January 14, 2013

MR. SPEAKER:

The Senate has adopted SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 8400 and the same is herewith transmitted.

Hunter Goodman, Secretary

The Sergeant at Arms of the House announced the arrival of the Senate at the Chamber doors. The Sergeant at Arms of the House and the Sergeant at Arms of the Senate escorted President of the Senate Brad Owen, President Pro Tempore Tim Sheldon, Senator Ed Murray and Senator Mark Schoesler to the rostrum. The Senators were invited to seats within the Chamber.

JOINT SESSION

Pursuant to House Concurrent Resolution 4402, the Speaker (Representative Moeller presiding) called the Joint Session to order. The Clerk called the roll of the House members. The Clerk called the roll of the Senate members. The Speaker (Representative Moeller presiding) declared a quorum of the Legislature was present.

The Speaker (Representative Moeller presiding) "The first purpose of this Joint Session is to comply with the constitutional requirement of canvassing the vote for and against referenda and initiatives and for the constitutional elective officers."

The Speaker (Representative Moeller presiding) called on the Clerk to read the message from the Secretary of State.

MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY OF STATECANVASS OF THE RETURNS OF THE GENERAL ELECTION
HELD ON NOVEMBER 6, 2012

I, Sam Reed, Secretary of State of the State of Washington, do hereby certify that according to the provisions of RCW 29A.60.260, I have canvassed the returns of the 3,172,939 ballots cast by the 3,904,959 registered voters of the state for and against the initiatives, referenda, constitutional amendments, and advisory measures which were submitted to the vote of the people at the state general election held on the 6th day of November, 2012, as received from the County Auditors.

Initiative Measure No. 1185

Initiative Measure No. 1185 concerns tax and fee increases imposed by state government. This measure would restate existing statutory requirements that legislative actions raising taxes must be approved by two-thirds legislative majorities or receive voter approval, and that new or increased fees require majority legislative approval.

Yes	1,892,969
No	1,069,083

Initiative Measure No. 1240

Initiative Measure No. 1240 concerns creation of a public charter school system. This measure would authorize up to forty publicly-funded charter schools open to all students, operated through approved, nonreligious, nonprofit organizations, with government oversight; and modify certain laws applicable to them as public schools.

Yes	1,525,807
No	1,484,125

Referendum Measure No. 74

The legislature passed Engrossed Substitute Senate Bill 6239 concerning marriage for same-sex couples, modified domestic-partnership law, and religious freedom, and voters have filed a sufficient referendum petition on this bill.

This bill would allow same-sex couples to marry, preserve domestic partnerships only for seniors, and preserve the right of clergy or religious organizations to refuse to perform, recognize, or accommodate any marriage ceremony.

Approved	1,659,915
Rejected	1,431,285

Initiative Measure No. 502

Initiative Measure No. 502 concerns marijuana. This measure would license and regulate marijuana production, distribution, and possession for persons over twenty-one; remove state-law criminal and civil penalties for activities that it authorizes; tax marijuana sales; and earmark marijuana-related revenues.

Yes	1,724,209
No	1,371,235

Engrossed Senate Joint Resolution No. 8221

The Legislature has proposed a constitutional amendment on implementing the Commission on State Debt recommendations regarding Washington's debt limit.

This amendment would, starting July 1, 2014, phase-down the debt limit percentage in three steps from nine to eight percent and modify the calculation date, calculation period, and the term general state revenues.

Approved	1,748,436
Rejected	1,031,039

Senate Joint Resolution No. 8223

The Legislature has proposed a constitutional amendment on investments by the University of Washington and Washington State University.

This amendment would create an exception to constitutional restrictions on investing public funds by allowing these universities to invest specified public funds as authorized by the legislature, including in private companies or stock.

Approved	1,258,969
Rejected	1,602,785

Advisory Vote No. 1, Engrossed Senate Bill 6635

The legislature eliminated, without a vote of the people, a business and occupation tax deduction for certain financial institutions' interest on residential loans, costing $170,000,000 in its first ten years, for government spending.

Repealed	1,552,134
Maintained	1,175,863

Advisory Vote No. 2, Substitute House Bill 2590

The legislature extended, without a vote of the people, expiration of a tax on possession of petroleum products and reduced the tax rate, costing $24,000,000 in its first ten years, for government spending.

Repealed	1,476,491
Maintained	1,207,812

I further certify that according to the provisions of RCW 29A.60.250, I have canvassed the returns of the ballots cast for all federal and statewide offices, and those legislative and judicial offices whose jurisdiction encompasses more than one county in the General Election held on the 6th day of November, 2012, as received from the County Auditors, and that the votes cast for candidates for these offices are as follows:

The total number of votes cast for the office of Governor in the November 6, 2012, General Election equals 3,079,639. In accordance with Article II, Section 1 of the Washington State Constitution and RCW 29A.72.150, the number of signatures of legal voters on a petition measure is determined by the total votes cast for the office of Governor at the preceding election. Signature petitions for initiatives must be equal to or exceed eight percent of and four percent of the votes cast for a referendum. To meet the eight percent requirement during the next four years, sponsors of initiative measures must submit a minimum of 246,372 valid signatures and to meet the four percent requirement, sponsors of referendum measures must submit a minimum of 123,186 valid signatures.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of the State of Washington on this 8th day of January, 2013, at Olympia, the State Capital.

SAM REED

Secretary of State

The Speaker (Representative Moeller presiding): "In view of the election results previously read, certified to by the Secretary of State, the Joint Session now declares the following qualified citizens to be duly elected constitutional officers of the State of Washington:

 Peter Goldmark, Commissioner of Public Lands."

The Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate signed the Certificates of Election for the duly elected constitutional officers.

The Speaker (Representative Moeller presiding), having discharged the constitutional requirement imposed upon the Speaker of the House, called upon President Owen to preside over the Joint Session.

President Owen: "This joint session has been convened to receive the State of the State message from Her Excellency, Governor Christine Gregoire."

The President appointed a committee of honor to escort the Chief Justice and the Justices of the State Supreme Court to the House Chamber: Representatives Hawkins and Roberts; and Senators Billig and Pearson.

The President appointed a committee of honor to escort the statewide elected officials to the House Chamber: Representatives Hope and Takko; and Senators Dammeier and Hasegawa.

The President appointed a committee of honor to advise Her Excellency, Governor Christine Gregoire, that the joint session had assembled and to escort her to the House Chamber: Representatives Morrell and Kochmar; and Senators Tom and Darneille.

The Sergeant at Arms of the House announced the arrival of the Chief Justice and the Justices of the Supreme Court at the Chamber doors. The committee of honor escorted the Chief Justice and the Justices of the Supreme Court to seats on the floor of the House Chamber and they were introduced: Chief Justice Barbara Madsen, Justice Charles Johnson, Justice Susan Owens, Justice Mary Fairhurst, Justice James Johnson, Justice Debra Stephens, Justice Charlie Wiggins, Justice Steven Gonzalez and Justice Sheryl Gordon-McCloud.

The Sergeant at Arms of the House announced the arrival of the statewide elected officials at the Chamber doors. The committee of honor escorted the statewide elected officials to the floor of the House Chamber and they were introduced: Secretary of State Sam Reed, State Treasurer Jim McIntire, State Auditor Brian Sonntag, State Attorney General Rob McKenna, Insurance Commissioner Mike Kreidler and Commissioner of Public Lands Peter Goldmark.

The President introduced the special guests present in the House gallery: former Governor Mike Lowry, former Secretary of State Ralph Munro and King County Executive Dow Constantine.

The President welcomed and introduced Ms. Gina Miller who was present in the gallery and is the surviving fiancée of Washington State Trooper Tony Radulescu who was killed in the line of duty on February 23, 2012.

The President introduced the members of the State of Washington Consular Association who were present in the rear of the Chamber. The members of the Consular Association were joined by Consul General Gao Zhansheng of the Consulate General of the People's Republic of China in San Francisco and Consul General Priya Guha of the British Consulate General of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland in San Francisco. The President introduced: Career Consul General Kiyokazu Ota of Japan; Consul General Denis Stevens of Canada; Consul General Young Wan Song of the Republic of Korea; Consul General Andrey Yushmanov of the Russian Federation; Career Consul-Head of Mission Alejandro Garcia Moreno of the United States of Mexico; Consul Jessica Maria Reyes of the Republic of El Salvador; Honorary Consul General John Gokcen of the Republic of Turkey; Honorary Consul General Gary Furlong of the Republic of Uzbekistan; Honorary Consul General Helen Szablya of the Republic of Hungary; Honorary Consul General Miguel Angel Velasquez of the Republic of Peru; Honorary Consul H. Ronald Masnik of the Kingdom of Belgium; Honorary Consul Enid Dwyer of Jamaica; Honorary Consul Vytautas V. The Sergeant at Arms of the House announced the arrival of Her Excellency Governor Christine Gregoire and her family at the Chamber doors. The committee of honor escorted Governor Gregoire and family to the rostrum and the family was introduced: First Gentleman Mike Gregoire, Michelle and Courtney Gregoire, Scott Lindsay and Audrey Christine Lindsay.

The President welcomed state officials and representatives from the State of Nevada, as well as, representatives from the Republic of Uzbekistan who were also present in the House gallery.

The flags were escorted to the rostrum by the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Post 318 Honor Guard, commanded by Ken Wojczynski. The President led the Chamber in the Pledge of Allegiance. The National Anthem was performed by the Auburn High School Choir Chamber Quartet, comprised of Linda Karout, Morgan Warren, Marcos Antonio Garcia and Ethan Hinze, Directed by Kandy Gilbert. The prayer was offered by Father Michael J. Ryan, formerly of St. Michaels Parish, Olympia, Washington.

Father Michael J. Ryan: "My friends, we read in the Hebrews Scriptures from the Prophet Micah, "This is all that I ask of you, to do justice, to love tenderly and to walk humbly with your God." My sisters and brothers, let us pray. Good and gracious God, we gather this day to ask your continual blessings on Governor Christine Gregoire as she passes the baton on to Governor Elect Jay Inslee. As she leaves after eight years of service, may she know our gratitude for the selfless ways in which she has led amidst great and unforeseen obstacles in our economy. She stood tall and continued to work tirelessly for the entire human family of the State of Washington. In her quiet wisdom, gentle care and compassion for the vulnerable, and those who were made to feel they are on the fringe of society, she gave them a sense of inclusion in the one human family. Her concern was for all the precious people of God that she was elected to serve. Bless her for the ways she insisted, from the young to the elders among us, would have opportunities to grow through education and public service. As a tribute to Christine Gregoire may all of us here strive to protect the beautiful creation that surrounds us and it is another sign that you, our God, is generous and gracious. Thanks too, today, to Secretary of State Sam Reed, State Auditor Brian Sonntag and Attorney General Rob McKenna and we conclude now with a blessing for Chris and for First Mike and for their daughters and for their son in law Scott and this beautiful granddaughter, and for those that would like, I invite you extend an arm of blessing as we pray. May the Lord bless you and keep you, may the Lord let Gods' face shine upon you and be gracious to you and the Lord look upon you kindly and give you peace, Amen."

Reading of the Journal of the previous day was dispensed with and it was ordered to stand approved.

HONORING STATE ELECTED OFFICIALS LEAVING OFFICE

The President: "As Washington's 17th Attorney General, Rob McKenna served as the state's chief legal officer, directing more than 500 attorneys and 700 professional staff providing legal services to state agencies, the Governor and Legislature. He served two terms, with clear priorities: making communities safer by leading the state in fighting meth and prescription drug abuse, gang violence, human trafficking, sexual predators and domestic violence; protecting consumers and businesses from identity theft, internet predators, fraud and high-tech crimes, and promoting integrity in government by defending the state's laws; and implementing new performance management initiatives in his office and encouraging open access to government. Prior to being elected attorney general, Rob was a Metropolitan King County Councilman from 1995-2007. He practiced business and regulatory law at Perkins Coie from 1988-1996, after receiving his J.D. from the prestigious University of Chicago Law School in 1988, where he was a member of the Law Review. He earned a B.A. in Economics and a B.A. in International Studies, both with honors, from the University of Washington. Rob and his wife Marilyn have four beautiful children."

Rob McKenna: "Madam Governor, Mr. President, Mr. Speaker of the House, Members of the House and Senate, I am honored to be here today with so many distinguished and dedicated public servants. I am also honored by the presence here today of a number of outstanding legal professionals from the Washington Attorney General's Office who are with us in the gallery. It has been a tremendous privilege to serve for the past eight years as Attorney General for our great state, and as the leader of the best public law office in America. As all of us do, we in the Attorney General's Office stand on the shoulders of those who came before us, building on the tradition of excellence in the provision of legal services to this state government, and to the people of Washington State. The 1100 attorneys, professional staff and support staff in our office handle over 20,000 court cases per year, including thousands of cases involving severely abused and neglected children, vulnerable adults, and victims of crime. We represent every agency of state government, from the largest DSHS, L&I, Ecology and Transportation, to the smallest. We provide them with legal counsel every day, and represent them in court thousands of times every year. The Washington AGO is recognized nationally as an outstanding law office, thanks to the tireless efforts of our staff. Over the past eight years, for example, we have won over 90 percent of our appellate cases, including all seven of the cases we have argued in the United States Supreme Court. We also represent the people of the State of Washington more directly in our role as the state's Consumer Protection agency and anti-trust enforcement agency. In my two terms alone, we have successfully handled over 200,000 consumer complaints, brought enforcement actions against hundreds of companies that have unfairly and deceptively treated their customers, and gone after scammers of all descriptions from across the country. Thanks to the legislature's adoption of laws we have proposed, we have deployed new legal tools against 21st Century forms of fraud, going after spyware and malware purveyors, tackling identity theft, and teaching other state attorneys general offices how to do the same. We also have taken very seriously our role in protecting the public's safety. We have successfully sought and obtained the legal commitment of sexually violent predators, including some of the most notorious in our state's recent history. We have prosecuted dozens of violent felonies, stepping in where our county prosecutors have needed the state's help, and we have assisted in solving many other new and cold-case crimes through our Homicide Investigations Tracking Unit. When four Lakewood police officers were brutally gunned down just after Thanksgiving a few years ago, our senior criminal investigator was on the scene that same morning, bringing to bear the resources of the HITS Unit. When a state trooper was the victim of an attempted murder in Grays Harbor County, our Chief Deputy was in the local prosecutor's office within 24 hours, and our office prosecuted the shooter to conviction in what proved to be a very challenging case. We also have sought to protect consumers, to enhance the public's safety, and to support our law enforcement community, by offering our office's ideas for strengthening our state's laws in all those areas. Thanks to members of the legislature from both parties, and to Governor Gregoire, we have seen 45 bills written in the Attorney General's Office become law, giving hope to survivors of domestic violence, providing new tools to consumers to avoid identity theft, and protecting children from the scourge of methamphetamine and from predators, among other measures. In these and in many other ways as well, all of us in the Attorney General's Office have sought to accomplish what all of you seek to accomplish every day when you come to work as leaders and public servants: To make a difference, to improve the lives of our fellow citizens, to leave this wonderful Evergreen State a little better than how we found it. I would like to thank all of you with whom I have been privileged to serve these past eight years, and especially the women and men of the Attorney General's Office. It has been an extraordinary journey. Thank you very much".

The President: "We say farewell today to one of our state's longest-standing elected officials, State Auditor Brian Sonntag. Mr. Sonntag was first elected to public office way back in 1978 as Pierce County Clerk, working as the administrative officer for the Superior Courts. He was elected to the office of Pierce County Auditor in 1986, an office his father, Jack W. Sonntag, had held for 21 years, from 1948 to 1969. Mr. Sonntag was elected Washington State Auditor on November 3, 1992. He has been re-elected every four years since then, most recently in 2008 with 70 percent of the vote. He has served our state with distinction and honor. We now turn Mr. Sonntag to private life, where he can have more time with his wife, Jann, their five sons and three grandchildren.

Brian Sonntag: "I'd first like to introduce my wife Jann, and a few other family members here today. Sister-in-law Alison Sonntag, sons Michael and Joey and my Granddaughter, Jade. You know, our state's founders were a bunch of populists who didn't trust government very much. They created an independent check and balance on state and local government, the Office of State's Auditor, and put it right smack in the Constitution. For this office, the only issue is accountability. I define that as government being open, accessible, responsive and responsible, a government that listens to people and when it talks to them and tells the truth. President Kennedy called public service, "a noble profession and a high calling." Those of us who the voters have hired are the holders of a trust, a fragile trust. We have an opportunity to serve the public, and that opportunity comes with a responsibility, a responsibility to make a difference. I believe after 20 years as State Auditor, we have made a difference. We raised the visibility of this office so citizens could independently assess the stewardship of their government officials. We advocated for state employee whistleblowers and supported all state employees who are trying to make state government work better. We truly listened to citizens and helped connect them with their government. I'm proud that Governing Magazine credited us with what they described as a "one-of-a-kind effort to bring citizens in the decision-making fold". Open government is a deeply held value of mine and it must be for all of us in public office. Citizens must have clear and direct access to government meetings, actions and information. It's the foundation of our state government and government at all levels. When government's doors are open and elected officials remember who they work for citizens' trust and confidence in government will increase. I'm proud of the work of our office the financial compliance and performance audits we have done and also some of the broader issues we've looked at and reported on. Issues like underfunded liabilities, the state's financial system, local governments at risk of financial sustainability and resizing state government's footprint. We've been able to do the work we do because of the talents and commitment of the employees in the State Auditor's Office, some of whom are here today and I'd like to recognize them. I'm so very blessed and thankful for the opportunity to serve the citizens of Washington, to have served with colleagues like these and others over the years and to have worked with some wonderful people. Good luck to all of you and thanks for your service to our state".

The President: "And last but not least, we thank Sam Sumner Reed for his public service. Sam became Washington's 14th Secretary of State in 2000, and has certainly made his mark in elections history. Sam and Rob McKenna took the people's case for a wide open, Top Two Primary to the United States Supreme Court, and won. Sam also is widely recognized for sweeping improvements to the voting process following Washington's contested 2004 gubernatorial race, the closest in U.S. history. Throughout Reed's past two terms in office, the Secretary has worked diligently to make Washington a more business-friendly state by allowing corporations to file electronically. Also in 2004, he launched the nation's first state government digital archives to rescue disappearing electronic history. Prior to his service as Secretary of State, Reed was elected Thurston County Auditor five times and served as the Assistant Secretary of State. Governor Dan Evans appointed Reed Director of the Urban Affairs Commission and the Constitutional Reform Commission. Sam, whose family lived in Washington in territorial days, grew up in Wenatchee and later moved to Spokane. He attended Washington State University where he earned a Bachelor's Degree in Social Studies and Master's Degree in Political Science. Secretary of State Sam Reed and his wife Margie make their home in Olympia and are looking forward to spending more time traveling and working on their backhand in tennis. They have two adult children, David and Kristen, and two grandchildren."

Sam Reed: "Mr. Speaker, Mr. President, Governor Gregoire, distinguished statewide elected officials, Chief Justice Madsen and members of the Supreme Court, legislators, family and friends, people of Washington, I thank you and I bid you farewell today. It has been an amazing ride for Margie and me – 45 years in public life, including 35 years in county and state government! Nearly a lifetime ago, it seems, we came to Olympia from the apple orchards and the Palouse of Eastern Washington to teach and to serve in government. We stayed to raise our family here and to heed to call to service. On our hardest days, we never regretted that decision. My heart is full today as this Wenatchee boy reflects on the opportunity to be of service and to work with many of you in this room to make Washington a better, more responsive and just government worthy of her people. Whenever we saw a problem to fix or an opportunity to grasp, we went to work. In our better moments, we worked collaboratively, across the aisle, with common purpose and with civility. Together, we saved the State Library and created the nation's first ground-up Digital Archives. Together, we handled the closest governor's race in America and rebuilt public confidence in our elections process by reforms that continue to this day and are the envy of the nation. Together, we ramped up service to our job-creating corporations. We honored our history including women in government and the Suffrage Centennial. And we continue to look forward to the day when we have a Heritage Center right here on campus that welcomes and educates our visitors and provides a proper home for the public's Archives and Library services. That was a shameless plug, in case you didn't notice. And so, in closing, I thank my family and friends for the support that made public service possible and enjoyable all these years. I brought my grandfather's briefcase along today as a poignant reminder of how we and our families influence each other. Sam Sumner, for whom I am named, was sworn in 100 years ago as a freshman member of the Washington State House of Representatives and his legacy later lived on in our community and in me personally. Politics is, and should be, a noble calling. I believe that. Although I am leaving public life, I am not leaving public service. I expect to be deeply engaged in volunteer working, mentoring and working as a private citizen on my signature issues of civility, bipartisanship and moderation. Together, I feel confident we can look forward to bright and creative days ahead. I wish you well in your new session, House, Senate and new statewide elected officials. I know you are up to the challenges that await, and I will be supporting from the sideline. Thank you."

The President introduced Governor Christine Gregoire.

STATE OF THE STATE

Governor Christine Gregoire: "Thank you. Before I begin, join me in remembering two distinguished legislators no longer with us. Senator Sid Snyder of Long Beach was an institution a great and effective leader. He taught us how to listen, how to come together and how to get things done for the people of Washington. We will always remember Sid. Senator Lorraine Wojahn of Tacoma was a woman who laid a path for all women to follow. She listened to the voiceless among us and she helped them: our children, the poor, the mentally ill and the disabled. We will always thank her. Let us remember Eva Santos, our Director of Human Resources, who brought so much to a life of public service: skill, compassion and integrity. We will miss her. Let us also remember and honor Washington State Patrol Trooper Tony Radulescu. Last February, on a dark, rural road, Tony gave his life protecting all of us. We will never forget his sacrifice. And this morning, let us remember the brave military men and women who gave their lives in service to our nation in the past year. We owe them and their families a debt of gratitude for their sacrifice that can never be repaid. Let's take a moment to remember. Thank you. Good morning. Thank you, Father Mike, for starting us off with such an inspiring prayer. And thank you to the talented young singers from the Auburn High School Chamber Quartet. Linda Karout, Morgan Warren, Marcos Antonio Garcia and Ethan Hinz, that was a beautiful rendition of our national anthem! Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Madame Chief Justice, distinguished justices of the court, honored officials, members of the Washington State Legislature, former governors, tribal leaders, local government officials, members of the Consular Association of Washington, my fellow citizens: Please join me in thanking Secretary of State Sam Reed, Attorney General Rob McKenna and State Auditor Brian Sonntag. Gentlemen, it has been a privilege to serve the people of the state with you. Thank you for your years of dedicated service. Let me introduce my family my husband, Mike. How about a round of applause for Mike's eight years of volunteer work to better the lives of our military service men and women and our veterans. Who's the fellow in the gray suit? Why, that's former Gov. Mike Lowry, watching from the gallery. Also, my daughter, Michelle, a third-year law student at the University of Washington; my daughter, Courtney, and son-in-law, Scott Lindsay. And of course, my two-month-old grandbaby, Audrey Christine Lindsay. It's true. We've already opened her GET account, and as a family of lawyers, we've found the perfect way to lull her to sleep. Turns out reading the Revised Code of Washington to babies does wonders in putting both parent and child to bed. As one chapter of our lives ends, another begins with the arrival of Audrey Christine.

And let me tell you, there's nothing like changing diapers again to bring perspective to life. Being a grandmother is a great gift ... to fall in love again and to remember what really matters. You know, the Executive Mansion was our home for eight years, and when I could, I slipped out the door and down the steps for a walk around our beautiful Capitol Campus. That was one time of my day that I could reflect. So today my last full day as Governor I invite you to come with me on my last walk to reflect on the state of the State of Washington what we accomplished this past eight years, and what we still must do to keep the state of our state strong. This particular morning, I see a woman in Beijing or Hyderabad, or Paris or Seoul. She works on a laptop that runs on Microsoft software. She sips a cup of Starbucks coffee. Her laptop ordered from Amazon was delivered to an airport via a Boeing 747. It was hauled to a warehouse on a Kenworth 18-wheeler built by our own Paccar. This woman happens to be a bio scientist. She's working with hundreds of others on a global health project maybe a malaria vaccine led by the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation and PATH and our two great research universities, the University of Washington and Washington State University. Or maybe she just started a small life sciences company and is working with another start-up down in Vancouver on gene therapy for a rare disease. She also is a healthy, discerning consumer, and in her bag is an apple, or bag of cherries, or bread made from Washington wheat or a bottle of fine wine for after work, all shipped through our ports from the orchards and fields of Eastern Washington, the refrigerator of the world. On our walk this morning, I want to pause and say to you: Ladies and gentlemen, there is no other state in the nation not one that has what the Great State of Washington has. There is no other state with our diversity of riches and the promise they bring to our children and grandchildren. A booming aerospace industry. Boeing just keeps winning orders for the 787, 737-MAX, the 737 and the 777. We landed the Air Force tanker contract and now let's make sure we do the same for the 777X! Today we have the strongest, most integrated aerospace supply chain on earth with 50 percent more suppliers in the past eight years 740 and rising. The aerospace sector puts 128,000 Washingtonians to work every day. But we won't rest on our laurels. Washington will always be the home to aerospace and the good-paying jobs that those companies bring. Along with aerospace, we have a software and IT presence that begins with Microsoft, Amazon, Real Networks and T-Mobile, but in no way ends there. We are home to more than 4,000 companies all across Washington. The fact is, our software and IT sector encompasses a broader range of products and services than just about any state in the United States, and brings more than $30 billion in business a year. Along with software and IT, a life sciences sector that took off in Seattle but now stretches to the Tri-Cities, Spokane, Snohomish County and Vancouver. About 70 Washington cities are home to 480 life sciences companies and research organizations, including biotech, pharma and medical devices. All relieve suffering here and around the world, and today they provide nearly 35,000 good-paying Washington jobs. Along with life sciences, a global health presence powered by the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, PATH, our research universities and nonprofits. Thank you for establishing the Life Sciences Discovery Fund. It has proven to be an essential tool in growing the industry, and I ask you to continue to support it. Along with global health, agriculture. Apples, potatoes, wheat, wine and dozens of other products are shipped all over the world, making agriculture our second-largest export after transportation equipment. This $46 billion industry exported $8.6 billion in products in the past 12 months. That's a record! I've handed out cherries in South Korea, french fries in Vietnam and Almond Roca in Beijing. I've enjoyed being Promoter-in-Chief but I have to admit I won't miss being called the French Fry Lady! And along with all this, we have the

Hanford Nuclear Reservation, the one-of-its-kind incubator not just for cleanup technology for the world, but for breakthroughs in everything from cancer treatment to an energy-saving electricity grid to scientists and engineers who are following the innovation of their Hanford forebears and inventing first-time technology, this time to be used to clean up not just the Hanford site, but sites from England to Russia to Japan. It's very clear. No other state has what we have. So this morning, part way through our walk, I'm ready to report. The state of Washington is coming out of the Great Recession as a world leader in the economies of the 21st century industries that provide good jobs from Spokane to Seattle and from Bellingham to Vancouver. And despite the challenges ahead, I can say today that the state of our state is strong! We can say with confidence that in the past eight years, we have built the future of the Great State of Washington a future of promise and opportunity. On our walk, we now can see the magnificent Capitol dome in the distance and the marble building where you and I have worked together for the past eight years. I think everybody in this chamber will agree: History will reflect that this was not just any eight years. You were not just any Legislature. And these were not just any times. You and I witnessed a historic economic crisis and with it, wrenching change in our economy and in our social fabric. But we didn't just witness it. We were called to confront it every day. And we did. Together, we served in good times and bad. And whatever the challenge, we took it on for the people of Washington State. Our biggest challenge started in 2008 when trouble hit trouble not seen since the Great Depression with revenue plunging quarter after quarter after quarter as if there were no bottom. In fact, revenue fell almost every quarter 13 of 16 until it finally stabilized last February. That was the longest string of revenue drops since the Economic and Revenue Forecast Council was created 28 years ago. You were tested. I was tested. This was not what I expected. It wasn't what anybody expected. But we stepped up. And together, we guided the state of Washington through the worst economic calamity since the Great Depression and we did it with our heads and our hearts. We did it with compassion. And we did it with our Washington values. So today, I thank you. You have much to do in the months ahead, but let's pause this morning and be grateful to each other for all we've accomplished together to build the future of Washington state. When I came into office in 2005, we were at the tail end of a recession. We were on the road to recovery from the impact of Initiative 695, the dot-com bust and 9/11. There was pent-up need for services, education, health care, our social safety net, the environment, transportation. Money is never unlimited. Even then, we had to make hard choices. Everybody was banging at the door. From the start, we said that just getting by isn't good enough. We wanted to do better for the people of our state. And we made the best decisions to build the future of Washington. The best decisions for our schoolchildren and our college students. I'm proud that in my first term, we invested more in education than at any other time in our history. We created the Department of Early Learning. The impact we make on our children will benefit our state for generations to come. Harvard has named our early learning program as the most innovative in the country. And we are one of just nine states to receive an Early Learning Race to the Top $60 million grant. We made the best decisions for our K-12 system, and despite the challenges we still face, our public schools are serving our kids in ways that this century demands if they are to succeed in the world economy. We put more money and muscle into science, technology, engineering and math or STEM so our children are ready for the jobs of the future. We are implementing a model evaluation system so our teachers can excel and win the confidence of parents. We have innovative schools with targeted, creative approaches to learning. We have Launch Year to prepare seniors for jobs or college. We have College Bound scholarships to give kids who do well in school and stay out of trouble a path to college. Let's build more schools and fewer prisons! We made the best decisions for our two- and four-year colleges to keep the doors open to more students and more opportunity. We increased enrollment in our community and technical colleges by 31,000 students and launched online learning. Today, we are building the workforce of tomorrow: Twenty-four of our colleges provide training for aerospace jobs. We provided branch campuses to serve more Washingtonians, and today the UW has campuses in Tacoma and Bothell. WSU has campuses in Vancouver, the Tri-Cities and Spokane, and offers four-year degrees at Everett Community College. We expanded enrollment at our universities, and today we are educating 12,000 more students a year. The bottom line: 50,000 more students are getting a college education because we believe in them and our future. We significantly increased financial aid for all our college students even in tough times. We created the Student Achievement Council to focus on our students' success from high school to higher education. We created a public-private partnership the Opportunity Scholarship so smart young people can afford a college education. The Great Recession has severely tested our higher education system. We had tuition increases because we had to. We had no choice. We had to maintain our values, quality and access. And we did. Now the challenge is clear. Our future is at stake. We must fully fund a seamless education system from early learning through higher education. We made the best decisions for transportation. In 2005, we passed a historic construction package, and voters ratified it because we made our case. And we have delivered on our promise. From the 2005 voter-endorsed gas tax we are close to completing all 421 statewide projects. Eighty-eight percent have been completed early or on time, and 91 percent are on or under budget. Those projects provided thousands of good-paying jobs at a time we needed them most. And importantly, those projects move millions of people every single day. They move moms and dads to work, their kids to school and soccer practice, and products to and from our thriving ports. We are building a world-class infrastructure. In 2015, we will open the two-mile-long tunnel under the heart of Seattle to replace the crumbling, dangerous Alaskan Way Viaduct and give Seattle a world-class waterfront. I'll be at the ribbon cutting with my granddaughter! We are building the new 520 Bridge across Lake Washington to replace the 50-year-old structure that could fall in the next bad windstorm. I'll be at that ribbon cutting too maybe with two grandchildren! Today, that part of our future that relies on passage over Snoqualmie Pass is faster and safer for freight and motorists. We have built half of Spokane's critical North-South Freeway. And we are on our way to building the new Columbia River Crossing to replace the current one built for horse and buggy. Ladies and gentlemen, within the past eight years, we undertook the largest transportation construction package in state history: more than $16 billion. And we not the next big earthquake or windstorm are knocking down the old Viaduct, the 520 Bridge and the Columbia River Crossing Bridge and building for our future. We made difficult decisions for our social safety net and health care. We were tested, but I believe we maintained the health and safety of our most vulnerable our seniors, our mentally ill, our developmentally disabled, and our abused and neglected children. We made sure every child in Washington has access to health care, certainly one of our proudest accomplishments. We have built one of the best long-term care systems in the nation, a system of choices for our seniors to live out their lives in dignity. AARP rates our system the second best in the country. We just became the second state in the nation to assure better, safer health care for our poorest seniors and disabled. We will merge and manage their care under Medicare and Medicaid for better-quality care at a lower cost. In 2005, we set out to cut costs, increase access and provide higher-quality health care. We did, we are, and we lead the nation. While the vast majority of other states are struggling with rising Medicaid-inflation costs, our growth rate is projected to be minus 1 percent. You heard me right: minus 1 percent. We are employing evidence-based medicine to ensure better health outcomes for Washingtonians. And because we were already reforming health care, we are among the first states in the nation to implement the Affordable Care Act! This morning I ask you to embrace this historic opportunity to give every Washingtonian the health care coverage they deserve and you will save $140 million in the next biennium. Every Washingtonian deserves an open door to the doctor when they need one! We made the best decisions for public safety. Washingtonians have a right to be safe in their homes and on the streets. We took action in good times and bad, and the crime rate has fallen every year since I took office. Every jurisdiction now has the resources to verify that sex offenders are living where they say they are. We closed three prisons to make better use of space, and did it without letting the serious offenders walk free. We strengthened community supervision and now we concentrate on the offenders who are high risk to reoffend. And I'm proud to say the Washington State Patrol is ranked the best state law enforcement agency in the country. We made the best decisions for our economy. One in three jobs in our state depends on international trade. We sold, traded and created innovative partnerships through 12 trade missions. This fall, we became the first state to establish a sister-state relationship with an Indian state, Andhra Pradesh. China is now our number one trading partner, with Canada, Japan and Korea close behind. Trade with China alone has grown at an average rate of nearly 20 percent a year since 2000, even during the global downturn. In the past eight years, we have recruited and retained shippers at our ports, most recently Hanjin, Korea's largest container line, at the Port of Seattle. Our export of goods has grown 119 percent, from about $30 billion to $65 billion. Export of services is up by an additional $29 million. Make no mistake. Our trade economy kept us going through the hard times and it is our future. It unites Eastern and Western Washington, impacts every community and provides the jobs we need. We are the most trade-dependent state in the nation, and the fact is our work knows no boundaries. Like never before, we trade with the world! We made the best decisions for clean, renewable energy now and in the future. Our base is legacy hydropower. When I took office, we produced no wind power. Today we are among the top-five wind energy producers. We are pioneering the smart grid and have a strong presence in the solar power supply chain. Clean, renewable energy has been our unique history for 80 years. Today, we are number one in the nation in renewable energy. We made the best decisions for water. I believe a new era is finally here, when bitter wars over water are finally surrendering to partnerships that bring good, clean and new water to our farms, our fish and our growing cities. We've made the most progress with water in our history: more water to the Yakima Basin and our growing west side cities, innovative tools through water markets and banking to create flexibility, and protection for our fish-critical basins. Mark Twain said that whiskey's for drinking and water's for fighting. Well, no longer will our water policy be defined by who won and who lost. It's high time that we all win and we will! We made the best decisions for broadband. Today, 99 percent of Washingtonians have access to high-speed internet. We had a plan when the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act was looking to invest in broadband. Today we've been named the most-wired state in the nation. We made the best decisions to save the jewel and economic engine of Western Washington, our Puget Sound. We created a partnership among local, state and federal governments, tribes and stakeholders to get it done. We must meet our goal to make Puget Sound fishable, swimmable and diggable by 2020. Let's be the generation that saves Puget Sound! We made the best decisions to support our brave military men and women and veterans. In fact, you passed, and I signed, more legislation to help veterans than at any other time in our history! We are a step ahead in our efforts to make sure we keep Washington's second-largest employer, our United States military. I urge you to support our Washington Military Alliance and fund our proposal to maintain our military presence that adds $13 billion a year to our economy. We made the best decisions to reset and reform state government. Our challenges in the past eight years were unprecedented. We said we would not waste this crisis, and we did not. Together, we achieved landmark pension and debt service reforms that will lead to billions of dollars in future savings. Ladies and gentlemen, we are the envy of states around the country. Our public pension system is now rated one of the strongest in the nation. We helped employees and employers weather the recession. Together, we reformed our workers' compensation and unemployment insurance systems. We saved our businesses including small businesses billions of dollars in the years to come. We held workers' comp rates flat again this year. And over the past eight years, we had little or no increases in workers' comp premiums. In two of those years, the Department of Labor and Industries returned $350 million. At the same time, we reformed the way we serve injured workers, and we're getting them back on the job faster or trained for new careers. While 36 states' funds are bankrupt, we have the most stable unemployment insurance trust fund in the nation and record-low UI rates. Together, we ripped out the walls and pulled up the floors to remodel our 123-year-old house of government. We consolidated and merged all or part of five agencies' back-office operations under one director at the new Department of Enterprise Services. This has already saved taxpayers $18 million and is expected to save another $27 million in the next biennium. We closed six institutions. The last time even one was closed was four decades ago. Since 2008, our general government workforce has shrunk by nearly 11 percent. The number of state employees is the lowest since 1996, and they serve 1 million more people. Our public servants have met the challenge and they have sacrificed with furloughs and pay cuts, with higher health care premiums and pension payments. They helped make my favorite four-letter word GMAP, for Government Management Accountability and Performance successful. Now they're doing Lean management to serve Washingtonians in better and more efficient ways. Today let's recognize the caseworker called out at midnight to save a battered child the snowplow driver clearing Snoqualmie Pass at 3 a.m. the agriculture inspector making sure our food is safe ... the legislative lawyer who works through the night to get the bills just right ... the person at the front desk whose phone is lit up all day long. Today I ask you to stand and join me in well-deserved recognition for our dedicated state employees! Finally, we made the best decision for our gay and lesbian citizens, and the people of Washington agreed. We clearly saw that separate but equal is not equal. We gave all couples the right to marry and to help us build a better Washington and a better world. I'm proud that our gay and lesbian couples became the first in the country to marry because their friends and neighbors stood up at the ballot box and said they should have that right. I'm proud that our citizens passed marriage equality by the widest margin of any state. And I'm proud of my daughters for showing the way and helping me realize that their generation understands that who you are is not about who you love. Thank you. So thanks for taking this walk with me today. It's my last one, and I appreciate your company. Tomorrow at noon, I will be the former Governor of the Great State of Washington. And you will be writing new history with Governor Jay Inslee. Before I go, I have two recommendations for you about the future of the Great State of Washington. First, this Legislature must give our children what we were given good schools, good teachers and the chance to be part of the world economy. We cannot falter.

Education is the heart of everything we do and it is our future. Second, if education is the heart of our economic future, transportation is the backbone. Our state will remain strong only if our roads, highways, bridges and ferries are effectively getting our people to work and our goods to market. Remember our competition. China isn't waiting. India isn't waiting. Korea isn't waiting. We can't wait either. There is no free lunch! The decision of the Supreme Court in McLeay told us we are failing in our paramount duty. Our moral and legal responsibility is to give every child in Washington the chance for a good basic education, the same one you and I got. We cannot cut our way out of this. We cannot save our way out of this. We cannot grow our way out of this. To meet the McLeay ruling, we will need at least a $1 billion down payment in the next biennium, and $3.4 billion by 2018. Today is the day. Now is the time to invest in our children and their future! We must also have the transportation infrastructure for our economic corridors to get employees to work and goods to market if we want to remain a vibrant economic competitor in the years to come. These projects and more demand funding: The Columbia River Crossing. Spokane's North-South Freeway. Snoqualmie Pass. State Route 167 between Tacoma and Puyallup. The 40-mile I-405 corridor. A new 144-car ferry. And I-5 at Joint Base Lewis-McChord. Freight-dependent businesses account for nearly 45 percent of our jobs. Companies move nearly $40 million worth of freight on our roads every single hour. We must maintain our very valuable transportation system, from highways and bridges to ferries and city streets. I urge you to come together find a way to make sure we continue to make transportation improvements and build the future of Washington. If we step up to our commitment to build a new Columbia River Crossing with Oregon this year, the federal government will too. I urge you to invest the $450 million to make certain that this critical West Coast economic corridor moves forward. Now is the time to build the future of Washington! In the end, these two challenges are only that challenges. You've met tougher ones in the past eight years, and you delivered for the people of Washington. I know you will deliver again. You will do what you always do. You will keep the state of our state strong! Finally, today, in my last appearance as governor, I still feel the need to pinch myself a little to make sure the past eight years weren't just a dream maybe my mother's dream too, the short-order cook at the Rainbow Café in Auburn for all those years the single mom who worked so hard and kept a watchful eye on her daughter, Chris O'Grady, sitting on a stool in the kitchen doing her homework. I always believed what my mom said. You can make it in America if you work hard enough. If you respect yourself and serve those around you. If you keep the faith and don't give up. That's what I did. I was just a Washington girl who loved to play basketball, pick blueberries, ride horses in the summer. I was just a young Washington woman who became the first in her family to graduate from college. I was just a Washington woman who got that gift of education, who admired John F. Kennedy and who chose a career of public service as a clerk typist, a caseworker, an Assistant Attorney General, Director of Ecology, an Attorney General and then the ultimate privilege: to serve as Governor of the state I love, the Great State of Washington. And on my last full day as Governor, I can speak from experience and say we still live in the greatest state in the nation and the greatest country in the world. Thank you, people of Washington, for the pleasure of serving you. And thank you, ladies and gentlemen of the Legislature, for hearing me one last time. I appreciate it. I will miss governing and I will miss all of you. Please accept my deepest thanks for your public service. Farewell, God bless you and God bless the great State of Washington."

President Owen: "Thank you Governor for you very, very profound remarks. I can see why you are such an excellent politician, emphasized by a couple of our colleagues. For instance, Auditor Sonntag pulls out a grocery list during his remarks, as a prop. Okay. Sam Reed? A used up old briefcase. The Governor? A two-month old baby. Nice going. Governor you have been proven to be a very skilled mediator, a tough negotiator, and extremely effective leader in the toughest of times. We thank you very much and wish you all the best. Personally, I would like to thank you for your tremendous accessibility, your guidance and your friendship over the years that we've had. Thank you very much. We would also like to present you with a little remembrance of your time serving the great State of Washington."

On behalf of the people of the State of Washington and the Legislature, the President presented Governor Christine Gregoire with a gift of artwork created by Ms. Kim Merriman in gratitude for and recognition of her public service.

The President asked the committee of honor to escort Governor Gregoire and the Gregoire family from the House Chamber.

The President asked the committee of honor to escort the statewide elected officials from the House Chamber.

The President asked the committee of honor to escort the Supreme Court Justices from the House Chamber.

On motion of Representative Sullivan, the Joint Session was dissolved. The Speaker (Representative Moeller presiding) assumed the chair.

The Sergeant at Arms of the House and the Sergeant at Arms of the Senate escorted President of the Senate Brad Owen, President Pro Tempore Tim Sheldon, Senator Ed Murray and Senator Mark Schoesler from the Chamber.

There being no objection the House advanced to the eleventh order of business.

There being no objection, the House adjourned until 10:00 a.m., January 16, 2013, the third day of the Regular Session.
