PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Das: "Mr. President, each time I drive to the capitol campus I'm in awe of the grandeur and the importance of this place in Washington state. Yes, the sandstone buildings are amazing and the grounds are beautiful. The people bustle with importance but to me this place is truly remarkable because what it holds, one of the state's most precious assets, our democracy. Senators, representatives, staff members and the public come here year after year, session after session, with one common goal they're here, like I am, to make Washington a better place. They've, they're here to improve our schools, bolster our infrastructure, and ensure that most, our most vulnerable neighbors are safe. They're here to increase access to health care, alleviate homelessness, and protect our environment for future generations. Now as a first-year Senator, I am part of that grand tradition. I'm here to make Washington a welcoming place for all who call it home. I'm so proud of the residents of my district that have put their faith in me to represent them. Thinking back on my life it seems unlikely that I would end up here. My journey became, started in India from the state of Bihar and I immigrated to the United States with my family when I was eight months old. I spent much of my life moving around but eventually I landed in beautiful Washington state. I am proud to call Kent and the 47th District my home. In the Senate I join the grand tradition of strong women. I join a wave of women of color who took their seats this year in Washington, in the Washington State Legislature. This year the Legislature is about forty percent women. I'm honored to be one of those women, to be able to add another woman's voice to the conversation. I'm confident that the number of women will continue to grow in the coming years and as more young women are inspired to run for office. I hope that my time and as a senator can be an inspiration for those young women. I believe our democracy should be accessible to all women and communities of color and I believe that we are making much progress. My fellow senators have been so welcoming during my first weeks here in the legislature that I am immensely grateful for that. Thank you. I, to show my gratitude and return the favor, I have brought you a gift. I hope that these Indian sweets from India Village in Kent will remind you how sweet life is and how sweet it is to serve in the Washington State Legislature. And don't forget to reuse your boxes. Thank you Mr. President."

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Liias: “Thank you Mr. President. In December Senator-elect, at the time, Das contacted me to grab coffee. She wanted to chat about what service in the legislature would be like and so, you know, I thought, ‘Great.’ I set aside an hour of time on a Saturday afternoon and we met up at a wonderful coffee shop and Mr. President that coffee lasted four hours long. Four hours. Now it was an enjoyable four hours but Senator-elect Das clearly was enthusiastic about embracing her new role as the voice for the 47th District...”

President Habib: “Senator Liias, those of us who know you know that you weren’t doing any of the talking during that four hour period.”

Senator Liias: “That’s a good point, Mr. President, but we’re talking about Senator Das right now. Her energy, her enthusiasm and just the great question she asked in that meeting and every subsequent interaction I’ve had with her tell me that we’re all in in for a challenge as we have to explain why we do things the way we do. And sometimes there’s not always a good reason and so she asked those questions but also I think she’s going to challenge us to think more creatively and think about folks whose voices aren’t a part of the process. And just a warning to all my colleagues, when she asks you for a one-hour coffee maybe don’t schedule anything right after that meeting because it may last a little bit longer. Thank you Mr. President and welcome to our colleague.”

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT

President Habib: “Thank you and on behalf of the entire Senate, Senator Das we’re so fortunate to have you here and please know that you’re part of our family. And as has been said by others, we disagree about policy but we really do try to treat one another with respect and also become friends with one another and it’s been my pleasure to be able to do that.”

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Hunt: “Thank you. Just a little bit of history, since I’ve been on this place as a staff member and a legislator for a long time, when the Senate used to be pretty much or was an all male body there was a very strong tradition on your first speech you had to give every member of the Senate a cigar.”

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator Short: “Thank you Mr. President. Just reminding everyone: We have in the rotunda, we’re doing a photo. Those of us who are wearing pink, to honor Senator Wilson and her battle with cancer right now. I know she’s not here but I think we should still do the picture and then we can send it to her.”

MOTION

At 12:40 p.m., on motion of Senator Liias, the Senate was declared to be at ease subject to the call of the President.
