State Elected Officials

JAY INSLEE Governor

Jay Inslee is a fifth-generation Washingtonian who grew up in the Seattle area. His father, Frank, was a high school teacher and coach. His mother worked as a sales clerk at Sears & Roebuck. Jay worked his way through college and graduated from the University of Washington with a degree in economics before earning his law degree at Willamette University. He and his wife, Trudi, then moved to Selah where Jay worked as a prosecutor and they raised their three sons.

Jay first became involved in public service in 1985 when he and Trudi helped lead the effort to build a new public high school in Selah. Motivated to fight against proposed funding cuts for rural schools, Jay went on to represent the 14th Legislative District in the state House of Representatives. He continued serving communities in the Yakima Valley when he was elected to Congress in 1992. The Inslees later moved back to the Puget Sound area where Jay was elected to Congress in 1998, serving until 2012.

During his time in Congress, Jay became known as a forward-thinking leader, especially on issues of clean energy and the environment. He co-wrote a book, "Apollo's Fire: Igniting America's Clean-Energy Economy," about the job-creating potential of the clean tech industry. As governor, Jay's top priority is growing Washington's innovative industries such as clean energy, IT and life sciences and strengthening existing industries such as aerospace, agriculture, maritime and military.

To grow these industries, Jay knows we must strengthen our schools so we can better equip our children to compete for these good-paying jobs. And we must bring a new culture of efficiency and performance to state government, to more efficiently serve the people and businesses throughout Washington State.

Jay and Trudi are proud grandparents to three grandchildren. Besides writing and illustrating books for his grandchildren and sketching scenes from around Washington, Jay is an avid cyclist and charter member of Hoopaholics.

State Elected Officials

BRAD OWEN Lt. Governor

Democrat. Brad Owen was elected as Washington State's 15th lieutenant governor in 1996, and was re-elected to his fifth term in 2012. He serves the state as president of the Senate, and is acting governor in the absence of the governor. Owen was a small business owner and served his community as a finance commissioner in Shelton, followed by 20 years of combined service as a state Senator and Representative. The lieutenant governor has dedicated his term of service to "helping kids grow up healthy in safe communities with opportunity," his office motto. Owen also actively supports strengthening the ties between Washington state's international community and state government. For the past several years he has worked toward fostering international trade and building stronger international connections. Owen is married with 6 children, 20 grandchildren and one great-grandchild, and lives in Shelton.

KIM WYMAN Secretary of State

Republican. Washington's 15th Secretary of State, Kim Wyman, is currently serving her first term. Elected in 2012, she is the second female Secretary of State in Washington history and the only woman currently holding statewide executive office.

Prior to being sworn into this office, Kim served as the Thurston County Elections Director and was elected Thurston County Auditor in 2001. Kim actively participates in multiple state and national workgroups, which has helped make Washington State a national leader.

State Elected Officials

JIM MCINTIRE State Treasurer

Democrat. James L. McIntire was elected as Washington's 22nd State Treasurer in 2008 and reelected in 2012. Upon taking office in 2009, the failure of a small bank sparked concerns about the security of state and local public deposits. McIntire initiated reforms that preserved secure access to banking services for local and state governments. Though 19 banks holding public deposits have failed since 2009, none of the public money they held was lost.

In 2011, McIntire prepared the State's first ever debt affordability study to provide a comprehensive tool for managing the state's debt. McIntire has also re-engineered the way the Treasurer's Office issues bonds. These changes infused greater competition and market pressure in the process, allowing the Office to capture $1.3 billion in savings through refinancing outstanding debt and lower than expected interest rates on new issues.

McIntire was elected chair of the State Investment Board in September, 2011. He also chairs the State Finance Committee and the Public Deposit Protection Commission. He is Co-Chair of the Democratic State Treasurers and the immediate past president of the Western State Treasurer's Association.

TROY KELLEY State Auditor

Democrat. Prior to his election as State Auditor in 2012, Troy Kelley served three terms in the Washington House of Representatives, where he chaired the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Committee.

Kelley is committed to independence, respect and integrity in his agency's interactions with state and local governments to help them work better, cost less and deliver higher value. For him, the bottom line is better government.

For nearly 30 years, Kelley focused on the business of moving families into homes. Early in his career, Kelley served in the criminal section of the federal prosecutor's office (Western District of New York). Later, he worked as an attorney for the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington, D.C., leading teams focused on regulatory audits.

Kelley holds a B.A. from the University of California at Berkeley, and a J.D. and an M.B.A. from the State University of New York at Buffalo; and is a member of the Washington State Bar. A 20-year Army Judge Advocate General (JAG) officer, Kelley serves as a lieutenant colonel in the National Guard.

He lives with his wife, Diane, and their two sons in Tacoma, where Kelley enjoys coaching the boys' sports teams.

Bob is focused on standing up for consumers and defending taxpayers, protecting seniors, keeping our communities safe, protecting our environment and advocating for our veterans and military families. His office provides legal services to more than 230 state agencies, boards and commissions. During his first two years in office, Bob has stopped deceptive business practices and returned millions of dollars to consumers, kept sexually violent predators off our streets, taken action on environmental cleanup and improved access to veteran benefits.

Bob is a fourth-generation Washingtonian, a graduate of the University of Washington and New York University law school. Bob began his legal career in Spokane as a law clerk for Chief Judge Wm. Fremming Nielsen of the Eastern District of Washington. Bob and his wife, Colleen, are the proud parents of 6-year-old twins, Jack and Katie. He hopes they are future Huskies.

RANDY DORN Superintendent of Public Instruction

Non-partisan. A lifelong resident of Washington state, Randy Dorn has been an elementary and middle school teacher, a principal and a legislator. For nine years he was executive director of Public School Employees of Washington, the second largest educational employee's organization in Washington state.

In 2008, Dorn was elected Superintendent of Public Instruction. In his three years as state superintendent, he has replaced the existing state assessment system with a shorter system, argued successfully against cuts to education funding, expanded early learning opportunities for all students and championed an updated teacher and principal evaluation system. He also established partnerships with major businesses, including Microsoft and Boeing, to help students gain real world skills they can apply to the job market or the classroom.

Dorn and his wife, Kaye, live in Eatonville and have three grown sons.

State Elected Officials

PETER GOLDMARK Commissioner of Public Lands

Democrat. Lifelong Washington resident Peter Goldmark was elected to his second term in 2012 as Commissioner of Public Lands. Goldmark led the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to raise more than $276 million in Fiscal Year 2012 to fund the construction of public schools, colleges, universities, as well as county and state services.

With Puget Sound a priority, Goldmark helped create the Puget SoundCorps, improve aquatic leases, and strengthen the agency's ability to remove derelict vessels from our waterways. By development of innovative forest biomass industry and increasing the use of wind and solar power on state lands, the Commissioner has moved fostered renewable energy.

Goldmark chairs the state Board of Natural Resources, which sets policy for 3 million acres of publicly owned land. DNR also manages approximately 2.6 million acres of aquatic lands, which include tide-lands, navigable lakes and rivers.

Goldmark oversees a department that protects 12.7 million acres from wildfires. He also chairs the state Forest Practices Board, which sets regulations concerning private timber harvests, forest road building, and other forest operations.

A doctor of optometry, he practiced at Group Health Cooperative in Olympia for 20 years. He holds a master's degree in public health. Mike retired from the Army Reserves as a lieutenant colonel after 20 years of service. He and his wife, Lela, have three children and are proud grandparents.

He is the most-tenured insurance commissioner in the country, providing leadership that spans from health care reform to climate change.

How a Bill Becomes a Law

1. A bill may be introduced in either the Senate or House of Representatives, but the procedure by which a bill becomes a law is much the same, wherever the bill originates.
The bill is introduced in the Senate or the House by a member, or members, of that body. After the bill is filed with the Secretary of the Senate or Chief Clerk of the House, it is given a number and, it is read the first time by title only in open session and referred to a standing committee.
2. The committee studies the bill and often holds public hearings on it. The committee will then meet to consider the information it has gathered. It may approve the bill with or without amendments, draft a new bill on the same subject incorporating the desired changes, or take no action.
3. The committee is now ready to report back to the Senate or the House. If the majority is in favor of the bill as introduced or with certain amendments, the chair recommends the bill for passage. The committee report is read in open session of the Senate or the House, and the bill is then referred to the Rules Committee.
4. After the bill has been recommended for passage by the standing committee to which it was originally referred, the Rules Committee can either place it on the second reading calendar for debate before the entire body, or take no action.
5. When the bill appears on the calendar for second reading, it is subject to amendment. It is then returned to the Rules Committee where it must receive a favorable vote before being placed on the third reading calendar for final passage. This referral to Rules is often bypassed by vote of the Senate or the House and the bill placed on final passage immediately following its second reading. Depending upon the degree of controversy, debate may last a few minutes to several hours or even several days.
6. After passing in the Senate or the House, the bill will go through an almost identical procedure in the other body.
If the bill is passed by the other body, but is amended, the originating body must concur in the amendments. If the change in the bill is not accepted, it may be returned for reconsideration of the amendments. If the amendments are not rescinded, a conference committee may be requested on the differences.
7. If the conference committee cannot agree, a conference committee may be appointed with power to rewrite the amendment or even write an entirely new bill. When the conferees reach agreement, they report to their respective houses. Their report is either accepted or rejected without any changes.
8. If the report is accepted by both houses, the bill is signed by the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House in open sessions of each body, and then is sent for the Governor's signature.
9. Within five days, if the Legislature is still in session, or 20 days after its adjournment, the Governor may sign the bill or veto all or any section of it. The Legislature can override the veto by a two-thirds vote of both houses. If the Governor fails to act on the bill, it becomes law without a signature.
