Persons holding elective office

35(16)

The Code of Ethics for Public Officials is a legal document that outlines the ethical standards and responsibilities for public officials. It includes provisions on conflict of interest, disclosure of financial interests, and limitations on gifts and hospitality. The Code aims to ensure that public officials act in the best interest of the public and maintain public trust.

The Code is enforced by various state agencies and boards, which are responsible for investigating and enforcing violations of the Code. Violations can result in penalties such as fines, removal from office, or imprisonment. The Code is a critical component of maintaining the integrity of public office and ensuring that public officials act with integrity and transparency.

However, the Code also has limitations and exceptions. For example, the Code does not apply to certain positions, such as those in the armed forces or those who serve in certain capacities as a result of their election or appointment. Additionally, the Code may not apply to certain types of transactions or activities, such as those that are clearly exempt under federal law.

Despite these limitations, the Code serves as a crucial framework for guiding the ethical conduct of public officials and fostering public confidence in government.
