SPEAKER'S PRIVILEGE

Mr. Speaker: Welcome back to Olympia for the second session of the 55th Washington State Legislature.

I want to extend special greetings to our two newest members who have joined the House since we last were in session and I would ask that they stand and be recognized - Representative Jim McCune from the 33rd District, and Representative Bill Eickmeyer from the 35th District. We are pleased and proud to have you as part of this great institution, and we look forward to having the best of personal and professional relationships and friendships with you both.

I'd also like to take a moment of personal privilege to extend best wishes to, and urge that we all keep in our thoughts and prayers a longtime member of our extended legislative family who has faced serious health challenges in recent months. Vito Chiechi, a former chief clerk of the House and caucus staff director, suffered a severe stroke and has gone through an extended hospitalization and difficult therapy program. I'm very happy to tell you that Vito returned home this past weekend, and we are told that he is already anxious to get back to work. As he continues his recovery, we want Vito to know that all of the his friends here in the House and throughout the Capitol are thinking of he and Dolores and their family.

It remains my great honor and privilege to stand before you as speaker of the House. One of the things that makes this a wonderful experience for me is a mutually respectful and friendly relationship with my colleagues across the aisle, particularly Minority Leader Appelwick and the members of his leadership team. We look forward to working together to address critical issues that affect all the citizens of Washington.

While we engage in many spirited debates over different approaches to some issues, it is important that we conduct courteous and reasoned arguments that allow us to go home as friends when the day is done. I pledge to each and every one of you that I will continue to maintain decorum and protect this institution so that we can maintain our friendships and proudly serve together.

Carrying out the duties of speaker and serving the needs and interests of every member, as well as all the citizens of our great state, remains a great responsibility and a humbling experience. It is a responsibility I bear happily, and I look forward to presiding over a very productive session. We have been tremendously successful the past three years in our efforts to make fundamental changes in the way government operates, to make government more accountable and responsive to the people of Washington. And I fully expect our progress to continue.

Just think about some of our major accomplishments:

We enacted the most sweeping and effective changes in the juvenile justice system in more than 20 years.

We enacted major welfare reforms all intended to improve the help and support we provide to get able-bodied individuals back on their feet and on the job while providing needed assistance to those in difficult circumstances who cannot take care of themselves.

We controlled the size and scope of government this year holding budget growth to the lowest level in 25 years.

And we've done it by setting responsible priorities and making government more efficient so that we can deliver vital services and meet the needs of the public while staying well below the spending limit established by Initiative 601.

We strengthened education by increasing state support for our public schools but we also steps to make schools more accountable for the quality of education they provide and to make better use of our precious resources.

As we begin the 1998 legislative session today we are ready to pursue an aggressive agenda that will carry forward the progress we have made already. While seeking solutions to other problems we face.

We will remain steadfast in our commitment to protect taxpayers both by holding the line on state spending and by continuing to seek additional tax relief.

We will continue our efforts to improve the quality of education with a special emphasis on doing a better job of teaching reading so that our children will be better equipped to learn throughout their school careers.

We will do more to protect our families, our homes and our communities from the threat of juvenile crime with a special effort made to stop dangerous criminals from being let loose in our communities where they pose a danger to our safety.

We are going to do a better job of protecting society from the drunk drivers who are responsible for far too many tragedies.

We are going to find ways to responsibly and effectively meet the transportation needs of our state without raising taxes.

These are just a few of the issues that are going to be considered by the Legislature this year.

You can rest assured that our focus will remain on making government more accountable and improving the way government treats its citizens.

Now I'd like to talk to you for a moment about the subject I believe deserves and requires our greatest attention, commitment and effort. That subject is the quality of education our public schools provide to our children. Specifically I want to talk about reading.

I want to take this opportunity to ask the governor to join with us in a partnership to improve the way our schools teach reading and in this way make the greatest contribution we can possibly make toward improving our society. The simple truth is our schools must do a better job of teaching children the fundamental skills and basic knowledge they need to become productive citizens. And reading is the start because reading is the "gateway" skill — it opens the door to all other learning. If our children do not learn to read, they will forever be imprisoned. And while it may be a prison without bars it is also a prison without hope, without opportunity.

We have worked very hard over the past few years to confront this problem and we are making progress. Yet more must be done and done quickly. I am enthused to have the governor join us this year in making reading a real priority, to see him addressing this critical problem.

Now I am inviting and urging, strongly urging the governor to join with us in a partnership to solve the reading crisis in our public schools. And to solve it the right way.

We do face a crisis because we now know that more than half of the fourth-grade students in our state cannot read at an acceptable level. And the greatest tragedy is that a majority of our schools are not teaching reading effectively. We know what is wrong, we know how to fix it and we know how great the improvement and benefits will be. We know these things from results in our schools, we know these things from the experience in other states. We know these things from countless academic studies throughout the nation and we know these things from extensive and proven scientific research.

Teachers work hard and are dedicated to educating our children. We must make sure they have the best and most effective tools available to do the job they are committed to do. Let me say this as clearly as I can the problem is the way we teach reading. And we must solve that problem first. You don't need to have been an honor student to know that if what you are doing is wrong and does not work doing more of the same will not fix anything.

That is why I have invited the governor to join us in a partnership based upon this simple agreement: If he will help us adopt legislation and join us during the coming year in working with the superintendent of public instruction and educators at all levels to implement effect changes in the way reading is taught. Then once that job is accomplished we will work with the governor to develop sound programs providing personal attention and help for children who still have difficulty learning to read.

I hope the governor will accept this invitation and join us in an effort that will truly solve our reading crisis. After all, the only way that the types of reading programs the governor has expressed interest in can work is if we first make certain that we are teaching reading effectively, that we are using methods, techniques and materials that we know work.

Without first solving the fundamental problem, by changing the way we teach children to read, all other programs will be doomed to failure. We know the problem, we know the cause, we know the answer. All we need is the willingness and the will to take action. And we will act.

I want to express my personal gratitude and admiration for all of your dedication and commitment to the task of representing the people of your district and our wondrous state.

Have a great session. Thank you.

ADDRESS TO A JOINT SESSION OF THE WASHINGTON STATE LEGISLATURE

Speaker Gingrich: I am delighted to be here. Let me start by saying to all of you, we share a common future, that it is important to build better abilities to communicate, and we are working very hard, both with the governors and with the leaders of state legislatures, to learn how to share what works, what does not work, what the federal government is doing right, what it is doing wrong, and whether we have a common, general direction we are trying to go in. To recognize, in a country our size, that there is an enormous difference between Washington, D.C. and the state of Washington, just as there is an enormous difference between Washington, D.C. and Georgia.

And so, how do we have a common, general direction while maximizing our decentralization, maximizing local leadership and maximizing local initiatives? I want to share with you, for a few minutes if I could this morning, what we have done and where we were going. But frankly, it is exciting to me to see what you have done. You have implemented Welfare Reform in a very practical way. You have begun to take advantage of the opportunity to help people move out of poverty and into work, in what I think is a very, very important step in the right direction. You are working on Education Reform in a way that is very practical, and which is going to increase the chance of learning for all the children of this state. You recognize how much your state is connected to the world market, whether it is through Boeing or Microsoft or Weyerhaeuser or wheat farming; that, in fact, what happens in Jakarta does matter in Spokane and Seattle and Olympia and across the whole state.

We are, in a sense, entering a new era together. In the Capitol, in Washington, we tried to reach out. Let me say, first of all, I think the Western Governors' University is a very exciting project. I commend all of you who have voted to have your state participate in it; the notion that you are really now becoming pioneers for the whole country, in telecommunications, in the use of distance learning, and in making available to all citizens across an eight-state region an opportunity to share educational resources. That is a very important development, and it is ultimately going to allow you to lead, not just the United States but the entire world as people tie in and then learn from these experiences.

I also have to say that the Western States Coalition that Speaker Ballard talked about, I found last summer to be very helpful. We brought a number of eastern members out, and as you know, the West is different. It is bigger. It is more complex. In some parts of the West, water problems are dramatically different. We in Georgia never quite experience the same water situation as in Eastern Washington. We are in a situation where we have a huge surplus of water most of the time. We do not understand Western water laws compared to Eastern law.

To be in situations where we can look at the coming together of modern urban civilization, because in every Western state there are urban areas, and in fact, some of the Western states are more urbanized than some of the Eastern states in terms of the way people are, to look at that next to the environmental concerns, next to the agricultural, mining and forest concerns, to see it first hand, is important. I have already told the Speaker that I will be back, hopefully, in August for a visit to Washington state to look at the Columbia River Basin, to look at other concerns, and to get a better briefing on the issues that matter. And also to fly to Alaska, and look at our largest state and what their unique concerns are.

I commend those legislative and other leaders who began to develop a Western state coalition to talk through what we should do at the federal level to increase flexibility within a framework of still getting to a common, general direction. I think the information age, with Microsoft and many other developments here is going to give us some opportunities that are enormous. I think the world market gives us opportunities that are enormous. And as the state that houses our most successful exporter of manufactured goods, Boeing, you know how important the world market is. But I think they also offer us opportunities to work together.

One of the things I hope to do is to introduce the spirit of Peter Drucker and Edwards Demming into the whole way we think about government. Peter Drucker is the leading management consultant of the Twentieth Century, and Edwards Demming developed the concept of quality and taught that concept to the Japanese. In fact, the prize for the best company in Japan is the Demming Prize. They are really talking about a way of thinking that is a powerful, information age modernization over the bureaucratic model we have all inherited at every level. From school board, to city council, to county commission, to state government, to federal government, we have a model of structures that needs to be thoroughly rethought.

I will give you a simple example. I know this is true in Georgia; I will let you decide if it is true in Washington. My wife, Marianne, went to spend $15 last fall. She did not go to a place like Nordstroms because she waited in line an hour and a half. She was not buying Beanie Babies or some fad that justifies that. She was getting her driver's license.

I suggest to you that you have two clocks in your head. You have been acculturated to have these two clocks. One clock has a second hand and you use it every time you go into the private sector facility. When you go McDonald's, when you go to a department store, when you stand waiting to be served, there is a second hand which you watch prior to getting impatient. The second clock has fifteen-minute increments and you use it when you walk into public buildings. You will inherently wait longer and be less impatient. Now, in both experiences you are paying money. In one case, it is taken from you in taxes and in the other case it is voluntary. You are a customer in both cases. But we have allowed, over the last 50 years, the private sector to modernize, to rethink what it is doing, to maximize its customer orientation, while allowing the public sector to find excuse after excuse to avoid rethinking its development.

Part of what I hope we can do together is think through what a Twentieth Century information age, customer-oriented model of governance would look like? How would you design it? How would you staff it? How would you reward people who were effective, and retrain people who were ineffective? Or dismiss them if they refuse to learn? And how can we think that process through so that people 20 years from now have the same expectation of efficiency, customer orientation and modern performance out of the public sector that they have out of the private sector? And that would lead to a revolution in the structure of our governments.

I think it has to be done together because the truth is, and this a message I have for every state legislature as well county commissions, school boards and city councils, there are things we do in Washington D.C. which make it harder for you in Washington state to be effective. One of the things I would encourage you to do is to identify in literally every one of your legislative committees, and report back to us, those things we should change which are stopping you from modernizing the government of the state of Washington. I think I can speak for all three of the members here with me today — for Jennifer Dunn, who is now the highest-ranking elected woman legislator in the U.S. Congress as the vice-chair of our conference; for George Nethercutt, who is doing a tremendous job on the Appropriations Committee; for Linda Smith, who has been working very, very hard on reform issues — I think they would say the whole delegation is prepared to try to serve as a bridge to come back and say to us, "The following 37 laws are pretty dumb. The following 600 regulations do not work. The following micro-management is making it impossible to reform."

I want to extend to you an open door, to say we would like to learn from you, at the grass roots, what you are experiencing that you think makes it harder for you to do the job for the people of the state of Washington.

We have had an impact in the Congress. When we were sworn in in January of 1995, the Congressional Budget Office was projecting a $320 billion deficit for the year 2002. They are now projecting a $32 billion surplus. Now you are legislators. I would suggest to you that any legislative body which, in three years, can move a system from a $320 billion deficit to a $32 billion surplus has begun a process of fairly dramatic change. Some of that was the economy. But we also saved $600 billion in entitlements, we passed Welfare Reform which, as you know, has had a dramatic impact. In New York state alone there are 509,000 fewer people on welfare today than there were three years ago. They have moved from the public sector, where they were taking money from the taxpayer, to the private sector where they are paying taxes. It is been a major factor on what is happened with the budget turnaround.

Because we are committed to a balanced budget, we have lowered interest rates by at least two percentage points over what they would have been otherwise. That has had a huge effect on farming, on purchasing cars and buying houses, on paying off student loans, and on all the different things people pay interest on, including what governments pay in interest.

We think we have begun. But we have a lot to do, and a long way to go. I want to propose to you that there are four major goals, lots of things we need to do together. I could talk today about the ICE T bill in transportation, because I know it is an important issue. I could talk about a wide range of issues that matter. But I want to focus on four today. Although, before I do, I do want to commend you for your rainy day fund. I was calculating based on the size of your budget; if we had a comparable rainy day fund, it would be about $90 billion. I will let you imagine a Washington, D.C. that would allow $90 billion to sit there without having approximately $400 billion of new ideas! But I do commend you because it is the right direction and it is the way we should be moving.

I want to suggest four goals to you. First, that we become a society that focuses on being drug-free and, therefore with dramatically less violence. Second, as you are already doing, we really emphasize education and learning. Third, we have now come to a point in our history where we should talk about rethinking retirement. And fourth, that we ought to talk openly about what is the total amount of taxes the citizens should owe their government in a peacetime environment. Let me briefly talk about each. Let me be candid and say these will only work in collaboration. They will only work if we work together.

I think the number one goal we should establish is to break the back of the drug trade and the back of the drug culture. To insist that our children deserve to live in a drug-free society where they are not threatened with addiction and where they are not threatened physically. I believe, as a historian, we can do it. We have done it before. We did it in the 1920's. Other countries have done it. It is a matter of willpower, focus, resources and management.

I came today to ask you and your governor to work together to tell us, from the state of Washington, what you need from the federal government as your highest priority to enable you to have a drug-free Washington state. What do we have to do to do our share of the job? And then ask you to do your share of the job and make a genuine commitment.

I will just give you one specific statistic that I find staggering. If you are a woman, you are 27 times more likely to be killed if you are in a home with hard drugs than if you are in a drug-free home. Not 27 percent, but 27 times. That is 2700 percent more likely to be killed. And when we talk about violence in America, I do not think we can talk about the future without realizing how much of that is tied to drugs. We realize that in New York City alone, there are 32 drug-addicted babies born every week. The human and financial cost of not taking on drugs is horrendous.

We are challenging General McCaffrey to produce a World War II-style victory plan. I think we need a decisive, sharp, two- or three-year effort to break the back of the drug culture, to make it too expensive to use drugs. And to recognize that the problem is not in Colombia. The problem is not in Mexico. The problem is in the streets, the neighborhoods and the schools of America, and in the professional sports of America and among some of the rock stars of America. If we are not buying it, they are not going to be shipping it. We have an obligation to start in America to win the war on drugs — to be the model country for everyone else, to not just lecture Mexicans and Colombians on what we wish they would do because we do not have the guts to do it here at home.

If you will let us know, whether by resolution, by report, or by letter, what we need to do to help you win the war in the state of Washington, and if we can get every state legislature engaged and every state government engaged, I truly believe, in three or four years, we will be a drug-free country. And I can imagine nothing, nothing, that will do more for children's health than to be able to win the war on drugs and save them from that kind of a future.

Second, I want to pledge to you our commitment to work with you on Education Reform. I want to draw one distinction between education and learning. I think we want the best education system in the world, and I think we want the best system of learning in the world. They are not necessarily the same. Here again, I want to thank Microsoft, where I will be spending part of the afternoon studying. We have an education system that is teacher-focused. A learning system is student-focused.

We have the potential in the next decade to build a seven-day-a-week, 24-hour-a-day learning system available for a lifetime, which you can access from anywhere at anytime at your convenience and learn as much as you are capable of learning. We should make it a national goal to really encourage the development of that kind of learning system. To some extent, your Western State Governors' University is a step in that direction, but we are only scratching the surface. We have the potential for everyone to learn, and to do it at their convenience. Now, this is not a panacea. It is not a replacement for an education system. But it is an important enhancer, and it will allow us to leapfrog, not catch up, not match up with, but leapfrog the Japanese, Germans and others in providing the best system of learning in the world, which is essential if we were going to have the best economic competition in the world. Because, if you do not have good learning in the information age, you cannot produce the technology you need in order to have the best jobs in the world. So this is vital to our entire future.

In addition, we need the best education system. I favor scholarships, so that in really bad neighborhoods parents have the right to choose. But this is not going to solve the problem. Most children in America are going to learn in public schools for the rest of their lifetimes. I am a product of public schools. My wife is a product of public schools. Both of our daughters went to public school. I taught part-time when I was a college teacher. I also taught in the public high school. Most schools do pretty well. But every one of you knows that there are some schools in this state you would not send your children to, just as you know there are some schools in my state that I would not send my children to.

And here is the test for us. We say in our Declaration of Independence that we are endowed by our Creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. We have to take that passionately and apply it to education reform. This means that every child of every ethnic background in every neighborhood has been endowed by God with the right to pursue happiness. In the information age, if you are not learning how to read and write, and you are not getting an education, you are more likely to go to prison than to go to college, and you are not being given the true opportunity to pursue happiness. I think that is how we ought to approach education reform.

We ought to say first of all to a school system, let us start writing into the contract that if your school is in the bottom 20 percent in scoring, the contract does not apply any more, as of that date. Not "Let us slowly modify tenure." Not "Let us have a study commission." You would not leave your children in those schools. We have too many of our friends who are very big passionate supporters of the worst public schools, but their kids go to private school. We have too many teachers who pay the union dues and they want to make sure that we do not reform public schools; but their children go to private school. There are some big city systems where 40 percent of the public school teachers send their children to private school because they know better. We have an obligation to be passionate about this. Winston Churchill had a phrase for World War II. He would pass a note that said, "Action this day." This should be our attitude across the board to the system.

I want to suggest three reforms that are very specific. Two of them we are not going to do at the federal level, one we have to. But I am here as a citizen sharing ideas; I am not here to say we are going to mandate any.

I do want to suggest as a general principle that we should have a passionate, deep commitment to every child in American learning how to read by end of the fourth grade. We should focus overwhelmingly on learning how to read and write in the fourth grade. I am going to be very direct: we should learn how to read and write in English, because that is the commercial language of the United States, and they are having their future crippled if they cannot read and write by the fourth grade.

Second, I think that the federal government should modify the bilingual education law to make it local option. You at the state level and the school boards at the local level should have the right to decide for your children what is the most effective way to make sure that they are capable of reading and writing in English at the earliest possible time.

And third, I would really like to suggest you consider, and I say this upon the state with some trepidation, but I would like you to consider mandating that, once a year, at every grade level, a day be spent looking at the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. I say this for two reasons. First, as a historian, I actually think it is kind of good for Americans to learn how they became American. We are multi-ethnic, but we are one civilization. We are bound together by this thing of being American. We signed a contract with ourselves. We the people of the United States, we issued a declaration that says "we hold these truths to be self-evident." And if our citizens do not grow up learning these things, how can we expect America to continue?

But secondly, the Declaration says, "We are endowed by our Creator . . ." Now, I want to see the ACLU lawsuit that explains why the teacher cannot explain what the Founding Fathers meant when they used the word "Creator". I think it would be a very edifying moment in American history.

America is radically different than Europe. In the European model, power went from God to the king and was loaned to the citizens. This is why Brussels is worse than the IRS. In the European model, the citizen only has those rights loaned to them by the state. In the American model, from our opening date of our first document, we said power goes from God to the citizen, and you loan it back to the government. It is a very different model. And I just think if we spent one day a year from first grade to twelfth grade studying that model, coming into contact with the great people who created this country, we would be a healthier country. We would be a country with a better sense of where our rights come from. We would be a country with a more serious sense of why being a citizen matters. And so I want to commend that to you.

Our third goal is to look at retirement. A lot of that is federal. But I also have a proposal that I think you will find interesting at the state level. And this is very simple. We are moving from 60 years of deficit spending. We were about to move to a generation of surpluses. This is not like 1969, the last surplus. We had lots of deficits, one year of surplus, and then lots of deficits. If we were disciplined in Washington, and if we avoid war, we will be in a position to have twenty or thirty years of surpluses.

This gives us for the first time a chance to talk seriously about retirement, to recognize that Social Security is a very powerful and tremendous system developed in 1925 when there were no computers. But Social Security is neither personal nor modern. In fact, in one study that Congressman Mark Sanford of South Carolina put out, he looked at his 20-year-old son. He said, "You know, Einstein was asked, 'What is the most powerful thing in the universe?' And he said, 'Compound interest.' If you simply take the FICA tax a 20-year-old will pay today and invest their FICA tax over their lifetime, in an average market basket investment, not buying Microsoft when it is young, but an average market basket investment, they will make $975,000 for their retirement. If you give them the current government payment, they will make $175,000. So, we are condemning 20-year-olds to lose $800,000 by the way we have designed the system.

I am proposing a National Commission on Retirement, made up of one-third baby boomers, one-third older than baby boomers, and one-third younger than baby boomers. I suggest to my colleagues in the House and Senate that they set up a citizens committee in their district tied in by the Internet to the National Commission. I think we ought to look at the totality, because I believe that by using a good part of the surpluses intelligently, we can make the transition to a personal, modern social security system, tied into the development of better pensions and tied into the development of better savings. And we can leave our children and grandchildren a dramatically better retirement in a much wealthier country with a much higher savings rate with much lower interest rates and much more capital investment. And that is a much healthier America in the future.

And I know it takes some courage for elected officials to raise the issue, but I just think we are at a magic moment of transition. I believe the grandparents, as long as they are secure in getting the current system, will want their grandchildren to have the best possible future. And I believe we can have an honest, adult, dialogue about this without the kind of mudslinging and the kind of 30-second commercials that so badly weaken our political structures. So, I encourage you to look at it, to offer us advice, but I also encourage you to look at the state program. I do not know the details of your program, but I will tell you that Michigan has now adopted a new, personal pension system that vests within two years, where the new employees are controlling their own money in a way that is a very dramatic departure from the way we have done pensions in the last 60 years.

Finally, I want to ask a very touchy question, and you are the first group of legislators I have done this with. So I will be very curious to see your reaction after I leave and you no longer have to be polite because I am around. I want to raise a serious question: In peacetime, in a free society, how much should your government be allowed to take from you?

I was fascinated when I read Paul Johnson's new History of the American People. He is a former socialist in Britain turned conservative and he has written a wonderful history of the American people. And he said that in 1775, we were probably the lowest-taxed people in the history of the world and we hated every penny. And he said we were so grateful that we were so low-taxed as to say, "How come you need this?" And the part about how much freedom, in part, is a function of how much time you have. How much money do you have? Not how much does your government have to give to you. How much do you have? And it turns out that when you study it that the American people said for forty years that they believe, in peacetime, the most their government should take from them is 25 percent. We currently - federal, state and local - take 38.

And what I would like to propose is that we set as a goal over the next ten to fifteen years to get to 25 percent taxation. The feds currently take about 22 percent. I propose we go down to 14 percent. So we lose 8 percent. State and local currently takes about 16 percent; I propose state and local goes down to about 11 percent. So we will drop by more than you will have to drop. But, I think it is fair for you to come back to us and say, "Fine, how about block-granting education money rather than having 700 little programs? How about dropping this kind of red tape?" I think it is a two-way dialogue.

But, if we take Demming and Drucker; if we are prepared to prioritize, modernize, downsize and privatize, we can create, over the next ten to fifteen years, a country where people have more take-home pay, a better retirement system, a lifetime learning system, and an education system that either works or is changed rapidly when it starts to fail. People will be competitive in the world market, having the highest technology and the greatest entrepreneurship to produce the best goods, giving us the highest incomes with the greatest economic security and the capacity to lead the world.

Yes, this is big. Yes, it is a lot. But, frankly, the Contract With America was pretty different when we started and I am very proud that at the key moment in the fall of 1994, we bought a two-page ad in TV Guide that did not attack anybody, did not have any pictures. It just said, "You hire us and we will try to do these ten things." And I think the time has come as citizens, across the board in both parties, to talk about for the next generation, "What are the goals worth doing? Let us work together to do it."

I accept fully the responsibility today that I have come here and said, you come up with ideas on the drug war; we have to listen to you and at least try to help. You come up with what we need to do to get out of your way in education; we have an obligation to listen and try to help. You tell us what we are doing wrong about pensions that make your job harder, let us know. And you tell us how you think we should change federal pension law. It would be very helpful and we would listen to you.

And finally, if we are going to get there together, we have an obligation both to shrink the federal government and to shrink the burden the federal government imposes on you. But, I think for our citizens, the America I just described would be a vastly better place.

And let me just close with this thought. Every time I come out here, I have to tell you, I just love coming to this state. I think part of it relates to the fact that I was here — some of you will be able to identify this — a few years ago on a stopover and went down to the fish market and bought a geoduck and took it to my mother-in-law, who promptly chopped it up and made stew out of it. But, only her nephews were very confused by what kind of products you all send around the world. I have to say, also, that I just brought back a very wonderful salmon that they identified with much more immediately and ate immediately.

But, it is a fabulous state. You sort of have this sense, I always have this sense, when I come here what Lewis and Clark must have felt. As an easterner, when I fly in and look out at Mt. Rainier, when I look out at Puget Sound, when I see the weather, even on rare days like yesterday — again, for a Georgian, it was very exciting — I think we lose, sometimes, the romanticism of what this country is about. This country is a romance. This country has the most magical way of saying to the whole planet, "I do not care what your background is, I do not care what your religion is, I do not care what your ethnicity is. If you have a big enough dream and you are willing to pursue it, come to America and try it out." And the result has been to put together the most exciting opportunities for people in the history of the world.

This is a great country filled with good people and given a chance to achieve remarkable things. I believe we can work together in a partnership — not us dictating to you — but in a partnership. And we can give our children and grandchildren an even greater America with an even greater future. And through that, we can give the entire human race an opportunity to live in freedom and prosperity and safety.

Thank you for honoring me by allowing me to come here today. Thank you.

STATE OF THE STATE ADDRESS

Governor Locke: Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Madam Chief Justice, distinguished Justices of the Supreme Court, statewide elected officials, members of the Washington State Legislature, other elected officials, members of the consular Corps, and fellow citizens.

Few Governors have been lucky enough to walk up to this podium to deliver a state-of-the state address in such good times as these. A sustained period of economic growth is creating more jobs than ever before, and bringing greater hope an opportunity to a growing population. Our unemployment rate is the lowest since 1966. We are delighted by new orders at Boeing, and by the growth of our high-tech and bio-tech industries. Were proud that the two key ideas of education reform--higher academic standards, and hold our schools accountable for results rather than following regulations are finally taking root. We continue to be blessed by the abundance of our wheat fields and orchards. And our state is a beautiful as ever. The majesty and mystery of our coastline, our forests, and mountain ranges and an our rivers remind us that our blessing are truly beyond counting.

Even more encouraging, there is a growing sense that we are entering a time of moral renewal--a time when more and more Americans are coming home to the values of service to others, respect for our elders, and sacrifice for our children.

But this is no time to rest on our laurels, or to assume that our economic good luck will last forever.

This 55th legislature is the last of a fading century. The next legislature, which will serve from 199 through 2001, will have one foot in the old millennium, and one foot in the new. So this is truly a year to think about the legacy we have received, and to ask ourselves 'what legacy will be leave?' How will our children and grandchildren look back upon our work?

In my office, this idea of legacy was brought home in a powerful and tragic way last week. Kerry Husseman, a Deputy Director of the Department of Ecology, was outlining strategies to save salmon when--in the middle of a sentence--his life suddenly ended. Terry was a brilliant attorney who, with patience, wisdom and courage, helped launch the clean--up at Hanford, protect the public from toxic and nuclear waste, heal the relationship between state and tribal governments, and preserve our clean water. Like other state employees, his legacy was built day by day over the course of years of quiet devotion to the common good.

We most honor his memory--and the memory of the countless thousands of other citizens and public servants who have given their lives in service to others--by living up to the standard of excellence they set for all of us. And we must start right now without delay.

As the 21st century draws closer, our vision of what we want it to become clearer. We want a century in which all our children get the very best education.--

- * A century in which economic prosperity benefits everyone, in every corner of our state;
- * A century in which our rivers and streams are alive with fish;
- * A century in which families are strong, neighbors look out for each other, and senior citizens are honored and cared for; and;
- * A century in which a growing population protects and cherishes the cleanliness of our air and the open spaces that nourish our spirits.

We cannot realize this vision if we let today's economic abundance make us complacent, selfish, or shortsighted. In spite of the rosy glow of today's economy, we have urgent problems that just can't wait--the problems of our working families, our schools, our roads, and our rivers.

We cannot just coast into the 21st century.

That's why, even though this is a short legislative session, I want to work with the legislature, state employees, and the citizens of this state to tackle these problems.

The test that all our work must pass is the test of time. And solutions that stand the test of time can only be crafted when everyone participates.

The days when the response to every problem was a new government program are behind us. That strategy didn't work. When government promised more than it could ever deliver, the result was a disillusioned public, and problems that continued to get worse instead of better. Worse yet, relying on government alone to solve our problems diminished the importance of citizenship, and the value of personal responsibility. That's the trend we must reverse before this century ends.

And that's why the proposal I'm submitting to the legislature are not government programs, but partnerships between citizens, schools, business, labor, and government at every level. Creating these partnerships--and restoring the central role of responsible citizenship--is both our most urgent challenge, and our most promising route to real solutions.

The first and most important partnership must be to accelerate the improvement of our public schools.

Last fall, we received the first test results that tell us how well our fourth-graders are measuring up to our rigorous new academic standards. LESS THAN HALF OF OUR FOURTH-GRADERS MET OUR STANDARD IN READING. Now those kids are in fifth grade. And it's not enough to tell their parents that our schools will do better with next year's first and second graders. Last year's fourth-graders need help now--and so do this year's second, third and fourth-graders.

That's why I'm proposing that we create the Washington Reading Corps. Instead of just giving the schools more money and telling them to fix the problems, this investment is designed to give teachers and principals the resources they need to mobilize their communities. The goal of this program is to recruit twenty-five thousand volunteer tutors across the state, and to have teachers train them to tutor 82,000 second through fifth graders in reading. We know that tutoring works, and that children need individualized attention. And we know that if children fail at reading in the early grades, it's unlikely they will ever catch up.

We also have a promise to keep: the promise that we would move heaven and earth to help every student master our new, higher academic standards. That's why it's so important--and so urgent--that we bring together children who are learning to sound out words with volunteer tutors who will listen to them, and praise them when they do it right. That's how a lifetime of success gets started, and how a lifetime of frustration and failure is averted.

But even though school need more parent and community involvement to succeed, we must not forget that the foundation of our schools is the profession of teaching. And that's why I am also proposing new and significant incentives for excellence in teaching.

All teachers are not the same.

So isn't it time to encourage our teachers to strive for excellence, and to reward them when they achieve it? Our best teachers will be able to earn more if this legislature will agree to my proposal to reward them for meeting the rigorous test of national certification, which requires high levels of competency and classroom skill.

I am also proposing a scholarship program to attract our best and brightest young people to the teaching profession. I want to provide scholarships to 100 outstanding college students in return for their commitment to teach in our public schools.

And it's time we made it easy for mid-career or retiring professionals to become teachers. To do that, I'm proposing a fast-track route into the classroom by giving people credit for what they already know, and making the courses necessary for teaching more convenient and accessible. Mid-career professionals and retirees shouldn't have to attend four years of college to become teachers.

And isn't it also time to give parents, teachers, and citizens the power to create charter schools? Two years ago, many of us urged voters to reject a charter school ballot measure because it was flawed. Last year, bipartisan cooperation and citizen involvement fixed those flaws, and a charter school bill passed the House, but not the Senate. This year, I want to sign charter school legislation that promotes innovation and community involvement in public education.

This last legislature of the 20th century must throw open the doors and windows of our public schools to the fresh air and new ideas that charter schools will provide.

At the dawn of the 21st century, our new communication technologies can bring learning opportunities to both children and adults in even the remotest corners of our state. Later this month, a new electronic learning network will come to life, linking many school and universities. Now we must connect all our schools to that network--and even more important, we must train our educators to make the best use of it.

Our second partnership--a partnership between workers, their employers, and the state--is devoted to creating a better life for Washington's working families.

In the last several years, we have given tax cuts to businesses to encourage them to expand, to modernize and to invest in new equipment. Those targeted tax cuts were necessary and effective--and we're proposing more of them, to help small businesses establish themselves and grow.

But now our businesses ought to invest in their most previous asset: their employees.

Working families--especially those at the lower end of the pay scale--have an equal right to benefit from our good economic times.

Many businesses report that they invest thousand of dollars training people for very technical jobs, only to lose them when they start a family and can't afford child care. And many businesses are having such a hard time finding trained workers that they're recruiting people from out of state.

I want Washington jobs to be for Washingtonian.

So I'm proposing tax credits to family-friendly businesses that invest in child care or job training for their employees. And I'm calling for expanding enrollments in our community and technical college, so that people can learn new skills and climb the career ladder.

And isn't it time to help working families realize the American dream of owning a home? Despite low interest rates, many families just can't save enough money for a down payment, or have a hard time making monthly mortgage payments. That's why I've proposed a partnership with banks to help first-time home buyers.

To benefit working families, I'm also asking for a $35 cut in the tax we pay when we renew the license tabs on our cars.

The working people of Washington's distressed rural communities especially need our help. While the unemployment rate in King County is 2.9 percent, the unemployment rate in Columbia County is over 15 percent.

The is absolutely unacceptable.

None of us was elected to preside over two Washingtons--one urban and prosperous, and the other rural and poor. We were elected to lead one Washington, indivisible, with hope and economic opportunity for all. So I am asking this legislature to expand tax incentives that encourage businesses to locate and grow outside the central I-5 corridor.

This legislature must also honor another partnership: the partnership between ourselves and our parents and grandparents. In the budget passed last year, we underestimated the demand for home care for our seniors, and that's something we simply must fix. I'm asking the legislature to approve additional funding for the services that seniors need to live in their own homes rather than in nursing homes.

This is the very least we can do to express our respect for our elders, our appreciation for the lifetime of hard work and sacrifice, and our gratitude for the values they taught us.

There's something else we must do if our work this year is to stand the test of time--and that's to protect our ability to generate economic growth by investing in our transportation system.

Gridlock on our freeways will cause gridlock in our economy if we don't act now. Already our ports are losing their competitive advantage, because once goods leave our docks, they get stuck in traffic.

Too many working people spend far too many hours on the freeway rather than at home with their families.

And that's not the worst of it. The worst of it is that all across the state, the number of unsafe highways, bridges and intersections is growing.

That's why I'm proposing a balanced funding package to repair, maintain and unclog our transportation system;

We need two and half billion dollars worth of critical improvements in the next five years. And we need to come up with that amount without hurting education or other vital services. I don't see any way to do that without a gas tax increase. I know it's politically unpopular, but it's the right thing to do.

On this issue, once again, I am asking for partnership--a partnership of Democrats and Republicans--to create a lasting, long-term solution.

The final partnership I want to talk about today is to save our salmon.

For longer than human beings can remember, wild salmon have spawned in our rivers and streams, found their way to the sea, and then made that heroic, upstream journey home to start the cycle over again. Throughout the 20th century, wild salmon runs have dwindled, in large part because of dams, culverts and other obstacles that prevent them from swimming upstream; because of polluted water, or because so much water has been diverted from streams that there's not enough left for the fish.

These are problems that people have created, and problems that people can solve.

But we cannot wait. In fact, we've already waited too long. And the result of our procrastination is that our salmon and steelhead are dying out.

If we don't act now, the federal government and federal judges will take this issue out of our hands. And we will lose local control over our use of land and water. The water salmon depend on is also the water that we need for irrigation, industry, electricity, transportation, and domestic use. That's why, to jump-start the process of restoring and protecting our streams and rivers, we must forge new partnerships between landowner, irrigators, tribal governments, local and state governments and citizen volunteers.

Saving our salmon is not optional. It is our sacred duty--to our ancestors, and to our children and their children--to act now, before our salmon are gone forever.

All of the proposals I've described promote partnerships--between citizens and government, between workers and employers, and between Democrats and Republicans.

And all of these proposals challenge us to remember that every day of our lives is a precious gift--an unrepeatable opportunity to create the legacy for which we will be remembered.

And all of these proposals call us to realize our vision for the 21st century--a vision of great schools, growing opportunity, healthy rivers teeming with fish, clean air, strong families and honored elders, all bound together by a renewed sense of community and a powerful ethic of personal responsibility.

These proposals don't add up to a Democratic agenda, or a Republican agenda, or a government agenda.

There is a Washington state agenda.

This is an agenda for all of us--for every citizen of every walk of life, of every color of the rainbow, and of every age. And this is an agenda we can only achieve by working together to revitalize the spirit of unity, and the practice of good citizenship.

As I have traveled around this state in the past year, I have seen hundreds of promising signs that a renaissance of active citizenship is beginning to take root. It is a part of that wave of moral renewal and rededication to the values that made this country great.

Let me introduce you to a few of the people who exemplify this renaissance.

Meet Joyce Derlacki and Betty and Burt Block, three of the senior citizen volunteers I met at Phantom Lake Elementary School in Bellevue. These citizens volunteer in the school to help Moises Oritz and Prese Peseta and their classmates learn to read--and then the seniors stay after school and learn how to use computers.

From Spokane, I want you to meet Lore Hannes, who tutors first-grade readers--and Dal Beeman, a Dad who works nights, and volunteers with kindergartners and first graders when he gets off work in the morning.

From Vancouver, we have with us Jason Adams, a football star at Fort Vancouver High School who reads to second graders twice a week--and Alvarao Angel, a retired radio and TV broadcaster who tutors and mentors bilingual students.

I'd also like you to meet some people who are heroes to our salmon.

In Yakima, science teacher Kent Wilkinson and students Sami Dinsmore, Ryan Erlwine, Kaytla Eirich and Laura Bodine are restoring Wide Hollow Creek, and they've brought fish back to a creek that had been barren for this entire century.

And from Skagit County, I'd like you to meet John Hocking, a developer who donated a 12-acre wetland to the city of Mt. Vernon--Arn Thoreen, a commercial fisherman who helped form the Skagit Watershed Council--Sammy Elix and Keith Hewitt, two of the Job Corps participants who worked to restore the wetland and the creek they feed--and Kurt Buchanan, their partner from the Department of Fish and wildlife.

When I visited this group at Bakerview Creek last summer, they showed me coho salmon fingerlings flourishing where none had for many years.

Those tiny, fragile-fish prove the life-giving power of cooperative partnerships and active citizenship. Those fingerlings show that when citizens act together--and when government helps bring them together--our best values can solve our most difficult problems.

Those fingerlings will mature and return to our rivers in the new millennium.

And in that new millennium, our children, too, will come of age, and inherit the legacy that we are creating today.

So I want to end by asking everyone in this room to stand with these citizens who are showing us the way to a worthy legacy.

I ask all of you--every citizen, and every public servant--to stand and together make a pledge:

I ask that each of us pledge to put aside self-interest, join as partners, and transform our vision for the coming century into a legacy that will stand the test of time.

I ask that each of us renew our commitment to active citizenship and the practice of personal responsibility

And I ask that each of us strive, in the year ahead, to contribute to the renaissance of those simple, timeless values of service to others, respect for our elders, and sacrifice for our children.

Thank you very much.

The President requested the Special Committee to escort the State elected officials from the House Chamber.

The President requested the Special Committee to escort the Supreme Court Justices from the House Chamber.

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE

NOTICE: Formatting and page numbering in this document may be different from that in the original published version.

EIGHTH DAY

AFTERNOON SESSION

House Chamber, Olympia, Monday, January 19, 1998

The House was called to order at 1:30 p.m. by the Speaker. The Clerk called the roll and a quorum was present.

The flag was escorted to the rostrum by a Sergeant at Arms Color Guard, Pages Evan Yett and Vernon Mitchell. Prayer was offered by Pastor Terry Thomas, Emmanuel Apostolic Church, Bellingham.

Poet and author Dr. Mona Lake Jones read a poem in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday.

All over this magnificent state of Washington where the green grass and trees glisten and the cool fresh water lakes are tucked among the hills and the valleys are fertile and the deserts reside in their beauty.....

In Washington, a state of wheat fields bending in the breeze and orchards often having trees pregnant with fruit waiting to be delivered to somebody's market.....

In this state, home of the snow peaked Cascade and Olympic mountain ranges sheltering our cities from the Chinook winds and cold winter storms.....

Here in Washington, with its salmon filled rivers and the mighty Pacific buffeting our shores and being calmed and quieted in our inlets and sounds.....

We are blessed with both the diverse contours of our state and the beauty in the diversity of the people who live here. These are the people you represent, people contributing to the greatness of the state of Washington.

Martin Luther King's dream was that we celebrate our cultures and realize the strength that comes from the exercise of lifting others.

If Martin were here, he would tell us that it is not your race or your ethnicity that makes a woman or a man meet the challenges at hand. It is looking from the inside out. That's what the dream is all about.

If Martin were here, he would prompt us to act on our good intentions and to remember that kindness is magnetic. It draws out the best in others.

If Martin were here, he would insist the homeless have a home, the hungry be fed and that the sick would have the kind of health care offering them the best chance at being well.

Martin would want all of Washington's residence to enjoy the goodness of life and act kindly one towards another, regardless of who they are.

This is not just a day to reflect on the dream but to on act on it. That means that we here in Washington may need to rethink and recommit to the dream. Perhaps you will have to.

*Put a period in your life and make a fresh start
Exercise your mind and open up your heart*

*Don't be afraid to take the chance to make a different turn
Just imagine all that is yet ahead and the opportunities to learn*

*Plan away to use your talents to create a better earth
Let the outcomes of your efforts show how much you are worth*

*Then once you have decided to move with a different stride
Just knowing how far you've come will make you walk with pride*

*For when you have a vision and you know you're doing right
And hold on to your convictions and keep the dream in sight*

You can experience the joy in our differences!

If Martin were here, he would preach a sermon or provide an oration to help us understand how to reach the dream.

But Martin is not here and so you in the Washington State Legislature must be the ones to continue his legacy. He has set the stage and drawn the curtain inviting you to insure his dream of fairness, inclusion and respect!

Good Afternoon!

SPEAKER'S PRIVILEGE

Mr. Speaker: I wish to take a personal privilege and share a couple of pieces of information with the members. We will be having a Medal of Merit honor ceremony in the next few weeks. One of the people chosen to receive the medal of Merit, which is one of the highest honors the State of Washington can bestow upon a citizen, was Stanley McNaughton. Unfortunately, Stanley passed away before he could receive that award. I mentioned to some people who knew him well, that I was disappointed, I would have appreciated letting him know that the people respected him for all he has done. I would like to share just one story, and we probably will be getting more when we have the award ceremonies because his family will still receive the award.

It is a story of an employee who was working for PEMCO Corporation. The employee had an accident and ended up paralyzed. A lot of employers would say, 'Well, you have insurance and you have this and you have that.' Stanley McNaughton went to the individual while he was in the hospital and said, "The first thing I want to tell you is not to worry. Your job is still there, your family is taken care of, don't worry". Then they purchased a van and gave it to him. It was especially equipped after he was out of the hospital so he could communicate. This was several years ago and they set up a work station so this individual would be able to continue his employment. I'm sure as a bottom line decision, that decision did not pencil out. But I think that Stanley McNaughton was not in the bottom line financial. Stanley McNaughton was in the bottom line people. It reminded me that we need to say thank you to those people we appreciate on a daily basis because we never know when we are going to lose that opportunity.

MOTION

Representative Lisk moved that the remarks of Representatives Thompson, Murray, Sheahan and Appelwick on Engrossed Substitute House Bill No. 1130 be spread upon the Journal. The motion was adopted.

Remarks on Engrossed Substitute House Bill No. 1130 by selected members of the House of Representatives:

"Representative Thompson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker and members of the Legislature. We did not come on this debate lightly. We have discussed this with legal counsel, both in the Legislative arena and outside of Olympia. The consensus is that until we have for ourselves as a State what the definition of marriage should be, we leave ourselves open to the laws of other states. More specifically in Hawaii and more recently now in Vermont, we have pending court decisions that could require that marriage between couples of the same sex would be legal. Our current law which prohibits same gender marriage is based on appellate court ruling in 1974 which said that limited to one man and one woman did not violate the constitution and the court recognized the traditional practice of law.

This bill also has the referendum to go to the people. As you know, we passed a similar bill last year and the Governor vetoed it. We think that the people of Washington State should have the opportunity to make this decision rather than the judge in another state. But I just said that there is law so why is the need for this bill? We have all read in the newspaper the question when asked of Governor Locke why do we need this bill?, and he says 'we don't we already have a law'. So I think it is important that we explain just briefly what the law is that we have. The current law is not a Supreme Court law and in effect actually does not cover the whole state as law. It is an appellate court decision in the First Division, the First Division covers from King County north, west of the Cascades. The Second Division counties include Pierce County and south to the Columbia River and then the Third Division is Eastern Washington. What I have been told is that although this does have the force of law in the First Division, it does not have the force of law in the other two Divisions although it would be strongly be taken into consideration on any ruling that we have. What we have to do in this case is to make sure that we get this in statute. Right now this subject is silent in statute. Even though there is clear historical intent as recognized by the Appellate Court we are currently one court decision away from having a decision dictated to us by a judge that could be either in Hawaii or now Vermont and as time passes maybe even other states.

This bill is necessary because the laws that define marriage in our society our important. And they should clearly articulate our desired policy. Ambiguity only invites lawsuits. We are law makers and we should make the laws that the citizens of Washington State want and this is an opportunity to let them take part in it. If we look at the law that the Governor is referring to from the Appellate Court let's say just for example that court or that law or that ruling was made by the Supreme Court. In Washington State then that would be a law covering the total state. But still there is one problem: this does not cover the situation with full faith and credits in the situation reciprocity with other states. We can say that you could not get a same gender marriage in Washington State but we have nothing to say that you couldn't go to another state and get a same gender marriage or some other marriage that exceeds beyond what our law is and then come to Washington State and we would have to accept it. We already have a precedence in this case whether we have common law marriage - you can't get a common law marriage in Washington State but we accept it from other states. We currently accept all marriages from all other states. This is something that now we have to clarify. This bill gives us that clear statutory policy. It does basically two things: it says number one we define marriage as a contract between one man and one woman. That is basically it. But then two it says that we will not honor any marriages from other states even though they might be legal in other states if they don't meet this requirement of one man and one woman. If we fail to act on this debate, we will continue to have the problems and it will open up a lot of difficulties with legality. This is a situation we need to be clear about, it is probably going to be contested. It is a very serious issue. But at the least rather than to turn this over to a judge of another state, we need to be clear in what we do and I believe we need to give this opportunity to the people of the state. Let them speak. This is a serious issue. But it is something that we must deal with and I think that now is the time. We worked on this for three years and we should be able to make our decision and move forward.

You know one of the things I noticed in the debate that we had last year - there was great concern actually on both sides but it was in the debate on the other side of the aisle that there was great concern about violence. One of the situations we have right now were we have the ability of hindsight that they didn't have at that time was to look at some of the cases that were actually used in the debate. And although they were violent, and things that none of us want to happen, there were other parts of the story that weren't clear at time. These were all initially identified in the news media as hate crimes against homosexuals. And it is not to say that there aren't any. But in one case it was brought up where two lesbians were shot, were murdered because of their lesbian relationship. Later on though we found out when they caught the people that actually did it, that is was a robbery. This individual had forced them to write a large check to him and then as he stated if he didn't kill them they would have canceled the check. Two other situations were very tragic where two homosexuals were killed with a fire bomb in Oregon. When they finally caught the people that did it, it turned out that it was apparently some type of drug or gang related situation and unfortunately the homosexuals were not the target. It was other people that were involved in a problem that had actually started that morning. But it was not because of a hate crimes specifically against homosexuals. The incident that was explained in Tacoma where two homosexuals were talking about their condo had been trashed and they had a lot of goods stolen. It was later actually found that they had done it themselves to collect the insurance and in fact a lot of the things that were supposedly stolen were found in storage. I could go on but we looked at every incident that was brought up last year and time after time we found that there was a little bit more to the story. I think that probably one of the final things is the initiative that we just ran last year, 677 which was pretty much overwhelmingly rejected by the people. And this was a case where the homosexual community went out and got the signatures and put the initiative on the ballot. They did it the right way but I'm especially proud of the people of Washington State because the issue was handled in a very rational and reasonable way. The arguments were made but there was absolutely no violence. Certainly this the intent on what we are doing right now. We do not want any violence that is certainly not our intent but we feel that marriage is extremely important.

I believe that people that say that we have more important things to do and we shouldn't even be wasting time on this are short sighted. Marriage and the family are the basic unit of society and civilizations that have varied from that foundation have failed. In a quick summation, please let this vote go to the people so that the people of Washington State can make this decision and we are not caught in a situation on reciprocity or full faith and credits where we are forced to accept something that happens in another state.

Thank you.

Representative Sheahan: Thank you Mr. Speaker. Members of the House. Before any of us were born, before we were a State, a territory, a nation marriage was a cotenant relationship between a man and woman. We have carried that tradition into the state of Washington up until this time. This bill isn't about an assault on a group of people or of a lifestyle. This bill is about upholding that institution of marriage. This bill is about who decides if there is going to be change to that institution. Should a decision be made by an unelected judge in another state for example Hawaii or Vermont or should the decision be made by those of us here in this State. If the people who disagree with this bill, if the people who feel that homosexual marriage should be allowed in this State, they have every right to petition the Legislature, they have every right to seek an initiative on the ballot, to change that.

The key is that the decision is ours, the decision should not be forced upon us by people in another state. The fine gentleman who spoke previously (Representative Constantine) talked about the legal issues involved. Clearly there is an Appellate Court decision that gives us some guidance on this issue. But it is not controlling. The Supreme Court of this State has not made a decision on this issue. We could have another case in another appellant division in this State that could decide the issue in the opposite way and then it would go to the Supreme Court. It is important if we are going to keep control of this issue that we put the language into the statute into the law that guides the courts. There have been court decisions in the past couple of years where certain justices of the Supreme Court have said that if an issue is brought before the Legislature, even if it fails that that can be brought into play when we look at legislative intent. So it is important to realize that Supreme Court is looking at what we do and it is looking at what we don't do as well. So the key here is to make sure that we have the statute in law, that we are very clear of what we want to accomplish, we are very clear of what the traditions have been and that we are very clear that we want to have control of the issue. Again if anyone wants to change what has been the tradition for hundreds and thousands of years, this does not take away their right to do that. But it should be our decision not someone from another state.

Thank you Mr. Speaker.

Representative Murray: Thank you Mr. Speaker. I actually have two speeches I could give on this bill, the first one would be short, it would go something like this: Some of my friends are for this issue and some of my friends are against this issue. And I am with my friends on this issue.

But on a serious note, we heard from the member from the 34th District describe in great detail that this bill neither deals with the issue of changing current law because current law says I cannot marry my partner nor does it deal with the issue of preventing me from going to some future mythical state and getting married and come back into the State of Washington. So then why are we for the third year in a row, debating a bill that does nothing. The reasons are many, as many as there are people in this chamber today. There are members from both parties in this chamber who simply believe that tradition dictates that marriage is between a man and a woman. They have indicated to me, again members from both parties, that if given the opportunity they would vote for domestic partnership benefits for same sex couples but they would not vote for marriage. I can respect that position although I disagree with it. There are those in this chamber, again in both parties, who will vote this bill simply because they have heard from their constituents that they are tired of the money, the time and the energy that has put into this bill and the failure to address the issues that very effect their lives. I can understand that. A lot of my constituents feel the same way.

Regrettably, there are those who view this piece of legislation as an instrument of hate. This year we did not hear that in our committee hearings but we did hear it again from members on the radio, on TV, and in the newspapers. Again we heard an attack on the lesbian and gay citizens of this State, again we heard them demonized. We have heard a member of this body suggest that we should take homosexuals and put them on a boat and ship them out of the country. The prime sponsor, in promoting this bill, has said that lesbians and gays should be sent off to be re-programmed as heterosexuals. Again, as I have said in the past, this Legislature has been used not to discuss the institution of marriage but instead to malign this lesbian and gay citizens of this State. Again by accusations of child molestations, depravity, and vulgar discussions of sexual acts that have no place in fact and should have no place in this Legislature. The sponsor of this bill as recently as two nights ago suggested that I be re-programmed. And has used Christian scripture to condemn gays and lesbians. I am a Roman Catholic. And I must point out to you that statement of Roman Catholic Bishops of the United States who have said "Homosexual orientation is experienced as a given not as something freely chosen. By itself therefore homosexual orientation cannot be considered sinful for morality presumes a freedom to choose."

It is not the place of the sponsor of this bill to use it insidiously to dictate to myself or my church what my religious are and what actions I should take. Instead the whole discussion of what a religion chooses to do should not be dictated by this body but should be decided by the temples, synagogues and churches of this State.

Mr. Speaker, to those who have suggested that lesbians and gays be placed on a boat and sent out of this country, I have something to say. My grandparents came on a boat, a fairly horrendous boat from Ireland to this country to escape persecution. My father fought and was wounded in the Second War World. My partner's father fought in the 442nd during the Second War World, the most decorated unit of that war in this country. They did not fight countries that wanted to re-program and transport people off to other places to have their sons have this directed at them.

And I must say on a personal note because I am the only member of this Legislature that is effected by this piece of legislation, I have to say something about families because ultimately this bill is an attack on families of Washington State. Again I want to talk about my family. Immigrated from Ireland, settled and logged Grays Harbor County. My partner's families, immigrated from Japan, settled and built the railroads in Spokane County. What makes us so different, what makes us so horrendous that we can not be entitled to the same rights and privileges of other citizens of this State. We learned something from those hard but loving immigrants, we learned to be proud, we learned to fight, we learned never to back down. And our families have joined us in this fight and I know someday in this State, in my native state, in my partner's native state, that we will be married.

Finally, I would encourage the Washington State Legislature instead of vilifying gay and lesbian citizens that again to listen to the Roman Catholic Bishops who have said "Human rights for homosexual persons are to be respected and defended. All of us must strive to eliminate any form of injustice, oppression, or violence against them." I urge you to vote no on this bill.

Thank you.

Representative Appelwick: Thank you Mr. Speaker. Ladies and Gentlemen. I am troubled about where this debate hasn't gone. I want to speak about two things: the marriage issue and the referendum issue. I don't believe this issue has a place on the ballot. I believe it is divisive, I believe it is very emotional, I believe it is very negative, I believe it is even hateful. If you believe the issue is right or wrong, face it here. Don't duck your elective responsibility and go lobbying it off.

Secondly, I want to be critical. I think that many people here have been very inattentive and I think that this is one of those handful of issues that require more respect than has been shown today. I want to take the issue one step farther. I think the issue and I speak for myself and not for my caucus or for anyone else, this issue is going one hundred and eighty degrees the wrong way. The bill in front of us should be to legalize marriages between gay men and each other, and lesbian women and each other.

A little history. I want to go back a couple of centuries. Women were property. The state did not have to license marriages because men gave them away. Children were property. Well, our thinking is a little more modern today isn't it? I come to this country - We throw religious freedom around in a very casual way. The reality is that there was a time when the lady from the 13th making a statement about being a Roman Catholic could have gotten her imprisoned. We've come a long way, haven't we? African Americans in this country were property. They could not get a license to get married because they weren't human. We've come a long way. The lady from Tacoma (Regala) spoke of her interracial marriage - maybe when you say interracial you don't immediately think of her husband and her. You maybe think of African American and a White. That marriage was illegal in this country, it was illegal here from 1691 to 1967. It was wrong, it threatened marriage, it threatened wholesome religious people. But we've come a long way finally.

And here we stand with another step that needs to be taken. Homosexuality is not learned, it is not taught to your children, it is not a threat to you individually or to me or to our children or to our churches. The marriage statutes of this State require no one get married. They require no church to administer a marriage to anyone holding a license from this State. The sacrament is available from the church at the church's discretion to those that it believes are ready and appropriate. Had we a bill in front of us that required us to issue marriage licenses from the state to homosexual couples it would not cause any church to have to administer that marriage and give a sacrament. Because we have religious freedom. It would require the judges in this State administer that oath. So what is the State's interest in this license anyway? We can't cause a marriage and we can't prevent a marriage. Even without a license a church can marry people and recognize them before God and the church community. That is a very clear doctrine. We issue licenses to people who don't believe in God. We issue licenses to convicted felons. We issue licenses to convicted sex offenders. We issue licenses to Muslims, to Agnostics, to Atheists, to Protestants, to Catholics, to Mormons. Pick a denomination. Interfaith marriages were extremely taboo just twenty and thirty years ago. We've come a long way.

The reason the State issues a license has to do with things the State has an interest in. Genetic damage due to incest - is that a problem in gay marriages? I don't think so. The lineage of children in child support and custody? I don't think so. Gays and lesbians now who have their own genetic children or who adopt, those laws adequately cover them. The third reason has to do with recognizing monogamous relationships and affirming relationships. Does that apply? Yeah! We all believe that monogamy and loyalty and fidelity are important. We have heard it in debates about spreading diseases. We have heard it in debates about morality. And there is no difference between monogamy and loyalty in a gay marriage or a heterosexual marriage. And why not affirm that if it has no religious significance. It doesn't require a church, your church or mine, or any church to recognize it. And the fourth issue is property and that is really the State's interest. And it is the second interest in the gay community. Because on heterosexual couples we confirm community property rights which means the property transfers on death automatically. We provide pension succession rights. Insurance benefits for health and life insurance. And there are also Federal tax benefits and consequences. And so we say, you can be a monogamous heterosexual couple and you will have these benefits because you live together and you try to have a household, whether or not you have children, whether or not you are the most immoral mean-spirited SOB around, you get those benefits. But if you are the most otherwise moral, religious but gay couple you don't get those property rights. You are not equal citizens anymore than that interracial couple was sixty years ago or the black couple was hundred years ago or a woman was six hundred years ago. You aren't whole. And ladies and gentlemen, whether this bill passes or fails, there will come a time where under the Constitution of this United States, it will clearly be stated that it violates the human rights and dignity and equal protection under the Constitution to treat these people this way. And that's why I feel firmly in my heart that history will say this was a horrific mistake. And a very mean thing to do.

Thank you Mr. Speaker."

There being no objection, the House advanced to the eleventh order of business.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

April 16, 1997

Mr. Speaker:

The Senate has passed ENGROSSED SUBSTITUTE HOUSE BILL NO. 1130 with the following attached amendment(s)

Strike everything after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. (1) In P.L. 104-199; 110 Stat. 219, the Defense of Marriage Act, Congress granted authority to the individual states to either grant or deny recognition of same-sex marriages recognized as valid in another state. The Defense of Marriage Act defines marriage for purposes of federal law as a legal union between one man and one woman as husband and wife and provides that a state shall not be required to give effect to any public act or judicial proceeding of any other state respecting marriage between persons of the same sex if the state has determined that it will not recognize same-sex marriages.

(2) The legislature and the people of the state of Washington find that matters pertaining to marriage are matters reserved to the sovereign states and, therefore, such matters should be determined by the people within each individual state and not by the people or courts of a different state.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 2. (1) It is a compelling interest of the state of Washington to reaffirm its historical commitment to the institution of marriage as a union between a man and a woman as husband and wife and to protect that institution.

(2) The court in Singer v. Hara, 11 Wn. App. 247 (1974) held that the Washington state marriage statute does not allow marriage between persons of the same sex. It is the intent of the legislature by this act to codify the Singer opinion and to fully exercise the authority granted the individual states by Congress in P.L. 104-199; 110 Stat. 219, the Defense of Marriage Act, to establish public policy against same-sex marriage in statutory law that clearly and definitively declares same-sex marriages will not be recognized in Washington, even if they are made legal in other states.

Sec. 3. RCW 26.04.010 and 1973 1st ex.s. c 154 s 26 are each amended to read as follows:

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

February 6, 1998

Mr. Speaker:

The President has signed:

ENGROSSED SUBSTITUTE HOUSE BILL NO. 1130, and the same is herewith transmitted.

Mike O'Connell, Secretary

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR

February 6, 1998

To the Honorable Speaker and Members
The House of Representatives of the State of Washington

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I am returning herewith, without my approval, Engrossed Substitute House Bill No. 1130 entitled:

"AN ACT Relating to reaffirming and protecting the institution of marriage;"

This bill would amend the marriage statute by codifying existing case law that prohibits same-gender marriage in Washington. It also declares that same-gender marriages will not be recognized, even if they are made legal in other state. ESHB 1130 is essentially identical to Engrossed Substitute Senate Bill No. 5398, which I vetoed on February 21, 1997.

Subsequent to the 1972 passage of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Washington Constitution, in Singer v. Hara, 11 Wn. App. 247 (1974) our Court of Appeals firmly stated that our existing statute prohibits same-gender marriages in Washington. The Washington Supreme Court then upheld that decision in Marchioro v. Chaney, 90 Wn.2d 298 (1978).

The 1996 federal Defense of Marriage Act exempts states from having to recognize or give effect to same-gender marriages from other states. Furthermore, Washington courts have consistently held that marriages not recognized under Washington law will not be upheld in this state, even if they are considered valid in other states.

Not only is this legislation unnecessary, it serves no legitimate purpose. For these reasons, I have vetoed Engrossed Substitute House Bill No. 1130 in its entirety.

Respectfully submitted,
Gary Locke
Governor

There being no objection, the House advanced to the eighth order of business.

MOTION

Representative Lisk moved that Engrossed Substitute House Bill No. 1130 do pass the House notwithstanding the Governor's veto.

Representative Murray spoke against the motion.

The Speaker stated the question before the House to be the motion to pass Engrossed Substitute House Bill No. 1130 notwithstanding the Governor's veto.

Substitute House Bill No. 2344 was read the second time.

Representative Reams moved the adoption of the following amendment by Representative Reams: (828)

On page 5, after line 2, insert the following:

"Sec. 1. RCW 36.70B.110 and 1997 c 429 s 48 and 1997 c 396 s 1 are each reenacted and amended to read as follows:

(1) Not later than April 1, 1996, a local government planning under RCW 36.70A.040 shall provide a notice of application to the public and the departments and agencies with jurisdiction as provided in this section. If a local government has made a threshold determination under chapter 43.21C RCW concurrently with the notice of application, the notice of application may be combined with the threshold determination and the scoping notice for a determination of significance. Nothing in this section prevents a determination of significance and scoping notice from being issued prior to the notice of application. Nothing in this section or this chapter prevents a lead agency, when it is a project proponent or is funding a project, from conducting its review under chapter 43.21C RCW or from allowing appeals of procedural determinations prior to submitting a project permit application.

(2) The notice of application shall be provided within fourteen days after the determination of completeness as provided in RCW 36.70B.070 and, except as limited by the provisions of subsection (4)(b) of this section, shall include the following in whatever sequence or format the local government deems appropriate:

(a) The date of application, the date of the notice of completion for the application, and the date of the notice of application;

(b) A description of the proposed project action and a list of the project permits included in the application and, if applicable, a list of any studies requested under RCW 36.70B.070 or 36.70B.090;

(c) The identification of other permits not included in the application to the extent known by the local government;

(d) The identification of existing environmental documents that evaluate the proposed project, and, if not otherwise stated on the document providing the notice of application, such as a city land use bulletin, the location where the application and any studies can be reviewed;

(e) A statement of the public comment period, which shall be not less than fourteen nor more than thirty days following the date of notice of application, and statements of the right of any person to comment on the application, receive notice of and participate in any hearings, request a copy of the decision once made, and any appeal rights. A local government may accept public comments at any time prior to the closing of the record of an open record predecision hearing, if any, or, if no open record predecision hearing is provided, prior to the decision on the project permit;

(f) The date, time, place, and type of hearing, if applicable and scheduled at the date of notice of the application;

(g) A statement of the preliminary determination, if one has been made at the time of notice, of those development regulations that will be used for project mitigation and of consistency as provided in RCW 36.70B.030(2) and 36.70B.040; and

(h) Any other information determined appropriate by the local government.

(3) If an open record predecision hearing is required for the requested project permits, the notice of application shall be provided at least fifteen days prior to the open record hearing.

(4) A local government shall use reasonable methods to give the notice of application to the public and agencies with jurisdiction and may use its existing notice procedures. A local government may use different types of notice for different categories of project permits or types of project actions. If a local government by resolution or ordinance does not specify its method of public notice, the local government shall use the methods provided for in (a) and (b) of this subsection. Examples of reasonable methods to inform the public are:

(a) Posting the property for site-specific proposals;

(b) Publishing notice, including at least the project location, description, type of permit(s) required, comment period dates, and location where the notice of application required by subsection (2) of this section and the complete application may be reviewed, in the newspaper of general circulation in the general area where the proposal is located or in a local land use newsletter published by the local government;

(c) Notifying public or private groups with known interest in a certain proposal or in the type of proposal being considered;

(d) Notifying the news media;

(e) Placing notices in appropriate regional or neighborhood newspapers or trade journals;

(f) Publishing notice in agency newsletters or sending notice to agency mailing lists, either general lists or lists for specific proposals or subject areas; and

(g) Mailing to neighboring property owners.

(5) A notice of application shall not be required for project permits that are categorically exempt under chapter 43.21C RCW, unless an open record predecision hearing is required or an open record appeal hearing is allowed on the project permit decision.

(6) A local government shall integrate the permit procedures in this section with its environmental review under chapter 43.21C RCW as follows:

(a) Except for a threshold determination and except as otherwise expressly allowed in this section, the local government may not issue its decision or a recommendation on a project permit until the expiration of the public comment period on the notice of application.

(b) If an open record predecision hearing is required, the local government shall issue its threshold determination at least fifteen days prior to the open record predecision hearing.

(c) Comments shall be as specific as possible.

(d) A local government is not required to provide for administrative appeals of its threshold determination. If provided, an administrative appeal shall be filed within fourteen days after notice that the determination has been made and is appealable. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this section, the appeal hearing on a determination of nonsignificance shall be consolidated with any open record hearing on the project permit.

(7) At the request of the applicant, a local government may combine any hearing on a project permit with any hearing that may be held by another local, state, regional, federal, or other agency, if:

(a) The hearing is held within the geographic boundary of the local government; and

(b) The joint hearing can be held within the time periods specified in RCW 36.70B.090 or the applicant agrees to the schedule in the event that additional time is needed in order to combine the hearings. All agencies of the state of Washington, including municipal corporations and counties participating in a combined hearing, are hereby authorized to issue joint hearing notices and develop a joint format, select a mutually acceptable hearing body or officer, and take such other actions as may be necessary to hold joint hearings consistent with each of their respective statutory obligations.

(8) All state and local agencies shall cooperate to the fullest extent possible with the local government in holding a joint hearing if requested to do so, as long as:

(a) The agency is not expressly prohibited by statute from doing so;

(b) Sufficient notice of the hearing is given to meet each of the agencies' adopted notice requirements as set forth in statute, ordinance, or rule; and

(c) The agency has received the necessary information about the proposed project from the applicant to hold its hearing at the same time as the local government hearing.

(9) A local government is not required to provide for administrative appeals. If provided, an administrative appeal of the project decision and of any environmental determination((+)) shall be filed within fourteen days after the notice of the decision or after other notice that the decision has been made and is appealable. The local government shall extend the appeal period for an additional seven days, if state or local rules adopted pursuant to chapter 43.21C RCW allow public comment on a determination of nonsignificance issued as part of the appealable project permit decision.

(10) The applicant for a project permit is deemed to be a participant in any comment period, open record hearing, or closed record appeal.

(11) Each local government planning under RCW 36.70A.040 shall adopt procedures for administrative interpretation of its development regulations."

Representative L. Thomas moved the adoption of amendment (827):

Strike everything after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. The definitions in this section apply throughout sections 1 through 14 of this act unless the context clearly requires otherwise.

(1) "Adjusted RBC report" means an RBC report that has been adjusted by the commissioner in accordance with section 2(4) of this act.

(2) "Corrective order" means an order issued by the commissioner specifying corrective actions that the commissioner has determined are required.

(3) "Domestic carrier" means any carrier domiciled in this state, or any person or entity subject to chapter 48.42 RCW domiciled in this state.

(4) "Foreign or alien carrier" means any carrier that is licensed to do business in this state but is not domiciled in this state, or any person or entity subject to chapter 48.42 RCW not domiciled in this state.

(5) "NAIC" means the national association of insurance commissioners.

(6) "Negative trend" means, with respect to a carrier, a negative trend over a period of time, as determined in accordance with the "trend test calculation" included in the RBC instructions.

(7) "RBC" means risk-based capital.

(8) "RBC instructions" means the RBC report including risk-based capital instructions adopted by the NAIC, as such RBC instructions may be amended by the NAIC from time to time in accordance with the procedures adopted by the NAIC.

(9) "RBC level" means a carrier's company action level RBC, regulatory action level RBC, authorized control level RBC, or mandatory control level RBC where:

(a) "Company action level RBC" means, with respect to any carrier, the product of 2.0 and its authorized control level RBC;

(b) "Regulatory action level RBC" means the product of 1.5 and its authorized control level RBC;

(c) "Authorized control level RBC" means the number determined under the risk-based capital formula in accordance with the RBC instructions;

(d) "Mandatory control level RBC" means the product of .70 and the authorized control level RBC.

(10) "RBC plan" means a comprehensive financial plan containing the elements specified in section 3(2) of this act. If the commissioner rejects the RBC plan, and it is revised by the carrier, with or without the commissioner's recommendation, the plan shall be called the "revised RBC plan."

(11) "RBC report" means the report required in section 2 of this act.

(12) "Total adjusted capital" means the sum of:

(a) Either a carrier's statutory capital and surplus or net worth, or both, as determined in accordance with statutory accounting applicable to the annual financial statements required to be filed with the commissioner; and

(b) Other items, if any, as the RBC instructions may provide.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 2. (1) Every domestic carrier shall, on or prior to the filing date of March 1st, prepare and submit to the commissioner a report of its RBC levels as of the end of the calendar year just ended, in a form and containing such information as is required by the RBC instructions. In addition, every domestic carrier shall file its RBC report:

(a) With the NAIC in accordance with the RBC instructions; and

(b) With the insurance commissioner in any state in which the carrier is authorized to do business, if the insurance commissioner has notified the carrier of its request in writing, in which case the carrier shall file its RBC report not later than the later of:

(i) Fifteen days from the receipt of notice to file its RBC report with that state; or

(ii) The filing date.

(2) A carrier's RBC shall be determined in accordance with the formula set forth in the RBC instructions. The formula shall take into account (and may adjust for the covariance between):

(a) The risk with respect to the carrier's assets;

(b) The risk of adverse insurance experience with respect to the carrier's liabilities and obligations;

(c) The interest rate risk with respect to the carrier's business; and

(d) All other business risks and such other relevant risks as are set forth in the RBC instructions; determined in each case by applying the factors in the manner set forth in the RBC instructions.

(3) An excess of capital over the amount produced by the risk-based capital requirements contained in sections 1 through 14 of this act and the formulas, schedules, and instructions referenced in sections 1 through 14 of this act is desirable in the business of insurance. Accordingly, carriers should seek to maintain capital above the RBC levels required by sections 1 through 14 of this act. Additional capital is used and useful in the insurance business and helps to secure a carrier against various risks inherent in, or affecting, the business of insurance and not accounted for or only partially measured by the risk-based capital requirements contained in sections 1 through 14 of this act.

(4) If a domestic carrier files an RBC report that in the judgment of the commissioner is inaccurate, then the commissioner shall adjust the RBC report to correct the inaccuracy and shall notify the carrier of the adjustment. The notice shall contain a statement of the reason for the adjustment.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 3. (1) "Company action level event" means any of the following events:

(a) The filing of an RBC report by a carrier which indicates that:

(i) The carrier's total adjusted capital is greater than or equal to its regulatory action level RBC but less than its company action level RBC; or

(ii) The carrier has total adjusted capital which is greater than or equal to its company action level RBC but less than the product of its authorized control level RBC and 2.5 and has a negative trend;

(b) The notification by the commissioner to the carrier of an adjusted RBC report that indicates an event in (a) of this subsection, provided the carrier does not challenge the adjusted RBC report under section 7 of this act; or

(c) If, under section 7 of this act, a carrier challenges an adjusted RBC report that indicates the event in (a) of this subsection, the notification by the commissioner to the carrier that the commissioner has, after a hearing, rejected the carrier's challenge.

(2) In the event of a company action level event, the carrier shall prepare and submit to the commissioner an RBC plan that:

(a) Identifies the conditions that contribute to the company action level event;

(b) Contains proposals of corrective actions that the carrier intends to take and would be expected to result in the elimination of the company action level event;

(c) Provides projections of the carrier's financial results in the current year and at least the four succeeding years, both in the absence of proposed corrective actions and giving effect to the proposed corrective actions, including projections of statutory operating income, net income, capital, surplus, capital and surplus, and net worth. The projections for both new and renewal business might include separate projections for each major line of business and separately identify each significant income, expense, and benefit component;

(d) Identifies the key assumptions impacting the carrier's projections and the sensitivity of the projections to the assumptions; and

(e) Identifies the quality of, and problems associated with, the carrier's business, including but not limited to its assets, anticipated business growth and associated surplus strain, extraordinary exposure to risk, mix of business, and use of reinsurance, if any, in each case.

(3) The RBC plan shall be submitted:

(a) Within forty-five days of the company action level event; or

(b) If the carrier challenges an adjusted RBC report under section 7 of this act, within forty-five days after notification to the carrier that the commissioner has, after a hearing, rejected the carrier's challenge.

(4) Within sixty days after the submission by a carrier of an RBC plan to the commissioner, the commissioner shall notify the carrier whether the RBC plan may be implemented or is, in the judgment of the commissioner, unsatisfactory. If the commissioner determines the RBC plan is unsatisfactory, the notification to the carrier shall set forth the reasons for the determination, and may set forth proposed revisions that will render the RBC plan satisfactory. Upon notification from the commissioner, the carrier shall prepare a revised RBC plan, that may incorporate by reference any revisions proposed by the commissioner, and shall submit the revised RBC plan to the commissioner:

(a) Within forty-five days after the notification from the commissioner; or

(b) If the carrier challenges the notification from the commissioner under section 7 of this act, within forty-five days after a notification to the carrier that the commissioner has, after a hearing, rejected the carrier's challenge.

(5) In the event of a notification by the commissioner to a carrier that the carrier's RBC plan or revised RBC plan is unsatisfactory, the commissioner may, subject to the carrier's rights to a hearing under section 7 of this act, specify in the notification that the notification constitutes a regulatory action level event.

(6) Every domestic carrier that files an RBC plan or revised RBC plan with the commissioner shall file a copy of the RBC plan or revised RBC plan with the insurance commissioner in any state in which the carrier is authorized to do business if:

(a) Such state has an RBC provision substantially similar to section 8(1) of this act; and

(b) The insurance commissioner of that state has notified the carrier of its request for the filing in writing, in which case the carrier shall file a copy of the RBC plan or revised RBC plan in that state no later than the later of:

(i) Fifteen days after the receipt of notice to file a copy of its RBC plan or revised plan with the state; or

(c) If, under section 7 of this act, the carrier challenges an adjusted RBC report that indicates the event in (a) of this subsection, the notification by the commissioner to the carrier that the commissioner has, after a hearing, rejected the carrier's challenge;

(d) The failure of the carrier to file an RBC report by the filing date, unless the carrier has provided an explanation for such failure that is satisfactory to the commissioner and has cured the failure within ten days after the filing date;

(e) The failure of the carrier to submit an RBC plan to the commissioner within the time period set forth in section 3(3) of this act;

(f) Notification by the commissioner to the carrier that:

(i) The RBC plan or revised RBC plan submitted by the carrier is, in the judgment of the commissioner, unsatisfactory; and

(ii) The notification constitutes a regulatory action level event with respect to the carrier, provided the carrier has not challenged the determination under section 7 of this act;

(g) If, under section 7 of this act, the carrier challenges a determination by the commissioner under (f) of this subsection, the notification by the commissioner to the carrier that the commissioner has, after a hearing, rejected the challenge;

(h) Notification by the commissioner to the carrier that the carrier has failed to adhere to its RBC plan or revised RBC plan, but only if such failure has a substantial adverse effect on the ability of the carrier to eliminate the company action level event in accordance with its RBC plan or revised RBC plan and the commissioner has so stated in the notification, provided the carrier has not challenged the determination under section 7 of this act; or

(i) If, under section 7 of this act, the carrier challenges a determination by the commissioner under (h) of this subsection, the notification by the commissioner to the carrier that the commissioner has, after a hearing, rejected the challenge.

(2) In the event of a regulatory action level event the commissioner shall:

(a) Require the carrier to prepare and submit an RBC plan or, if applicable, a revised RBC plan;

(b) Perform the examination or analysis the commissioner deems necessary of the assets, liabilities, and operations of the carrier including a review of its RBC plan or revised RBC plan; and

(c) Subsequent to the examination or analysis, issue an order specifying those corrective actions the commissioner determines are required.

(3) In determining corrective actions, the commissioner may take into account those factors deemed relevant with respect to the carrier based upon the commissioner's examination or analysis of the assets, liabilities, and operations of the carrier, including, but not limited to, the results of any sensitivity tests undertaken pursuant to the RBC instructions. The RBC plan or revised RBC plan shall be submitted:

(a) Within forty-five days after the occurrence of the regulatory action level event;

(c) If the carrier challenges a revised RBC plan under section 7 of this act and the challenge is not frivolous in the judgment of the commissioner, within forty-five days after the notification to the carrier that the commissioner has, after a hearing, rejected the carrier's challenge.

(4) The commissioner may retain actuaries and investment experts and other consultants as may be necessary in the judgment of the commissioner to review the carrier's RBC plan or revised RBC plan, examine or analyze the assets, liabilities, and operations of the carrier and formulate the corrective order with respect to the carrier. (2) In the event of an authorized control level event with respect to a carrier, the commissioner shall:

(a) Take those actions required under section 4 of this act regarding a carrier with respect to which a regulatory action level event has occurred; or

(b) If the commissioner deems it to be in the best interests of either the policyholders or subscribers, or both, and creditors of the carrier and of the public, take those actions necessary to cause the carrier to be placed under regulatory control under chapter 48.31 RCW. In the event the commissioner takes such actions, the authorized control level event is sufficient grounds for the commissioner to take action under chapter 48.31 RCW, and the commissioner shall have the rights, powers, and duties with respect to the carrier as are set forth in chapter 48.31 RCW. In the event the commissioner takes actions under this subsection (2)(b) pursuant to an adjusted RBC report, the carrier is entitled to those protections afforded to carriers under the provisions of RCW 48.31.121 pertaining to summary proceedings.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 6. (1) "Mandatory control level event" means any of the following events:

(a) The filing of an RBC report which indicates that the carrier's total adjusted capital is less than its mandatory control level RBC;

(b) Notification by the commissioner to the carrier of an adjusted RBC report that indicates the event in (a) of this subsection, provided the carrier does not challenge the adjusted RBC report under section 7 of this act; or

(c) If, under section 7 of this act, the carrier challenges an adjusted RBC report that indicates the event in (a) of this subsection, notification by the commissioner to the carrier that the commissioner has, after a hearing, rejected the carrier's challenge.

(2) In the event of a mandatory control level event, with respect to a carrier, the commissioner shall take those actions necessary to place the carrier under regulatory control under chapter 48.31 RCW. In that event, the mandatory control level event is sufficient grounds for the commissioner to take action under chapter 48.31 RCW, and the commissioner shall have the rights, powers, and duties with respect to the carrier as are set forth in chapter 48.31 RCW. If the commissioner takes actions pursuant to an adjusted RBC report, the carrier is entitled to the protections of RCW 48.31.121 pertaining to summary proceedings. However, the commissioner may forego action for up to ninety days after the mandatory control level event if the commissioner finds there is a reasonable expectation that the mandatory control level event may be eliminated within the ninety-day period.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 7. (1) Upon notification to a carrier by the commissioner of any of the following, the carrier shall have the right to a hearing, in accordance with chapters 48.04 and 34.05 RCW, at which the carrier may challenge any determination or action by the commissioner:

(a) Of an adjusted RBC report; or

(b)(i) That the carrier's RBC plan or revised RBC plan is unsatisfactory; and

(ii) The notification constitutes a regulatory action level event with respect to such carrier; or

(c) That the carrier has failed to adhere to its RBC plan or revised RBC plan and that such failure has a substantial adverse effect on the ability of the carrier to eliminate the company action level event with respect to the carrier in accordance with its RBC plan or revised RBC plan; or

(d) Of a corrective order with respect to the carrier.

(2) The carrier shall notify the commissioner of its request for a hearing within five days after the notification by the commissioner under this section. Upon receipt of the carrier's request for a hearing, the commissioner shall set a date for the hearing. The date shall be no less than ten nor more than thirty days after the date of the carrier's request.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 8. (1) All RBC reports, to the extent the information therein is not required to be set forth in a publicly available annual statement schedule, and RBC plans, including the results or report of any examination or analysis of a carrier and any corrective order issued by the commissioner, with respect to any domestic carrier or foreign carrier that are filed with the commissioner constitute information that might be damaging to the carrier if made available to its competitors, and therefore shall be kept confidential by the commissioner. This information shall not be made public or be subject to subpoena, other than by the commissioner and then only for the purpose of enforcement actions taken by the commissioner.

(2) The comparison of a carrier's total adjusted capital to any of its RBC levels is a regulatory tool that may indicate the need for possible corrective action with respect to the carrier, and is not a means to rank carriers generally. Therefore, except as otherwise required under the provisions of sections 1 through 14 of this act, the making, publishing, disseminating, circulating, or placing before the public, or causing, directly or indirectly, to be made, published, disseminated, circulated, or placed before the public, in a newspaper, magazine, or other publication, or in the form of a notice, circular, pamphlet, letter, or poster, or over any radio or television station, or in any other way, an advertisement, announcement, or statement containing an assertion, representation, or statement with regard to the RBC levels of any carrier, or of any component derived in the calculation, by any carrier, agent, broker, or other person engaged in any manner in the insurance business would be misleading and is therefore prohibited. However, if any materially false statement with respect to the comparison regarding a carrier's total adjusted capital to its RBC levels (or any of them) or an inappropriate comparison of any other amount to the carrier's RBC levels is published in any written publication and the carrier is able to demonstrate to the commissioner with substantial proof the falsity of such statement, or the inappropriateness, as the case may be, then the carrier may publish an announcement in a written publication if the sole purpose of the announcement is to rebut the materially false statement.

(3) The RBC instructions, RBC reports, adjusted RBC reports, RBC plans, and revised RBC plans are intended solely for use by the commissioner in monitoring the solvency of carriers and the need for possible corrective action with respect to carriers and shall not be used by the commissioner for ratemaking nor considered or introduced as evidence in any rate proceeding nor used by the commissioner to calculate or derive any elements of an appropriate premium level or rate of return for any line of insurance that a carrier or any affiliate is authorized to write.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 9. (1) The provisions of sections 1 through 14 of this act are supplemental to any other provisions of the laws and rules of this state, and shall not preclude or limit any other powers or duties of the commissioner under such laws and rules, including, but not limited to, chapter 48.31 RCW.

(2) The commissioner may adopt reasonable rules necessary for the implementation of sections 1 through 14 of this act.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 10. (1) Any foreign or alien carrier shall, upon the written request of the commissioner, submit to the commissioner an RBC report as of the end of the calendar year just ended by the later of:

(a) The date an RBC report would be required to be filed by a domestic carrier under sections 1 through 14 of this act; or

(b) Fifteen days after the request is received by the foreign or alien carrier. Any foreign or alien carrier shall, at the written request of the commissioner, promptly submit to the commissioner a copy of any RBC plan that is filed with the insurance commissioner of any other state.

(2) In the event of a company action level event, regulatory action level event, or authorized control level event with respect to any foreign or alien carrier as determined under the RBC statute applicable in the state of domicile of the carrier or, if no RBC statute is in force in that state, under the provisions of sections 1 through 14 of this act, if the insurance commissioner of the state of domicile of the foreign or alien carrier fails to require the foreign or alien carrier to file an RBC plan in the manner specified under that state's RBC statute or, if no RBC statute is in force in that state, under section 3 of this act, the commissioner may require the foreign or alien carrier to file an RBC plan with the commissioner. In this event, the failure of the foreign or alien carrier to file an RBC plan with the commissioner is grounds to order the carrier to cease and desist from writing new insurance business in this state.

(3) In the event of a mandatory control level event with respect to any foreign or alien carrier, if no domiciliary receiver has been appointed with respect to the foreign or alien carrier under the rehabilitation and liquidation statute applicable in the state of domicile of the foreign or alien carrier, the commissioner may apply for an order under RCW 48.31.080 or 48.31.090 to conserve the assets within this state of foreign or alien carriers, and the occurrence of the mandatory control level event is considered adequate grounds for the application.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 11. There is no liability on the part of, and no cause of action shall arise against, the commissioner or insurance department or its employees or agents for any action taken by them in the performance of their powers and duties under sections 1 through 14 of this act.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 12. All notices by the commissioner to a carrier that may result in regulatory action are effective upon dispatch if transmitted by registered or certified mail, or in the case of any other transmission, are effective upon the carrier's receipt of such notice.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 13. For RBC reports to be filed by carriers commencing operations after the effective date of this act, those carriers shall calculate the initial RBC levels using financial projections, considering managed care arrangements, for its first full year in operation. Such projections, including the risk-based capital requirement, must be included as part of a comprehensive business plan that is submitted as part of the application for registration under RCW 48.44.040 and 48.46.030. The resulting RBC requirement shall be reported in the first RBC report submitted under section 2 of this act. For subsequent reports, the RBC results using actual financial data shall be included.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 14. The first RBC report required under section 2 of this act shall be filed on or prior to March 1, 1999, for the 1998 calendar year.

Sec. 15. RCW 48.42.040 and 1983 c 36 s 4 are each amended to read as follows:

Any person or entity unable to show that it is subject to the jurisdiction and regulation of another agency of this state, any subdivision thereof, or the federal government, shall be subject to all appropriate provisions of this title regarding the conduct of its business, including, but not limited to, sections 1 through 14 of this act.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 16. Sections 1 through 14 of this act shall not apply to a carrier which is subject to the provisions of RCW 48.05.430 through 48.05.490.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 17. If any provision of this act or its application to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the remainder of the act or the application of the provision to other persons or circumstances is not affected.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 18. Sections 1 through 14 and 16 of this act are each added to chapter 48.43 RCW."

Strike everything after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. The primary intent of this act is to give effect to recommendations by the 1994 department of community, trade, and economic development's master planned resort task force by clarifying that master planned resorts may make use of capital facilities, utilities, and services provided by outside service providers, and may enter into agreements for shared facilities with such providers, when all costs directly attributable to the resort, including capacity increases, are fully borne by the resort.

Nothing in this act may be construed as: Establishing an order of priority for processing applications for water right permits, for granting such permits, or for issuing certificates of water right; altering or authorizing in any manner the alteration of the place of use for a water right; or affecting or impairing in any manner whatsoever an existing water right.

Sec. 2. RCW 36.70A.360 and 1991 sp.s. c 32 s 17 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) Counties that are required or choose to plan under RCW 36.70A.040 may permit master planned resorts which may constitute urban growth outside of urban growth areas as limited by this section. A master planned resort means a self-contained and fully integrated planned unit development, in a setting of significant natural amenities, with primary focus on destination resort facilities consisting of short-term visitor accommodations associated with a range of developed on-site indoor or outdoor recreational facilities.

(2) Capital facilities, utilities, and services, including those related to sewer, water, storm water, security, fire suppression, and emergency medical, provided on-site shall be limited to meeting the needs of the master planned resort. Such facilities, utilities, and services may be provided to a master planned resort by outside service providers, including municipalities and special purpose districts, provided that all costs associated with service extensions and capacity increases directly attributable to the master planned resort are fully borne by the resort. A master planned resort and service providers may enter into agreements for shared capital facilities and utilities, provided that such facilities and utilities serve only the master planned resort or urban growth areas.

All waters or the use of waters shall be regulated and controlled as provided in chapters 90.03 and 90.44 RCW and not otherwise.

(3) A master planned resort may include other residential uses within its boundaries, but only if the residential uses are integrated into and support the on-site recreational nature of the resort.

(4) A master planned resort may be authorized by a county only if:

~~((4))~~ (a) The comprehensive plan specifically identifies policies to guide the development of master planned resorts;

~~((2))~~ (b) The comprehensive plan and development regulations include restrictions that preclude new urban or suburban land uses in the vicinity of the master planned resort, except in areas otherwise designated for urban growth under RCW 36.70A.110;

~~((3))~~ (c) The county includes a finding as a part of the approval process that the land is better suited, and has more long-term importance, for the master planned resort than for the commercial harvesting of timber or agricultural production, if located on land that otherwise would be designated as forest land or agricultural land under RCW 36.70A.170;

~~((4))~~ (d) The county ensures that the resort plan is consistent with the development regulations established for critical areas; and

~~((5))~~ (e) On-site and off-site infrastructure and service impacts are fully considered and mitigated."

POINT OF ORDER

Representative DeBolt requested a Scope and Object ruling on amendment number 888 to House Bill No. 2938.

SPEAKER'S RULING

The Speaker: Representative DeBolt, the Speaker is prepared to rule on your Point of Order which challenges the Scope and Object of amendment 888 to House Bill No. 2938.

The title of the bill is "AN ACT Relating to increasing the $15,000 income limit to $16,000, and the $18,000 income limit to $19,000 for property tax exemptions for senior citizens and persons retired because of physical disability".

Amendment 888 deals with veterans benefits for disabilities related to military duties which is an additional amount of money and is clearly outside the Title of the bill.

Representative DeBolt, your Point of Order is well taken.

Representative Kessler moved the adoption of amendment (869):

On page 3, line 7, after "~~((eighteen))~~" strike "nineteen" and insert "twenty-two"

On page 3, line 8, after "~~((fifteen))~~" strike "sixteen" and insert "eighteen"

On page 3, line 11, after "exceed" strike "fifty" and insert "~~((fifty))~~ sixty"

On page 3, line 14, after "~~((fifteen))~~" strike "sixteen" and insert "eighteen"

On page 3, at the beginning of line 16, strike "thirty-four" and insert "~~((thirty-four))~~ forty-five"

POINT OF ORDER

Representative DeBolt requested a Scope and Object ruling on amendment number 869 to House Bill No. 2938.

SPEAKER'S RULING

The Speaker: Representative DeBolt, the Speaker is prepared to rule on your Point of Order which challenges the Scope and Object of amendment 869 to House Bill No. 2938.

In the previous amendment, the Speaker referred to the Title of the bill which is between $15,000 and $16,000, and $18,000 and $19,000.

Amendment 869 raises limits significantly above the Title of the bill.

Representative DeBolt, your Point of Order is well taken.

There being no objection, the rules were suspended, the second reading considered the third and the bill was placed on final passage.

POINT OF ORDER

Representative B. Thomas requested a Scope and Object ruling on amendment number 845 to Substitute House Bill No. 2324.

SPEAKER'S RULING

Representative B. Thomas, the Speaker is prepared to Rule on your Point of Order which challenges Amendment 845 to Substitute House Bill No. 2324 as being beyond the Scope and Object of the bill.

The title of Substitute House Bill No. 2324 is, "AN ACT Relating to a legal presumption in favor of persons disputing a tax obligation." The title is narrowly tailored. Substitute House Bill No. 2324 adds a new chapter to Title 7 RCW.

Substitute House Bill No. 2324 provides that a governmental entity claiming a tax obligation exists has the burden of proving that obligation. The bill also establishes a duty on governmental entities and taxpayers to make available upon request information necessary to determine the correct status of the tax obligation.

Amendment 845 provides that the state may change or amend any existing tax or impose a new tax only if approved by a two-thirds vote of each house or with approval of a majority of the voters at a November general election.

Substitute House Bill No. 2324 has nothing to do with creating new taxes or amending existing taxes. Nor does the bill deal in any way with how such taxes shall be approved.

The Speaker finds that Amendment 845 is clearly beyond the scope and object of the bill.

Representative B. Thomas, Your Point of Order is well taken.

Representative Conway moved the adoption of amendment (862):

On page 3, after line 10, insert:

"(5) This section does not apply to taxes imposed under Titles 50 or 51 RCW."

In the event the commission elects to conduct an election to ascertain the exclusive bargaining representative, and upon the request of a prospective bargaining representative showing written proof of at least thirty percent representation of the public employees within the unit, the commission shall hold an election by secret ballot to determine the issue. Second Substitute House Bill No. 2339 was read the second time.

Representative Thompson moved the adoption of amendment (920):

Strike everything after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. (1) The legislature finds that wetlands mitigation banks are an important tool for providing compensatory mitigation for unavoidable impacts to wetlands. The legislature further finds that the benefits of mitigation banks include: (a) Maintenance of the ecological functioning of a watershed by consolidating compensatory mitigation into a single large parcel rather than smaller individual parcels; (b) increased potential for the establishment and long-term management of successful mitigation by bringing together financial resources, planning, and scientific expertise not practicable for many project-specific mitigation proposals; (c) increased certainty over the success of mitigation and reduction of temporal losses of wetlands since mitigation banks are typically implemented and functioning in advance of project impacts; (d) potential enhanced protection and preservation of the state's highest value and highest functioning wetlands; (e) a reduction in permit processing times and increased opportunity for more cost-effective compensatory mitigation for development projects; and (f) the ability to provide compensatory mitigation in an efficient, predictable, and economically and environmentally responsible manner. Therefore, the legislature declares that it is the policy of the state to authorize wetland mitigation banking.

(2) The purpose of this chapter is to support the establishment of mitigation banks by: (a) Authorizing state agencies and local governments, as well as private entities, to achieve the goals of this chapter; and (b) providing a predictable, efficient, regulatory framework, including timely review of mitigation bank proposals. The legislature intends that, in the development and adoption of rules for banks, the department establish and use a collaborative process involving interested public and private entities.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 2. This chapter does not create any new authority for regulating wetlands or wetlands banks beyond what is specifically provided for in this chapter. No authority is granted to the department under this chapter to adopt rules or guidance that apply to wetland projects other than banks under this chapter.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 3. The definitions in this section apply throughout this chapter unless the context clearly requires otherwise.

(1) "Banking instrument" means the documentation of agency and bank sponsor concurrence on the objectives and administration of the bank that describes in detail the physical and legal characteristics of the bank, including the service area, and how the bank will be established and operated.

(2) "Bank sponsor" means any public or private entity responsible for establishing and, in most circumstances, operating a bank.

(3) "Credit" means a unit of trade representing the increase in the ecological value of the site, as measured by acreage, functions, and/or values, or by some other assessment method.

(4) "Department" means the department of ecology.

(5) "Wetlands mitigation bank" or "bank" means a site where wetlands are restored, created, enhanced, or in exceptional circumstances, preserved expressly for the purpose of providing compensatory mitigation in advance of authorized impacts to similar resources.

(6) "Mitigation" means sequentially avoiding impacts, minimizing impacts, and compensating for remaining unavoidable impacts.

(7) "Practicable" means available and capable of being done after taking into consideration cost, existing technology, and logistics in light of overall project purposes.

(8) "Service area" means the designated geographic area in which a bank can reasonably be expected to provide appropriate compensation for unavoidable impacts to wetlands.

(9) "Unavoidable" means adverse impacts that remain after all appropriate and practicable avoidance and minimization have been achieved.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 4. Subject to the requirements of this chapter, the department, through a collaborative process, shall adopt rules for:

(1) Certification, operation, and monitoring of wetlands mitigation banks. The rules shall include procedures to assure that:

(a) Priority is given to banks providing for the restoration of degraded or former wetlands;

(b) Banks involving the creation and enhancement of wetlands are certified only where there are adequate assurances of success and that the bank will result in an overall environmental benefit; and

(c) Banks involving the preservation of wetlands or associated uplands are certified only when the preservation is in conjunction with the restoration, enhancement, or creation of a wetland, or in other exceptional circumstances as determined by the department consistent with this chapter;

(2) Determination and release of credits from banks. Procedures regarding credits shall authorize the use and sale of credits to offset adverse impacts and the release of credits before all of the performance standards have been met;

(3) Public involvement in the certification of banks, using existing statutory authority;

(4) Coordination of governmental agencies;

(5) Establishment of criteria for determining service areas for each bank;

(6) Performance standards; and

(7) Long-term management, financial assurances, and remediation for certified banks.

Before adopting rules under this chapter, the department shall submit the proposed rules to the appropriate standing committees of the legislature during the next legislative session. By January 30, 1999, the department shall submit a report to the appropriate standing committees of the legislature on its progress in developing rules under this chapter.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 5. (1) The department may certify only those banks that meet the requirements of this chapter. Certification shall be accomplished through a banking instrument. The local jurisdiction in which the bank is located shall be signatory to the banking instrument.

(2) State agencies and local governments may approve use of credits from a bank for any mitigation required under a permit issued or approved by that state agency or local government to compensate for the proposed impacts of a specific public or private project.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 6. Prior to authorizing use of credits from a bank as a means of mitigation under a permit issued or approved by the department, the department must assure that all appropriate and practicable steps have been undertaken to first avoid and then minimize adverse impacts to wetlands. The department may approve use of credits from a bank when there is no practicable opportunity for on-site compensation, or when use of credits from a bank is environmentally preferable to on-site compensation.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 7. The interpretation of this chapter and rules adopted under this chapter must be consistent with applicable federal guidance for the establishment, use, and operation of wetlands mitigation banks as it existed on the effective date of this section, or such subsequent date as may be provided by the department by rule, consistent with the purposes of this chapter.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 8. This chapter applies to public and private mitigation banks.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 9. If any provision of this act or its application to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the remainder of the act or the application of the provision to other persons or circumstances is not affected.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 10. The director of the department of ecology may take the necessary steps to ensure that this act is implemented on its effective date.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 11. If specific funding for the purposes of this act, referencing this act by bill or chapter number, is not provided by June 30, 1998, in the omnibus appropriations act, this act is null and void.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 12. Sections 1 through 9 of this act constitute a new chapter in Title 90 RCW."

(1) For the purposes of this chapter, "placebound" means unable to relocate to complete a college program because of family or employment commitments, health concerns, monetary inability, or other similar factors.

(2) To be eligible for an educational opportunity grant, applicants must be placebound residents of the state of Washington who are needy students as defined in RCW 28B.10.802(3) and who have completed the associate of arts degree or its equivalent. HOUSE BILL NO. 2734, by Representatives Huff, Lantz, Zellinsky, K. Schmidt, Johnson, Gardner, Constantine, Eickmeyer, Chopp and Poulsen

Authorizing additional state ferry vessels.

The bill was read the second time.

Representative Zellinsky moved the adoption of amendment (911):

Strike everything after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. A new section is added to chapter 47.60 RCW to read as follows:

The legislature finds and declares that there is a compelling need for the construction of additional state ferry vessels and corresponding terminal improvements in order to provide more capacity and frequent service to meet the forecasted travel demands of citizens traveling on Puget Sound ferry routes. The vessel technology required must provide additional travel options for high growth ferry routes through increased passenger-only ferry service.

The 1989 west corridor study evaluated cross-sound travel through the year 2020 and identified the Southworth to Seattle and the Kingston to Seattle passenger-only ferry routes as promising based on criteria evaluating cost effectiveness, time savings, physical constraints to operation, nonduplication of current service, and ability to relieve congestion.

Furthermore, as a result of legislative direction provided in the 1991-93 transportation budget to the state transportation commission to evaluate and determine the location of new passenger-only ferry routes, the commission reviewed several service alternatives, determined that the Southworth to Seattle and Kingston to Seattle routes ranked highest, and directed the Washington state ferries to proceed with the design and permitting processes for passenger-only terminals at both Southworth and Kingston.

The legislature also finds and declares that there is a compelling need for the construction of a Jumbo Class Mark II ferry vessel. The long-range travel demand for trips from Central and North Kitsap Peninsula to the Seattle and Edmonds mainland ferry terminals indicate a one hundred twenty-two percent forecast increase in peak travel demand over the next twenty years between the hours of 3:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. In order to support the economic growth of the Puget Sound region and meet the forecasted citizen cross-sound travel demand, the Washington state ferry system must provide reliable ferry vessel operations that cannot be maintained with the existing aging super class ferry capacity.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 2. A new section is added to chapter 47.60 RCW to read as follows:

(1) The department is authorized to proceed with the acquisition, procurement, and construction of a maximum of: (a) Four passenger-only vessels that respond to the service demands of state ferry service on the Southworth to Seattle and Kingston to Seattle ferry routes, including the terminal and docking facilities necessary to accommodate such service; and (b) a Jumbo Class Mark II ferry. The acquisition, procurement, and construction of vessels and terminals authorized herein shall be undertaken in accordance with the authority provided in RCW 47.56.030.

(2) A Jumbo Class Mark II ferry constructed under the requirements of subsection (1) of this section shall be of comparable quality and design as, and shall incorporate like controls, engines, and a propulsion system utilized in, the Jumbo Class Mark II ferries presently in operation or under construction in order to promote maximum commonality with those vessels.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 3. A new section is added to chapter 47.60 RCW to read as follows:

The department's authority to proceed with the acquisition, procurement, and construction of vessels and terminals authorized under section 2 of this act is contingent on a legislative appropriation approving that authority.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 4. This act is necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety, or support of the state government and its existing public institutions, and takes effect immediately.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 5. If this act is not referred to by bill or chapter number in a transportation budget, or an omnibus appropriations act, that, by December 31, 1998, either becomes law under Article III, section 12 of the state Constitution or is approved by the people of this state, this act is null and void on December 31, 1998."

SPEAKER'S RULING

"Representative Thomas, the Speaker is prepared to Rule on your Point of Order which challenges Amendment 867 to House Bill No. 2709 as being beyond the Scope and Object of the bill.

"The title of House Bill No. 2709 is, "AN ACT Relating to elimination of double taxation of municipal utility taxes." The title is somewhat narrow. House Bill No. 2709 adds a new section to chapter 35.21 RCW.

"House Bill No. 2709 provides that a city or town cannot tax its municipal light and power business's gross receipts that are earned by delivering electricity or electrical distribution services in other cities or towns.

"Amendment 867 provides that a city or town cannot tax its municipal water and sewer businesses' gross receipts that are earned by delivering water or sewer services in other cities or towns.

"The object of House Bill No. 2709 is narrowly confined to eliminating double taxation on the delivery of certain electricity-related services.

"The object of Amendment 867 pertains to eliminating double taxation on the delivery of certain water and sewer-related services.

"The Speaker finds that although Amendment 867 is within the scope of the bill it is beyond the object of the bill.

SPEAKER'S RULING

The Speaker: "Representative Hickel, the Speaker is prepared to Rule on your Point of Order which challenges Amendment 886 to Substitute House Bill No. 2848 as being beyond the Scope and Object of the bill.

"The title of Substitute House Bill No. 2848 is, "AN ACT Relating to the assessment of student learning." The title is somewhat broad. Substitute House Bill No. 2848 amends various sections of the RCW.

"Substitute House Bill No. 2848 among other things changes the name of the certificate of mastery to Certificate of Academic Proficiency (CAP); exempts home schooled and private school students from the requirements of CAP; and requires schools to provide student's parents with information about educational pathways.

"Amendment 886 establishes certificated instructional staffing allocations for certain grade levels in qualified school districts and directs the superintendent of public instruction to establish a summer institute for the improvement of instructional techniques.

"Substitute House Bill No. 2848 does not in any way deal with certificated instructional staffing allocations and Amendment 886 fails to make an adequate link between the issues dealt with in Substitute House Bill No. 2848 and altering class room size.

"The Speaker finds that although Amendment 886 may be within the scope of the bill it is beyond the object of the bill.

"Representative Hickel, Your Point of Order is well taken."

"Sec. 1. RCW 28A.630.885 and 1997 c 268 s 1 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) The Washington commission on student learning is hereby established. The primary purposes of the commission are to identify the knowledge and skills all public school students need to know and be able to do based on the student learning goals in RCW 28A.150.210, to develop student assessment and school accountability systems, to review current school district data reporting requirements and make recommendations on what data is necessary for the purposes of accountability and meeting state information needs, and to take other steps necessary to develop a performance-based education system. The commission shall include three members of the state board of education, three members appointed by the governor before July 1, 1992, and five members appointed no later than June 1, 1993, by the governor elected in the November 1992 election. The governor shall appoint a chair from the commission members, and fill any vacancies in gubernatorial appointments that may occur. The state board of education shall fill any vacancies of state board of education appointments that may occur. In making the appointments, educators, business leaders, and parents shall be represented, and nominations from state-wide education, business, and parent organizations shall be requested. Efforts shall be made to ensure that the commission reflects the racial and ethnic diversity of the state's K-12 student population and that the major geographic regions in the state are represented. Appointees shall be qualified individuals who are supportive of educational restructuring, who have a positive record of service, and who will devote sufficient time to the responsibilities of the commission to ensure that the objectives of the commission are achieved.

(2) The commission shall establish advisory committees. Membership of the advisory committees shall include, but not necessarily be limited to, professionals from the office of the superintendent of public instruction and the state board of education, and other state and local educational practitioners and student assessment specialists.

(3) The commission, with the assistance of the advisory committees, shall:

(a) Develop essential academic learning requirements based on the student learning goals in RCW 28A.150.210. Essential academic learning requirements shall be developed, to the extent possible, for each of the student learning goals in RCW 28A.150.210. Goals one and two shall be considered primary. Essential academic learning requirements for RCW 28A.150.210(1), goal one, and the mathematics component of RCW 28A.150.210(2), goal two, shall be completed no later than March 1, 1995. Essential academic learning requirements that incorporate the remainder of RCW 28A.150.210 (2), (3), and (4), goals two, three, and four, shall be completed no later than March 1, 1996. To the maximum extent possible, the commission shall integrate goal four and the knowledge and skill areas in the other goals in the development of the essential academic learning requirements;

(b)(i) The commission shall present to the state board of education and superintendent of public instruction a state-wide academic assessment system for use in the elementary, middle, and high school years designed to determine if each student has mastered the essential academic learning requirements identified in (a) of this subsection. The academic assessment system shall include a variety of assessment methods, including criterion-referenced and performance-based measures. Performance standards for determining if a student has successfully completed an assessment shall be initially determined by the commission in consultation with the advisory committees required in subsection (2) of this section.

(ii) The assessment system shall be designed so that the results under the assessment system are used by educators as tools to evaluate instructional practices, and to initiate appropriate educational support for students who have not mastered the essential academic learning requirements at the appropriate periods in the student's educational development.

(iii) Assessments measuring the essential academic learning requirements developed for RCW 28A.150.210(1) and the mathematics component of RCW 28A.150.210(2) referred to in this section as reading, writing, communications, and mathematics shall be developed and initially implemented by the commission before transferring the assessment system to the superintendent of public instruction on June 30, 1999. The elementary assessments for reading, writing, communications, and mathematics shall be available for use by school districts no later than the 1996-97 school year, the middle school assessment no later than the 1997-98 school year, and the high school assessment no later than the 1998-99 school year, unless the legislature takes action to delay or prevent implementation of the assessment system and essential academic learning requirements. Assessments measuring the essential academic learning requirements developed for the science component of RCW 28A.150.210(2) at the middle school and high school levels shall be available for use by districts no later than the ~~((1998-99))~~1999-2000 school year unless the legislature takes action to delay or prevent implementation of the assessment system and essential academic learning requirements.

The completed assessments and assessments still in development shall be transferred to the superintendent of public instruction by June 30, 1999, unless the legislature takes action to delay implementation of the assessment system and essential academic learning requirements. The superintendent shall continue the development of assessments on the following schedule: The history, civics, and geography assessments at the middle and high school levels shall be available for use by districts no later than [the] 2000-01 school year; the arts assessment for middle and high school levels shall be available for use by districts no later than [the] 2000-01 school year; and the health and fitness assessments for middle and high school levels shall be available no later than the 2001-02 school year. The elementary science assessment shall be available for use by districts not later than the 2001-02 school year. The commission or the superintendent, as applicable, shall upon request, provide opportunities for the education committees of the house of representatives and the senate to review the assessments and proposed modifications to the essential academic learning requirements before the modifications are adopted. By December 15, 1998, the commission on student learning shall recommend to the appropriate committees of the legislature a revised timeline for implementing these assessments and when the school districts should be required to participate. All school districts shall be required to participate in the history, civics, geography, arts, health, fitness, and elementary science assessments in the third year after the assessments are available to school districts.

To the maximum extent possible, the commission shall integrate knowledge and skill areas in development of the assessments.

(iv) Assessments for goals three and four of RCW 28A.150.210 shall be integrated in the essential academic learning requirements and assessments for goals one and two. Before the 1997-98 school year, the elementary assessment system in reading, writing, communications, and mathematics shall be optional. School districts that desire to participate before the 1997-98 school year shall notify the commission on student learning in a manner determined by the commission. Beginning in the 1997-98 school year, school districts shall be required to participate in the elementary assessment system for reading, writing, communications, and mathematics. Before the 2000-01 school year, participation by school districts in the middle school and high school assessment system for reading, writing, communications, mathematics, and science shall be optional. School districts that desire to participate before the 1998-99 school year shall notify the commission on student learning in a manner determined by the commission. Schools that desire to participate after the 1998-99 school year, shall notify the superintendent of public instruction in a manner determined by the superintendent. Beginning in the 2000-01 school year, all school districts shall be required to participate in the assessment system for reading, writing, communications, mathematics, and science.

(v) The commission on student learning may modify the essential academic learning requirements and the assessments for reading, writing, communications, mathematics, and science, as needed, before June 30, 1999. The commission shall, upon request, provide opportunities for the education committees of the house of representatives and the senate to review the assessments and proposed modifications to the essential academic learning requirements before the modifications are adopted.

(vi) The commission shall develop assessments that are directly related to the essential academic learning requirements, and are not biased toward persons with different learning styles, racial or ethnic backgrounds, or on the basis of gender;

(c) After a determination is made by the state board of education that the high school assessment system has been implemented and that it is sufficiently reliable and valid, successful completion of the high school assessment shall lead to a certificate of mastery. The certificate of mastery shall be obtained by most students at about the age of sixteen, and is evidence that the student has successfully mastered the essential academic learning requirements during his or her educational career. The certificate of mastery shall be required for graduation but shall not be the only requirement for graduation. The commission shall make recommendations to the state board of education regarding the relationship between the certificate of mastery and high school graduation requirements. Upon achieving the certificate of mastery, schools shall provide students with the opportunity to pursue career and educational objectives through educational pathways that emphasize integration of academic and vocational education. Educational pathways may include, but are not limited to, programs such as work-based learning, school-to-work transition, tech prep, vocational-technical education, running start, and preparation for technical college, community college, or university education;

(d) Consider methods to address the unique needs of special education students when developing the assessments in (b) and (c) of this subsection;

(e) Consider methods to address the unique needs of highly capable students when developing the assessments in (b) and (c) of this subsection;

(f) Develop recommendations on the time, support, and resources, including technical assistance, needed by schools and school districts to help students achieve the essential academic learning requirements. These recommendations shall include an estimate for the legislature, superintendent of public instruction, and governor on the expected cost of implementing the academic assessment system;

(g) Develop recommendations for consideration by the higher education coordinating board for adopting college and university entrance requirements for public school students that are consistent with the essential academic learning requirements and the certificate of mastery;

(h) Review current school district data reporting requirements for the purposes of accountability and meeting state information needs. The commission on student learning shall report recommendations to the joint select committee on education restructuring by September 15, 1996, on:

(i) What data is necessary to compare how school districts are performing before the essential academic learning requirements and the assessment system are implemented with how school districts are performing after the essential academic learning requirements and the assessment system are implemented; and

(ii) What data is necessary pertaining to school district reports under the accountability systems developed by the commission on student learning under this section;

(i) Recommend to the legislature, governor, state board of education, and superintendent of public instruction:

(i) A state-wide accountability system to monitor and evaluate accurately and fairly at elementary, middle, and high schools the level of learning occurring in individual schools and school districts with regard to the goals included in RCW 28A.150.210 (1) through (4). The accountability system must assess each school individually against its own baseline, schools with similar characteristics, and schools state-wide. The system shall include school-site, school district, and state-level accountability reports;

(ii) A school assistance program to help schools and school districts that are having difficulty helping students meet the essential academic learning requirements as measured by performance on the elementary, middle school, and high school assessments;

(iii) A system to intervene in schools and school districts in which significant numbers of students persistently fail to learn the essential academic learning requirements or meet the standards established for the elementary, middle school, and high school assessments; and

(iv) An awards program to provide incentives to school staff to help their students learn the essential academic learning requirements, with each school being assessed individually against its own baseline, schools with similar characteristics, and the state-wide average. Incentives shall be based on the rate of percentage change of students achieving the essential academic learning requirements and progress on meeting the state-wide average. School staff shall determine how the awards will be spent.

The commission shall make recommendations regarding a state-wide accountability system for reading in grades kindergarten through four by November 1, 1997. Recommendations for an accountability system in the other subject areas and grade levels shall be made no later than June 30, 1999;

(j) Report annually by December 1st to the legislature, the governor, the superintendent of public instruction, and the state board of education on the progress, findings, and recommendations of the commission; and

(4) The commission shall coordinate its activities with the state board of education and the office of the superintendent of public instruction.

(5) The commission shall seek advice broadly from the public and all interested educational organizations in the conduct of its work, including holding periodic regional public hearings.

(6) The commission shall select an entity to provide staff support and the office of the superintendent of public instruction shall provide administrative oversight and be the fiscal agent for the commission. The commission may direct the office of the superintendent of public instruction to enter into subcontracts, within the commission's resources, with school districts, teachers, higher education faculty, state agencies, business organizations, and other individuals and organizations to assist the commission in its deliberations.

(7) Members of the commission shall be reimbursed for travel expenses as provided in RCW 43.03.050 and 43.03.060.

(8)(a) By September 30, 1997, the commission on student learning, the state board of education, and the superintendent of public instruction shall jointly present recommendations to the education committees of the house of representatives and the senate regarding the high school assessments, the certificate of mastery, and high school graduation requirements.

When the officer has probable cause to believe that family or household members have assaulted each other, the officer is not required to arrest both persons. The officer shall arrest the person whom the officer believes to be the primary physical aggressor. In making this determination, the officer shall make every reasonable effort to consider: (i) The intent to protect victims of domestic violence under RCW 10.99.010; (ii) the comparative extent of injuries inflicted or serious threats creating fear of physical injury; and (iii) the history of domestic violence between the persons involved.

(3) Any police officer having probable cause to believe that a person has committed or is committing a violation of any of the following traffic laws shall have the authority to arrest the person:

(a) RCW 46.52.010, relating to duty on striking an unattended car or other property;

(e) RCW 46.20.342, relating to driving a motor vehicle while operator's license is suspended or revoked;

(f) RCW 46.61.5249, relating to operating a motor vehicle in a negligent manner.

(5) Any police officer having probable cause to believe that a person has committed or is committing a violation of RCW 88.12.025 shall have the authority to arrest the person.

(6) An officer may act upon the request of a law enforcement officer in whose presence a traffic infraction was committed, to stop, detain, arrest, or issue a notice of traffic infraction to the driver who is believed to have committed the infraction. The request by the witnessing officer shall give an officer the authority to take appropriate action under the laws of the state of Washington.

(7) Any police officer having probable cause to believe that a person has committed or is committing any act of indecent exposure, as defined in RCW 9A.88.010, may arrest the person.

(8) A police officer may arrest and take into custody, pending release on bail, personal recognizance, or court order, a person without a warrant when the officer has probable cause to believe that an order has been issued of which the person has knowledge under chapter 10.14 RCW and the person has violated the terms of that order.

(9) Any police officer having probable cause to believe that a person has, within twenty-four hours of the alleged violation, committed a violation of RCW 9A.50.020 may arrest such person.

(10) A police officer having probable cause to believe that a person illegally possesses or illegally has possessed a firearm or other dangerous weapon on private or public elementary or secondary school premises shall have the authority to arrest the person.

(12) No police officer may be held criminally or civilly liable for making an arrest pursuant to RCW 10.31.100 (2) or (8) if the police officer acts in good faith and without malice.

Sec. 2. RCW 26.50.060 and 1996 c 248 s 13 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) Upon notice and after hearing, the court may provide relief as follows:

(a) Restrain the respondent from committing acts of domestic violence;

(b) ~~((Exclude))~~ Restrain the respondent from going onto the grounds of, entering, or coming within a specified distance of the dwelling which the parties share, ((from)) the residence, workplace, or school of the petitioner, or ((from)) the day care or school of a child;

(c) On the same basis as is provided in chapter 26.09 RCW, the court shall make residential provision with regard to minor children of the parties. However, parenting plans as specified in chapter 26.09 RCW shall not be required under this chapter;

(d) Order the respondent to participate in batterers' treatment;

(e) Order other relief and restraints as it deems necessary for the protection of the petitioner and other family or household members sought to be protected, including orders or directives to a peace officer, as allowed under this chapter;

(f) Require the respondent to pay the administrative court costs and service fees, as established by the county or municipality incurring the expense and to reimburse the petitioner for costs incurred in bringing the action, including a reasonable attorney's fee;

(g) Restrain the respondent from having any contact with or coming within a specified distance of the victim of domestic violence or the victim's children or members of the victim's household with the intent of intimidating, harassing, or frightening the victim, the victim's children, or members of the victim's household or if the respondent knows or reasonably should have known that the victim, the victim's children, or members of the victim's household are afraid, intimidated, or harassed even if the respondent did not intend to place the victim, the victim's children, or members of the victim's household in fear, or intimidate or harass the victim, the victim's children, or members of the victim's household;

(h) Require the respondent to submit to electronic monitoring. The order shall specify who shall provide the electronic monitoring services and the terms under which the monitoring must be performed. The order also may include a requirement that the respondent pay the costs of the monitoring. The court shall consider the ability of the respondent to pay for electronic monitoring;

(i) Consider the provisions of RCW 9.41.800;

(j) Order possession and use of essential personal effects. The court shall list the essential personal effects with sufficient specificity to make it clear which property is included; and

(k) Order use of a vehicle.

(2) If a restraining order restrains the respondent from contacting the respondent's minor children the restraint shall be for a fixed period not to exceed one year. This limitation is not applicable to orders for protection issued under chapter 26.09, 26.10, or 26.26 RCW. With regard to other relief, if the petitioner has petitioned for relief on his or her own behalf or on behalf of the petitioner's family or household members or minor children, and the court finds that the respondent is likely to resume acts of domestic violence against the petitioner or the petitioner's family or household members or minor children when the order expires, the court may either grant relief for a fixed period or enter a permanent order of protection.

If the petitioner has petitioned for relief on behalf of the respondent's minor children, the court shall advise the petitioner that if the petitioner wants to continue protection for a period beyond one year the petitioner may either petition for renewal pursuant to the provisions of this chapter or may seek relief pursuant to the provisions of chapter 26.09 or 26.26 RCW.

(3) If the court grants an order for a fixed time period, the petitioner may apply for renewal of the order by filing a petition for renewal at any time within the three months before the order expires. The petition for renewal shall state the reasons why the petitioner seeks to renew the protection order. Upon receipt of the petition for renewal the court shall order a hearing which shall be not later than fourteen days from the date of the order. Except as provided in RCW 26.50.085, personal service shall be made on the respondent not less than five days before the hearing. If timely service cannot be made the court shall set a new hearing date and shall either require additional attempts at obtaining personal service or permit service by publication as provided in RCW 26.50.085 or by mail as provided in RCW 26.50.123. If the court permits service by publication or mail, the court shall set the new hearing date not later than twenty-four days from the date of the order. If the order expires because timely service cannot be made the court shall grant an ex parte order of protection as provided in RCW 26.50.070. The court shall grant the petition for renewal unless the respondent proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the respondent will not resume acts of domestic violence against the petitioner or the petitioner's children or family or household members when the order expires. The court may renew the protection order for another fixed time period or may enter a permanent order as provided in this section. The court may award court costs, service fees, and reasonable attorneys' fees as provided in subsection (1)(f) of this section.

(4) In providing relief under this chapter, the court may realign the designation of the parties as "petitioner" and "respondent" where the court finds that the original petitioner is the abuser and the original respondent is the victim of domestic violence and may issue an ex parte temporary order for protection in accordance with RCW 26.50.070 on behalf of the victim until the victim is able to prepare a petition for an order for protection in accordance with RCW 26.50.030.

(5) Except as provided in subsection (4) of this section, no order for protection shall grant relief to any party except upon notice to the respondent and hearing pursuant to a petition or counter-petition filed and served by the party seeking relief in accordance with RCW 26.50.050.

(6) The court order shall specify the date the order expires if any. The court order shall also state whether the court issued the protection order following personal service, service by publication, or service by mail and whether the court has approved service by publication or mail of an order issued under this section.

(7) If the court declines to issue an order for protection or declines to renew an order for protection, the court shall state in writing on the order the particular reasons for the court's denial.

Sec. 3. RCW 26.50.070 and 1996 c 248 s 14 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) Where an application under this section alleges that irreparable injury could result from domestic violence if an order is not issued immediately without prior notice to the respondent, the court may grant an ex parte temporary order for protection, pending a full hearing, and grant relief as the court deems proper, including an order:

(a) Restraining any party from committing acts of domestic violence;

(b) Restraining any party from going onto the grounds of ~~((Ø#))~~, entering, or coming within a specified distance of the dwelling that the parties share, from the residence, workplace, or school of the other, or from the day care or school of a child until further order of the court;

(c) Restraining any party from interfering with the other's custody of the minor children or from removing the children from the jurisdiction of the court;

(d) Restraining any party from having any contact with or coming within a specified distance of the victim of domestic violence or the victim's children or members of the victim's household with the intent of intimidating, harassing, or frightening the victim, the victim's children, or members of the victim's household or if the party knows or reasonably should have known that the victim, victim's children, or members of the victim's household are afraid, intimidated, or harassed even if the party did not intend to place the victim, victim's children, or members of the victim's household in fear, or intimidate or harass the victim, victim's children, or members of the victim's household; and

(e) Considering the provisions of RCW 9.41.800.

(2) Irreparable injury under this section includes but is not limited to situations in which the respondent has recently threatened petitioner with bodily injury or has engaged in acts of domestic violence against the petitioner.

(3) The court shall hold an ex parte hearing in person or by telephone on the day the petition is filed or on the following judicial day.

(4) An ex parte temporary order for protection shall be effective for a fixed period not to exceed fourteen days or twenty-four days if the court has permitted service by publication under RCW 26.50.085 or by mail under RCW 26.50.123. The ex parte order may be reissued. A full hearing, as provided in this chapter, shall be set for not later than fourteen days from the issuance of the temporary order or not later than twenty-four days if service by publication or by mail is permitted. Except as provided in RCW 26.50.050, 26.50.085, and 26.50.123, the respondent shall be personally served with a copy of the ex parte order along with a copy of the petition and notice of the date set for the hearing.

(5) Any order issued under this section shall contain the date and time of issuance and the expiration date and shall be entered into a state-wide judicial information system by the clerk of the court within one judicial day after issuance.

(6) If the court declines to issue an ex parte temporary order for protection the court shall state the particular reasons for the court's denial. The court's denial of a motion for an ex parte order of protection shall be filed with the court.

Sec. 4. RCW 26.50.110 and 1996 c 248 s 16 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) Whenever an order for protection is granted under this chapter and the respondent or person to be restrained knows of the order, a violation of ~~((the))~~ any restraint provision~~((s-or-of))~~ including a provision ~~((excluding))~~ restraining the person from going onto the grounds of, entering, or coming within a specified distance of a residence, workplace, school, or day care is a gross misdemeanor except as provided in subsections (4) and (5) of this section. Upon conviction, and in addition to any other penalties provided by law, the court may require that the respondent submit to electronic monitoring. The court shall specify who shall provide the electronic monitoring services, and the terms under which the monitoring shall be performed. The order also may include a requirement that the respondent pay the costs of the monitoring. The court shall consider the ability of the convicted person to pay for electronic monitoring.

(2) A peace officer shall arrest without a warrant and take into custody a person whom the peace officer has probable cause to believe has violated an order issued under this chapter that restrains the person ~~((or excludes the person))~~ in any manner including from going onto the grounds of, entering, or coming within a specified distance of a residence, workplace, school, or day care, if the person restrained knows of the order. Presence of the order in the law enforcement computer-based criminal intelligence information system is not the only means of establishing knowledge of the order.

(3) A violation of an order for protection shall also constitute contempt of court, and is subject to the penalties prescribed by law.

(4) Any assault that is a violation of an order issued under this chapter and that does not amount to assault in the first or second degree under RCW 9A.36.011 or 9A.36.021 is a class C felony, and any conduct in violation of a protective order issued under this chapter that is reckless and creates a substantial risk of death or serious physical injury to another person is a class C felony.

(5) A violation of a court order issued under this chapter is a class C felony if the offender has at least two previous convictions for violating the provisions of a no-contact order issued under chapter 10.99 RCW, a domestic violence protection order issued under chapter 26.09, 26.10, or 26.26 RCW or this chapter, or any federal or out-of-state order that is comparable to a no-contact or protection order issued under Washington law. The previous convictions may involve the same victim or other victims specifically protected by the no-contact orders or protection orders the offender violated.

(6) Upon the filing of an affidavit by the petitioner or any peace officer alleging that the respondent has violated an order for protection granted under this chapter, the court may issue an order to the respondent, requiring the respondent to appear and show cause within fourteen days why the respondent should not be found in contempt of court and punished accordingly. The hearing may be held in the court of any county or municipality in which the petitioner or respondent temporarily or permanently resides at the time of the alleged violation.

Providing to the court judicial information from the judicial information system under this section does not constitute the practice of law by the clerks, and clerks are not responsible for incorrect information. An order issued in accordance with this subsection is fully enforceable and shall be enforced under the provisions of this chapter.

(2) If a party files an action under chapter 26.09, 26.10, or 26.26 RCW, an order issued previously under this chapter between the same parties may be consolidated by the court under that action and cause number. The office of support enforcement may present its claim, and thereby preserve the support debt, by filing an affidavit setting forth the amount of the debt with the court, and by mailing a copy of the affidavit to the parties or their attorney prior to the date of the final proceeding.

Sec. 16. RCW 26.26.138 and 1996 c 248 s 11 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) Whenever a restraining order is issued under this chapter, and the person to be restrained knows of the order, a violation of the provisions restricting the person from acts or threats of violence or molesting or disturbing another party, or contacting or coming within a specified distance of another party with the intent of intimidating, harassing, or frightening the party or if the person knows or reasonably should have known that the other party is afraid, intimidated, or harassed even if that person did not intend to place the other party in fear, or intimidate or harass the other party, or of a provision restraining the person from going onto the grounds of ((~~the~~)), entering, or coming within a specified distance of the residence, workplace, school, or day care of another is a misdemeanor.

(2) A person is deemed to have notice of a restraining order if:

(a) The person to be restrained or the person's attorney signed the order;

(b) The order recites that the person to be restrained or the person's attorney appeared in person before the court;

(a) Obtaining information confirming the existence and terms of the order from a law enforcement agency; or

(b) Obtaining a certified copy of the order, certified to be an accurate copy of the original by a notary public or by the clerk of the court.

(4) A peace officer shall arrest and take into custody, pending release on bail, personal recognizance, or court order, a person without a warrant when the officer has probable cause to believe that:

(a) A restraining order has been issued under this chapter;

(b) The respondent or person to be restrained knows of the order; and

(c) The person to be arrested has violated the terms of the order restraining the person from acts or threats of violence or molesting or disturbing another party, from contacting or coming within a specified distance of another party with the intent of intimidating, harassing, or frightening the party or if the person knows or reasonably should have known that the other party is afraid, intimidated, or harassed even if that person did not intend to place the other party in fear, or intimidate or harass the party, or ((~~restraining the person~~)) from going onto the grounds of ((~~the~~)), entering, or coming within a specified distance of the residence, workplace, school, or day care of another.

(5) It is a defense to prosecution under subsection (1) of this section that the court order was issued contrary to law or court rule.

Sec. 17. RCW 26.44.063 and 1993 c 412 s 15 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) It is the intent of the legislature to minimize trauma to a child involved in an allegation of sexual or physical abuse. The legislature declares that removing the child from the home often has the effect of further traumatizing the child. It is, therefore, the legislature's intent that the alleged offender, rather than the child, shall be removed from the home and that this should be done at the earliest possible point of intervention in accordance with RCW 10.31.100, 13.34.130, this section, and RCW 26.44.130.

(2) In any judicial proceeding in which it is alleged that a child has been subjected to sexual or physical abuse, if the court finds reasonable grounds to believe that an incident of sexual or physical abuse has occurred, the court may, on its own motion, or the motion of the guardian ad litem or other parties, issue a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction restraining or enjoining the person accused of committing the abuse from:

(a) Acts or threats of violence or molesting or disturbing the peace of the alleged victim;

(b) Going onto the grounds of, entering, or coming within a specified distance of the family home, school, or day care of the alleged victim except as specifically authorized by the court; or

(c) Having any contact with or coming within a specified distance of the alleged victim with the intent of intimidating, harassing, or frightening the alleged victim or if the person knows or reasonably should have known that the alleged victim is afraid, intimidated, or harassed even if that person did not intend to place the alleged victim in fear, or intimidate or harass the alleged victim, except as specifically authorized by the court.

(3) In issuing a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, the court may impose any additional restrictions that the court in its discretion determines are necessary to protect the child from further abuse or emotional trauma pending final resolution of the abuse allegations.

(4) The court shall issue a temporary restraining order prohibiting a person from entering the family home if the court finds that the order would eliminate the need for an out-of-home placement to protect the child's right to nurturance, health, and safety and is sufficient to protect the child from further sexual or physical abuse or coercion.

(5) The court may issue a temporary restraining order without requiring notice to the party to be restrained or other parties only if it finds on the basis of the moving affidavit or other evidence that irreparable injury could result if an order is not issued until the time for responding has elapsed.

(6) A temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction:

(a) Does not prejudice the rights of a party or any child which are to be adjudicated at subsequent hearings in the proceeding; and

(b) May be revoked or modified.

(7) The person having physical custody of the child shall have an affirmative duty to assist in the enforcement of the restraining order including but not limited to a duty to notify the court as soon as practicable of any violation of the order, a duty to request the assistance of law enforcement officers to enforce the order, and a duty to notify the department of social and health services of any violation of the order as soon as practicable if the department is a party to the action. Failure by the custodial party to discharge these affirmative duties shall be subject to contempt proceedings.

(8) Willful violation of a court order entered under this section is a misdemeanor. A written order shall contain the court's directive and shall bear the legend: "Violation of this order with actual notice of its terms is a criminal offense under chapter 26.44 RCW, is also subject to contempt proceedings, and will subject a violator to arrest."

Sec. 18. RCW 10.99.040 and 1997 c 338 s 54 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) Because of the serious nature of domestic violence, the court in domestic violence actions:

(a) Shall not dismiss any charge or delay disposition because of concurrent dissolution or other civil proceedings;

(b) Shall not require proof that either party is seeking a dissolution of marriage prior to instigation of criminal proceedings;

(c) Shall waive any requirement that the victim's location be disclosed to any person, other than the attorney of a criminal defendant, upon a showing that there is a possibility of further violence: PROVIDED, That the court may order a criminal defense attorney not to disclose to his or her client the victim's location; and

(d) Shall identify by any reasonable means on docket sheets those criminal actions arising from acts of domestic violence.

(2) Because of the likelihood of repeated violence directed at those who have been victims of domestic violence in the past, when any person charged with or arrested for a crime involving domestic violence is held in or released from custody before arraignment or trial on bail or personal recognizance, the court (~~((authorizing the release))~~) may prohibit that person from having any contact with the victim or coming within a specified distance of the victim with the intent of intimidating, harassing, or frightening the victim or if the person knows or reasonably should have known that the victim is afraid, intimidated, or harassed even if that person did not intend to place the victim in fear, or intimidate or harass the victim. The jurisdiction authorizing the release or in which the person is held in custody shall determine whether that person should be prohibited from having any contact with the victim or coming within a specified distance of the victim with the intent of intimidating, harassing, or frightening the victim or if the person knows or reasonably should have known that the victim is afraid, intimidated, or harassed even if that person did not intend to place the victim in fear, or intimidate or harass the victim. If there is no outstanding restraining or protective order prohibiting that person from having contact with the victim or coming within a specified distance of the victim, the court (~~((authorizing release))~~) may issue, by telephone, a no-contact order prohibiting the person charged or arrested from having contact with the victim or coming within a specified distance of the victim with the intent of intimidating, harassing, or frightening the victim or if the person knows or reasonably should have known that the victim is afraid, intimidated, or harassed even if that person did not intend to place the victim in fear, or intimidate or harass the victim. In issuing the order, the court shall consider the provisions of RCW 9.41.800. The ~~((no-contact))~~ order shall also be issued in writing as soon as possible.

(3) At the time of arraignment the court shall determine whether ~~((a-no-contact))~~ an order under this section shall be issued or extended. If ~~((a-no-contact))~~ an order is issued or extended, the court may also include in the conditions of release a requirement that the defendant submit to electronic monitoring. If electronic monitoring is ordered, the court shall specify who shall provide the monitoring services, and the terms under which the monitoring shall be performed. Upon conviction, the court may require as a condition of the sentence that the defendant reimburse the providing agency for the costs of the electronic monitoring.

(4)(a) Willful violation of a court order issued under subsection (2) or (3) of this section is a gross misdemeanor except as provided in (b) and (c) of this subsection (4). Upon conviction and in addition to other penalties provided by law, the court may require that the defendant submit to electronic monitoring. The court shall specify who shall provide the electronic monitoring services and the terms under which the monitoring must be performed. The court also may include a requirement that the defendant pay the costs of the monitoring. The court shall consider the ability of the convicted person to pay for electronic monitoring.

(b) Any assault that is a violation of an order issued under this section and that does not amount to assault in the first or second degree under RCW 9A.36.011 or 9A.36.021 is a class C felony punishable under chapter 9A.20 RCW, and any conduct in violation of a protective order issued under this section that is reckless and creates a substantial risk of death or serious physical injury to another person is a class C felony punishable under chapter 9A.20 RCW.

(c) A willful violation of a court order issued under this section is a class C felony if the offender has at least two previous convictions for violating the provisions of ~~((a-no-contact))~~ an order issued under this chapter, a domestic violence protection order issued under chapter 26.09, 26.10, 26.26, or 26.50 RCW, or any federal or out-of-state order that is comparable to a no-contact order or protection order issued under Washington law. The previous convictions may involve the same victim or other victims specifically protected by the ~~((no-contact-orders-or-protection))~~ orders the offender violated.

(d) The written order releasing or holding in custody the person charged or arrested shall contain the court's directives and shall bear the legend: "Violation of this order is a criminal offense under chapter 10.99 RCW and will subject a violator to arrest; any assault, drive-by shooting, or reckless endangerment that is a violation of this order is a felony. You can be arrested even if any person protected by the order invites or allows you to violate the order's prohibitions. You have the sole responsibility to avoid or refrain from violating the order's provisions. Only the court can change the order." A certified copy of the order shall be provided to the victim. If ~~((a-no-contact-order))~~ an order prohibiting contact with or coming within a specified distance of the victim with the intent of intimidating, harassing, or frightening the victim or if the person knows or reasonably should have known that the victim is afraid, intimidated, or harassed even if that person did not intend to place the victim in fear, or intimidate or harass the victim has been issued prior to charging, that order shall expire at arraignment or within seventy-two hours if charges are not filed. Such orders need not be entered into the computer-based criminal intelligence information system in this state which is used by law enforcement agencies to list outstanding warrants.

(5) Whenever an order prohibiting contact with or coming within a specified distance of the victim with the intent of intimidating, harassing, or frightening the victim or if the person knows or reasonably should have known that the victim is afraid, intimidated, or harassed even if that person did not intend to place the victim in fear, or intimidate or harass the victim is issued, modified, or terminated under subsection (2) or (3) of this section, the clerk of the court shall forward a copy of the order on or before the next judicial day to the appropriate law enforcement agency specified in the order. Upon receipt of the copy of the order the law enforcement agency shall forthwith enter the order for one year or until the expiration date specified on the order into any computer-based criminal intelligence information system available in this state used by law enforcement agencies to list outstanding warrants. Entry into the law enforcement information system constitutes notice to all law enforcement agencies of the existence of the order. The order is fully enforceable in any jurisdiction in the state.

Sec. 19. RCW 10.99.050 and 1997 c 338 s 55 are each amended to read as follows:

(1) When a defendant is found guilty of a crime and a condition of the sentence restricts the defendant's ability to have contact with the victim or to come within a specified distance of the victim with the intent of intimidating, harassing, or frightening the victim or if the defendant knows or reasonably should have known that the victim is afraid, intimidated, or harassed even if the defendant did not intend to place the victim in fear, or intimidate or harass the victim, such condition shall be recorded and a written certified copy of that order shall be provided to the victim.

(2) Willful violation of a court order issued under this section is a gross misdemeanor. Any assault that is a violation of an order issued under this section and that does not amount to assault in the first or second degree under RCW 9A.36.011 or 9A.36.021 is a class C felony, and any conduct in violation of a protective order issued under this section that is reckless and creates a substantial risk of death or serious physical injury to another person is a class C felony. A willful violation of a court order issued under this section is also a class C felony if the offender has at least two previous convictions for violating the provisions of ~~((a no-contact))~~ an order issued under this chapter, or a domestic violence protection order issued under chapter 26.09, 26.10, 26.26, or 26.50 RCW, or any federal or out-of-state order that is comparable to a no-contact order or protection order that is issued under Washington law. The previous convictions may involve the same victim or other victims specifically protected by the ~~((no-contact orders or protection))~~ orders the offender violated.

The written order shall contain the court's directives and shall bear the legend: Violation of this order is a criminal offense under chapter 10.99 RCW and will subject a violator to arrest; any assault, drive-by shooting, or reckless endangerment that is a violation of this order is a felony.

(3) Whenever an order prohibiting contact with or coming within a specified distance of the victim with the intent of intimidating, harassing, or frightening the victim or if the person knows or reasonably should have known that the victim is afraid, intimidated, or harassed even if that person did not intend to place the victim in fear, or intimidate or harass the victim is issued pursuant to this section, the clerk of the court shall forward a copy of the order on or before the next judicial day to the appropriate law enforcement agency specified in the order. Upon receipt of the copy of the order the law enforcement agency shall forthwith enter the order for one year into any computer-based criminal intelligence information system available in this state used by law enforcement agencies to list outstanding warrants. Sec. 22. RCW 9.94A.360 and 1997 c 338 s 5 are each amended to read as follows:

The offender score is measured on the horizontal axis of the sentencing grid. The offender score rules are as follows:

The offender score is the sum of points accrued under this section rounded down to the nearest whole number.

(1) A prior conviction is a conviction which exists before the date of sentencing for the offense for which the offender score is being computed. Convictions entered or sentenced on the same date as the conviction for which the offender score is being computed shall be deemed "other current offenses" within the meaning of RCW 9.94A.400.

(2) Class A and sex prior felony convictions shall always be included in the offender score. Class B prior felony convictions other than sex offenses shall not be included in the offender score, if since the last date of release from confinement (including full-time residential treatment) pursuant to a felony conviction, if any, or entry of judgment and sentence, the offender had spent ten consecutive years in the community without committing any crime that subsequently results in a conviction. Class C prior felony convictions other than sex offenses shall not be included in the offender score if, since the last date of release from confinement (including full-time residential treatment) pursuant to a felony conviction, if any, or entry of judgment and sentence, the offender had spent five consecutive years in the community without committing any crime that subsequently results in a conviction. Serious traffic convictions shall not be included in the offender score if, since the last date of release from confinement (including full-time residential treatment) pursuant to a felony conviction, if any, or entry of judgment and sentence, the offender spent five years in the community without committing any crime that subsequently results in a conviction. This subsection applies to both adult and juvenile prior convictions.

(3) Out-of-state convictions for offenses shall be classified according to the comparable offense definitions and sentences provided by Washington law. Federal convictions for offenses shall be classified according to the comparable offense definitions and sentences provided by Washington law. If there is no clearly comparable offense under Washington law or the offense is one that is usually considered subject to exclusive federal jurisdiction, the offense shall be scored as a class C felony equivalent if it was a felony under the relevant federal statute.

(4) Score prior convictions for felony anticipatory offenses (attempts, criminal solicitations, and criminal conspiracies) the same as if they were convictions for completed offenses.
