Mental Health Impacts on the Agricultural Community
Completion Date: December 2021	Staff: Karen Epps (360) 786-7424; Jeff Olsen (360) 786-7427
References: HB 1434 (2021); E2SHB 1477 (2021)
Description: A study by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention showed that farmers are more likely to die by suicide than in many other occupations. Suicide rates have increased 40 percent in the last two decades. Several factors related to the agricultural industry may affect the behavioral health of workers in the agricultural industry, including job-related isolation and demands, stressful work environments, the heightened potential for financial losses, lack of access to behavioral health services, and barriers or unwillingness to seek mental health services. There has been an increased strain on agricultural workers mental health during the COVID-19 pandemic. Legislation passed in 2021 requires the Department of Health and Health Care Authority to collaborate to establish state crisis call center hubs and an enhanced crisis response system with advanced technology that enables cross-system collaboration to prepare for implementation of the 988 crisis hotline. The bill established the Crisis Response Improvement Strategy Committee to plan for implementation of the 988 crisis hotline and crisis response system enhancements. As part of their work, the Committee will develop a work plan to ensure the availability of resources to meet the needs of people in the agricultural community. Committee staff will research the issue of mental health impacts on the agricultural community and draft legislation as directed.

Water Courts

Completion Date: December 2021

Staff: Karen Epps (360) 786-7424

References: ESHB 1248 (2015); ESHB 1571 (2009); HB 2066 (2005); SB 6674 (2004); HB 2130 (2004); SB 6734 (2004); HB 2393 (2004); HB 2396 (2004)

Description: A water right adjudication is the legal process to resolve conflict and competition on a water source. Adjudication legally determines whether each water right on a source is legal, how much water can be used, and its priority during shortages. A watershed-wide adjudication prioritizes each individual water right, including federal, tribal, and instream flow rights, under Washington water law's prior appropriation framework. More than 80 drainage systems in the state have been adjudicated since 1918. Completed in May 2019, the Yakima adjudication is the only general stream adjudication completed for an entire watershed in Washington.

During the 2019 legislative session, the Legislature provided the Department of Ecology with funding to assess the needs and benefits of future adjudications. Recommendations resulting from the 2020 assessment include beginning adjudication proceedings in the highest priority watersheds, Nooksack Watershed (WRIA 1), and Lake Roosevelt and middle tributaries (WRIA 58). Funding was provided in the 2021-23 operating budget for preparing and filing adjudications in these two WRIAs, with the stipulation that an adjudication in WRIA 1 will not be filed prior to June 1, 2023.

Three Western states employ water courts. Colorado's water courts conduct all water right processes, including adjudication, permitting, and changes. Montana's and Idaho's water courts were created more recently and are primarily used for adjudicating historical water rights, although Idaho's water court does hear appeals of permit and change decisions.

Committee staff will research water courts in other states and draft legislation as directed.
