

An Idea

By Wayne Wyatt, Seattle Pacific University '21

I have an idea

That this is the continuation of our liberation

From a society where we are constantly in this state of self-preservation

And where acts of kindness and love only come in exchange of some form of compensation

I have an Idea

Where we live in a society where violence is not our first form of retaliation

But where situations can be deescalated just from having a simple conversation

I have an Idea

Where we live in a society where you're not defined by your political affiliation

And realize that transformational change can only come through having true collaboration

I have an Idea

Of living in a world where we show empathy and sympathy

And we're actively working to dismantle systems of oppression and white supremacy

I have an Idea

Of fostering a culture where someone is not judged by their sexuality or personal identity

And erase all the bigotry and hypocrisy and start treating people justly with respect and dignity

I have an Idea

Of world without racism, injustice, and poverty

And erase this ideology that your only chance at success comes from winning the lottery

I have an Idea

Of making this Idea a reality

But it can only truly come from us shifting our mentality

An investment in each other is an investment in our culture

There's no reason in this wealthy country for us to be scavenging like vultures

This is more than just an idea it's a way of life

Our future starts today and tomorrow we take flight

So let's build a new home together, and make a stop at Ikea

because every new design starts with an idea
