MOTIONS

On motion of Senator Pedersen, all measures listed on the Introduction and First Reading report were referred to the committees as designated.

On motion of Senator Pedersen, the Senate advanced to the eighth order of business.

MOTION

Senator Nobles moved adoption of the following resolution:

SENATE RESOLUTION

By Senators Nobles, Lovick, Billig, Boehnke, Braun, Cleveland, Conway, Dhingra, Frame, Gildon, Hasegawa, Hawkins, Kauffman, Keiser, King, Kuderer, Lovelett, MacEwen, Mullet, Muzzall, Pedersen, Randall, Rivers, Robinson, Rolfes, Saldaña, Salomon, Schoesler, Shewmake, Short, Stanford, Torres, Wellman, C. Wilson, J. Wilson, and L. Wilson

WHEREAS, Today, the third Monday in January, we remember and honor the life and legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., who became a beacon of hope for actualizing racial equality in our nation; and

WHEREAS, 2023 marks the 55th anniversary of Dr. King's murder; and

WHEREAS, Dr. King used his gift of oration to awaken America to the struggles of disenfranchised communities, particularly African-Americans, through nonviolent means; and

WHEREAS, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., encouraged others through his dedication to achieving equality. He once said, "Life's most persistent and urgent question is: What are you doing for others?"; and

WHEREAS, Dr. King believed that a person's worth should be measured not by his or her color, culture, or class but rather by his or her commitment to making life better for all through service rendered to each other; and

WHEREAS, We mourn the loss of former Black and African American senators who not only tirelessly served in the Legislature, but paved the way for many to follow in their paths; and

WHEREAS, Dr. King's unwavering support for the principles of racial justice and social equality helped transform America; and

WHEREAS, Black communities have been disproportionately affected by the coronavirus pandemic and its continuing effects; and

WHEREAS, In 2020, an immense public outcry and movement that followed the police killing of George Floyd – a Black man – continues to call for immediate actions toward eliminating systemic racism and police brutality; and

WHEREAS, Dr. King's steadfast pursuit of fairness encouraged others, as exemplified in his famous "Letter from Birmingham Jail," in which he said, "Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere."

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the Senate, in recognition of the courageous leadership and legacy of hope demonstrated by Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., honor his memory by urging all citizens of our state to continue the legacy of Dr.

King by condemning racism in all its forms and advancing a more perfect union where all people experience fair treatment under our laws.

Senators Nobles, Short, Fortunato, Saldaña, Wilson, J., Hasegawa, Trudeau and Warnick spoke in favor of adoption of the resolution.

MOTION

On motion of Senator Hasegawa, and without objection, the remarks of Senator Nobles were spread upon the journal.

Senator Nobles: "Thank you, Mr. President. Well, we just had a song, but I have another one for you. Happy birthday to you, Happy birthday to you, Happy birthday, Happy birthday to you, Happy birthday to you, Happy birthday. And I might not have the most beautiful voice and you might have heard that Stevie Wonder hit before. You might be wondering why Senator Nobles is singing on the Senate floor. But I wanted to bring to your attention that this song was written by Stevie Wonder. He shared with Coretta Scott King that he had a dream, and in his dream, he had a vision that he could write this song to help to move forward the movement to pass these senate legislation to offer a day to celebrate Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. In 1998 Stevie Wonder wrote that song and around that time, there was a growing movement to establish a national holiday to honor of Dr. King. Many states and cities had established a holiday, but the movement was asking for a national holiday in recognition. Stevie Wonder, as a strong supporter of the civil rights movement, wanted to do his part. And he wanted to raise awareness and contribute to this movement. So, he released his version of the 'Happy Birthday' song to raise awareness. But let's take it back to the beginning of the movement for a moment.

The first proposed legislation was offered by a Democrat, and it took about fifteen years and later another piece of legislation was sponsored by a Republican. And that legislation passed. And I learned recently that it was because of this leadership, this type of leadership in this bipartisan effort to recognize the importance of social justice and civil rights and peace in our county and an opportunity for us to come together, that passed this important piece of legislation.

And yes, we still have very important work to do. A lot more work to do. Once the legislation was passed by the President the opposition pushed for rebranding. They said, 'No, let's not call it Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Day. Let's call it Civil Rights Day or Equality Day.' But those titles attempted to dilute the legacy of this unparalleled leader. Throughout his leadership Dr. King had an immense focus on not just the civil rights movement, but on poverty, but on economic injustice, wealth distribution and education. And as someone who serves on two education committees here in this Senate, that last one, of education, really stands out to me because I know that the remarkable impact that education can have. That access to education, that a school environment can have on our youngest learners. So, this is particularly important for our young people. And this day is, for me, really why we are here, why our work is so crucial. The recognition of this day, dedicated to one our nations most prominent leaders, extends beyond party. It is a reminder that this session and every session have a really important duty. We have a duty to our children, to our future, and to continue emerging from the tumultuous period we experienced in the pandemic.

In 1947 Dr. King published a paper titled The Purpose of Education. Mr. President, I know I have been relying on my notes a little bit, but do you mind if I read a little excerpt from his paper?”

President Heck: “Please proceed.”

Senator Nobles: “Thank you. ‘The function of education, therefore, is to teach one to think intensively and to think critically. But education which stops with efficiency may prove the greatest menace to society. The most dangerous criminal may be the man gifted with reason, but with no morals.’

And so, this is why we honor Dr. King every single year. We must remember that this is far greater than division and grammar, but we have an opportunity to guide the moral compass of our children. We must remember that our children are absorbing the world around them and are questioning everything, including the past. And they should. I hope for all of our children, our grandchildren, our great grandchildren, that they continue to learn from our faults. That they continue to learn from our past. And that more importantly they help us to build a better future. History is so critical for our students. Understanding the legacy and the why behind a day like Martin Luther King Day is so important for our students. And not just some history, but the many stories. The stories that will allow our children to create the kind of future that we want to see for them. That they want to see for themselves. So, I hope when they learn about the histories and legacies of the leaders that came before us, and when they remember how we came together to create a holiday like Martin Luther King Day, and how, despite our differences and identity and region and party, that collectively we align to fulfill our shared goals of a better tomorrow for each of us and for each of our children. Thank you Mr. President.”

The President declared the question before the Senate to be the adoption of Senate Resolution No. 8604.

The motion by Senator Nobles carried and the resolution was adopted by voice vote.

MOTION

On motion of Senator Pedersen, the Senate reverted to the third order of business.

INTRODUCTION OF SPECIAL GUESTS

The President welcomed and introduced The Honorable Jay Inslee, Governor, who was seated at the rostrum.

With permission of the Senate, business was suspended to allow Governor Inslee to address the Senate.

REMARKS BY GOVERNOR INSLEE

Governor Inslee: “Thank you for this huge honor to be able to address this chamber on this special day. It is a huge honor for a couple of reasons. One, to in any way honor the most inspirational effective leader in the history of America to allow us to march, in our continuing march toward a more perfect union. And second, it is a personal privilege because with Senator Warnick, Trudi and I are one of the few people in this room right now that were actually adults to watch what he meant for America in real time. And you know, history always seems inevitable when you look backwards. This progress was not inevitable when this man was alive. It was questioned. It was fought. It was controversial. He was subject to massive personal attacks, obviously physical threats, and what he did, I have to tell you, was change the face of this America through personal effort and still it’s astounding to me to see what happened. The difference between America from November 1961 when he went to the University of Washington and gave a speech and the end of this life in 1968 was an entirely new nation. And I watched that happen. So, to be able to lend my voice to the importance of this holiday, it is a privilege that you have asked me to say a few words. I just want to focus on two of his, at least in my mind, quotes that speak closest to my heart. If I may Mr. Lt. Governor? He said, [All men] ‘are caught in an inescapable network of mutuality, tied in a single garment of destiny. Whatever effects one directly, affects all indirectly. I can never be what I ought to be until you are what you ought to be, [and] you can never be what you ought to be until I am what I ought to be.’ And I think in your work in the next several weeks I know you’ll be directed by an effort to be all this chamber can be so that every citizen in the state of Washington can be all they can to be. And if we follow that admonition, we’re going to do great work together this session. The second, the second quote is the one least noted. Dr. King had two things he fought. Here is what he said about the two twin evils: ‘There are two inseparable twins. The twins of racial injustice and economic injustice. These are directly linked.’ And it is that second part of economic injustice as Senator Hasegawa talked about that is frequently sort of given short shrift in his struggles. He understood you could not have one without solving the other. And when he lost his life in Memphis, he was fighting for economic injustice. He was there to stand up for the refuse workers who were trying to have some economic justice on the day he lost his life. And so, I think we all can be inspired to focus on that as well. And I want to compliment this chamber in the state of Washington that has focused on that, in having the highest minimum wage in the nation. In passing overtime reform. In passing paid leave. In passing the best career connected learning program in the United States. In investing in our students and our educational system. And having the best financial aid program for our kids to go to college. This chamber’s work, to follow Dr. Martin Luther King and attack economic injustice is something I think you should be proud of, and our state is proud of us. Let’s keep this march of justice going. Thank you.”

[EDITOR’S NOTE: Works quoted: King Jr., M. L. (1963). Letter from a Birmingham Jail; Martin Luther King, Jr., “My Pilgrimage to Nonviolence.” Fellowship, New York, NY, September 1, 1958]

The President thanked the Governor for his remarks.

MOTION

At 1:10 p.m., on motion of Senator Pedersen, the Senate adjourned until 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, January 17, 2023.
