POINT OF INQUIRY

Senator Schoesler: "Would the gentleman from the 4th District yield to a question? Senator McCaslin, as I look across the floor today, is Senator Deccio absent or excused?"

Senator McCaslin: "I have a story to tell you Senator and just prior to coming on the floor I learned this so if I botch it up it's my fault because I just heard it approximately twenty-five minutes ago. The gentleman sitting there, it's going to shock you, is really Senator Deccio. I have to tell you the story that I heard. You know Alex. He was always negotiating on something. So Alex, Senator Deccio, went through the state of Washington negotiating with surgical doctors, cosmetic surgeons, getting the best deal. I'm told, I don't know if the source is reliable, it cost one-hundred fifty-thousand in the capital budget and seven bills on last year's calendar. The problem was the surgeon he hired was hard of hearing and what Senator Deccio told him was 'I want to look like James Vest.' Who was an old time actor, very handsome gentleman. Well, the guy couldn't hear. He thought he said 'James West' so as a result Senator Deccio, who is now going by Curtis King, looks like James West. I didn't get to him before the first or second caucus and I did lean over to him one day, I was heading for the water fountain, and I said 'Do you know we've had a conference among us Senators that you look like James West? Jim West? Senator West. Took a few seconds and he looked up at me and he said, 'I didn't know he was that handsome.' So anyway we have a conceited man, who obviously can read because he read his first speech. He didn't ask permission either, of the President, which is another foul. Anyway, Alex, it's good to see you. You look a lot better. It was worth the one-hundred and fifty thousand I assure you."

Senator Schoesler: "Senator McCaslin, one follow-up question on that plastic surgery? Did Senator Deccio retain his legendary smell for pork?"

Senator McCaslin: "Absolutely, absolutely. So stand back Democrats, here he comes again."

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator King: "Thank you Mr. President. Well, I very much appreciate everyone's patience and willingness to put up with my lack of public speaking ability. But as a means to try and kind of make up for all of those things and all of my deficiencies, I have a gift that I would like to present to each of you that will be delivered to your office. Somewhere here I think I have one, anyway hopefully it will look like this if it's any good. It consists of a maple cheese board with a knife, and it has products that are made in the Yakima Valley attached that includes juices and fruit roll ups from Tree Top. Chips from Seneca Foods, mixed pepper jelly, now if you have never had mixed pepper jelly, you have a treat in store for you and I was kind because it comes in mild, and it comes in very, very hot and believe me I was tempted with the very, very hot but I got just kind of the middle of the road for you. Then I also have in there a really unique product. It's called Jumping Jack popcorn and there's an older couple in Selah that developed this product and it's actual corn on the cob that has been dried and you take it, put it in a bowl, cover it and microwave and it pops right off the cob and it's very good. So, anyway, I hope that you enjoy those products. I want to say thank you for the reception, the very warm reception and welcome that you all have given me. I appreciate that very much and I'm extremely honored to be serving in the Senate with each of you. Thank you."

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Hewitt: "Thank you Mr. President. Well, I was almost buying in on the story that this was Senator Deccio but after seeing such a nice gift I know it's not true because he was never that generous."

POINT OF INQUIRY

I'm not sure that I understand all of it because I didn't serve on that committee. Under this bill would this change, I guess my question is, can I quit a job for the sole purpose of going into one of these apprenticeship programs, voluntarily quit work, and collect unemployment while I am in the apprenticeship program?"

Senator Kohl-Welles: "Senator Benton, that could happen if you were to quit your job, I'm assuming not as a State Senator however. However, this would have to be part of an approved program by the state apprenticeship and training counsel number one, number 2, the Employment Security Department would have the authority to determine if in fact this was an approved program and that this individual should be eligible for that. There are safe guards in place. My understanding is the way this has worked in the past and we'd like it to do so again. It's for those individuals who are making very low wages are trying to improve themselves can be more contributing our economy and to our society. They also are training for needed positions that we expect will be once there will be a high turnover for so I think it's a very important program, not only for that individual but also for our economy and our work force."
