The current legal regulations regarding taxation, specifically relating to the valuation of taxable property, define the process in detail. For instance, the true and fair value of property is determined through a process that includes assessments, verification of personal property lists, and the valuation of taxable property. The personal property list is verified by public officials and includes personal property such as vehicles, vessels, and personal items, which are classified as personal property. The valuation of this property is crucial for determining the taxable value, which is the basis for property tax assessments. The rules for the assessment of property taxes are outlined in subsections of the taxation code, providing a comprehensive framework for the valuation and taxation of personal property.
