(b) A copy of the applicant's or an affiliate of the applicant's license as a rural business investment company under Title 7 U.S.C. Sec. 2009cc, as amended, as of January 1, 2019, or as a small business investment company under Title 15 U.S.C. Sec. 681, as amended, as of January 1, 2019;

(i) Evidence that, as of the date the application is submitted, the applicant or affiliates of the applicant have invested at least one hundred fifty million dollars in nonpublic companies located in areas within or without the state of Washington that would be qualified areas if in Washington; and

(ii) At least one principal in a rural investment company or small business investment company is, or has been for at least four years, an officer or employee of the applicant or an affiliate of the applicant on the date of the submission.

(c) An estimate of the number of jobs created and jobs retained in this state as a result of the applicant's growth investments and the assumptions used to determine the estimate;

(d) A business plan that includes a revenue impact assessment projecting state and local tax revenue to be generated by the applicant's proposed growth investments prepared by a firm with experience in providing economic analysis and revenue projection for government entities using a dynamic economic forecasting model that analyzes the applicant's business plan over the ten years following the date the application is submitted to the department;

(e) A signed affidavit from each investor stating the amount of credit-eligible capital contributions each taxpayer commits to make and against which of the two tax types the investor plans to apply the credit:

(i) Business and occupation taxes under chapter 82.04 RCW; or

(ii) Insurance premium taxes under chapter 48.14 RCW; and

(f) A nonrefundable application fee of five thousand dollars.

(2) The department must make an application determination within thirty days of receipt in the order in which the applications are received. The department must deem applications received on the same day to have been received simultaneously.

(3) The department may not approve more than one hundred million dollars in investment authority and not more than sixty million dollars in credit-eligible capital contributions under this section. If requests for investment authority exceed this limitation, the department must proportionally reduce the investment authority and the credit-eligible capital contributions for each approved application as necessary to avoid exceeding the limit.

(4) The department may not approve more than thirty-five million dollars in investment authority and not more than twenty-one million dollars in credit-eligible capital contributions for an applicant under this section. If fewer than three applicants have been approved as a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund under this section by November 1, 2020, a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund may apply for additional investment authority and capital contributions in excess of the limit under this subsection.

(5) The department must deny an application submitted under this section if any of the following are true:

(a) The application is incomplete or the application fee is not paid in full;

(b) The applicant does not satisfy all the criteria described in subsection (1)(b) of this section;

(c) The revenue impact assessment submitted under subsection (1)(d) of this section does not demonstrate that the applicant's business plan will result in a positive economic impact on aggregate state and local government revenue over a ten-year period that exceeds the cumulative amount of tax credits that would be issued to the applicant's investors under section 7 or 13 of this act if the application were approved;

(d) The credit-eligible capital contributions described in affidavits submitted under subsection (1)(e) of this section do not equal at least sixty percent of the total amount of investment authority sought under the applicant's business plan; or

(e) The department has already approved the maximum amount of investment authority and credit-eligible capital contributions allowed under subsections (3) and (4) of this section.

(6) If the department denies an application, the applicant may provide additional information to the department to complete, clarify, or cure defects in the application identified by the department, except for failure to make the submission required by subsection (1)(e) of this section, within fifteen days of the notice of denial for reconsideration and determination. The department must review and reconsider such applications within thirty days before any pending application submitted after the original submission date of the reconsidered application.

(7) The department may not deny a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund application or reduce the requested investment authority for reasons other than those described in subsections (3) through (5) of this section.

(8) Upon approval of an application, the department must provide a written approval to the applicant as a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund specifying the amount of the applicant's investment authority.

(9) After receiving the approval issued under subsection (8) of this section, a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund must:

(a) Within sixty days:

(i) Collect the credit-eligible capital contributions from each investor; and

(ii) Collect one or more investments of cash that, when added to the contributions collected under (a)(i) of this subsection, equal the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's investment authority. An amount equal to at least ten percent of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's investment authority must be equity investments by affiliates of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund, including employees, officers, and directors of affiliates.

(b) Within sixty-five days, send to the department documentation sufficient to prove that the amounts described in (a)(i) and (ii) of this subsection have been collected.

(10) Upon receiving documentation from the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund that it is fully funded, the department must issue a tax credit certificate to each investor whose affidavit was included in the application specifying the amount of the investor's credit-eligible capital contribution. The department must provide a copy of the tax credit certificates to the office of the insurance commissioner for investors earning tax credits eligible for use against insurance premium taxes, including the retaliatory provision, imposed under chapter 48.14 RCW, and to the department of revenue for investors earning tax credits eligible for use against business and occupation taxes imposed under chapter 82.04 RCW. The tax credit certificate must include:

- (a) The credit-eligible capital contribution amount;
- (b) The name of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund;
- (c) The unified business identifier number of the investor; and
- (d) The closing date of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund.

(11) Tax credits may be transferred or allocated to an affiliate of the taxpayer. Taxpayers must notify the department if they wish to transfer or allocate a credit to an affiliate. The department will verify the transfer is to an affiliate and then issue an amended tax credit certificate to the taxpayer and a new tax credit certificate to the affiliate. The department must provide the department of revenue and the office of the insurance commissioner with a copy of the amended tax credit certificate of the transferor and the new tax credit certificate of the transferee.

(12) If the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund fails to fully comply with subsection (9) of this section, the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's approval lapses and the corresponding investment authority and credit-eligible capital contributions under this subsection do not count toward the limits on the program size prescribed by subsection (3) of this section. The department must first award lapsed investment authority pro rata to each rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund that was awarded less than the requested investment authority under subsection (3) of this section, which a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund may allocate to its investors in its discretion. Any remaining investment authority may be awarded by the department to new applicants.

(13)(a) A rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund shall, once it has received approval from the department under subsection (8) of this section, reimburse the department for the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's proportionate share of the costs that the department incurs to administer the rural development and distressed opportunity zone program, from the point in time that the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund receives approval from the department under subsection (8) of this section to the point in time that the department approves the exit of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund under section 8 of this act.

(b) The department shall quarterly calculate a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's proportionate share of the department's costs to administer the rural development and distressed opportunity zone program according to the following formula: One-half of the department's overall costs to administer the rural development and distressed opportunity zone program for the preceding quarter, multiplied by a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's investment authority as specified by the department pursuant to section 5(4) of this act, divided by the overall investment authority for rural development and distressed opportunity zone program as specified by the department pursuant to section 5(3) of this act.

(c) On a quarterly basis, the department shall submit an invoice to each rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund that describes the department's costs to administer the rural development and distressed opportunity zone program for the preceding quarter, as well as the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's proportionate share of the department's costs to administer the rural development and distressed opportunity zone program for the preceding quarter.

(d) Within thirty days of receipt of the invoice described in (c) of this subsection, a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund shall remit to the department full payment for the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's proportionate share of the department's costs to administer the rural development and distressed opportunity zone program.

(14) Application fees submitted to the department under subsection (1)(f) of this section and administrative cost reimbursements submitted to the department under subsection (13) of this section must be deposited in the rural development and distressed opportunity zone account created in section 6 of this act.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 6. RURAL DEVELOPMENT AND DISTRESSED OPPORTUNITY ZONE ACCOUNT. The rural development and distressed opportunity zone account is created in the state treasury. All receipts from application fees and administrative cost reimbursements submitted to the department under section 5 of this act must be deposited into the account. Moneys in the account may be spent only after appropriation. Expenditures from the account may be used by the department only for administering this chapter.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 7. A new section is added to chapter 48.14 RCW to read as follows:

INSURANCE PREMIUM TAX CREDIT ESTABLISHED.

(1) A tax credit is authorized against the tax, including the retaliatory provision, otherwise due under this chapter for persons that made a credit-eligible capital contribution to a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund and were issued a tax credit certificate under section 5 of this act.

(2) A taxpayer earns a credit on the closing date noted on the taxpayer's tax credit certificate issued under section 5 of this act. The credit is equal to the amount of the taxpayer's credit-eligible capital contribution to the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund as specified on the tax credit certificate.

(3) The taxpayer may claim up to one-third of the credit authorized under this section for each of the calendar years that includes the fourth through sixth anniversaries of the closing date noted on the tax credit certificate, exclusive of amounts carried forward from prior years.

(4) The amount claimed for a tax reporting period may not exceed the amount of tax otherwise due under this chapter for that reporting period. Unused credits may be carried forward until used, even if claimed after the expiration date of this section. No refunds may be granted for credits under this section.

(5) All persons claiming a credit under this section must file electronically with the office of the insurance commissioner all returns, other forms, or any other information as may be required by the office of the insurance commissioner.

(6) A taxpayer claiming a credit under this section must submit a copy of the tax credit certificate issued to the taxpayer under section 5 of this act to the office of the insurance commissioner when filing the first return in which the taxpayer will claim a credit against taxes due under this chapter.

(7) The credit may not be transferred or allocated to any other entity other than an affiliate subject to the insurance premium, including retaliatory provisions, imposed under this chapter. The department must provide the office of the insurance commissioner with a copy of the amended tax credit certificate of the transferor and the new tax credit certificate of the transferee. The office of the insurance commissioner must disallow tax credits claimed by any transferee other than an affiliate of the transferor.

(8) The department must notify the office of the insurance commissioner if a tax credit certificate was revoked as provided in section 8 of this act. Upon such notice, the office of the insurance commissioner must:

(a) Provide written notice to the taxpayer or any affiliate to which the credit was transferred that the credit was revoked by the department;

(b) Include in the notice the amount of all credits previously claimed and that such amount be paid in full within thirty days of the date of the notice. If the taxpayer or the affiliate fails to pay the amount in full by the due date in the notice or any extension granted by the office of the insurance commissioner, the office of the insurance commissioner must impose penalties and interest consistent with RCW 48.14.060; and

(c) Deny any further use of the tax credit certificate by the taxpayer or any affiliate to which the credit was transferred.

(9) The definitions in this subsection apply throughout this section unless the context clearly requires otherwise.

(a) "Affiliate" means an entity that directly or indirectly, through one or more intermediaries, controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with another entity. For the purposes of this section, "control" means the possession, directly or indirectly, of more than fifty percent of the power to direct or cause the direction of the management and policies of a person, whether through the ownership of voting shares, by contract, or otherwise.

(b) "Credit-eligible capital contribution" means an investment of cash by a person subject to (a) business and occupation taxes under chapter 82.04 RCW and/or (b) insurance premium taxes under chapter 48.14 RCW in a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund that equals the amount specified on a tax credit certificate issued by the department of commerce under section 5 of this act. The investment must purchase an equity interest in the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund or purchase, at par value or premium, a debt instrument that has a maturity date at least five years from the closing date and a repayment schedule that is no faster than level principal amortization over five years.

(c) "Rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund" means an entity certified by the department of commerce under section 5 of this act.

(10) This section expires July 1, 2025.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 8. REVOCATION OF TAX CREDIT CERTIFICATES AND EXIT. (1) The department must revoke a tax credit certificate issued under section 5 of this act if any of the following occur with respect to a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund before it exits the program in accordance with subsection (4) of this section:

(a) The rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund in which the credit-eligible capital contribution was made does not invest seventy-five percent of its investment authority in growth investments in this state within two years of the closing date and one hundred percent of its investment authority in growth investments in this state within three years of the closing date;

(b) The rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund, after satisfying (a) of this subsection, fails to maintain growth investments equal to one hundred percent of its investment authority until the sixth anniversary of the closing date. For the purposes of this subsection, an investment is "maintained" even if the investment is sold or repaid so long as the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund reinvests an amount equal to the capital returned or recovered by the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund from the original investment, exclusive of any profits realized, in other growth investments in this state within twelve months of the receipt of such capital. Amounts received periodically by a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund must be treated as continually invested in growth investments if the amounts are reinvested in one or more growth investments by the end of the following calendar year;

(c) The rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund, before exiting the program in accordance with subsection (4) of this section, makes a distribution or payment that results in the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund having less than one hundred percent of its investment authority invested in growth investments in this state or available for investment in growth investments and held in cash and other marketable securities;

(d) The rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund invests more than the greater of five million dollars or twenty percent of its investment authority in the same targeted small business, including amounts invested in affiliates of the targeted small business, exclusive of repaid or redeemed growth investments that are reinvested in the same small targeted small business; or

(e) The rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund makes a growth investment in a targeted small business that directly or indirectly through an affiliate owns, has the right to acquire an ownership interest, makes a loan to, or makes an investment in the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund, an affiliate of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund, or an investor in the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund. This subsection does not apply to investments in publicly traded securities by a targeted small business or an owner or affiliate of such business. For purposes of this subsection, a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund will not be considered an affiliate of a targeted small business solely as a result of its growth investment.

(2) Before revoking one or more tax credit certificates under this subsection, the department must notify the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund of the reasons for the pending revocation. The rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund has ninety days from the date the notice was dispatched to correct any violation outlined in the notice to the satisfaction of the department and avoid revocation of the tax credit certificate.

(3) If tax credit certificates are revoked under this section, the associated investment authority and credit-eligible capital contributions do not count toward the limit on total investment authority and credit-eligible capital contributions described by section 5(3) of this act. The department must first award reverted authority pro rata to each rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund that was awarded less than the requested investment authority under section 5(3) of this act. The department may award any remaining investment authority to new applicants.

(4) On or after the sixth anniversary of the closing date, a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund may apply to the department to exit the program and no longer be subject to regulation under this chapter. The department must respond to the application within thirty days of receipt. In evaluating the application, the fact that no tax credit certificates have been revoked and that the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund has not received a notice of revocation that has not been cured under subsection (2) of this section is sufficient evidence to prove that the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund is eligible for exit. The department may not unreasonably deny an application submitted under this subsection. If the application is denied, the notice must include the reasons for the determination. The department must notify the office of the insurance commissioner and the department of revenue when a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund exits the program.

(5) The department may not revoke a tax credit certificate after a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund exits the program.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 9. (1) Before approving the exit of a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund from the program, the department must evaluate the number of jobs created and jobs retained by the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund, and the aggregate state and local government revenues generated by growth investments made pursuant to, or related to, the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's participation in the program, and determine whether the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund must repay to the state any portion of the credit as described in subsections (2) and (3) of this section.

(2) For the number of jobs created and jobs retained by the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund:

(a) If the number of jobs created and jobs retained as a result of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's investments is less than sixty percent of the amount filed as part of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's application, the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund must repay to the state sixty percent of the amount of the tax credit certificates issued to investors in the fund;

(b) If the number of jobs created and jobs retained as a result of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's investments is less than eighty percent but more than sixty percent of the amount filed as part of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's application, the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund must repay to the state thirty percent of the amount of the tax credit certificates issued to investors in the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund; and

(c) In measuring jobs created and jobs retained as a result of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's growth investments, the department must prorate the number of jobs set forth in the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's business plan based upon the amount of investment authority requested in the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's application.

(3) For the aggregate state and local government revenues generated by growth investments made pursuant to, or related to, the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's participation in the program, if the amount of aggregate state and local government revenue generated by growth investments made pursuant to, or related to, the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's participation in the program over the course of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's participation in the program is less than the cumulative amount of tax credits that were issued to the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's investors under section 7 or 13 of this act, the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund must repay to the state one hundred percent of the difference between the cumulative amount of tax credits that were issued to the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's investors under section 7 or 13 of this act and the actual aggregate state and local government revenues generated by growth investments made pursuant to, or related to, the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's participation in the program. For purposes of this subsection, "growth investments made pursuant to, or related to, the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's participation in the program" means those investments made by the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund in targeted small businesses in qualified areas as part of the fund's investment authority under the program, as well as any additional investments the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund made in those targeted small businesses in qualified areas using sources of capital not included within the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's investment authority under the program.

(4) The department may contract with a firm with experience in providing economic analysis and revenue projection for government entities in order to evaluate the number of jobs created and jobs retained by the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund, and the aggregate state and local government revenues generated by growth investments made pursuant to, or related to, the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's participation in the program. The calculation of the aggregate state and local government revenues generated by growth investments made pursuant to, or related to, the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's participation in the program must be performed using a dynamic economic forecasting model.

(5) The department must provide written notice to the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund of any repayment due under this section. The rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund must submit payment to the department of revenue within thirty days of the date of that notice. If the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund fails to pay the full amount by the due date in the notice or any extension granted by the department of revenue, the department of revenue must impose penalties and interest as provided under chapter 82.32 RCW.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 10. REQUEST FOR DETERMINATION. A rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund, before making a growth investment, may request from the department a written opinion as to whether the business in which it proposed to invest is a targeted small business. The department, not later than the fifteenth business day after the date of receipt of the request, must notify the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund of its determination. If the department fails to notify the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund by the fifteenth business day of its determination, the business in which the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund proposes to invest must be considered a targeted small business.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 11. REPORTING OBLIGATIONS. (1) Each rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund must submit a report to the department on or before the fifth business day after each anniversary of the closing date until the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund has exited the program in accordance with section 8(4) of this act. The report must provide documentation as to the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's growth investments and include:

- (a) A bank statement evidencing each growth investment;
- (b) The name and location of principal operations;
- (c) Industry NAICS code of each business receiving a growth investment, including either the determination letter set forth in section 10 of this act or evidence that the business qualified as a targeted small business at the time the investment was made;
- (d) The number of jobs created or retained as a result of the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund's growth investments as of the last day of the preceding calendar year and the assumptions used to determine the number of employment positions;
- (e) The average annual salary of the positions described in (c) of this subsection; and
- (f) Any other information required by the department.

(2) The department must consult with staff of the joint legislative audit and review committee when developing the specific format and questions included in the accountability report to ensure it provides the information needed for performance evaluations under chapter 43.136 RCW.

(3) By January 1, 2020, and annually thereafter, the department must submit a report to the economic development committees of the legislature that includes the following:

- (a) The names of the applicants approved and the amount and type of credit allocated to investors in the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund;
- (b) The criteria used to select the applicants approved under section 5 of this act; and
- (c) A summary of the information reported by each rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund under subsection (1) of this section.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 12. The department must adopt rules necessary to implement this chapter.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 13. A new section is added to chapter 82.04 RCW to read as follows:

BUSINESS AND OCCUPATION TAX CREDIT ESTABLISHED.

(1) A tax credit is authorized against tax otherwise due under this chapter for persons that made a credit-eligible capital contribution to a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund and were issued a tax credit certificate under section 5 of this act.

(2) A taxpayer earns a credit on the closing date noted on the taxpayer's tax credit certificate issued under section 5 of this act. The credit is equal to the amount of the taxpayer's credit-eligible capital contribution to the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund as specified on the tax credit certificate.

(3) The taxpayer may claim up to one-third of the credit authorized under this section for each of the calendar years that includes the fourth through sixth anniversaries of the closing date noted on the tax credit certificate, exclusive of amounts carried forward from prior years.

(4) The amount claimed for a tax reporting period may not exceed the amount of tax otherwise due under this chapter for that reporting period. Unused credits may be carried forward until used, even if claimed after the expiration date of this section. No refunds may be granted for credits under this section.

(5) All persons claiming a credit under this section must file electronically with the department all returns, other forms, or any other information as may be required by the department.

(6) A taxpayer claiming a credit under this section must submit a copy of the tax credit certificate issued to the taxpayer under section 5 of this act to the department when filing the first return in which the taxpayer will claim a credit against taxes due under this chapter.

(7) The credit may not be transferred or allocated to any other entity other than an affiliate subject to the business and occupation taxes imposed under this chapter. The department of commerce must provide the department with a copy of the amended tax credit certificate of the transferor and the new tax credit certificate of the transferee. The department must disallow tax credits claimed by any transferee other than an affiliate of the transferor.

(8) The department of commerce must notify the department if a tax credit certificate was revoked as provided in section 8 of this act. Upon such notice, the department of commerce must:

(a) Provide written notice to the taxpayer or any affiliate to which the credit was transferred that the credit was revoked by the department;

(b) Include in the notice the amount of all credits previously claimed and that such amount be paid in full within thirty days of the date of the notice. If the taxpayer or the affiliate fails to pay the amount in full by the due date in the notice or any extension granted by the department, the department must impose penalties and interest as provided under chapter 82.32 RCW; and

(c) Deny any further use of the tax credit certificate by the taxpayer or any affiliate to which the credit was transferred.

(9) A taxpayer claiming the tax credit against taxes due under this chapter must file a complete annual report with the department under RCW 82.32.534.

(10) The definitions in this subsection apply throughout this section unless the context clearly requires otherwise.

(a) "Affiliate" means an entity that directly or indirectly, through one or more intermediaries, controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with another entity. For the purposes of this section, "control" means the possession, directly or indirectly, of more than fifty percent of the power to direct or cause the direction of the management and policies of a person, whether through the ownership of voting shares, by contract, or otherwise.

(b) "Credit-eligible capital contribution" means an investment of cash by a person subject to (a) business and occupation taxes under chapter 82.04 RCW and/or (b) insurance premium taxes under chapter 48.14 RCW in a rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund that equals the amount specified on a tax credit certificate issued by the department of commerce under section 5 of this act. The investment must purchase an equity interest in the rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund or purchase, at par value or premium, a debt instrument that has a maturity date at least five years from the closing date and a repayment schedule that is no faster than level principal amortization over five years.

(c) "Rural development and distressed opportunity zone fund" means an entity certified by the department of commerce under section 5 of this act.

(11) This section expires July 1, 2025.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 14. (1) The legislature finds that the Washington state forest practices habitat conservation plan was approved in 2006 by the United States fish and wildlife service and the national oceanic and atmospheric administration's marine fisheries service. The legislature further finds that the conservation plan protects habitat of aquatic species, supports economically viable and healthy forests, and creates regulatory stability for landowners. The legislature further finds that funding for the adaptive management program and participation grants are required to implement the forest and fish agreement and meet the goals of the conservation plan. The legislature further finds that the surcharge on the timber products business and occupation tax rate was agreed to by the forest products industry, tribal leaders, and stakeholders as a way to provide funding and safeguard the future of the conservation plan. The legislature further finds that the forestry industry assumed significant financial obligation with the enactment of this conservation plan, in exchange for operational certainty under the endangered species act. Therefore, the legislature concludes that the timber products business and occupation tax rate and the surcharge should continue until the expiration date of the forest and fish agreement, in 2056.

(2) The legislature finds that Washington has one of the strongest economies in the country. However, the local economies in some rural counties continue to struggle. The legislature further finds that the economic prosperity of our state must be shared by all of our communities. The legislature further finds that forest product sectors provide family-wage jobs in economically struggling areas of the state. The legislature further finds that in 2017 the Washington forest products industry, directly and indirectly, employed one hundred one thousand workers, earning 5.5 billion dollars in wages. Therefore, the legislature concludes that the forest products industries support our local rural economies and contribute towards the effort to lower unemployment rates across the state, especially in rural areas.

(b) A person reporting under the tax rate provided in this subsection (14) must file a complete annual tax performance report with the department under RCW 82.32.534.

Sec. 16. RCW 82.04.261 and 2017 c 323 s 501 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) In addition to the taxes imposed under RCW 82.04.260(12), a surcharge is imposed on those persons who are subject to any of the taxes imposed under RCW 82.04.260(12). Except as otherwise provided in this section, the surcharge is equal to 0.052 percent. The surcharge is added to the rates provided in RCW 82.04.260(12) (a), (b), (c), and (d). ~~((The surcharge and this section expire July 1, 2024.))~~

(2) All receipts from the surcharge imposed under this section must be deposited into the forest and fish support account created in RCW 76.09.405.

(3)(a) The surcharge imposed under this section is suspended if:

(i) Receipts from the surcharge total at least eight million dollars during any fiscal biennium; or

(ii) The office of financial management certifies to the department that the federal government has appropriated at least two million dollars for participation in forest and fish report-related activities by federally recognized Indian tribes located within the geographical boundaries of the state of Washington for any federal fiscal year.

(b)(i) The suspension of the surcharge under (a)(i) of this subsection (3) takes effect on the first day of the calendar month that is at least thirty days after the end of the month during which the department determines that receipts from the surcharge total at least eight million dollars during the fiscal biennium. The surcharge is imposed again at the beginning of the following fiscal biennium.

(ii) The suspension of the surcharge under (a)(ii) of this subsection (3) takes effect on the later of the first day of October of any federal fiscal year for which the federal government appropriates at least two million dollars for participation in forest and fish report-related activities by federally recognized Indian tribes located within the geographical boundaries of the state of Washington, or the first day of a calendar month that is at least thirty days following the date that the office of financial management makes a certification to the department under subsection (5) of this section. The surcharge is imposed again on the first day of the following July.

(4)(a) If, by October 1st of any federal fiscal year, the office of financial management certifies to the department that the federal government has appropriated funds for participation in forest and fish report-related activities by federally recognized Indian tribes located within the geographical boundaries of the state of Washington but the amount of the appropriation is less than two million dollars, the department must adjust the surcharge in accordance with this subsection.

(b) The department must adjust the surcharge by an amount that the department estimates will cause the amount of funds deposited into the forest and fish support account for the state fiscal year that begins July 1st and that includes the beginning of the federal fiscal year for which the federal appropriation is made, to be reduced by twice the amount of the federal appropriation for participation in forest and fish report-related activities by federally recognized Indian tribes located within the geographical boundaries of the state of Washington.

(c) Any adjustment in the surcharge takes effect at the beginning of a calendar month that is at least thirty days after the date that the office of financial management makes the certification under subsection (5) of this section.

(d) The surcharge is imposed again at the rate provided in subsection (1) of this section on the first day of the following state fiscal year unless the surcharge is suspended under subsection (3) of this section or adjusted for that fiscal year under this subsection.

(e) Adjustments of the amount of the surcharge by the department are final and may not be used to challenge the validity of the surcharge imposed under this section.

(f) The department must provide timely notice to affected taxpayers of the suspension of the surcharge or an adjustment of the surcharge.

(5) The office of financial management must make the certification to the department as to the status of federal appropriations for tribal participation in forest and fish report-related activities.

(6) This section expires July 1, 2036.

Strike everything after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. The legislature finds that state agency employees operate in unique work environments in which there is a higher level of transparency surrounding their daily work activities. The legislature finds that we must act to protect the health and safety of state employees, but even more so when employees become the victims of sexual harassment or stalking. The legislature finds that when a state agency employee is the target of sexual harassment or stalking, there is a significant risk to the employee's physical safety and well-being. The legislature finds that workplace safety is of paramount importance and that the state has an interest in protecting against the inappropriate use of public resources to carry out actions of sexual harassment or stalking.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 2. A new section is added to chapter 42.56 RCW to read as follows:

(1) Except by court order issued pursuant to subsection (3) of this section, an agency may not disclose as a response to a public records request made pursuant to this chapter records concerning an agency employee if:

(a) The requestor is a person alleged in the claim to have harassed or stalked the agency employee who is named as the victim in the claim; and

(b) After conducting an investigation, the agency issued discipline resulting from the claim of workplace sexual harassment or stalking to the requestor described under (a) of this subsection.

(2)(a) The agency must immediately notify an agency employee upon any public records request for records concerning that agency employee if the agency conducted an investigation of the claim of workplace sexual harassment or stalking involving the agency employee and the agency issued discipline resulting from the claim.

(b) Upon notice provided in accordance with (a) of this subsection, the agency employee may bring an action in a court of competent jurisdiction to enjoin the agency from disclosing the records. The agency employee shall immediately notify the agency upon filing an action under

Upon notice of an action filed under this subsection, the agency may not disclose such records unless by an order issued in accordance with subsection (3) of this section.

(3)(a) A court of competent jurisdiction, following sufficient notice to the employing agency, may order the release of some or all of the records described in subsections (1) and (2) of this section after finding that, in consideration of the totality of the circumstances, disclosure would not violate the right to privacy under RCW 42.56.050 for the agency employee. An agency that is ordered in accordance with this subsection to disclose records is not liable for penalties, attorneys' fees, or costs under RCW 42.56.550 if the agency has complied with this section.

(b) For the purposes of this section, it is presumed to be highly offensive to a reasonable person under RCW 42.56.050 to disclose, directly or indirectly, records concerning an agency employee who has made a claim of workplace sexual harassment or stalking with the agency, or is named as a victim in the claim, to persons alleged in the claim to have sexually harassed or stalked the agency employee named as the victim and where the agency issued discipline resulting from the claim after conducting an investigation.

(4) Nothing in this section restricts access to records described under subsections (1) and (2) of this section where the agency employee consents in writing to disclosure.

(5) For the purposes of this section:

(a) "Agency" means a state agency, including every state office, department, division, bureau, board, commission, or other state agency.

(b) "Agency employee" means a state agency employee who has made a claim of workplace sexual harassment or stalking with the employing agency, or is named as the victim in the claim.

(c) "Records concerning an agency employee" do not include work product created by the agency employee as part of his or her official duties.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 3. A new section is added to chapter 42.56 RCW to read as follows:

(1) Any person who requests and obtains a record concerning an agency employee, as described in section 2 of this act, is subject to civil liability if he or she uses the record or information in the record to harass, stalk, threaten, or intimidate that agency employee, or provides the record or information in the record to a person who uses it to harass, stalk, threaten, or intimidate that agency employee.

(2) Any person liable under subsection (1) of this section may be sued in superior court by any aggrieved party, or in the name of the state by the attorney general or the prosecuting authority of any political subdivision. The court may order an appropriate civil remedy. The plaintiff may recover up to one thousand dollars for each record used in violation of this section, as well as costs and reasonable attorneys' fees.

(3) For the purposes of this section:

(a) "Agency" means a state agency, including every state office, department, division, bureau, board, commission, or other state agency.

SECOND READING

HOUSE BILL NO. 1578, by Representatives Lekanoff, Peterson, Doglio, Fitzgibbon, Shewmake, Robinson, Slatter, Valdez, Bergquist, Morris, Stanford, Tharinger, Cody, Jinkins, Kloba, Pollet, Frame, Davis and Macri

Reducing threats to southern resident killer whales by improving the safety of oil transportation.

The bill was read the second time.

There being no objection, Substitute House Bill No. 1578 was substituted for House Bill No. 1578 and the substitute bill was placed on the second reading calendar.

SUBSTITUTE HOUSE BILL NO. 1578 was read the second time.

Representative Lekanoff moved the adoption of the striking amendment (243):

Strike everything after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. The legislature finds that a variety of existing policies designed to reduce the risk of oil spills have helped contribute to a relatively strong safety record for oil moved by water, pipeline, and train in recent years in Washington state. Nevertheless, gaps exist in our safety regimen, especially deriving from shifts in the modes of overwater transportation of oil and the increased transport of oils that may submerge or sink, contributing to an unacceptable threat to Washington waters, where a catastrophic spill would inflict potentially irreversible damage on the endangered southern resident killer whales. In addition to the unique marine and cultural resources in Puget Sound that would be damaged by an oil spill, the geographic, bathometric, and other environmental peculiarities of Puget Sound present navigational challenges that heighten the risk of an oil spill incident occurring. Therefore, it is the intent of the legislature to enact certain new safety requirements designed to reduce the current, acute risk from existing infrastructure and activities of an oil spill that could eradicate our whales, violate the treaty interests and fishing rights of potentially affected federally recognized Indian tribes, damage commercial fishing prospects, undercut many aspects of the economy that depend on the Salish Sea, and otherwise harm the health and well-being of Washington residents. In enacting such measures, however, it is not the intent of the legislature to mitigate, offset, or otherwise encourage additional projects or activities that would increase the frequency or severity of oil spills in the Salish Sea. Furthermore, it is the intent of the legislature for this act to assist in coordinating enhanced international discussions among federal, state, provincial, first nation, federally recognized Indian tribe, and industry leaders in the United States and Canada to develop an agreement for an additional emergency rescue tug available to vessels in distress in the narrow Straits of the San Juan Islands and other boundary waters, which would lessen oil spill risks to the marine environment in both the United States and Canada.

Sec. 2. RCW 88.16.190 and 1994 c 52 s 1 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) Any oil tanker, whether enrolled or registered, of greater than one hundred (~~and~~) twenty-five thousand deadweight tons shall be prohibited from proceeding beyond a point east of a line extending from Discovery Island light south to New Dungeness light, unless authorized by the United States coast guard, pursuant to 33 C.F.R. Sec. 165.1303.

(2) (~~An oil tanker, whether enrolled or registered, of forty to one hundred and twenty five thousand deadweight tons may proceed beyond the points enumerated in subsection (1) if such tanker possesses all of the following standard safety features:~~

(a) ~~Shaft horsepower in the ratio of one horsepower to each two and one half deadweight tons; and~~

(b) ~~Twin screws; and~~

(c) ~~Double bottoms, underneath all oil and liquid cargo compartments; and~~

(d) ~~Two radars in working order and operating, one of which must be collision avoidance radar; and~~

(e) ~~Such other navigational position location systems as may be prescribed from time to time by the board of pilotage commissioners;~~

PROVIDED, That, if such forty to one hundred and twenty five thousand deadweight ton tanker is in ballast or is under escort of a tug or tugs with an aggregate shaft horsepower equivalent to five percent of the deadweight tons of that tanker, subsection (2) of this section shall not apply; PROVIDED FURTHER, That additional tug shaft horsepower equivalencies may be required under certain ~~conditions as established by rule and regulation of the Washington utilities and transportation commission pursuant to chapter 34.05 RCW: PROVIDED FURTHER, That)) (a)(i) An oil tanker of forty to one hundred twenty-five thousand deadweight tons may operate in the waters east of a line extending from Discovery Island light south to New Dungeness light and all points in the Puget Sound area, including but not limited to the San Juan Islands and connected waterways and the waters south of Admiralty Inlet, to the extent that these waters are within the territorial boundaries of Washington, only if the oil tanker is under the escort of a tug or tugs that have an aggregate shaft horsepower equivalent to at least five percent of the deadweight tons of the escorted oil tanker.~~

(ii) Effective September 1, 2020, the following may operate in Rosario Strait and connected waterways to the east only if under the escort of a tug or tugs that have an aggregate shaft horsepower equivalent to at least five percent of the deadweight tons of a forty thousand deadweight ton oil tanker: (A) Oil tankers of between five thousand and forty thousand deadweight tons; and (B) articulated tug barges and towed waterborne vessels or barges designed to transport oil in bulk of greater than five thousand deadweight tons.

(iii) The requirements of (a)(ii) of this subsection: (A) Do not apply to vessels providing bunkering or refueling services; and (B) may be adjusted by rule by the board of pilotage commissioners, consistent with section 3(1)(b) of this act.

(b) An oil tanker, articulated tug barge, or towed waterborne vessel or barge in ballast or when unladen is not required to be under the escort of a tug.

(c) A tanker assigned a deadweight of less than forty thousand deadweight tons at the time of construction or reconstruction as reported in Lloyd's Register of Ships is not subject to the provisions of RCW 88.16.170 (~~through 88.16.190~~) and 88.16.180.

(3) The definitions in this subsection apply throughout this section unless the context clearly requires otherwise.

(a) "Articulated tug barge" means a tank barge and a towing vessel joined by hinged or articulated fixed mechanical equipment affixed or connecting to the stern of the tank barge.

(b) "Oil tanker" means a self-propelled deep draft tank vessel designed to transport oil in bulk. "Oil tanker" does not include an articulated tug barge tank vessel.

(c) "Waterborne vessel or barge" means any ship, barge, or other watercraft capable of traveling on the navigable waters of this state and capable of transporting any crude oil or petroleum product in quantities of ten thousand gallons or more for purposes other than providing fuel for its motor or engine.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 3. A new section is added to chapter 88.16 RCW to read as follows:

(1)(a) By December 31, 2025, the board of pilotage commissioners, in consultation with the department of ecology, must adopt rules regarding tug escorts to address the peculiarities of Puget Sound, with the exception of vessels providing bunkering or refueling services, for the following:

(i) Oil tankers of between five thousand and forty thousand deadweight tons; and

(ii) Articulated tug barges and towed waterborne vessels or barges designed to transport oil in bulk of greater than five thousand deadweight tons.

(b) The rule making pursuant to (a) of this subsection must be for operating in the waters east of the line extending from Discovery Island light south to New Dungeness light and all points in the Puget Sound area. This rule making must address the tug escort requirements applicable to Rosario Strait and connected waterways to the east established in RCW 88.16.190(2)(a)(ii), and may adjust those requirements.

(c) To achieve the rule adoption deadline in (a) of this subsection, the board of pilotage commissioners must adhere to the following interim milestones:

(i) By September 1, 2020:

(A) Identify and define the zones, specified in subsection (3)(a) of this section, to inform the analysis required under subsection (5) of this section; and

(B) Complete a synopsis of changing vessel traffic trends; and

(ii) By September 1, 2023, consult with potentially affected federally recognized Indian tribes and stakeholders as required under subsection (6) of this section and complete the analysis required under subsection (5) of this section. By September 1, 2023, the department of ecology must submit a summary of the results of the analysis required under subsection (5) of this section to the legislature consistent with RCW 43.01.036.

(2) When developing rules, the board of pilotage commissioners must consider recommendations of potentially affected federally recognized Indian tribes, and:

(a) The results of the most recently completed vessel traffic risk assessments;

(b) The report developed by the department of ecology as required under section 206, chapter 262, Laws of 2018;

(c) The recommendations included in the southern resident orca task force report, November 2018, and any subsequent research or reports on related topics; and

(d) Changing vessel traffic trends, including the synopsis required under subsection (1)(c)(i)(B) of this section.

(3) In the rules adopted under this section, the board of pilotage commissioners must:

(a) Make decisions about risk protection on the basis of geographic zones in the waters specified in subsection (1)(b) of this section. As the initial foci of the rules, the board of pilotage commissioners must equally prioritize geographic zones encompassing (i) Rosario Strait and connected waterways to the east; and (ii) Haro Strait and Boundary Pass;

(b) Specify operational requirements, such as tethering, for tug escorts;

(c) Include functionality requirements for tug escorts, such as aggregate shaft horsepower for tethered tug escorts;

(d) Be designed to achieve best achievable protection, as defined under RCW 88.46.010, as informed by consideration of:

(i) Accident records in British Columbia and Washington waters;

(ii) Existing propulsion and design standards for covered tank vessels; and

(iii) The characteristics of the waterways; and

(e) Publish a document that identifies the sources of information that it relied upon in developing the rules, including any sources of peer-reviewed science.

(4) The rules adopted under this section may not require oil tankers, articulated tug barges, or towed waterborne vessels or barges to be under the escort of a tug when these vessels are in ballast or are unladen.

(5) To inform rule making, the board of pilotage commissioners must conduct an analysis of tug escorts using the model developed by the department of ecology under section 4 of this act. The board of pilotage commissioners may:

(a) Develop subsets of oil tankers, articulated tug barges, and towed waterborne vessels or barges, and situations that could preclude requirements from being imposed under the rule making for a given zone or vessel;

(b) Consider the benefits of vessel safety measures that are newly in effect on or after July 1, 2019, and prior to the adoption of rules under this section; and

(c) Enter into an interagency agreement with the department of ecology to assist with conducting the analysis and developing the rules.

(6) The board of pilotage commissioners must consult with the United States coast guard, the Puget Sound harbor safety committee, potentially affected federally recognized Indian tribes, ports, local governments, state agencies, and other appropriate entities before adopting tug escort rules applicable to any portion of Puget Sound. Considering relevant information elicited during the consultations required under this subsection, the board of pilotage commissioners must also design the rules with a goal of avoiding or minimizing additional underwater noise from vessels in the Salish Sea, focusing vessel traffic into established shipping lanes, protecting and minimizing vessel traffic impacts to established treaty fishing areas, and respecting and preserving the treaty-protected interests and fishing rights of potentially affected federally recognized Indian tribes.

(7) Rules adopted under this section must be periodically updated consistent with section 5 of this act.

(8) The definitions in this subsection apply throughout this section unless the context clearly requires otherwise.

(a) "Articulated tug barge" means a tank barge and a towing vessel joined by hinged or articulated fixed mechanical equipment affixed or connecting to the stern of the tank barge.

(b) "Oil tanker" means a self-propelled deep draft tank vessel designed to transport oil in bulk. "Oil tanker" does not include an articulated tug barge tank vessel.

(c) "Waterborne vessels or barges" means any ship, barge, or other watercraft capable of traveling on the navigable waters of this state and capable of transporting any crude oil or petroleum product in quantities of ten thousand gallons or more for purposes other than providing fuel for its motor or engine.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 4. A new section is added to chapter 88.46 RCW to read as follows:

(1) The department must develop and maintain a model to quantitatively assess current and potential future risks of oil spills from covered vessels in Washington waters, as it conducts ongoing oil spill risk assessments. The department must consult with the United States coast guard, potentially affected federally recognized Indian tribes, and stakeholders to: Determine model assumptions; develop scenarios to show the likely impacts of changes to model assumptions, including potential changes in vessel traffic, commodities transported, and vessel safety and risk reduction measures; and update the model periodically.

(2) Utilizing the model pursuant to subsection (1) of this section, the department must quantitatively assess whether an emergency response towing vessel serving Haro Strait, Boundary Pass, Rosario Strait, and connected navigable waterways will reduce oil spill risk. The department must report its findings to the legislature by September 1, 2023.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 5. A new section is added to chapter 88.46 RCW to read as follows:

(1) By October 1, 2028, and no less often than every ten years thereafter, the board of pilotage commissioners and the department must together consider:

(a) The effects of rules established under RCW 88.16.190 and section 3 of this act on vessel traffic patterns and oil spill risks in the Salish Sea. Factors considered must include modeling developed by the department under section 4 of this act and may include: (i) Vessel traffic data; (ii) vessel accident and incident data, such as incidents where tug escorts or an emergency response towing vessel acted to reduce spill risks; and (iii) consultation with the United States coast guard, potentially affected federally recognized Indian tribes, and stakeholders; and

(b) Whether experienced or forecasted changes to vessel traffic patterns or oil spill risk in the Salish Sea necessitate an update to the tug escort rules adopted under section 3 of this act.

(2) In the event that the department or board of pilotage commissioners determines that updates are merited to the rules, the department or board, as appropriate, must notify the appropriate standing committees of the house of representatives and the senate, and must thereafter adopt rules consistent with the requirements of section 3 of this act, including the consultation process outlined in section 3(6) of this act.

Sec. 6. RCW 88.46.240 and 2018 c 262 s 204 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) The department must establish the Salish Sea shared waters forum to address common issues in the cross-boundary waterways between Washington state and British Columbia such as: Enhancing efforts to reduce oil spill risk; addressing navigational safety; and promoting data sharing.

(2) The department must:

(a) Coordinate with provincial and federal Canadian agencies when establishing the Salish Sea shared waters forum; and

(b) Seek participation from potentially affected federally recognized Indian tribes, first nations, and stakeholders that, at minimum, includes representatives of the following: State, provincial, and federal governmental entities, regulated entities, and environmental organizations(~~(tribes, and first nations)~~).

(3) The Salish Sea shared waters forum must meet at least once per year to consider the following:

(a) Gaps and conflicts in oil spill policies, regulations, and laws;

(b) Opportunities to reduce oil spill risk, including requiring tug escorts for oil tankers, articulated tug barges, and ~~((other))~~ towed waterborne vessels or barges;

(c) Enhancing oil spill prevention, preparedness, and response capacity; ~~((and))~~

(d) Beginning in 2019, whether an emergency response system in Haro Strait, Boundary Pass, and Rosario Strait~~((similar to the system implemented by the maritime industry pursuant to RCW 88.46.130,))~~ will decrease oil spill risk ~~((and how to fund such a shared system))~~. In advance of the 2019 meeting, the department must discuss the options of an emergency response system with organizations such as, but not limited to, the coast Salish gathering, which provides a transboundary natural resource policy dialogue of elected officials representing federal, state, provincial, first nations, and tribal governments within the Salish Sea; and

(e) The impacts of vessel traffic on treaty-protected fishing.

(4) The definitions in this subsection apply throughout this section unless the context clearly requires otherwise.

(a) "Articulated tug barge" means a tank barge and a towing vessel joined by hinged or articulated fixed mechanical equipment affixed or connecting to the stern of the tank barge.

(b) "Waterborne vessel or barge" means any ship, barge, or other watercraft capable of traveling on the navigable waters of this state and capable of transporting any crude oil or petroleum product in quantities of ten thousand gallons or more for purposes other than providing fuel for its motor or engine.

(5) This section expires July 1, 2021.

Sec. 7. RCW 90.56.565 and 2015 c 274 s 8 are each amended to read as follows:

(1)(a) A facility that receives crude oil from a railroad car must provide advance notice to the department that the facility will receive crude oil from a railroad car, as provided in this section. The advance notice must include the route taken to the facility within the state, if known, and the scheduled time, location, volume, region per bill of lading, type, and gravity as measured by standards developed by the American petroleum institute, of crude oil received. Each week, a facility that provides advance notice under this section must provide the required information regarding the scheduled arrival of railroad cars carrying crude oil to be received by the facility in the succeeding seven-day period. A facility is not required to provide advance notice when there is no receipt of crude oil from a railroad car scheduled for a seven-day period.

(b) Twice per year, pipelines that transport crude oil must report to the department the following information about the crude oil transported by the pipeline through the state: The volume of crude oil, gravity of the crude oil as measured by standards developed by the American petroleum institute, type of crude oil, and the state or province of origin of the crude oil. This report must be submitted each year by July 31st for the period January 1st through June 30th and by January 31st for the period July 1st through December 31st.

(2) The department may share information provided by a facility through the advance notice system established in this section with the state emergency management division and any county, city, tribal, port, or local government emergency response agency upon request.

(3) The department must publish information collected under this section on a quarterly basis on the department's internet web site. With respect to the information reported under subsection (1)(a) of this section, the information published by the department must be aggregated on a statewide basis by route through the state, by week, and by type of crude oil. The report may also include other information available to the department including, but not limited to, place of origin, modes of transport, number of railroad cars delivering crude oil, and number and volume of spills during transport and delivery.

(4) A facility providing advance notice under this section is not responsible for meeting advance notice time frame requirements under subsection (1) of this section in the event that the schedule of arrivals of railroad cars carrying crude oil changes during a seven-day period.

(5) Consistent with the requirements of chapter 42.56 RCW, the department and any state, local, tribal, or public agency that receives information provided under this section may not disclose any such information to the public or to nongovernmental entities that contains proprietary, commercial, or financial information unless that information is aggregated. The requirement for aggregating information does not apply when information is shared by the department with emergency response agencies as provided in subsection (2) of this section.

(6) The department shall adopt rules to implement this section. The advance notice system required in this section must be consistent with the oil transfer reporting system adopted by the department pursuant to RCW 88.46.165.

Sec. 8. RCW 88.46.165 and 2006 c 316 s 1 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) The department's rules authorized under RCW 88.46.160 and this section shall be scaled to the risk posed to people and to the environment, and be categorized by type of transfer, volume of oil, frequency of transfers, and such other risk factors as identified by the department.

(2) The rules may require prior notice be provided before an oil transfer, regulated under this chapter, occurs in situations defined by the department as posing a higher risk. The notice may include the time, location, and volume of the oil transfer, as well as the region per bill of lading, gravity as measured by standards developed by the American petroleum institute, and type of crude oil. The rules may not require prior notice when marine fuel outlets are transferring less than three thousand gallons of oil in a single transaction to a ship that is not a covered vessel and the transfers are scheduled less than four hours in advance.

(3) The department may require semiannual reporting of volumes of oil transferred to ships by a marine fuel outlet.

(4) The rules may require additional measures to be taken in conjunction with the deployment of containment equipment or with the alternatives to deploying containment equipment. However, these measures must be scaled appropriately to the risks posed by the oil transfer.

(5) The rules shall include regulations to enhance the safety of oil transfers over water originating from vehicles transporting oil over private roads or highways of the state.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 9. Sections 7 and 8 of this act take effect July 1, 2021.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 10. If any provision of this act or its application to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the remainder of the act or the application of the provision to other persons or circumstances is not affected."
